Tax Decrease In Hands Of Aldermen

Newton's tax rate for 1973 may be reduced by as much as $5.60 per thousand of assessed valuation if the Board of Aldermen approves Mayor Theodore Mann's request for a transfer of $1.9 million from surplus.

A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen has been called for Monday (Aug. 6) for the purpose of voting on the transfer.

The reduction of $5.60 would being the tax rate for 1973 down to $134 per thousand.

The amount of surplus for 1973 is the largest in the city's history. The transfer of $1.9 million would leave about $561,000 in the city treasury.

In this election year some aldermen may be expected not to approve transfer of as much money as requested by the mayor so that he may not use the issue of a reduction in taxes as effectively in his campaign.

If the board approves $1.5 million against the tax impact, the reduction will be $4.50 per thousand, with a $135.10 tax rate.

If the lowest practical figure, $1 million, is approved, the reduction would be $3.12, and the tax rate would be $136.48.

This year's decrease is the first in about 30 years. Mayor Mann, who had been suggesting that Newton taxpayers might be in for a "pleasant surprise" this year, attributes much of the decrease to the federal revenue-sharing program, which provided more than $1 million, and much lower costs than usual for snow removal during the past, mild winter.

The mayor pointed out that he considers the tax reduction "one of the major accomplishments" of his administration. He said that even with federal aid the city has faced increased costs everywhee, and in spite of this Newton has not sacrificed either the quality of services or the long-needed upgrading of equipment.

Mann also tossed bouquets at department heads, the Board of Aldermen, and the School Committee, "without whose cooperation and ceaseless efforts we would not have been able to make this favorable announcement" on the decrease in the tax rate.

Mayor Mann made the announcement after a meeting with Arthur Marr, director of Finance, Milton Manin, chairman of the Board of Assessors, Eliot Cohen, president of the Board of Aldermen, and Sidney Small, chairman of the aldermanic Finance Committee.

The new estimated tax rate will be in effect for only 12 months of the 18-month fiscal period the cities and towns of Massachusetts are currently working through to enable the state's fiscal calendar to coincide with the calendar used by the federal government.

The tax rate for the remaining six months of the period will be exactly half of the rate for the 12-month period. If this year's tax rate is established at $134 per thousand dollars of evaluation, taxpayers can expect a six-month bill next year of $67 on the thousand.

The expected decrease in the tax rate follows immediately after the largest property tax hike in the city's history. In 1972 the tax rate jumped $18 from $121.60 to $139.60.

The surplus transfer, if approved for $1.9 million by the Board of Aldermen, will represent the largest transfer in memory.

Budget surpluses from the preceding year have always been applied to the current year's expenses to

One mouthful at a time Building I at Newton North High School has been reduced to a pile of rubble. The demolition of the old high school building presages the fall opening of the new, multi-million dollar high educational edifice. In the minds of many Newton residents, particularly North High graduates, it also means the end of an era. Memories are tugged as the bricks tumble.

Newton Sent 3 Units To Delta Crash

The Newton Police Department responded within minutes of an emergency appeal late Tuesday morning and sent three ambulances to the scene of the tragic crash of the Delta DC9 jetliner at Logan Airport.

The department's new ambulance was dispatched at 11:38 a.m., only 15 minutes after the alarm was initially received at Boston Fire Headquarters. Newton Police Officers John W. Kiley and George Longbottom commandeered the new ambulance.

A patrol wagon used in the Newton Corner area was immediately stripped, outfitted as an ambulance and sent hurrying to the crash scene at the end of Logan's Runway 4R under the command of Officers Richard Lochiatto and Donald O'Neil.

Officers John Roman and John Coffey sped their combination ambulance-patrol wagon over the same route and arrived at the same time as the other emergency vehicles from Newton.

All three ambulances were aided on their mercy run by state police who had blocked off one lane of the Massachusetts Turnpike for the use of all emergency vehicles rushing to the crash scene from the different suburbs west of Boston.

The Callahan Tunnel under Boston Harbor was also closed to regular traffic by the state police and upon exiting the three Newton ambulances were sped along another emergency lane to the fallen craft.

When it became apparent there was only one survivor among the 89 passengers aboard the tragic flight, the Newton vehicles were dismissed from their grisly watch.

All three left Logan Airport at 1:38 p.m., leaving the task of transporting the recovered bodies to the sufficient number of Boston police and fire vehicles on hand at the airport.

Henri Pelletier To Run For Alderman

Henri D. Pelletier of 120 Church St., has announced that he will run for alderman-at-large in Ward 7.

"If there is one hope which exceeds all others in making my decision to run," Pelletier said, "it is that somehow I can help Newton by addressing the real issues."

HENRI PELLETIER

Explaining that he is running as part of a slate with mayoral candidate Elliott Berry, Pelletier said the issues they espouse are: rent control, low income housing, community day-care centers, amnesty, free health clinics, corporate accounting in Newton of defense contracts on both the physical and moral ramifications which they may have on the people.

"These are issues which have to be spoken," the candidate declared. "These issues have been effectively skirted by most other candidates."

"It is my hope," Pelletier said, "that other candidates will cease the political smokescreen bit and address themselves to the real issues."

Mayoral Contenders Agree To Limits

Newton's 1973 mayoral race will have several innovative features, thanks to the four contenders for the city's top job.

The candidates have agreed to limit campaign expenditures, ban billboard, radio and television advertising, and make monthly disclosures of campaign contributions and expenditures.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann released a list of his contributors and expenditures, similar to the one released by candidate William Carmen two weeks ago. It appears elsewhere in the paper.

The other two contenders are Elliott Berry and Alan MacNeil.

In their two and a half hour meeting at City Hall last week, the candidates agreed not to spend more than $38,186, the sum Mann spent in his last campaign.

All four agreed not to use billboard advertising. MacNeil declined to join the other three in staying away from paid radio and television ads.

MacNeil also declined to go along with monthly disclosures, a procedure initiated by Carmen last month.

The only point discussed that did not receive the approval of at least three candidates was a limit on contributions.

Carmen said he will limit the amount of individual contributions to $250, Berry to $100, while Mann and MacNeil both felt that the present limit of $3,000 should be allowed.

Mann said, however, that he will "probably establish a ceiling on contributions lower than $3,000."

All candidates except MacNeil agreed to have Common Cause of Massachusetts, a citizens' lobby group, monitor the campaign.

Carole Cohen, program director of Common Cause, which is also monitoring campaigns in Boston and Worcester, explained that her group has an "ulterior motive" in monitoring — to point up the inadequacy of election laws, which besides being inadequate are not properly enforced.

Common Cause does not require monthly disclosures, but schedules candidates' financial reports to be submitted 15 days before a preliminary election and 15 and 5 days before the regular election.

The next monthly report, as agreed on by the three candidates, will be due at Common Cause on Aug. 24. The Relief Is Just A Phone Call Away

By LEN BATEMAN
Of The Graphic Staff

You can probably rattle off the names of a score of young mothers who would tend to suffer acute anxiety pangs at the thought of interrupted phone service of even the briefest duration.

But 25-year-old Faye Goldstein of Chestnut Hill is different. She uses the phone to help eliminate the Ma Bell, umbilical cord phobia from the lives of as many women as possible.

She went that "only link to the outside world and sanity route" herself but soon decided it would be her own fault if, in 20 years, she woke up and found herself still on the phone talking of cabbages and kings and things.

Not content to just sit at home and dream of a career that might have been, she is now at home helping other women realize their potential as persons who also happen to be mothers and housekeepers.

Parlaying her knowledge of motherhood with a keen sense of the marketplace, Faye, with the encouragement of her husband, Larry, a computer analyst, has organized her own business.

She has, since last September, mastered the art of combining the divergent roles of wife and businesswoman. In fact, she took time out earlier this week to give birth to her second child a boy.

Working out of a small, paneled office in her home, Faye Goldstein is the founder and president of the International Babysitting Service, Inc.

Her employee files bulge with the applications of young, bright men and women with unending talent and degrees but little chance of employment in their chosen fields because of the current, tight job market.

Her application for services file is just as filled with the names of working mothers, widowed fathers, and just plain harassed parents seeking a few days of solitude away from the brood.

Fulfiller of needs is probably the best description of Faye. Not content to just assign anyone of her babysitters to any home, she will interview thoroughly to ascertain the requirements, both physical and psychological, of the family to be serviced.

She will match up those requirements with the talents and personalities of her employees. She will also insist that her babysitters meet, if time permits, the families they will be working for in the days, weeks or months ahead.

"Someone is always calling for a sitter at the last moment," Faye stated, "but I really don't worry about matching personalities at that point."

She has often filled in as a babbysitter herself when time has not permitted finding someone on her employee list.

In fact, she first became interested in her present occupation when she and her husband and three-year-old son, Seth, sallied forth on several occasions to babysit for vacationing parents during varied lengths of time.

"Some may object to a babysitter who brings their own child on an assignment, fearing they will pay more attention to their own than those they were hired to mind," Faye observed.

"In our own case, poor Seth was usually the one to lose out when we were babysitting,

Promise Quieter Concert

A rock music concert scheduled this evening (Aug. 2) at Newton Centre Playground will go on as planned but the decibel level will be decidedly lower than a previous performance at the same location.

Neighbors in the area banded together after a similar concert last week and presented the Board of Aldermen with a petition asking for a ban on the use of amplifiers at outdoor rock music performances in the playground.

In their petition, which appears on the Opinion Page, residents of Chapin Road, Stafford Road and Pleasant Street told the Board of Aldermen the previous concert was held "with considerable annoyance" to the neighborhood.

They also asked that any permits needed for the concerts be withheld until its sponsors agree to eliminate the amplifiers.

State Nullifies Falls Developer Choice

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Edward Mangini of the state Department of Community Affairs in effect last week nullified the vote of the Redevelopment Authority taken June 11 to select the proposal of J.F. White Construction Co. for development of the state-aided portion of the Lower Falls project.

Mangini at a hearing in DCA offices last week said he will recommend that no disposition agreement be approved by DCA unless it has the prior approval of Mayor Theodore Mann, the Redevelopment Authority, the city Planning Department, the Lower Falls Project Area Committee (LOPAC), and the community.

The hearing was requested by LOPAC to protest the selection of the White plan over the wishes of the entire community and the city government, most of whom preferred the plan submitted by developers Spaulding & Slye. The White plan was rated fourth choice of four plans submitted.

Mangini heard testimony from more than a dozen representatives of the community and the administration. All agreed that if the decision of the Redevelopment Authority were allowed to stand, redevelopment would be set back not only in Newton but possibly in the country in general.

Alderman Richard McGrath said, "Almost a 360-degree turn was made in the Newton Redevelopment Authority in the past few years. A sense of hesitant cooperation developed into active cooperation. Because of new appointments to the Authority, a constructive attitude developed.

The sensitivity to feelings of the community - that's on the black now. I positively know that if this decision stands, it will have a detrimental effect."

Others confirmed the change in attitude of the community toward the Authority since 1970, when questionable methods of inviting bids had been used.

The Authority vote in favor of J.F. White (Woodland Realty Trust) as the developer came as a shock, in view of the increasing trust that was felt about the actions of the Authority.

Alderman Alan Barkin, chairman of the Land Use Committee, and Lower Falls alderman Louis Egelson vied with each other in expressing regret that they each had participated in the land rezoning, thus removing the project from the control of the Board of Aldermen.

In 1970, they both reminded the group, aldermen had resisted requests by the Redevelopment Authority to change the zone before plans were approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Early this year, Egelson said, Authority member Robert Davidson had argued successfully that developers would not go through the process of having plans drawn up unless first the zone were changed and the developers could be sure that there would be no trouble with zoning. The board rezoned the land.

"You can understand the embarrassment I felt when the Redevelopment Authority selected White," Egelson said.

Barkin asked rhetorically, "Who would have been hurt, what harm would there have been if the first choice of the community had been selected? The Redevelopment Authority heard us say many times in the Land Use Committee, 'Be responsive.' "

Mayor Mann commented that he felt he had made two excellent appointments to the Authority, Cecil Cadwell (chairman) and Richard Clarey, both of whom were acceptable to the community. He pointed out that Clarey had voted for the Spaulding & Slye plan and Cadwell had abstained, "but for a different reason."

Of the three who voted for J.F. White, Mario DiCarlo is a holdover, the mayor said, whose resignation had been requested but not received some time ago. Lawrence Sullivan is the governor's appointee, and Robert Davidson's term had expired and would not be renewed.

"We took a long step backward on this one," the mayor said. "I had every confidence that the community would be rewarded for its work. I fully expected that Spaulding & Slye would be selected."

John Young, vice-chairman of LOPAC, complimented the mayor, who he said had worked harder than anybody on redevelopment, then got down to the business of telling Mangini why he felt the Authority vote should not be accepted.

In addition to the disregard of community input, Young cited attitudes of DiCarlo and Sullivan. In Young's opinion, DiCarlo "shouldn't be on the Authority at all."

Young reported that DiCarlo had once said, "I voted against the Spaulding & Slye proposal because of the articles John Young is always putting in the papers about me." Young has been an outspoken critic of DiCarlo for many years.

Young also said that comments had been made by Sullivan and others at Authority meetings to the effect that the Authority "owed" the contract to J.F. White Co. because the redevelopment of Newton Centre had not come through, and White had expected to do some work there.

In making these charges, Young said pointedly that his remarks could be confirmed by "someone present in the room."

It was learned later that he was referring to Clarey, who did confirm Young's quotations and said he would be willing to see his name so used in the press.

The meeting was attended by Hugh Arcese, LOPAC chairman; Representatives Lois Pines and Peter Harrington; Brendan Feeney and Donald Budge, officers of the Lower Falls Improvement Association; Anton Pruckner, chairman of the Newton Corner Citizens Participation Committee; Mrs. Stanley Colantuono, a resident of Lower Falls; Gerald Early, executive director of the Authority and Charles Thomas, Newton Planning Director in addition to those already mentioned. Nearly all contributed to the discussion.

Hearing repeatedly from all those present that there was no support anywhere for the White proposal except from the three Authority members who voted for it, Mangini said, "I am not going to delay my decision on this. I am going to say right now that I will recommend that the disposition agreement not be accepted until agreed on by everyone."

Mangini said the day after the hearing that "acting arbitrarily" would be one basis for DCA disapproval of the Authority's selection. "If all plans were acceptable, then it was arbitrary to choose one not wanted," Mangini said.

He said, contrary to an earlier opinion of the Authority's legal counsel, another vote may be taken.

Mangini thought that if at

Teacher Wants North High Opening Delayed Until Asbestos Problem Solved

A teacher at Newton North High School has brought to public attention the use of asbestos in the new high school building and asked the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee to delay the opening of the school until precautionary steps have been taken.

Mrs. Justine Uritam presented to the committee her letter to David Geike, president of the Newton Teachers Association, detailing the dangers of asbestos. Among the health hazards she cited were the disease asbestosis, caused by the inhalation of asbestos fibers that damage lung tissue permanently, and the property of asbestos to attract and hold cancer-causing substances in lung tissue.

In the new high school, asbestos has been applied in spray form to some of the steel girders, to prevent their buckling in a fire, and on pipes as insulation. The extent of use seems not to be known, since the manufacturer stopped production during the school construction, switching to another compound.

Mrs. Uritam said that some asbestos is completely exposed and on a ceiling so low that a student could reach up and tear apart the exposed clumps.

Other locations noted by Mrs. Uritam were on very high ceilings, as in the auto shop, where the asbestos is completely exposed, and above low ceiling tiles, which are easily dislodged.

In some instances the asbestos is partially exposed above a woodbeam decorative ceiling, as on Main Street, but has been treated with a spray paint-like substance, Mrs. Uritam said.

In many of these places visible chunks of asbestos hang from the ceiling, Mrs. Uritam said.

In some instances asbestos-covered pipes have been boxed in with sheetrock. Mrs. Uritam feels that metal casings would have been preferable.

According to Mrs. Uritam, an inspector from the state Department of Health inspected the building two weeks ago. The inspection included a particle count of the air in the school.

John Gilleland, assistant superintendent of schools for business services, said Tuesday that the state report is expected this week, and that work to cover the asbestos is already under way.

Gilleland, whom Mrs. Uritam's letter described as "most concerned" and giving her a "good response", said that the School Department intends to take all precautions necessary. He does not anticipate a delay in the opening of school, scheduled for Sept. 6.

Mann Names Woman To Redevelopment Authority

Mayor Theodore D. Mann announced earlier this week that he had appointed a Newton Centre woman, long active in community affairs, to a five-year term on the Newton Redevelopment Authority.

Mrs. Margaret L. Smith of 39 Gray Cliff Rd. will take over the seat vacated by Robert G. Davidson whose term of office actually expired last April 12.

Davidson had continued to hold his seat until either his reappointment or replacement was announced and antagonized several Lower Falls residents by his stand on the choice of a developer for a commercial parcel of land at the intersection of Washington Street and Route 128.

Members of the Lower Falls Project Area Committee (LOPAC) and Improvement Association had advised the Redevelopment Authority to pick a bid submitted by the firm of Spaulding and Slye.

When Davidson joined with two others on the authority to choose the bid submitted by the J.F. White Construction Co. of Newton, members of the neighborhood organizations immediately began lobbying for Davidson's dismissal.

A few weeks ago the mayor requested a list of suitable candidates from LOPAC and Mrs. Smith's name was one of five on the list.

She indicated she had been interviewed on one occasion by the mayor and was extremely pleased with her selection.

Although admitting she "was not as familiar with the Lower Falls' situation" as she had been in previous years, Mrs. Smith did explain she would assess the current controversy for herself "by talking to the citizens in the area to get their reaction."

"As a woman, I would probably tend to identify more with the people who have to live with any development on a daily basis," stated Mrs. Smith when asked her position as an authority member.

Both Mrs. Smith and her husband, F. Dowswell, are natives of Canada, and became naturalized American citizens in 1955.

They moved to Newton in 1951 and have lived here since that time, except for a two-year period when they lived in Needham.

Mrs. Smith joined the Newton League of Women Voters in 1956 after deciding "to take the responsibilities of my American citizenship seriously." She served the league as its president from 1969 to 1971.

She also served as president of the Parents' Association of the Newton Music School from 1964 to 1965 and as a member of the Newton Community Action Board from 1966 to 1968.

In commenting on the appointment, Mayor Mann stated, "The high degree of personal commitment on the part of Mrs. Smith will aid her in objectively evaluating situations which arise on the authority."

"Her deep concern for citizen participation in the planning and implementation of programs affecting the people will make her an extremely effective member of the authority," the mayor concluded.

The first woman ever nominated to the redevelopment authority, Mrs. Smith will now go before the Board of Aldermen for confirmation. Pending that action she will sit on the authority as a temporary, non-voting, member.

Berry Lists Contributors, Expenditures

Mayoral candidate Elliott Berry, the latest contender in the supposed four-way race for mayor, has issued a report of his campaign contributors and expenditures.

Berry recorded two contributions for a total of $27. He lists Dr. and Mrs. Ira Avrin as contributing $25 on July 17 and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Levenson as contributing $2 on July 22.

The candidate reports expenditures amounting to $2.50. He said he spent $1 on a map of the city July 18 and bought flour, margarine, and chocolate chips at the Star Market July 21, spending $1.50.

Recreation Use Of North High

The Newton Recreation Commission will hold a special meeting Monday, (Aug. 6) at 7:45 p.m. in the Recreation Dept. office, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale.

Recreation and pool facilities at Newton North High School will be discussed. Capital improvement programs 1973-78 and Alderman Peter F. Harrington's resolution recommending the mayor establish "Youth Recreation Areas" in municipal parking lots will also be on the agenda.

The public is invited to attend and speak.

Hearing Held On Departments

Suppose you had a public hearing and nobody from the public came?

That's what happened Monday night at City Hall, when only political candidates, aldermen, and city employees came to hear and discuss two proposals to formalize the establishment of two new city government departments.

The aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee, holding the hearing, listened to the chairmen of the Council on Aging and the Community Relations Commission relate the advantages of being a part of the Human Resources Department, one of the new departments being proposed, and voted 6-2 to recommend its approval to the full board.

The Human Resources Department has been in operation unofficially since last October.

The proposed Personnel Department received the strong endorsement of the city's organized labor force, when Robert Hand, vice-president of Local 800 told the aldermen that before the existence of the temporary department "the city was in chaos." Hand said that on behalf of workers he often had to go to two or three people to find out about certain benefits, would get two or three different answers, and finally would have to call Civil Service or the health-insurance firm himself to get the correct answer.

The possible ballooning of the Personnel Department was of greatest concern to members of the Legislation and Rules Committee in their deliberations, but they voted 8-0 for its approval.

A special meeting of the board was called for Aug. 6 to vote on these two items, which under the charter must be approved within 10 days, as well as on the appropriation of money from surplus so that the tax rate may be set.

Aldermen's Pay Hits New Snag

A proposed amendment to the aldermanic-pay measure, passed by the Board of Aldermen last month and signed by Mayor Theodore Mann, has thrown the issue once again into confusion.

Mann signed the measure granting the board members $1,200 "annual compensation" (starting next Jan. 1) and at the same time submitted an amendment to prohibit "other benefits, of any nature," reflecting what he and at least some of the aldermen understood as the intent of the original pay measure.

During deliberations on the amendment by the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee this week, Alderman Sidney Small rejected the mayor's proposed change, suggesting rescinding the $1,200-pay ordinance altogether and trying for another at $2500.

An ordinance giving the aldermen $2,500 annually was vetoed by Mayor Mann last October. A committee set up by the mayor and the Board of Aldermen to study the question of aldermanic compensation recommended on June 15 of this year that aldermen receive $1,200 yearly.

Small based his rejection of the mayor's amendment on points of state law covering municipal employment. The aldermanic "compensation" has been ruled by the Newton Law Department as being in fact a salary, which besides being taxable, makes the aldermen eligible for the state–regulated retirement plan and other benefits under state law.

The city would therefore be required to pay into certain benefit programs.

One serious question is whether a city ordinance can

Frisbee, Hula Hoop Championships Held

Frisbee and Hula Hoop championship matches were held last week in Dickinson Stadium.

Frisbee champs in Newton this year are Laurie Abruzzi of 930 Walnut St., and Carson Milgroom of 215 Lincoln St.

Hula Hoop champs are Karen Torchia of 39 Henshaw St. and Jeff Sampson of 126 Webster St.

Last Thursday morning, Miss Abruzzi faced District II champion Carol LaConti and District III champion Stephanie Stoyanoff in the finals.

Milgroom faced a little more competition having to overcome District I's Mark Nardone, District II's Mike Vaughn, and District III's Tom Irvine to take the title.

Milgroom squeaked past Irvine by two points to become city champion.

Frisbee city champs travel to Beverly to take part in state finals Monday (Aug. 6).

In the boys' division of hula hoop finals Thursday afternoon Sampson found himself in a contest with District III leader George Stoyanoff and District IV's Al Pennington. Sampson won by three points.

Fran Usher of District I, Mary Bradley of District III and Lisa Calderone of District IV were Miss Torchia's opponents. It was a close contest.

Newton's two hula hoop champions travel to Waltham today (Aug. 2) to take part in state finals.

Firefighters Oppose Lung Coverage For Incinerator Workers

A special act to give 24 Newton incinerator workers full benefits for forced retirement due to lung disease has been held up by opposition from union firefighters.

The legislation would require the city to prove that the disability is not due to the employee's work at the incenerator. Without such legislation the burden of job–related disability rests with the employee.

The incinerator work force stage a one-day work stoppage last spring to protest the lack of retirement protection, which they said had been promised them in contract negotiations.

Newton is the first municipality to request this protection for its incinerator employees. Until now, only police and firefighters have been given such benefits under the state "heart and lung act."

Pressure from 14,000 AFL—CIO firefighters across the state has been exerted on Beacon Hill legislators to exclude the Newton incinerator workers and all other municipal employees except police. Newton's firefighters are not members of the AFL—CIO.

The firefighters' opposition has resulted in the act's being held on the House calendar for enactment. The legislation had earlier received approval of both the House and Senate.

Counterpressure is being put on the firefighters to withdraw their objections by representatives of the 60,000 AFL—CIO–

Limit Set For Day Renovation Cost

The architects' contract for plans to renovate the old Day Junior High School for use as school administration headquarters will specify that the total cost of the building shall in no way exceed $500,000, according to Mayor Theodore Mann and the Law Department.

A letter from the architect to the acting public buildings commissioner last month referred to the firm's "concern as to the feasibility of meeting all the requirements of the School Department within the budget of $500,000."

Only last week the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee learned in the press that the move out of the old Stearns School and the old Peirce School into the old Day School would not occur until next spring, not September of this year, as had been thought necessary because of a state ban on the use of the antiquated furnace in Stearns.

Some committee members complained that they had been pressured into voting on the controversal funding of the move sooner than they had really to, in view of the School Department's reported ability to rent heating equipment.

School Superintendent Aaron Fink replied that it should have been obvious that the work could not have been completed by September. He produced the letter from the architect, Bruck and Associates, which pointed out that the firm had not received word of its selection until June 1, with written confirmation following on June 20.

The formal contract cannot be signed until after the Aug. 7 meeting of the Design Review Committee, which must approve all such contracts.

According to the architects' timetable leading to occupancy of the new school headquarters cost estimates, schematic designs will be ready for approval by the School Committee by Aug. 21 or 28, and by the city building department, State Department of Public Safety, and the Design Review Committee by Aug. 31.

Revision of plans, if necessary, and authorization to proceed with working drawings should be done by Sept. 18.

The second phase schedule includes appropriation of construction funds and final approval of working drawings

Mixing Garbage With Trash?

While complaints about garbage collection by the new contractor have been dwindling recently from a couple of hundred daily to about 50 or 60, complaints about bad-smelling rubbish may be starting.

A West Newton woman has charged that because of poor garbage collection more residents are putting garbage into the rubbish, causing both the rubbish trucks and the streets where trash is waiting to be picked up to smell.

Richard Dudman, director of Public Works, admitted this week that there are problems with the garbage collection and that "in adjusting to Newton, F&R is not all squared away." F&R Service of Wellesley is the new contractor.

"Originally, I said there would be an adjustment period of 6 to 8 weeks. I see no reason to change that," Dudman said.

Alderman Matthew Jefferson, who has proposed a combined collection of trash and garbage, has often said that he hears from incinerator workers an estimated 40 per cent of the city's garbage ends up mixed in with rubbish and deposited at the incinerator.

Jefferson's figure was reported before the new garbage contractor began collections.

"I have no indiction that more garbage is being put into the trash," Dudman said.

Dudman and a representative from F&R are scheduled to appear at an aldermanic Public Works Committee Aug. 16 to discuss difficulties with collection.

Land Use Meeting Postponed

A meeting of the Land Use Committee, originally scheduled for Aug. 6, has been postponed until Wednesday, Aug. 29, because special meeting of the full Board of Aldermen has been called Monday.

Clerk of the Board Edward English wishes the notice of change of date to come to the attention of all those who have been awaiting decision of the Land Use Committee on several recently heard items.

A Candid Campaign

With the necessary emphasis lately on shady campaign fund collections and spending it is unique to hear about another campaign right here in our backyards that may well establish new standards for openness and candor.

But that is what's happening in Newton. And it is going on right now.

The campaign practices already established by the leading contenders who seek to be Newton's next mayor appear to deserve serious imitation in every other community whether its name is Westwood or Walpole or Boston or Dedham.

Four men have announced that they would like to be the next mayor of Newton. They all had a lengthy sit-down meeting last week and the majority of the candidates agreed to make available a monthly disclosure of who gives what to their campaigns and an exact accounting of just where the money goes.

We underline that this disclosure of funding and spending will come on a rather regular basis before the November election. This is rather unique in elections anywhere. Full disclosure before elections is just about unheard of. But that's the sound coming from Newton today and it cannot be drowned out by the roar of Watergate.

With Newton's mayoral election nearly four months off that means that at least some of the announced candidates — and that includes the leading contenders — will volunteer a line by line accounting of what monies come in, who they came from, and where the spending will go.

The Newton disclosures should also reveal exactly how much it costs in this day and age to campaign for the mayor's job which pays $27,500 per year. But that really is not the most important fact and figure that will come out of a full and regular disclosure of campaign funding.

What will be most revealing is who gives how much to the individual campaigners. We agree that everyone who gives something to a candidate certainly expects a return on his contribution.

But we do not agree that everyone who contributes expects a direct monetary return on his or her money. That is far from the case in any election.

What every contributor does expect is a candidate who will work hard in his behalf to do the best job possible in running the community which he will govern. The usual result then from campaign contributions is not a kickback or a favor but a city or town that is a nice place to live. By far that is what most contributors hope for. And that is what they should expect. For them, then, the contribution becomes an investment without strings.

The disclosure lists that have already been readily given out by candidates Mann and Carmen are surprising in the names that are not on either. And it is not that the candidates have hidden anything or anyone. It is just that so many residents of Newton's villages who expound on the need for excellence in office have made no known donation to their favorite candidates.

Investing in the campaigns of contenders, the man of one's choice, can and should be a source of pride essentially to the donor.

We applaud the pre-election monthly reports. It is a first step around here. And it projects a leadership that deserves imitation in every level of every election.

A STRANGE TWIST

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Sarge's Reorganization Bills Sabotaged By Own Appointees

Governor Francis W. Sargent maintains reasonably good control over his political troops, but the officers in his State House organization are disposed to revolt whenever it suits their purposes to do so.

An example was Miles Mahoney, who was imported from Philadelphia by the Governor and then twice embarrassed Mr. Sargent by blocking the proposed Park Plaza project.

Mahoney was asked for his resignation the second time he defied Governor Sargent and applied the axe to a suggested development which Boston desperately needs for a number of reasons.

John O. Boone was fired with warm praise by the Governor after he failed to do the job Sarge expected him to do when he brought him to Massachusetts to run its prison system.

But the most blatant disregard for the Governor's wishes has been displayed by those state officials, many of them appointed by Mr. Sargent, who have lobbied openly and effectively with members of the Legislature in opposition to several of the Governor's proposals for reorganizing the state government.

In fact, more of Sarge's appointees to high state jobs have worked against his reorganization program than for it. The only really effective supporters of his reorg bills have been Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight and a few of his cabinet members.

The others have been grinding their own axes and doing their utmost to preserve and protect the power they wield.

The result is that not more than two or three of the Governor's 10 reorg bills are likely to be enacted into law this year.

Some of Governor Sargent's appointees differ sharply with him on how various sections of the state government should be run and do not hesitate to make known their conflicting opinions.

Part of this is probably due to the fact that Sargent does not enjoy the day-to-day job of running the state government and has placed more power in the hands of his cabinet members and department heads than did most of his predecessors.

Governors such as Paul A. Dever and Christian A. Herter maintained a much tighter control over the men and women in key positions in the state government than does Governor Sargent. Dever and Herter didn't hesitate to call in a balky official, demand his resignation and threaten to remove him if the resignation was not quickly forthcoming.

The state was run pretty much the way Herter and Dever wanted it run while they served as Governor.

An appointee of theirs who openly opposed one of their bills would not have finished the week in his state job.

Respected Columnist Charges Democrats Had Own Watergates

Kevin P. Phillips, a highly respected columnist, charged recently in the Herald American that the news and television media have failed in their responsibility to inform the American people that the Democrats during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations did many of the same things that the Nixon White House is now being assailed for doing in the Watergate scandal.

He pointed out that it is known that the Johnson White House had spies in the 1964 campaign of Republican Presidential Nominee Barry Goldwater but that the media have never utilized their investigative talents to uncover and expose the Democratic blueprint of spying and surveillance against Goldwater.

Phillips asserted that the FBI bugged the Washington headquarters of Richard Nixon in 1968 when Ramsey Clark, supposedly the great advocate of civil liberties, was the U. S. Attorney General, but that no furor was made over that or over the fact that the ground phones of Spiro Agnew's campaign plane also were tapped.

He cited that former White House Aide John Ehrlichman caused no great uproar when he declared recently that several income tax audits were run on Richard Nixon after he was defeated by John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Bill Anderson recently wrote in the Chicago Tribune:

"There has been a virtual blackout of an angry letter written to the Washington Post and the New York Times by Arthur Sampson, the new administrator of the General Services Administration. Copies of the letter show that Sampson charged both newspapers with 'sheer negligence' and a 'short memory' in their comments on the home improvements for Mr. Nixon."

Senator Carl Curtis of Nebraska, discussing the investigation of Bobby Baker when Lyndon Johnson was President, declared recently:

"Some of the Democrats indulged in cover-ups — blocking the investigation, refusing to call witnesses, and doing everything possible to prevent the truth from coming out. We needed the testimony of a White House official whose name was Walter Jenkins. Sworn testimony concerning these unlawful transactions involved him, and we needed his testimony. We never did get it. That is the record of a Democratic Senate — to refuse to call one witness who is an employee of the White House."

A pretty good case can be made to show that not much has been exposed in the Watergate investigation that didn't happen before. As one politician put it, the principal difference between the Watergate bunglers and some of the Democratic spies of the past was that the burglars got caught.

Sarge Has Political Advantage In Selection Of Running Mate

One advantage Governor Francis W. Sargent will have over his Democratic-adversary, presumably Attorney General Robert H. Quinn, next year is that he will have his hand-picked Lieutenant Governor running mate on the ticket with him while Quinn will be forced to take political pot luck.

Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight will balance the top of the Republican state ticket geographically, while there will be a scramble in the primary for the right to run as the Democratic nominee for Lieutenant Governor, and a member of the Boston City Council might well emerge as the winner.

When the State Constitution was changed to provide that the candidates for Governor and Lieutenant would run as a team as do the candidates for President and Vice President, it was proclaimed that this would be a reform which would prevent the possibility that the voters might elect a Governor of one party and a Lieutenant Governor of the other.

That has not happened very often in modern times. It last happened back in 1960 when John A. Volpe, a Republican, was elected Governor and Edward F. McLaughlin, a Democrat, won the Lieutenant Governorship.

One result of this revision in the State Constitution is that the Republican nominee for Governor hand-picks his Lieutenant Governor running mate, as Francis Sargent did in 1970, while the Democratic nominee for Governor teams up with whoever happens to win the nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the primary, and the two may or may not be on speaking terms.

This provides some advantage for the Republican candidate for Governor since he can weigh various political assets and liabilities in choosing his running mate.

The reason for that is that the Republicans will hold an unofficial pre-primary State Convention next year while the Democrats will not, and it wouldn't mean anything if they did.

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White might have tried to handpick his running mate on the Democratic ticket in 1970 if he had been successful at the Democratic State Convention at Amherst, but he lost there and was in no position to intervene in the endorsement of a candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Attorney General Quinn will have a primary fight of his own if former Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline remains in the contest for Governor.

Dukakis has opened headquarters in the basement of 18 Tremont street in downtown Boston even though he has not yet announced his candidacy for office.

Reports have been circulated that he may run for Attorney General instead of Governor. If he should, it would place Quinn in a position to support the candidate of his choice for Lieutenant Governor if he decided to make the effort.

But the likelihood is that so many candidates will be in the free-for-all battle for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor that Quinn would be reluctant to back one and antagonize all the others.

So the probability is that Quinn will not try to influence the selection of his running mate by the Democratic voters.

With the weight of the Democratic vote in Metropolitan Boston, the Democratic nominee for Lieutenant Governor probably will come from that area.

Impeachment Move Comes From Drinan

BY CYNTHIA BLACK

"There lives an honest man in Washington. Thank you. Impeachment is essential."

That was what one Newton man had to say to Congressman Robert F. Drinan via telegram Wednesday and it was one local reaction to the news that Father Drinan introduced a resolution Tuesday for President Richard Nixon's impeachment.

I spoke to an exuberant Congressman Drinan Wednesday morning and asked him what Newton had to say about his momentous step.

He read that telegram to me, declining to name the person who sent it, and said that calls and telegrams started flowing into his Washington office as soon as the news became public.

After his secretary left at 8 p.m. Tuesday night, he said he answered the telephone himself. Wednesday, he drafted a letter to be sent to local people who have written him during the last couple of months urging him to file an impeachment resolution.

Congressman Drinan said that while he has been considering this move for the past several months, he felt there was insufficient evidence until the recent disclosure of secret bombing in Cambodia.

"I had been telling people there was not enough evidence; and they kept asking me how much evidence I needed," he said.

"The people in Newton did help me make up my mind," he said. "The people were heard."

He maintains that the bombing disclosure was what turned the tide in his mind.

He recalled Wednesday a speech he gave during his first campaign for congress at Newton South High School. Students were so upset over the bombing of Cambodia that a strike was in the offing and Drinan was at the school to talk to them.

Nixon had said the United States and South Vietnam observed the neutrality of Cambodia, he recalled. Now it comes to light that secret air strikes were made for 14 months prior to April, 1970.

"I was personally deceived," Drinan said. "All of the people were."

What will be the fate of his one-sentence resolution?

The congressman pointed out that Congress is about to adjourn until September 5. The resolution has been sent to committee.

"I don't know what the climate in this country will be by Sept. 5," he said.

He said the only reaction he seems to be getting in the capitol at this time is that the resolution is "premature."

Congressman Drinan is coming home to his district during the summer recess and he is interested in hearing from more Newton people on his impeachment move.

"I'd like to have a poll of the people in my district," he said, "The national opinion on impeachment has gone from 18 to 24 percent in favor but I'm sure it would be higher here."

Drinan is having a full day of "office hours" next Saturday (Aug. 11) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Newtonville Post Office. If you'd like to make an appointment to see him, call his Waltham office, 890-9455.

Readers Blast Plan To Test Poisonous Fumes On Beagles

A substantial number of readers have written to this column to oppose and criticize the so-called "Tip of the Iceberg" experiment in which 200 beagle puppies will be exposed to poisonous fumes to determine the effects of the fumes on human beings.

Inquiries made by the writer have produced this information:

Plans for the tests are being carried forward despite the objections of humane society officials and animal-lovers. The experiments are to be conducted either later this year or early in 1974 at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio.

Air Force spokesmen say the dogs will not be used to test poisonous gases or any chemical or biological warfare agents but will be used to ascertain the toxicity levels from fumes from fire extinguishers, the effects of methyol hydrazene fumes from propellants; the effects of carbon monoxide and hydrogen cyanide fumes given off by burning plastics in aircraft fires.

Most of the dogs will survive the tests. Some, however, will be humanely put to death because their health is affected or their life span is changed. Those not so affected will be used in subsequent tests.

The Air Force insists that its procedures are humane. The dogs will be debarked before the experiments through a simple operation in which a small piece of cartilage is removed from their vocal cords. It is said to be a painless operation. This is standard procedure when a large number of animals are to take part in experiments indoors.

Beagles are being used in the experiments because they are "inexpensive pure-bred animals." That obviously is not a satisfactory explanation for animal-lovers who identify with beagles.

Judging from the letters we have received, some people feel more strongly about this proposed experiment than they do about the Watergate scandal.

Family Grateful To Fire Department

(This letter was sent to Fire Chief Frederick Perkins with a copy to the Graphic)

Dear Mr. Perkins:

May I express for our family the feeling of gratitude and appreciation for the technical skill, intelligence and devotion to duty which the Newton Fire Department displayed in handling the fire at 173 Otis St. last Wednesday.

In the briefest possible time the fire apparatus arrived, the hose was coupled, and the fire was put under control.

But there was much more than the routine extinguishing of a blaze. With great speed and skill, furniture and personal effects were stacked and covered. Debris and other effects of the fire were removed or cleaned, and finally, the glaring hole in the roof covered so effectively that the heavy downpour of a couple of days later was kept from flooding the house.

As a footnote, may I add that I am not entirely without experience as an observer of firefighting! In my younger days, I worked for a time as a reporter for a Boston newspaper and part of my duties consisted in chasing and reporting on fires.

Finally, I should like again to thank you in behalf of myself and my wife, my daughter and husband and the rest of the family with which we have the privilege and good fortune to live during the summer months.

Children's Zoo Is A Family Place

(Editor's note: A letter was recently published on the Graphic Opinion Page from Mrs. R. Terry Cronin in Newton Centre describing an incident at the Children's Zoo. This letter was sent in reply to Mrs. Cronin with a copy to the Graphic)

Dear Mrs. Cronin:

After receiving your letter that was published in the Newton Graphic, we contacted the Blue Hills Division, Metropolitan District Commission Police, concerning your complaint. I trust by now you have been contacted by them concerning the incident.

Since the episode concerned a single police officer and his attitude towards your problem of a purse snatching, I really can't do any more than let the police contact you and try to straighten out what happened. What I can do, however, is point out that in this case, yours seems to have been the exception rather than the rule.

This year, police protection at the zoo has been increased, and the number of incidents remarkably reduced. Most comments on security have been favorable to the MDC and the police, and I think this is reflected by the attendance which is running at a record level.

It is your conclusion that the Children's Zoo is not a "family place" that I find difficult to agree with, and I would think that if you enjoyed the zoo, you would want to help us solve the problems rather than take the negative approach you have expressed.

I recognize how traumatic an experience a purse snatching is. If you are honest, however, there are many places, including all the recreation areas in and around Boston where a similar event could have occurred.

If indeed the officer was uncooperative, I believe your complaint is justified and I hope you receive satisfaction. I know Commissioner Sears and Captain McDonough share that feeling. But to condemn the whole zoo, all of the progress that has been made, and particularly the efforts of the staff at the Children's Zoo, who work so hard to make it a "family place," seem unfair.

No Noise

(Editor's note: The following petition was sent to Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Alderman Ernest Dietz with a copy to the Newton Graphic:)

We the undersigned hereby present the following petition to the Board of Aldermen:

1. That no permits be issued for "rock" or any other concerts in Newton Centre playground, except upon the condition that no amplifiers be used unless there is a public hearing and notification of residents in the immediate vicinity.

2. That existing permits be revoked unless the permit holders agree that no amplifiers shall be used.

3. This petition is presented because such a concert (with amplifiers) was held July 26 from 7 to 9 p.m. with considerable annoyance to the neighbors and it has not been determined whether a permit had been issued and if it had, who authorized it.

4. We would be happy to meet with a committee of the Board of Aldermen to explain our concern.

5. The urgency of this petition is necessary because we have been informed that there is a concert scheduled for the Newton Centre Playground Aug. 2.

More On Fire

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Last Wednesday night, we had a fire at our home on Otis Street in Newtonville.

I wish it were possible for me to adequately describe the bravery, efficiency, and, more important, the good will and compassion shown us by the men of the Newton Fire Department.

I will always be grateful to them.

Grateful To Plumbing Inspectors

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I would like to express my gratitude to the plumbing inspectors in the City of Newton.

I installed a new bathroom about a year and a half ago and it never functioned properly. I tried calling both the contractor and the plumber but all I got was the run around. Finally, someone suggested I call the plumbing inspector.

They came down the very next day and were appalled by what they saw. They immediately got in touch with the plumber and got him here the next morning. They told him exactly what he had to do. Obviously, hearing it from them was a lot different than hearing it from me. Without a word, everything was done.

Upon completion of the plumbing work, the inspectors came back again to make sure the work was done properly. They even came back again to make sure the carpenter boxed in the pipes after the plumber finished.

Their great concern to see that the job was done right was a tremendous help to me. We in the City of Newton are lucky to have people like this to protect us.

Many thanks.

Mary Lou Cushner,
Waban

Off The Deep End

Editor, Newton Grphic:

Thank you very much for the publication of my letters about swimming in Crystal Lake in the paper of July 19.

After I sent my letters to Mr. Penney, commissioner of the Newton Recreation Department, and you, the manager of Crystal Lake got in touch with me. My daughter Beatriz was tested again and she swam as good as she did the first time she was tested.

The only difference was that on this occasion there were less people swimming around her and more people watching her from the outside including Mr. Penney, the manager, the head of the lifeguards, and three more lifeguards, including the one who rejected her a few days before.

Beatriz passed the test and was allowed to swim in the deep section of Crystal Lake. Unfortunately that day we only went for the test and she couldn't enjoy swimming where she had wanted to on the two previous occasions.

I want to make public my congratulations to Mr. Penney for the way he handled the whole affair. I am very pleased that the City of Newton has in the Recreation Department a person who cares about the residents of the city.

Mrs. Antonio Boccalandro,

Dillinger's John Milius A Legend

If writer-director John Milius could have his way, and made the movie back a generation or so, he would have asked Jimmy Cagney to play the title role of his film "Dillinger."

He likes Warren Oates in the part and considers he was fortunate to get him. But Cagney, as he was in his younger days, would have been a dream Dillinger in this American International Pictures production.

To the rather stocky, strongly built Milius, wose black beard is as picturesque as that of a film pirate, the days of Dillinger and his cohorts such as Pretty Boy Floyd, Baby Face Nelson and Homer Van Meter are as fascinating as any period of American history.

Sam Peckinpah may prefer a slightly earlier time when the bad men were all western gunslingers; Milius likes his own bad men to rob banks.

Dillinger and his pals made for good front page entertainment such as hasn't been seen since. There weren't too many killings as compared with the amount of bullets fired by both robbers and the various posses, F.B.I. agents and defenders of the mulcted middle-western banks.

"Dillinger was a folk hero," says the writer-director with enthusiasm. "He was like Pecos Bill or Paul Bunyan. The people of middle West admired and respected him for it. He got away with things. He had style.

"I have not tried to explain him in my film. What interests me is the legend. This is not a character study nor a Freudian analysis. And the picture covers only the last year in Dillinger's life."

The real thrill to Milius is in becoming a director. He is almost a legend in Hollywood himself. He wrote the script of "The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean" and started to peddle it through the studios. He wanted to sell the story and do the direction for $150,000 for the whole project. Everywhere he was turned down.

Paul Newman, however, read the script and liked it very much. But he didn't want an untried director at the helm. So he hired John Houston. As for Milius, he demanded $300,000 for the story alone and received it without argument.

"I would have handed over the script and done the direction, too, for $100,000," admits Milius.

"The Mafia, since 'The Godfather,' gets a lot of attention as the villain in the American myth," deprecates Milius. "Actually the Mafia in Chicago were in terror of Dillinger the one time their paths crossed. Their members worked under a strict system of obedience to their immediate superiors. Dillinger and his gang didn't obey anyone and feared absolutely nobody."

Accompanying Milius on his interview to extol "Dillinger" was pretty Michelle Phillips, who plays the part of Dillinger's Indian-French girlfriend, Billie Frechette. Michelle really put it over on the sophisticated Milius when she applied for the film role.

Tipped off secretly by an agent regarding the part of Billie being an Indian girl, she confessed to Milius that she had Indian ancestry. Actually she is Scotch and French.

The director immediately thought he saw traces of her boasted Cherokee blood, and she got the job.

Cinema Review: Last Of Sheila

THE LAST OF SHEILA has a cast glittering with distinguished names, and if you choose your film entertainment on account of the stars then this picture should attract attention.

Players include Joan Hackett, Dyan Cannon, Charles Coburn, Raquel Welch, James Mason, Ian McShane and Richard Benjamin, in a contemporary script by Stephen Sondheim and Anthony Perkins directed by Herbert Ross.

Undoubtedly the characters in the film resemble in intriguing ways some of the real people in the Jet Set, or at least well-known Hollywood personalities. It all adds up to what might be expected to be as glamorous a mystery film as any shown on the screen for the past few years

But it proves to be an uhappy disappointment, both as to plot and direction. And you expect so much more of a film with such a stellar cast.

The cast doesn't have an opportunity to display their talents. The exotic backgrounds on the French Riveria swallow up the characters.

Dyan Cannon stands out as a female actor's agent, a woman of some power in the industry, but the other women are given wholly unrewarding dialogue and action. The conclusion of the film is not well-defined, and even the unexpected ending has no satisfying zing.

Harrington Backs Manpower Credit Bill

State Representative Peter F. Harrington of Newton has announced his support for legislation providing a "manpower credit" to Massachusetts manufacturing and research and development companies.

"This measure," Harrington said, "is a modification of a proposal originally developed by Jobs For Massachusetts Inc., and is a basic economic block, one to help the jobless and under-employed in Massachusetts.

Harrington, a member of the Urban Affairs Committee, explained that the bill provides for a $500 per new job incentive tax credit to manufacturing and research and development firms here that meet the following conditions:

–Newly created jobs must be jobs in excess of normally expected 3 per cent job growth.

–The salary for the position must be a minimum of $4,200 annually.

–Those hired must be "employable persons" receiving some form of public aid such as welfare, unemployment compensation, state-local veteran's benefits, Corrections Department training, or state Manpower training.

–The credit would also be allowed for employees enrolled in company training programs approved by the appropriate state agency, which would result in the upgrading of the workers job skills, wages and promotional possibilities.

"These provisions," Harrington explained, "were incorporated to prevent industry from reaping a windfall due to automatic increases in employee hiring practices."

"The 3 per cent base is expected to absorb those new employees who are hired on an automatic plan," he said.

The local legislator also noted that provisions for hiring people who are "employable" are designed to "alleviate the drain on assistance funds," but are also a "definite commitment by the Commonwealth to initiate a program to provide employment opportunity for many who were unconsciously discriminated against in past programs."

"The feature allowing industry to receive a credit for persons upgraded is also important," he said.

"The upgrading or training programs would have to be state certified and certification could be extended only to those lines of employment which would be beneficial to the economy, allowing the state some new flexibility in meeting and filling new job demands with trained personnel."

Harrington also said that because the tax credit for new jobs is related to the person receiving some sort of state financial or job training assistance, there would be no net cost to state revenue and the new employees would, in addition, generate new tax revenues to offset the $500 credit to industry.

Afternoon Classes

The Memorial Nursery School, Inc., a non-profit cooperative nursery school, located in the Memorial School in Newton, has instituted an afternoon program for three-year-olds.

The nursery school was founded in 1972 as a five-morning program for four-year-olds and stresses a philosophy of allowing children to learn through individual exploration and discovery.

This year in addition to the morning session, there will be an afternoon session, three days a week, which is designed primarily for children who would enter kindergarten in September, 1975. However, four year old children who would benefit from a three-day-a-week pre-school experience, will also be considered for admission.

For further information please call Marian Knapp, president, at 332-7462 or Lee Lasson, teacher, at 244-0525.

Favors Insurance For Mentally Ill

Newton State Representative David J. Mofenson has announced his support for legislation to provide health insurance coverage for the mentally ill.

The bill, awaiting action in the insurance committee, would provide benefits of at least 60 days in a mental hospital and the same benefits in a general hospital as for any other illness.

Mofenson said that such coverage can be provided to Massachusetts residents at low cost to the policy holder and at a substantial savings to the Commonwealth.

He pointed out that Blue Cross currently offers mental health insurance at the rate of $9 per year for individuals and tha United Automobile Workers are supplied with similar coverage for 90 cents a month.

Mofenson also said the existence of such plans would "save the Commonwealth millions of dollars in funds that are presently spent on the treatment of patients in state mental hospitals."

"The mentally ill," he went on to say, "have been neglected too long in this state, not only in terms of insurance coverag, but in terms of treatment and government aid as well.

Passace of this bill can be one step toward correcting this injustice."

The Newton legislator also reported that his bill to prohibit the registrar of motor vehicles from furnishing or selling lists of license suspensions or revocations was given final approval by the House of Representatives last week.

Local Drug Programs Receive State Funds

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Area Mental Health Office has recently received notification of the Department of Mental Health's (DMH) final awards for fiscal year 1974 for the area's drug rehabilitation programs.

Freeport, Inc., 361 Commonwealth Ave., Chestnut Hill, is the recipient of $4,000 of DMH funding for its alternative group living program.

Newton Community Service Centers, 429 Cherry St., West Newton, received $5,000 for its street worker program.

Newton Youth Foundation (Beginnings), 474 Centre St., received $4,250 to support its drop-in center.

The final program receiving DMH funding is Newton-Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Center, 22 Washington Terr., Newtonville, with $9,000 allocated to its drug rehabilitation program for adolescents.

County Court System Gets Federal Boost

The Middlesex County Commissioners have received notification from the Governor's Committee on Law Enforcement and Administration of Criminal Justice(LEAA) that Middlesex County has been awarded a federal grant of $215,000 for district court administration. The amount actually supercedes an original grant of $160,000.

The chairman of the commissioners, S. Lester Ralph, explained that the original grant of $160,000 was divided among four projects: $67,849 for the administrative office, $35,000 for education and training; $18,238 for a project to develop a comprehensive plan for preserving testimony in the district courts, and $38,913 for an administrative standards project.

According to Commissioner Ralph, of the $55,000 that is added to the grant by the governor's committee on LEAA, $31,000 is allocated to the project of preservation of testimony and the remainder, approximately $24,000 is for a new project to improve the use of interpreters in the district courts in the county. Ralph stated that a detailed workplan will be submitted shortly relating to the interpreter project.

The chairman of the commissioners expressed enthusiasm at this aspect of the project noting that many defendants in court cases are left bewildered due to problems in communications. "It is my hope that federal grants in this area will continue to flow into the courts resulting in swifter justice for all defendants," concluded the chairman of the county commissioners.

PAUL G. O'FRIEL of Newton has been named to the new position of executive director of the Lincoln Filene Center at Tufts University and vice president of the Civic Education Foundation.

Earnings per share for the nine month period this year amounted to $.75 compared to $.38 last year which was restated to give retroactive effect to the 3 per cent stock dividend paid in March, 1973.

The results for both nine month periods reflect an estimated gross profit margin of 23.5 per cent - being approximately the same margin reflected by the company for the last fiscal year.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

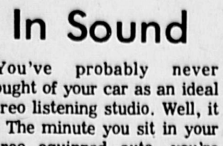
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

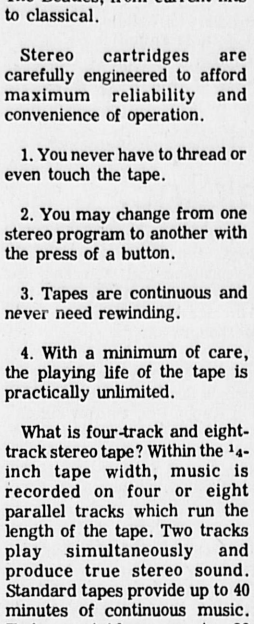
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Star Realty Expands

Leonard Abramson, president of Star Realty, a division of First Star Realty Corporation, New England's oldest and largest investment real estate firm, has announced the expansion of its already existing international real estate operations.

The expansion comes in the formation of First Star Realty International Company — a global investment property marketing organization.

Abramson, a member of the International Real Estate Federation, appraised the many advantages of having a separate national and international investments arm.

"We are able to greatly increase the number and quality of properties we offer to the investor. Instead of handling investment properties in just New England, we tap global investment resources through the vehicle of the international company. Currently we have well over $750 million in U.S. and overseas properties available to the investor."

The new international division will be headed by Abramson, assisted by Allan A. Serroll. Besides the new international company, First Star Realty Corporation has also formed a division, First Star Realty Mortgage Company, so as to offer all investment real estate services under one roof.

An average of 96 tornadoes hit Texas each year, says the National Weather Service.

Bank Has Golf Classic Drawing

The Newton Co-operative Bank is offering five pairs of tickets to the USI Golf Classic at Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton, as prizes in a drawing held at the bank each Friday.

The tickets will be good any one day during the week of tournament play, Monday, Aug. 13 through Sunday, Aug. 19.

There is no deposit required to register. In addition to offering the tickets as prizes, the Newton Co-operative Bank is serving as an outlet for ticket applications to this popular golf tournament.

One of the largest tournaments on the P.G.A. Tour, the USI Golf Classic offers a total purse of $200,000 with $40,000 going to the winner. It will be covered nationally by CBS-TV on Saturday and Sunday. As an added attraction, a celebrity Pro-Am tournament is conducted the day prior to the opening round and features a $5,000 purse for the winners.

In the past five years more than one million people have attended the Classic which has hosted such pros as Lee Trevino, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Billy Casper, Dave Stockton, and of course this year's defending champion, Bruce Devlin of Australia.

This year play starts Aug. 13, with practice rounds Monday and Tuesday. Wednesday is the Pro-Am event with the actual tournament starting Thursday, Aug. 16, and concluding on Sunday, Aug. 19.

HOW TO GET MORE VALUE FOR YOUR DINING-OUT DOLLAR!
wine is "in"
Enjoying wine with your dining-out meal is rapidly growing in popularity. And no wonder. The taste, texture and aroma of wine complement and bring out the best in good food. And along with a lighter alcoholic content, wines are low in calories which is great for dieters.
Although there are no iron-clad rules, diners generally order a dry red wine with a red meat entree; a dry white wine with light meat, fish or fowl, and a dessert wine or sweet white wine with dessert or after the meal.
However, if you are confused about which wine to order with what, let your server suggest a wine to match your taste preference, i.e., dry or sweet. Another tip: due to crop failures and the dollar devaluation, French wines in particular are quite costly now. But there are excellent domestic wines available at reasonable prices. Ask us.

jointly by the Newton Recreation Department and the Newton Youth Commission as part of the commission's street worker program.

According to a spokesman reached at the Youth Commission office, "no permits are needed because the concerts conclude before 9 p.m."

Rev. Jerald Stinson, executive secretary of the commission, indicated he had spent the past few days assuring residents of the area that the sound level would be considerably lower than in the previous concert.

"We are turning the volume down, and facing the amplifiers away from any neighboring houses," Stinson stated.

Stinson also said the commission had sponsored other outdoor activities for teenagers and had received widespread support from neighbors, especially in the area of Albermarle Playground.

Tonight's concert will begin at 7 p.m. and will feature the rock group "Salamander."

Tax Decrease —

offset increased costs to the city, but never in the amount proposed by Mann.

The largest transfer ever recorded to this time was in 1969 when the Board of Aldermen approved a $700,000 transfer from surplus of the preceding year to hold the tax rate at $98.40. The amount was then insufficient, however, to halt an increase of $9.80 over the rate for 1968.

The current surplus in the city treasury amounted to $2,461,941.67 on July 1, and represented an increase of almost half a million dollars in the past three months.

Another added factor leading to the largest surplus in history was the difference in estimated receipts made by the assessors in setting last year's tax rate and the actual amount of money received by the city through its various revenue programs.

Many city agencies consistently brought in more money than originally anticipated last year.

The candidate went on to say that when "most politicians don't address certain issues, it is because they are afraid of losing elections."

"We are out to win," he said, "but we are not afraid to lose."

"I believe that there is a sense of urgency in the issues which we propose," he said. "I would ask Newton people how much longer do we have to continue compromising? I believe in Newton people and knowing the conscience manifested by them in voting for both McGovern and Drinan, it is my belief that this fall we will see them voting their conscience once more."

renounce benefits allowed by state law.

Small and Alderman Richard Bullwinkle also said they believe that state law now entitles all the aldermen to some benefits, even though they are unsalaried.

Board President Eliot Cohen disagreed with Small's suggestion to try again for $2,500 and said, "It would be a disastrous thing for the board to rescind the $1,200 or try to amend it to $2,500."

"We had a citizens' committee study this, and the board passed an ordinance. It would put the board in a bad light to say, 'Now that we have $1,200 we're going to change it to $2,500,' " Cohen said.

The committee agreed unanimously that several questions remained unanswered and accordingly held the item for answers from City Solicitor Howard Levine by its next meeting.

Barbecuers, Front And Center

By RON COHEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's time for all you men who are closet gourmet cooks to come out of hiding to practice that most American of cooking rituals, the outdoor barbecue.

But disabuse yourselves of the belief that hotdogs, chicken and hamburgers are the outer limits of your barbecue horizons. Cooking out need not necessarily mean weekend after weekend of the same old menu from now until Labor Day. A little imagination, a little elan can turn your backyard picnic into a four-star delight.

Two of the most important ingredients in outdoor cooking are good recipes for a marinade and a piquant, tasty barbecue sauce. Here are a couple of the best."

WINE MARINADE.

1½ cups of peanut or cooking oil cup of soy sauce
2 tablespoons worchestershire sauce
2 tablespoons dry mustard
2 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon fresh ground pepper
1 cup dry red wine or sherry
2 teaspoons dried parsley flakes
½ cup fresh lemon juice.

Combine all ingredients in a quart jar, cover tightly and shake vigorously. Place steaks, chops, chicken in the marinade in a long shallow pan. Turn occasionally. Marinate as long as two days in the refrigerator.

Marinade can be drained off, frozen and reused. Makes about 3 cups.

ROBUST BARBECUE SAUCE

1 teaspoon liquid red pepper sauce
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup light molasses
½ cup prepared mustard
½ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon sauce

In small saucepan, gradually blend molasses into mustard, stir in remaining ingredients, heat to boiling. Brush meat (spare ribs, steak, chops, chicken, or hamburgers) frequently with sauce.

These are good basic recipes. Since many chefs like to improvise, use the recipes as a starting point and add or subtract as you like. For example, you might want to toss in a couple of teaspoons of tarragon into either recipe when you're cooking chicken.

Now for a suggestion that can give you the opportunity to test the barbecue sauce.

GIANT HAMBURGER TURNOVERS

2 pounds ground chuck
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons seasoned salt
¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper
½ teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce
prepared mustard
1 cup diced mozzarella or cheddar cheese
½ cup diced pimiento
½ cup diced sour pickles
½ cup diced black or green olives
Robust barbecue sauce or bottled sauce spiked with liquid red pepper sauce.

Combine meat with eggs, salt, pepper, garlic powder and worcestershire. Divide into 6 portions. Using a 7¼-inch bowl as a guide, draw a circle on a sheet of waxed paper. Lay 1 portion of meat at a time on the paper and pat it until it fills the circle. Spread mustard lightly over the meat and sprinkle half of it with 1-6 of the cheese, pimiento, olives and pickles, leaving about ½ inch bare at the outer edge. Lift paper to fold bare half of meat over filling and press edges firmly to seal. Repeat with remaining ingredients to make 6 turnovers. Grill to desired doneness, turning once and basting with barbecue sauce. Serve hot on split Italian hero buns.

ONION-STUFFED STEAK

Get two 1½ pound porterhouse steaks cut 1½ inches thick. Slash fat edge of steak at one inch intervals, being careful not to cut into meat. Slicing from the fat side, cut a pocket into each side of the meat, almost to the bone. In a skillet cook ½ cup chopped onion and 1 large clove of garlic, minced, in 1 tablespoon margarine. Season with dash of salt, pepper and celery salt. Stuff the pockets with the onion mixture and skewer the pockets closed. Brush with combination of ¼ cup of dry red wine and 2 tablespoons soy sauce, place on grill 25 to 30 minutes for rare or desired doneness, turning once. Slice across grain. Serves 4.

This Church Choir Sings At A Hotel

By MARGARET HYMAN

san JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — At the Sign Great House, a hotel in the hills above Montego Bay, Jamaica, the local church choir comes on Sundays and sings spirituals for guests. The Sign Great House is almost always full.

The use of the church choir for entertainment is the kind of ingenuity that Jack Gold, who owns and operates Sign Great House, is trying to inspire among other small hotel keepers in the Caribbean.

Under the auspices of the Caribbean Hotel Association (CHA), based in San Juan, Gold is conducting a series of seminars whose aim is to make the smaller hotels in the region a basic and health tourism asset.

In an interview with UPI on the dining terrace of his hotel, Gold said that while the region has lots of small hotels, many of them are on the brink of ruin.

"Often, the small hotels are owned by local residents who had no previous experience, or immigrants who came on vacation and liked the region so much they decided to go into business here," Gold said.

Favors Small Hotels

Either way, they are not hoteliers by training and experience, and often go along for years as a marginal operator without learning basic business practices: how to market their hotel, how to make brochures, how to handle group business, how to keep books, how to calculate occupancy.

But more than anything else, Gold said, "they don't know how to capitalize on the local assets."

Tourism theoreticians in the Caribbean have been saying for the last two years that the heyday of the large resort hotel is over, and that Caribbean tourism must begin to rely on the smaller hotel which can offer local color, a hospitality and a price that the new generation of tourists wants. While the large foreign-owned resorts are carbon copies of their counterparts in other tropical regions of the world, the small hotel can be uniquely Caribbean, they say.

Gold and his wife, Annette, are proponents of the philosophy of the small hotel. They have proved that it works. Gold said the largest part of his business comes from returning guests and friends and acquaintances of former guests who have recommended Sign Great House.

And Sign Great House doesn't even have sand and sea—traditionally considered among the "musts" of a Caribbean resort. Perched in the hills above Montego Bay, it has instead a brand new fishing lake and a weekly tour on which the guests, guided by Annette, have lunch at the home of one of the ordinary residents.

Help From Experts

Gold is trying to help small hotel operators in other parts of the Caribbean recognize their unique opportunities.

Every month or so, Gold gathers up a group of experts—other successful small hoteliers, tour arrangers, advertisers and the like—and takes them to one of the Caribbean islands for three or four days of intensive indoctrination of local hotel owners.

Seminars have been held so far in St. Kitts, St. Vincent and Haiti.

CHA President James Pepperdine, who usually accompanies the team, told UPI in an interview that the three seminars were "more successful than we could have hoped. It was just astonishing to find out the basic things that some people operating small hotels never knew."

The committee also meets with local government officials to explain what they can do to help promote small hotels.

On St. Kitts, for example, Pepperdine said, Premier Robert Bradshaw agreed to help pay for a joint promotion package for the island's small hotels.

Ultimately, said Pepperdine, a small hotel seminar will be held on each of the 26 CHA-member islands of the Caribbean.

Good Trout Still In Walden Pond

Fisheries biologists have been spending some time of late researching the fish population of Walden Pond in Concord. Their findings are encouraging.

The Fish and Game Division stocked 6700 trout in Walden while there is no question that a very large percentage of these fish were taken during the first three or four weeks, Walden still holds a significant number of trout in early July.

Biologists netted eight trout weighing a total of 5.6 pounds. Lengths ran from 10 to 16.8 inches. Also netted were seven smallmouth bass between 13 and 16.5 inches. Smallmouth scales indicated excellent growth, the larger fish proved to be only three years old.

John Lindenberg, biologist in charge of warmwater investigations, is an experienced scuba diver and, during several dives into the clear depths of Walden, observed an abundant population of smallmouths and crawfish—an important food item for the bass.

In addition, golden shiners and yellow perch turned up in the nets.

"all things work together for good TO THEM THAT love God."
Romans 8 28

Trusting God for all good, you can see a pattern of progress in your life. Even trials become opportunities for healing and for improvement, as the Bible shows.

At our testimony meeting this Wednesday, you will hear others tell how they've drawn closer to God and felt His gentle control of their lives. And often they tell how their understanding of God has healed them of sickness, grief, loneliness, fear, lack.

We hope you'll visit soon.

Half Price Admission At Museum Of Science Aug. 3

As a gift to the community, Boston's Museum of Science announces half-price admission for all visitors Friday, August 3. The one-day-only rate celebrates the first anniversary of the opening of the west wing which took place last August 3.

Admission will be $1, adults; 50 cents ages 5-16 and over 65. Hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Especially for youngsters, the regular schedule of programs will be augmented by two demonstrations, at 11:15 a.m. and 3 p.m., of two animals rarely seen in this country. They are the Slow Loris of Southeast Asia and the Bush-baby of Africa, both in the primate group.

All ages will want to see the new Honeywell computer exhibit, installed only two weeks ago in time for the west wing birthday. Several terminals allow visitors to play games, obtain information about the Museum, and solve mathematical problems.

Two physical science demonstrations at 10:15 a.m. and 1:50 p.m. and two demonstrations of other live animals at 12:15 and 4:15 p.m. are also scheduled.

In addition, a "misbehaving suitcase," a laser that makes light patterns, and a formula that produces synthetic rubber in 60 seconds are among the demonstrations provided in a traveling General Motors program, scheduled for 10:30, 11:45 a.m., 12:30, 2:00, and 2:50 p.m.

GM's "Previews of Progress" are held in the Wright Theatre, one of the most recently completed areas of the west wing.

There is no charge for any of the demonstrations.

The Planetarium program, Ad Astra Per Aspera (Through Rugged Ways to the Stars), which covers some of astronomy's most exciting discoveries, will be given at 11:15 a.m. and 2:45 p.m. and at 8 p.m. The usual Planetarium charge of 50 cents will be reduced to 25 cents.

Although the 78,000 square feet of exhibit space in the 260-foot-long west wing have yet to be filled, the first year of operation has seen the opening of two art galleries, a demonstration theatre, and installation of several major exhibits.

"Works in Review" by Gyorgy Kepes, director of the Center for Advanced Visual Studies at M.I.T., is the current showing (through Aug. 12) in the new Design Around Us Gallery, featuring the interaction of art and science. At the entrance is a display of shells, made visible on all sides by a mirrored setting.

Animal paintings by the Swiss artist, Fritz Hug, are hung in the Washburn Gallery through Sept. 2. The animals are endangered species which Hug has traveled around the world to find and portray.

Guided tours on tape, in both English and Spanish, may be rented. They are narrated by Museum Director Bradford Washburn to give background on major exhibits.

Dropouts: School Without Walls May Help

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University Without Walls concept which has been operating successfully for two years in nearly a score of states is spreading to high schools. And high time!

More than 40 per cent of Americans above the age of 22 do not have high school diplomas. Various versions of Schools Without Walls for educational dropouts have emerged in Philadelphia, Boston, New York and Chicago, but the most ambitious tryout will begin in central New York State next year.

A regional pilot project has occupied experts at the Syracuse University Research Corp. for more than a year. It will become operative in January in five New York counties where annual high school dropouts total 10,000. It is aimed at high school dropouts of any age—adults, veterans, minorities, the rural poor and the handicapped—but most especially teenagers.

The Regional Learning Service (RLS) project, funded by the Ford and Carnegie Foundations and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, faces up to the fact that there are youth who are not suited enough to hour-by-hour classroom attendance to earn a high school degree. Some students find the average high school curriculum outdated and unproductive and would prefer to take a job.

For these individuals, New York's "eternal degree" program offers an attractive and flexible alternative to school attendance, especially for those who are highly self-motiviated.

Once a student is enrolled, studies are geared to work schedule or other time-consuming responsibilities such as motherhood. The student may study during the day or at night, take two courses or perhaps six according to the time available. When work is related to studies, credit is added.

Computers Play Too

Honeywell has opened a computer exhibit at the Boston Museum of Science.

The focal point of the $350,000 exhibit is a Honeywell minicomputer connected to seven television screen-like terminals which can be operated by visitors. The 2,000-square-foot area also contains a number of graphic panels explaining computers and their history.

C. W. Spangle, Honeywell executive vice president, said during opening ceremonies that the purpose of the exhibit is to allow visitors "to get acquainted with one of the most widely used — and yet the least understood — of today's technological achievements." Museum visitors can operate the terminals to play games, make math calculations and retrieve information about the museum, thus allowing visitors to learn the machine's capabilities and how it works.

Spangle said, "computers already touch the daily lives of most people and we will have much more contact with them in the future. It behooves all of us to become more familiar with these tools so that we will understand them and use them for the benefit of all."

Museum Director Bradford Washburn said, "We predict intense interest in this new and extensive exhibit. Even though people are aware of the far-reaching influence of the computer, they don't really understand it — how it works, and what it can and cannot do. Our exhibit should make a significant contribution toward this important educational goal."

The exhibit is constructed in concentric circles. At the core, inside a transparent wall, is the Honeywell Model 316 minicomputer which was made in Framingham, Mass. This computer has 16,000 words of main memory and an additional 7.5 million words stored on a high-speed magnetic disk device.

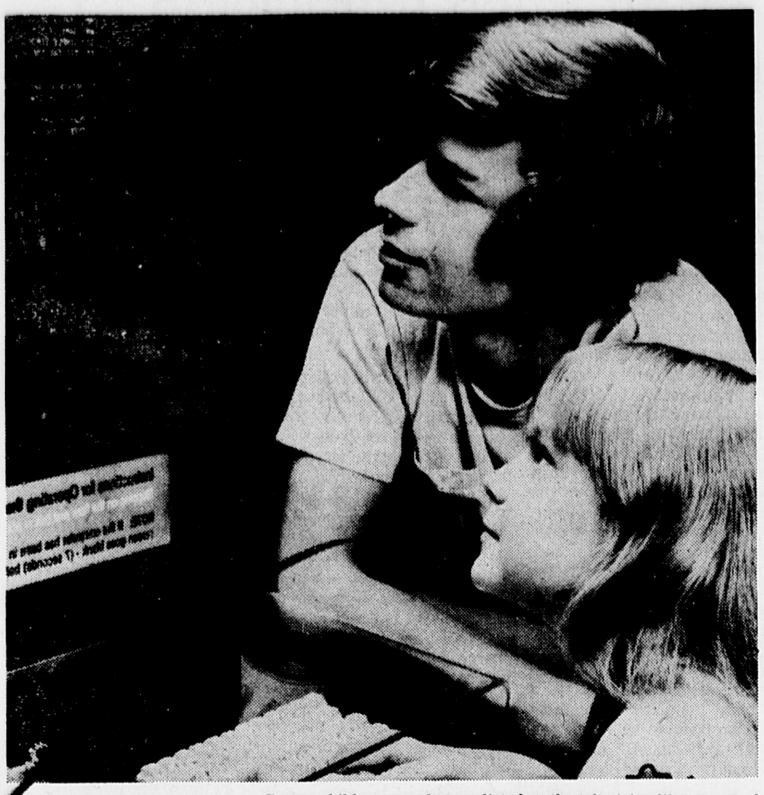
The computer can retrieve words from main memory in 1.6 millionths of a second and from the disk memory unit in less than 55 millionths of a second. The disk unit can transfer data at the rate of 78,000 words per second. Also displyed in the core is a typical small business computer, a Honeywell Model 58.

Spangle said, "All of these powerful resources will be at the fingertips of visitors to the exhibit. Through the typewriter-like keyboards and television-like visual displays people can communicate with the computer and choose from three types of programs — calculations, museum information, and games."

The calculation programs allow the operator to perform the most complicated math problems with up to 25-decimal-place accuracy. One program can even calculate the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter carried out to 400 digits.

The museum information program illustrates the information retrieval capabilities of the computer. Equivalent to a 1,000-page book with a master index, the program answers questions a visitor may have about the Museum of Science.

The game programs contain both simple and complex exercises, including Tic-Tac-Toe, Simple Simon and Conway's Game of Life. It also will deal out bridge hands — a specialized example of its ability to generate random numbers. The games demonstrate the power of the computer to handle complex problems and also test the visitor's powers of observations and logical reasoning capability, Honeywell said.



Computer Games

Games children can play are listed on the television-like screen of a computer terminal at the newest exhibit at the Boston Museum of Science. The schibit consists of a computer that can be operated by visitors through seven terminals. In addition to games, the system can provide information on the museum and can be used for math calculations.

Silent Film Series At Museum Of Fine Arts

Charlie Chaplin and Mack Sennett are two of the great comedy stars featured in the Museum of Fine Arts' outdoor film series every Tuesday and Thursday in August.

"Silents in the Court" will take you back to when movies simply made you laugh. These were the days when "The Gold Rush" had nothing to do with dollar devaluation . . . when "High and Dizzy" didn't suggest drugs . . .when "Hands Up" wasn't a likely sequel to "The Godfather."

These titles are just a few of those featured in this series of classics from such great laugh-makers as Laurel and Hardy, Buster Keaton and Harold Lloyd.

Films will be shown every Tuesday and Thursday evenings, August 2-30, beginning at sundown.

From the collection of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library and Audio Brandon Films, New York, the films run approximately one hour. They are free, with museum admission. In case of rain, the performance will be canceled.

A complete schedule follows:

Aug. 2—Charlie Chaplin: The Jitney Elopment (1915), A Night at the Show (1915), and One A. M. (1916).

Aug. 7—Charlie Chaplin: The Rink (1916); Mack Sennett: Astray from the Steerage (1920, and Harold Lloyd: High and Dizzy (1920).

Aug, 9—Buster Keaton: One Week (1920); The Boat (1921), and Cops (1922).

Aug. 14—Buster Keaton: The Balloonatic (1923), and Sherlock, Jr. (1924).

Aug. 16—Buster Keaton: The Navigator (1924).

Aug. 21—Charlie Chaplin: The Gold Rush (1925).

Aug. 23—Harry Langdon: The Strong Man (1926).

Aug. 28—Raymond Griffith: Hands Up! (1926).

Aug. 30—Laurel and Hardy: Two Big Tars (1928) and Big Business (1929).

Waban Chiefs Open Lead In International League

That was the week that was in the International League, as the Waban Chiefs put an end to just about everyone's pennant talk by winning two straight and opening up a four-game lead in the loss column over St. Bernard's, Boys' Club, and Totem Pole.

The Chiefs helped themselves by besting St. Bernard's, 6-3, and by crushing Post 440, 7-0.

Waban took a 4-0 lead in the early innings and shut off a late charge by St. Bernard's to drop that team out of the race itself. Robie Alevizos earned the win on a three-hitter with eight strikeouts and scored the winning run. Steve DiBenedetto cracked two hits for the Chiefs.

DiBenedetto moved to the mound for the Post 440 game and was virtually untouchable, allowing one single with nine whiffs.

Phil Small swatted three hits in four trips to the plate and Larry Giorgio slammed a grand slam homer in the Chiefs' six-run third inning, to account for the offense.

St. Bernard's held on to second place, one win ahead of the Boys' Club, by topping Carson Post, 5-2. St. B's tallied four runs in the last inning to take the decision. Dave Hudson recorded the win and Bobby Vona blasted two run-scoring hits.

Boys' Club faded with a 6-4 loss to Totem Pole and a 2-2 tie with Upper Falls, leaving the Clubbies at 10-5.

Totem Pole, 9-5, also edged into the picture by beating Oak Hill, 3-0.

A two-run homer by Doug Jessup and two hits from Steve Reilly clinched the win over the Boys' Club as Matt Berry and Dom Russo shared the mound work. Boys' Club made a game try to erase a 6-1 lead in the sixth inning, but fell short.

Bob Garabedian pitched a four-inning no-hitter, but had to settle for a one-hitter in the shutout over Oak Hill. Garabedian fanned five as Dave Prince broke up the no-hitter. Reilly was the hitting hero again with two more safeties.

The Boys' Club's discouraging tie with Upper Falls cost it second place again. John Leone's one-hitter was wasted, but he didn't help himself out with seven walks. Jim MCarthy had two hits for the Clubbies.

Our Lady's seemingly appearing from nowhere, also moved closer to a bid for second place by taking two games and upping its record to 8-5-2.

A three-run homer by Paul Terry and three hits by Bob Annesi gave the Lancers a 10-8 victory over Upper Falls. The Lancers pounded out 11 hits. Dave D'Amico struggled, but received credit for the win.

Our Lady's limbered up its bats again for an encounter with the Highlands AA and walked off with a 12-4 triumph this time.

D'Amico registered the win once more, but with a better performance, firing a four-hitter. Dave Bracken gave him help with two hits.

The other games, last week, centered around the league's have-nots.

The Highlanda AA and Oak Hill battled to an 8-8 deadlock when Oak Hill came back to score two runs in the sixth frame. Mike Brownstein doubled in the tying run for the last of his three hits.

Oak Hill also topped the Elks, 6-3, as Brownstein shone again with two more hits. Tom Young, three-plus innings of relief got credit for the win.

Post 440 showed that it is better than Waban made it look by pasting the Elks, 12-4 on 12 hits.

Lee Waxman, Rick Fleming, and Don Abboud ripped two hits apiece and John Sementelli threw a three-hitter, to pace the win. Post 440 came up with seven runs in the first inning. —

Upper Falls Captures National Division Title

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

The madness has ended in the Newton National Division.

A last-week spurt, coupled with a last-game tie by St. Bernard's enabled Upper Falls to capture the league pennant.

Upper Falls survived a 5-4 loss to the Boys' Club and took two of three games in the final week of regular season play, to win it. The Panthers edged Newton Centre, 1-0, and topped Matthews, 3-1.

The Boys' Club win really tightened things up and left three teams, Boys' Club, Upper Falls, and St. Bernard's, with a chance to win with two days left.

Boys' Club scored its runs in five different innings and broke a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning with the last one. Gary Vitti singled in Dave Boyijian with the game winner. Ken Billings, Gary Bearfield, and Kevin Cupoli chipped in with two hits each.

Paul Ciccone's homer was the big blast for Upper Falls.

Vitti gave himself the victory, outdueling Upper Falls ace lefthander Mark Fogel.

But that was the only bad news Upper Falls received all week.

Jim Kavanaugh came through with a clutch mound effort to propel Upper Falls past Matthews on a six-hitter. Kavanaugh struck out 11 and had to be near perfect since his team provided little offensive support. Steve Tresca, Kavanaugh himself, and Ciccone got the only safeties for the victors. Ciccone's hit was a two run double.

Kavanaugh also came up with the big win over Newton Centre, scattering three hits and fanning 12 in that contest, while Ciccone's bat took care of things again with two hits.

St. Bernard's fought to stay in the race and dumped the Highlands AA, 4-1, but a last-game 7-7 deadlock with Centre was the spoiler.

Jim McCarthy cracked two hits and Jim Blake hurled a two-hitter against the Highlands, but Centre proved much more formidible.

The lead changed hands three times, but in the end no one had it. John Hunt's two triples and four RBI's, and Rick Vello's two singles went for naught.

The Boys' Club finished out with a 10-1 romp over Matthews to take third place. Vitti and Cupoli blasted two hits apiece and the Clubbies ran up seven scores in the first inning.

So the wild season ends with a last minute pennant scramble, but the real fun, the playoffs, is just about to begin. Playoff action starts this week for Upper Falls, St. Barnard's the Boys' Club, and Newton Centre.

Stan Musial League

High points have been few this season for the struggling Newton Capello Club of the Stan Musial League, but last week provided one of the best items of the season from a Capello standpoint.

The Waltham Fucci Club has the league race sewed up—at last look 15-1-2 - and has not been beaten in its last 15 games, but last week Capello held Fucci to a 3-3 tie, one of the few teams to approach the Walthamites this season.

Capello took the early lead with a three-run first inning outburst after bunching three of its five hits together. Jerry Quaranto and Bob Fabiano each produced RBI triples and Bob Eisenberg added a run-producing single.

But Fucci chipped away at the lead one run at a time and finally came up with the tying tally in the sixth frame. Kevin Marden, who was one-for-one and scored two runs, came across on a single by Colin Clapton in the home half of the inning.

Jon Marcus and Steve Marino had the other hits for Capello.

Len Gentile struck out seven men with one walk for Fucci. Steve Weir and John Gemelli hurned for Capello in the no-decision contest.

Tennis Tips

Q. I overheard a tennis pro use the term "no man's land". What does this refer to?

A. "No man's land" refers to the middle of the tennis court. A player should try to stay either back at the baseline or all the way up to the net, when he is waiting for the ball. When you stand in the center of the court, you're leaving youself in a very vunerable position. A shallow ball will come at your feet and leave you a difficult return. A deep ball will go past you. Even if the ball is hit to you, it is a tough place to hit a winning shot from. This is why the center of the court is called "no man's land."

Q. Who has the hardest serve in tennis?

A. At present, Roscoe Tanner has the hardest serve. It's no wonder, since he was coached by Pancho Gonzales. Pancho's used to be the hardest serve.

Q. I was playing in a club tournament and a shot was hit close to the line. I wasn't sure whether or not it was in. My opponent said he didn't see it either. Finally, we asked one of the spectators who was watching the match and he said it was good. Should we have gone by his decision or should we have played the point over?

A. Too many players constantly play points over when they're unsure of a call. The rule states that a ball must be called "in" unless it is seen "out". This means that if you are unsure of a call, you should call it "in". Spectators have no say in a call. In sanction tournaments, linesmen are available to make the calls for players so this problem doesn't exist.

Just a note to say good luck to Betsy Richmond, Kathy Hoes, Kim Murphy, Jody Award, Susan Whittaker and Kris Kinney who are representing New England in the National Girls Tennis championships in Little Rock Arkansas this week.

The Patriots' 73 Draft. How Good?

By RAY NEARY

Much ado has been made of the Patriots' top three picks in the '73 NFL draft - and justifiably. Offensive lineman John Hannah, running back Sam Cunningham and wide receiver Darryl Stingley are the best from the '72 college ranks at their respective positions.

It must be remembered, however, that the Pats chose these three before 20 players had been selected from the total of 442 pro prospects.

What about the rest of their selections?

The Pats with a long history of squandering draft picks lost their 2nd round pick in the ill-fated Fred Dryer shuffle from the Giants to L.A. via New England. (Cleveland ended up the recipient of that bouquet and selected All-American Greg Pruitt from Chuck Fairbanks' Oklahoma team).

The 3rd round saw New England select Brad Dusek who switched to fullback last year at Texas A & M after playing two years at safety. In the Coaches All-America contest at Lubbock, Texas in June, he played on defense and would have passed for one of the officials had he not been in a player's uniform. He looked dumbfounded by it all.

Another 3rd round pick, acquired in the trade of Ron Sellers to Dallas, was used to select running back Charlie Davis from Alcorn A & M. He has been publicized by the Pats as having done "most of his work inside the 10". In view of the fact that the New England entry hardly got inside the opponent's 10-yard line last year, the question arises as to why a defensive player was not selected to shore up the worst defense in the NFL last year. It appears that some signals got crossed here as Sam Cunningham's forte is diving for that goal line. He gained renown by catapulting to four touchdowns in the last Rose Bowl. Davis has yet to receive any raves from Amherst.

Allen Gallaher and Doug Dumler, selected on the 4th and 5th rounds are offensive linemen and these selections seem sound. They both played for top teams against the best of college competition and should make the squad, strengthening what has been deemed in the past to be the weakest area of the team.

From this point in the draft the Pats' brass sat on their hands while Miami and New Orleans used up three of the Pats' selections lost in a few of Upton Bell's farcical trades. None of the three players obtained for these draft picks could survive with the team - and their combined playing time didn't total 60 minutes for the club.

The 8th round pick, Ike Brown, i under contract with Montreal in the CFL for this year but he didn't play for them in a recent telecast from Canada, having been hurt in training camp.

The 9th and 13th round picks, Buster Callaway and Alan Lowry quit before they started while 10th and 11th round selections, Dan Ruster and Homer May, left camp in Amherst. Linebacker Mike Kutter and Georgia Tech's quarterback, Eddie McAshan, picked on the 16th and 17th rounds were cut early in the Amherst camp.

Currently, the draft crop has been whittled down from 17 originals in January to 10 hopefuls. Bruce Barnes, No. 12, has a good chance to survive as a punter in light of veteran Pat Studstill's impending operation.

Also left in camp are 14th and 15th round picks, scatback Condie Pugh and defensive lineman Ray Hamilton of Chuck Fairbanks' Oklahoma Sooners. Pugh, the 5'11, 179 lb. speedster out of Norfolk State would seem to stand his best chance if the Pats can afford a spot on their roster for a fleet runner to improve the woeful punt and kickoff return department. Ray Hamilton at 6'1, 235 lbs. may be too light to survive at defensive end in the pros. He did, however, show quickness and good pursuit in helping to shut out Penn State in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Day.

Over the years the single most important reason for the lack of success of the local entry in the NFL has been their inability to properly use the draft to build a winner. Aside from Heisman Trophy winner, Jim Plunkett, who was the first player in the country selected two years ago, the Pats have had a propensity to make some terrible choices on the 1st round. "Can't miss" linemen Karl Singer and Dennis Byrd left Pats diehards shaking their heads.

In a turnabout, the club then started to trade away the choices for castoffs or malcontents from other clubs. Players like Joe Kapp, Duane Thomas and Steve Kiner are joined by Lassiter, Jacobs, Gardin, Flanigan, Griffin and Mass in this category and none of them played in more than 14 games for New England's NFL hope. Some didn't play as much as 5 minutes of one game.

The Patriots already have traded off next year's No. 1 pick for tight end Bob Winsor and stand to lose three more for players who are trying to make this year's squad (tight end Bob Adams, defensive lineman Lloyd Voss and the former All-Pro defensive back, 34 yr. old Herb Adderly). With the possibility of only 13 of next year's draft choices being left, the roster will have to be swelled by a good number of the rookies currently vying for positions out in Amherst. That is if we can expect a winner some time in the near future.

Hannah, Cunningham and Stingley. These are names that you are going to hear a lot about around Foxboro and environs in the future. But three players doth not a successful draft make.

Let's see who is around in September when the final cut is made.

Pony League Basketball Provides Excitement

One of the many highlights of the Newton Recreation Department's summer programs has been its second annual Pony League basketball league.

Games are played Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Sacred Heart gym, and Fridays at the Boys Club in Nonantum. The League is open for boys in grades seven through nine.

Warren, the winter Pony League champ is coached by Ken Annese. Warren has recorded an unblemished 11-0 slate behind the offensive power of John Williams. Williams has tallied 103 points. Tom Morag has scored 76, and Randy Jenus has scored 64 to aid the well-balanced assault.

Recreation Supervisor Joe Siciliano has entered A and B Squads from Hawthorne Playground. The A team is in second place 8-2. This ball club is noted for its tough defense which yields an average of only 24 points per game. Rick Sementelli and Mario Lucchetti have combined for 211 points between them. The talents of Jim Christo, Dave Keefe, and Jim Visakis round out a solid offensive attack.

The B Squad is a hustling team that owns a 2-8 record, but with a few breaks they could easily have two more wins. They are still in the running for a hotly contested fourth playoff spot. Aris Christo, Ed Pendergast, and Don Collins have been the mainstays of the team.

Sacred Heart, coached by Bob Mahoney, is 7-4 and locked in third place. Dennis Camerson, the team floor general, has carded 102 points. Mickey Atkins and Paul Terry have combined for 131 points. Matt Sabetti has a game high of 27 for the purple.

Coached by Bob Worden, the Newton Centre Playground is in fourth place with a 4-6 slate. They have been a surprise in the league. Coming off an exciting upset win over Our Lady's, they are preparing for a key week in the campaign. The team is led by the outside shooting of Peter Deasy, Andy Linn, and James McDonald.

Tom McKniff's Our Lady's Squad is in fifth place, 3-7. Kevin Riffe and Steve Shepard have been the outstanding performers for the Lancers who now face a must win situation this week.

in the cellar at 1-9. Keith Glasser who plays Basketball for Jerry Philips at Newton High, coaches the team. His brother Jim leads the team with 38 points.

League Director Austin Moore remarked that the league success depends upon the dedication of its workers. Those workers include Steve Pozzi, scorer, Sandra Geller, timer, and referees Nick Siciliano and Leon Geller.

100 Per Cent Rating

State Representative David J. Mofenson of Newton has been given a 100 per cent rating by Citizens for Participation in Political Action on 1972 and 1973 roll calls on election reform.

The ratings were based on votes relating to expanded and uniform polling hours, eliminating notary witnesses on absentee ballots and absentee voter registration.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Spring chicken censuses have shown a progressive and severe decline in the past several years, the Missouri Conservation Commission reports.

AUTO FACTS

BY GEORGE BALIAN
Car manufacturers specify the correct battery for every make and model of car. When you buy a battery, divide the price of the battery by the number of months on the warranty. In most instances this will give you the cost per month. Then the only thing to do is to compare until you find the best bargain for the money. The more plates a battery has, the more ampere hours it has and the more likely it is to be a better battery.

Hope Springs Eternal At Unique Camp

At Camp Ramah in Palmer, Mass., and Conover, Wis. there are over forty campers who are participating in the "Tikvah" program. The Hebrew word for hope is used to designate a unique program in Jewish and camping experience.

At both of these camps adolescents from age 12 to 19-years-old with a wide range of learning and-or physical disabilities (cerebral palsy, autism, minimal brain damage, etc.) are integrated into a regular camp program. Though there are some 30,000 Jewish children with special problems this is the only known program of its kind.

Now in its fourth season, the Tikvah program is sponsored by the Camp Ramah Commission and the United Synagogue of America. Receipt of a grant from the Institute For Jewish Life, a division of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, Inc. has assisted in the replication of the program at Camp Ramah in Conover. It is the Institute's purpose to identify, encourage and fund those programs which seek to enhance the quality of life for American and Canadian Jews.

The Tikvah program is just one of some thirty-five programs which have received some or all of its funds from the Institute For Jewish Life.

In the informal camp setting, Tikvah campers receive guidance from carefully selected counselors as well as staff professionals such as psychologists and social workers. The director of the Program, Herb Greenberg, is a specialist in learning disabilities for Nassau County, N.Y. and is on the teaching faculty of the Teacher's Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

He and his wife Barbara, also a specialist in special education have produced many learning materials, including a Sabbath kit for the exceptional child and adolescent.

In addition to a high counselor-camper ratio each Tikvah camper has an older, regular camper tutor him daily in elected activities such as typing, tennis or religious instruction. Each Tikvah camper also leans to assume responsibility by holding a job in the laundry, mail room, kitchen or other camp facility.

Important to the program is the daily session of therapy. They are divided into two groups — lower and higher functioning youths. Here they share their problems and progress with their counselors and with each other. One boy haltingly told of the fun he had splashing and being splashed.

Three weeks earlier he had arrived at camp with a fear of the water.

Tikvah campers partake of a full range of camping experiences and participate in all phases of camp life from athletics and crafts to overnight trips. However, each activity is tailored to meet their specific needs and capabilities. By lessening the level of frustration these campers can enjoy the feeling of accomplishment and success and still live in an environment of a normal community.

Tikvah campers come from Jewishly aware homes. Therefore, as it is throughout the entire Camp Ramah program, emphasis is placed on Judaism as a way of life. They receive instruction in the Hebrew language. One sixteen year-old boy who is retarded with Mongoloidism is able to read Hebrew and frequently leads the entire camp in the grace after meals.

Observance of the sabbath, Jewish holidays and daily prayer are considered part of the Tikvah camper's experience. Most of these young people have never had a Bar or Bat Mitzvah, they have one in camp. Parents are invited, the whole camp participates and the Tikvah camper receives the recognition and satisfaction that they require for development.

During the final week of camp (Aug. 15-17) the parents are required to attend a three-day workshop which is designed to assist them in reinforcing the constructive growth of their children when they return home. This year for the first time there will be seminars for the siblings of these special teen-agers.

Those wishing more information about this program should contact Herb Greenberg, Camp Ramah, Palmer, Mass. (413-283-9771) or the Institute For Jewish Life. The Institute is headquartered in Wellesley, and is under the directorship of Dr. Leon A. Jick.

Pines Sponsors Divorce Reform

The Massachusetts House yesterday passed the Divorce Recrimination Bill (H. 4167) sponsored by Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton).

The bill, if passed by the Senate and signed by the Governor, will eliminate the judicial doctrine of "recrimination" which denies a divorce in Massachusetts when both spouses have grounds for a divorce.

Under current law, if both spouses are found to be guilty of any of the enumerated grounds for divorce, the doctrine prohibits a divorce from being granted.

Grounds for divorce presently include adultery, impotency, utter desertion for two years, gross intoxication by drugs or alcohol, cruel and abusive treatment and non-support by the husband.

Upon passage of the bill by the House, Rep. Pines stated, "This is the first step in modernizing divorce procedure in Massachusetts."

The bill was also sponsored by Attorney Murray Falk of Newton, a well-known criminal and divorce lawyer, and Rep. James Segel (D-Brookline).

Rep. Pines also joined with the Massachusetts Bar Association and the Family Law Committee of the Boston Bar Association in supporting alternative legislation to the concept of a "guilty party in every divorce."

This "dissolution of marriage" legislation (H. 1376) was defeated in the House last week and yesterday failed to gather the necessary votes for reconsideration.

The bill would have provided, if enacted, for the granting of a divorce upon mutual consent of both spouses. The divorce would be granted after a one-year separation, a court approved property settlement and custody arrangement and no finding of guilt on the part of either party involved.

In arguing for the defeated bill while it was on the House floor for debate, Rep. Pines stated, "This procedure safeguards the rights of each party to retain his or her privacy and dignity. It does not require that the personal difficulties of each individual be laid before the public in open court."

"This legislation," Rep. Pines continues, would permit a divorce without the necessity for establishing guilt. To compel two persons to live together under such adverse circumstances would seem to do violence to the moral sensibilities of our enlightened age and cause irreparable damage to the children."

pre-election reports required by Common Cause monitoring will be due Sept. 24, Oct. 22, and Nov. 1.

The monitoring process will consist mainly of identification of contributors of more than $100. The six or seven Newton residents who will be working on the Newton monitoring will look for contributions from special-interest groups or persons, including those with contracts with the city, employees of the city and their relatives, and persons associated with banks in which municipal funds are deposited.

Common Cause will issue reports to the press about one week after each report is received, pointing out any connections noted between large contributors and the city government.

Mrs. Cohen emphasized that the reports are not in any way judgemental. She said, "The voter has a right to know before voting where the money is coming from," and the burden should be on the candidate to explain why certain people contribute.

The City Hall meeting was called by the mayor in a letter to the other three candidates in which he repeated his hope that all could agree on an expenditure limit of 50 cents per registered voter and a prohibition on the use of billboards, radio and television.

Agreement was reached fairly quickly on the last three points, with only MacNeil dissenting. He feels that a candidate should be able to spend any amount of money agreed on as the limit in any way he sees fit.

When the discussion turned to Mann's suggestion of 50 cents expenditure per voter, Carmen argued that not only was Mann asking that candidates spend less this year than Mann did in 1971 but also he was disregarding "the tremendous advantage of being the incumbent."

"There should be a ceiling, but certainly no less than you spent last time," Carmen said.

"It's pretty late in the campaign. We have been in this campaign longer than you have. We have plans. We have spent $14,000 or $15,000. You must consider what has already been spent," Carmen added.

Mann replied, "Last time you spent for radio and television. Your billboards were up first, and we felt we had to match you. I don't intend to spend money for radio, television or billboards. I can't compete with you. I don't have the personal resources."

Berry then proposed that "no candidate spend more than $500 out of his own pocket" and that there be accepted "no donation over $100 from any individual."

Carmen, who wound up the last mayoral campaign with a $29,000 deficit and is in the red for about $10,000 so far in this campaign, objected to Mann's counter suggestion that each candidate limit his own persomal contribution to $3,000.

Carmen said to Mann, "You're prepared to give yourself every advantage. As mayor you make the news, get pictures in the papers, have your name on mailings. You want to put me in a position where, because it is known that I have money, I find it difficult to raise money."

In the end Carmen, MacNeil and Mann agreed to the $38,186 expenditure figure, to come from personal expenditure plus contributions. This amount is equal to 67.8 cents per registered voter.

Berry held out for no more than 10 cents per voter.

The two major candidates agreed to limit the total amount of contributions to "no more than $40,000," at which point MacNeil commented, "There's no point in this meeting, then. We're back to more than 50 cents a vote. That's too much. What we need to get back to is the candidate stomping around the streets."

Near the end of the meeting Berry mentioned the possibility of a debate among the four candidates to be televised by Channel 2. All the candidates accepted immediately, although MacNeil said there is a chance that because of many commitments in other states he may decide not to pursue his mayoral ambitions. MacNeil is national secretary of the American party.

Louis Wiley, associate news producer of Channel 2, confirmed this week that the public television station is interested in televising a debate a week or so before the preliminary, preferably from a location in Newton with an audience. No definate plans will be made or invitations issued to the candidates until after the Aug. 14 filing date for nomination papers.

Candidate Takes Issue With Carmen

Mayoral candidate Elliott Berry lashed out at rival William Carmen, calling him an "archtypical liberal," Monday night at a gathering of supporters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gasnick in Newton.

Berry assailed Carmen for refusing to abide by "the still too extravagant" spending limit of 50 cents per registered voter.

"He admits that $40,000 for this kind of mayoral campaign is a horrendous waste of money," decried Berry, "but his obsession with getting elected keeps him from imposing any meaningful spending limit at this time."

"If Mr. Carmen isn't willing to risk a few votes in order to keep campaign spending at a reasonable level, how willing will he be to take a stand on the real controversial issues facing this community such as rent control, low income housing, weapons production and abortion," Berry asked.

Insisting that he is "going to tirelessly raise the issues" until he gets an unequivocal response from all of his opponents, Berry reiterated his stand in support of adoption of the state rent control ordinance ("with certain modifications").

He also renewed his pledges to go after "every available penny" for low income housing for families, and to demand corporate accounting and responsibility in matters of weapons production in Newton.

Berry pinned his hopes in the October primary on the city's less affluent community, "Which has lived too long in the shadows of Newton's mansions."

Building Commissioner Appointed By Mayor Mann

Mayor Theodore Mann announced the appointments this week of Emil G. Larson as Public Buildings Commissioner, effective Aug. 13, replacing Charles Herbert, who resigned last month.

The salary for Public Buildings Commissioner will be $18,000 per year.

Larson, 42, recently retired from the U.S. Air Force with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

He had 11 years engineering experience in diversified civil engineering positions in the Air Force, most recently as base civil engineer at Westover Air Force Base, Massachusetts.

At Westover, Larson was responsible for maintenance of the $115 million facility and in charge of planning and development of its construction and repair program.

Other experience includes supervision of operations and maintenance at Westover and at Cannon Air Force Base, New Mexico, where Larson managed maintenance, repair, and alterations of pavements, grounds, buildings, utilities; operation of the refuse collection; pest control; and snow and ice removal.

From 1967 to 1972, Larson supervised and performed a wide range of professional-level engineering and management functions in the programming, design, fiscal control, maintenance and construction of a $250 million NATO infrastructure program for the Air Force in Europe.

In Vietnam during 1966-67, and earlier at Cannon AFB, Larson managed programming, planning, design, construction, and inspection activities of Air Force facilities.

A graduate of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, with a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering, Larson is also a graduate of the Florida State University Graduate School of Meteorology and the University of Colorado Graduate School of Engineering (Sanitary).

Larson is married and the father of five children. He and his family plan to live in Newton.

Mayor Mann said he would like to thank all members of the Public Buildings Commissioner Selection Committee "for their diligent work in reviewing the many applications for the position." Committee members were Mrs. Eleanor Rosenblum, Ernest Dietz, Joseph Michelson, Sidney Shuman, Richard McGrath, Alfred DiBenedetti, Charles Thomas, and Kentaro Tsutsumi.

"It is through the cooperation of members of government, the School Commuttee, the Board of Aldermen, and interested citizens that we were able to select the best man for this important position," he said.

The mayor also publicly thanked Victor Taglienti, supervisor of Building Inspectors, for "the fine job he performed" as acting building commissioner.

B.U. Promotes Lanzoni

Dr. Vincent Lanzoni, of Spooner Rd., Chestnut Hill, was recently promoted from associate professor of pharmacology to associate professor of medicine at the Boston University School of Medicine.

Dr. Lanzoni also serves as associate dean of the school, responsible primarily for curriculum development and management. He is an alumnus of the school.

The Boston University School of Medicine is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year. The centennial theme is "Responsible Medical Education for a Second Century."

and I'm sure this is the case with our babysitters who must bring their children with them," she added.

Now Seth and his mother are content to stay at home for work and play while other working mothers and their children find separation the normal course of events in their daily lives.

"There is such a crying need for day care programs at low cost," Faye explained and she readily admitted that her service does not even come close to fulfilling that need in the Newton area.

But what she lacks in quantity, Faye Goldstein more than makes up for in quality.

She is presently working on a plan to bring improvisational theater to youngsters in her neighborhood who might otherwise arrive home from school to an empty house or a 13-year-old-sitter.

"Not that a 13-year-old girl couldn't do a fine job sitting," Faye exclaimed, "it's just that I feel this type of program would be so much more beneficial to the children involved."

"Four or five mothers could pool their financial resources and actually wind up paying less for so much more," she added.

Right now there are three aspiring dramatists waiting in the wings for the Goldstein cue. They originally signed on as just "plain" babysitters but with Fay's touch they will hopefully be passing on their thespian talents to youngsters in the area as soon as school opens next month.

So if you would like to babysit for Faye Goldstein's clients make sure you bone up on any hidden talents. She is sure to find them and figure out a way to put them to good use.

Newton Gains On Cherry Sheet

Recalculation of the "cherry sheet," showing the amount of money disbursed by the state to the cities and towns, has given Newton an additional $42,348.56.

The total received by Newton from the state for the transitional 18-month budget, including the new money, is $7,883,200.

Newton will pay the state $7,781,114, leaving a surplus of $102,086.

Last year Newton ended up owing the state almost $1 million.

In Maine Music Camp Recital

Susan Greenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Greenberg of Newton Lower Falls, recently appeared in the weekly student recital at the New England Music Camp in Oakland, Maine, where she is a camper.

Susan is studying with Donald Rankin of the Univerrsity of Rhode Island. Her major instrument is piano and she is taking course work in accompanying, along with performing in the chorus.

another vote Spaulding and Slye were selected, the J.F. White company would not have grounds to sue the Authority or the city, "because the selection is only tentative until the DCA approves it."

"We are looking for a plan acceptable to the majority, and this (White) was acceptable to no one. We will inform the Authority to work closely with LOPAC," Mangini continued. "We want citizen participation - the three members did not take into consideration the wishes of the community and the city government."

Early this week, the J.F. White firm was still considering itself the developer, but would not comment further.

A meeting of the Redevelopment Authority will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m.

This week Mayor Mann appointed Mrs. Margaret Smith to the position held by Davidson. Her appointment becomes effective in 60 days, unless rejected by the Board of Aldermen, but there may be a move to affirmatively approve the appointment earlier.

Whether Mrs. Smith is a member with voting rights during the 60-day period is under consideration by the city solicitor.

Lack of communication was charged by both the Public Buildings Committee and Fink, the latter saying that he had not known of the meeting, called for another purpose, until "a couple of days" beforehand. He said he does not receive dockets of aldermanic meetings, nor does the School Committee, so it is difficult to know what is going on in the Board of Aldermen.

Public Building Committee members thought they should have been advised of developments in the Day School situation "instead of reading about it in the papers," as Ernest Dietz said, and pointed out that they do not receive notification of School Committee meetings.

Clerk of the Board, Edward English found in his records that dockets have been sent to Fink all along, and agreed to send copies to each member of the School Committee.

Ruth Lenson

When you hear the word "melon" do you think of bright green watermelon, honeydews or cantaloupes?

Perhaps that means you've never tasted a honeyball, casaba, cranshaw, Persian, or Santa Claus melon, and that's a shame because each can be a summertime treat.

Just about everyone recognizes the watermelon and cantaloupe; honeydew is the one with the velvety, creamy-white surface and lime green flesh. It is most plentiful from July through October and is usually quite sweet tasting when fully ripe. The honeyball is smaller and rounder, with a thin but visible netting on the surface.

The casaba melon is large and round, with a wrinkled skin and lengthwise furrows. Part of the stem will be attached. It is golden yellow when ripe and the meat is white. August to November is its season.

The cranshaw is a large melon with a pointed stem end. The rind is green, splashed with yellow, turning almost solid yellow-gold at the peak of ripeness. The meat is pink-orange and almost spicy. It is available from July through October.

The Persian melon looks like a giant cantaloupe but its netted surface has a grayish-green background, turning to brownish when table ripe. The inside is orange and firmer than a cantaloupe.

The Santa Claus melon looks like a small watermelon but has the flesh of a honeydew. The supply is light and the season is July to September.

Melons offer the weight watcher a delicious and nutritious way to limit caloric intake. One-half of a 5-inch cantaloupe contains only 50 calories and one-half of a 5-inch honeydew contains only 35 calories. One slice of cantaloupe offers almost the full daily allowance of Vitamin A and nearly three-fourths the amount of Vitamin C recommended for adults.

Melons are tastiest when served thoroughly chilled. but should be wrapped in plastic or foil to hold the aroma within the melon rather than penetrating other foods in the refrigerator.

Melon quality is not easy to detect; you can't be sure of the sweetness or ripeness of a melon until it is cut — however, there are some things to look for: a sign of maturity in a cantaloupe is in the stem end which should be smooth, symmetrical, shallow. The netting or veining of the melon should be thick, coarse and corky; color between the netting should have changed to yellowish-buff, yellowish gray or pale yellow and a pleasant odor is always a sign of ripeness.

The whitish-green rind of a honeydew changes to a creamy yellow when the melon is ripe and the ripe rind has a waxy, velvety feel to the touch. A good honeydew should have a pronounced fragrance.

The casaba melon is usually cut from the vine and so the stem end is no guide to its maturity. It has little aroma by nature — this melon should be selected for yellowing of the rind and slight softening at the blossom end.

When ripe, a cranshaw will have a bright, deep golden color with green streaks turning yellow; the entire melon will be slightly soft with a full-blown aroma.

The mature Persian melon's color changes from deep green to a duller, lighter gray-green or bronze-green.

Watermelons are difficult to judge; plugging is the only way to judge ripeness. However, the spot where the melon touched the ground is another indicator — when the spot turns from pale white to pale yellow, the melon is usually ripe.

HONEYDEW SURPRISE SALAD

1 pkg. (3 oz.) lime flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup chunk-style pineapple, drained
1 cup mandarin orange sections
1 medium honeydew melon
Cottage cheese
Greens
French dressing

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. When it is cold and somewhat thick, add pineapple and orange sections. Peel whole melon. Cut a slice from one end and remove seeds. Fill center with fruited gelatin. Replace slice, wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate until gelatin is firm. When ready to serve, slice, place each slice on bed of greens and spoon cottage cheese around edge of melon. Serve with French Dressing.

PICKLED CANTALOUPE

1 cup water
1 cup sugar
¼ cup white vinegar
3 sticks cinnamon
12 whole cloves
4 cups fresh cantaloupe pared, sliced and cut in wedges

Combine water, sugar, vinegar, cinnamon and cloves in a saucepan. Simmer uncovered, about 5 minutes. Add cantaloupe and heat to boiling point. Cool. Chill at least 1 day before serving. Serving suggestion: Serve with grilled ham steak and slaw, poultry or roast beef.

CANTALOUPE RUM ICE CREAM DESSERT

2 cups finely diced ripe cantaloupe
½ cup confectioners' sugar, sifted
4 tablespoons rum
1 quart vanilla ice cream
½ cup thinly sliced almonds

Combine cantaloupe, sugar and rum in a small bowl and let stand at room temperature about 3 hours, stirring often. Chill. Soften ice cream by beating with an electric mixer or mashing with a wooden spoon in a chilled bowl (work quickly so that ice cream doesn't melt). Spread half of ice cream in a glass loaf pan; about 9x5x3-inches. Top with melon mixture and quickly spread remaining ice cream over. Sprinkle with slice almonds. Cover and freeze. Cut in thick slices to serve. Serves 8.

MINTED WATERMELON BALLS

½ cup mint jelly
½ cup orange or grapefruit juice
½ teaspoon ground ginger
6 cups watermelon balls

Blend mint jelly with fruit juice, stir in ginger. Pour over melon balls and chill. Makes twelve ½-cup servings. Garnish with fresh mint leaves if desired.

ANGEL PINK MOUSSE

2-½ cups pureed watermelon (about 2-½ cups watermelon chunks)
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 cup heavy cream

To puree watermelon, remove seeds from about 2-½ cups watermelon chunks. Puree in electric blender or by mashing through coarse sieve. Soften gelatin in one-fourth cup cold watermelon puree. Heat remaining two cups pureed watermelon in a medium saucepan over low heat until almost boiling. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat; add sugar and lemon juice. Chill, stirring occasionally, until the mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Whip cream and fold in. Turn into a four-cup mold. Freeze. Unmold and garnish with fresh lemon slices, additional melon balls and mint sprigs (if desired). Serves 6.

HONEYDEW SANDWICH

1 medium honeydew melon
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
4 thin slices smoked cooked ham, chopped
Letuce

Peel melon and cut crosswise into 6 slices. Combine softened cream cheese and ham; mix well. Place a melon slice on a bed of crisp lettuce; spread with cream cheese mixture. Top with second slice of melon. Garnish with fresh mint. Makes 3 sandwiches.

HERB BATTER BREAD gets its unusual flavor from its spice ingredients - basil, oregano, and thyme. It can easily be made by using the Rapidmix method of yeast baking. Please refer to Information, Please for recipe.

Cycling Togs Are Shapely Fashions

Want to lick the gasoline shortage? Get a bicycle and accomplish three objectives: Exercise and fitness, a strike against pollution, and a salute to a sorely tried budget.

Bike manufacturers smile as they work harder than ever trying to produce a sufficient number of bicycles for enthusiasts who range in age from 3 to 93. (Recently reported, a 93-year-old man who still bikes every day to the corner grocery for his morning newspaper.)

Bicycle sales in the United States have risen from 6.3 million in 1961 to over 83 million today. A large portion of the bikes are racing types.

There are generally three types of bicycle riders—those who have two-wheelers just for the fun of it, enjoying long trips along country lanes, those who bike seriously back and forth to work as well on sight-seeing trips and the serious cyclist who belongs to a bicycle league.

The benefits of cycling are numerous-the exercise is considered excellent for keeping a healthy heart; those who are interested in dropping pounds find cycling a pleasant and painless method.

A caution for cyclists: A rider should consistently go with the flow of traffic; pant legs must not be so wide they tangle with the pedal or wheel spokes. After dark, all bikes should have battery lights and riders should wear clothing that makes them clearly visible.

The clothing industry has wisely "caught on" to the cycle-craze by coming up with new sensible outfits. Indications are that the pedal-pushers of the 40's are out (why, we can't understand because they are an ideal fashion for the sport).

In place of pedal-pushers, cyclists are wearing short-shorts...some with little slits up the side similar to those worn by track stars. The mix-and-match movement in sportswear has spread from golf to tennis and cycling—cyclists put together all sorts of combinations like long or short pants, tailored culottes, tunics, shirts and skirts.

Pants, long or short, are naturally the basic bicycling uniform. (If you are wearing wide legs or flares, be sure to have clips that secure the extra fabric thereby avoiding the greasy chain as well as wheel spokes.)

One enterprising firm called Sonni, has designed pants with snap fastenings and padded seats. (How come they never thought of that before?)

Pant tops this summer are beautiful and brief. Baring the back or midriff is very much "in" and tops are often clingy little knits or scoop-neck T-shirts.

Color is an important factor in the choice of cycling clothes...not only because color can be fun but because color attracts the automobile driver's eye, making the sharing of the road less of a hazard.

Layers of patterned and solid color put-togethers have been chosen by avid cyclists. Following are a few of the current styles:

Arnel Bermuda shorts in bright azure blue topped with a red, white and blue jersey; tied around the waist, a bright red orlon pullover.

Yellow cuffed shorts, yellow knit shirt, white knee socks and blue Acrylic and suede zippered jacket.

Waists are snugged with ribbing, elastic shirring and wider waistbands. Woven fabrics and double knit cottons are favorites in the halter and short combinations.

That old favorite the cotton knit T-shirt has been revived but no locker room could recognize it- scooped necks, bright colors, ruffled sleeves, cropped, wrapped and haltered, yet the T-shirt reigns supreme. Seen with it, short-shorts, hipsters, pants and short whirly skirts. An all round look favored by the young.

Gold buttons trim the halter top and the skirt that wraps around to a pleated back. The square cut neckline and banded halter add chic to this Dacron polyester crepe outfit.

Red, white and blue march from the tennis court to the bicycle, especially when it's a U-neck ribbed jersey striped across the front. Worn with it, white sailcloth cuffed shorts and a red sailcloth jacket in a polyester and cotton blend.

For men cycling fans it's knits in cycle trunks and tank tops of cotton, or battle jacket and pants coordinates that have the look of denim but are actually a polyester and cotton blend.

He might wear bright red racing shorts with a flash of white braid and a T-shirt with blue body and red and white sleeves...soccer-type shoes and calf socks of white with bold red and blue stripes.

Shoes for cycling should be of the non-slip variety . . . rubber soled shoes with heels, rather than the flat-bottom sneaker are preferable for sure pedaling.

For some, cycling presents the perfect exercise because it's a non-competitive, non-team sport that can be enjoyed just about anywhere. So...flex those leg muscles, pad that seat and . . . hit the road! ! !

LANDLUBBER'S POPULAR BLUE JACKET with elasticized back, orange stitchings, four pockets, snap closings. Play pants compliment the silhouette with streamlined straight legs.

Question: I am offering a nice salmon and potato salad dish which I find very good on a hot evening and I would like to ask for a good gingerbread recipe and ginger cookies. Thanks! — Mrs. Theresa W., Walpole

Answer: Thank you for the salad recipe — your reward is the ginger medley!

SALMON AND POTATO SALAD

1 can (1 lb.) salmon
1 can (No. 2) small whole white potatoes
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ cup thinly sliced celery
1 can (8 oz.) peas drained
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
Two-thirds cup mayonnaise
Crisp lettuce leaves
Cold cucumber slices

Empty salmon into a mixing bowl. Remove bones and break salmon into tiny pieces. Drain potaotes and slice them into bowl with salmon. Add onion, celery, peas, salt, pepper and lemon rind. Stir in mayonnaise (use more or less, according to individual taste), tossing lightly to blend well. Heap salad into lettuce cups and place cucumber slices around salmon salad. Serves 6.

OLD FASHIONED GINGERBREAD

1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 cup salad oil
1 cup molasses
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup boiling water
2-½ cups all purpose flour
2 eggs, beaten

In a bowl, combine the sugar, salt, ginger, cinnamon, and cloves. Stir in the salad oil, then the molasses, mixing well. Mix the soda into the boiling water and immediately stir into the mixture; gradually blend in the flour to prevent lumping. Then mix in the eggs. Turn into greased 9x13-inch pan and bake in a 350 degree over 40-45 minutes. Serves 12 (Serve with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream).

REFRIGERATOR GINGER CRISPS

½ cup margarine
½ cup light molasses
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
2 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
1-½ teaspoons baking soda

Put margarine, molasses, sugar and vinegar into saucepan and boil for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cool. Sift flour, measure and add cinnamon, ginger and soda.

Add to cooled margarine mixture and blend well. Wrap in waxed paper and chill overnight or for several hours.

Roll out on lightly floured board very thin — one-sixteenth of an inch. Cut with a 2-inch cookie cutter and place on greased baking sheet and bake in 350 degree oven for 7 minutes. Remove from baking sheet and place on rack to cool. Store in tight container. Makes 5 dozen cookies.

Question: Have you ever heard of a tomato conserve that is made with oranges? If so, I would very much appreciate the recipe. — Mrs. T., Dedham

Answer: Thanks to the Sunkist Growers of California, here is your Tomato Conserve:

SPICY CITRUS TOMATO CONSERVE

3 medium oranges, unpeeled
8 or 9 large, firm tomatoes, peeled, cored and sliced (8 cups)
7 cups sugar
One-third cup fresh squeezed lemon juice
1 tablespoon whole cloves
2 sticks cinnamon
1 cup golden or dark seedles raisins

Cut a thin slice from each end of the oranges and discard. Cut fruit in half lengthwise; with shallow V-shaped cut, remove white center core and any seeds. Place cut-side down on board; cut into thinnest possible slices, then cut slices in half. Combine with tomatoes, sugar and lemon juice in 5 to 6 quart saucepot. Add spices that have been tied loosely in cheesecloth. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and gently boil uncovered for 1 hour. Stir frequently to avoid sticking. Remove spice bag; add raisins. Reduce heat slightly; slowly simmer about 15 to 20 minutes longer, or until jell test is reached. Mixture will be reduced and clear, but syrup will not be extra thick. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Question: For the first time, I am enjoying a vegetable garden and hope to can string beans, carrots and green peppers. I also have a herb garden and would like to have suggestions for using mint, basil, thyme and oregano. — Mrs. S., Foxboro

Answer: Congratulations on your garden! I'm sure you will enjoy a bountiful harvest! It is not necessary to have a garden plot to grow herbs; a kitchen window box will also yield herbs so that the special pleasure of breaking off a few springs to be used in food preparation may be enjoyed by all. Following is a recipe for Herb Batter Bread and Fresh Minted Melon Salad.

HERB BATTER BREAD

4 to 4-½ cups unsifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon basil leaves
¼ teaspoon oregano leaves
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
1 cup milk
1 cup water
2 tablespoons margarine

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1-1½ cups flour, sugar, salt, basil, oregano, thyme and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. (Margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Beat until well blended. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 40 minutes. Stir batter down. Beat vigorously , about ½ minute. Turn into a greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) about 40-50 minutes, or until done. Remove pan and cool on wire rack. Makes 1 large loaf.

MINTED MELON SALAD

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
One-third cup finely chopped fresh mint
1-½ cups orange juice
One-third cup lemon juice
Dash of salt
1-½ to 2 cups melon balls (any type melon)
Lettuce leaves
Mayonnaise

Soften gelatin in the ¼ cup cold water about 5 minutes. Combine sugar and 1 cup water, and boil for 5 minutes; remove from heat. Dissolve softened gelatin in this hot syrup; add mint; cool to room temperature. Strain this mixture through a fine wire strainer (discard mint); then add orange juice, lemon juice, and salt; chill. When slightly thickened, fold in melon balls. Turn into individual molds or a 1-quart ring mold; chill until firm. Unmold on crips lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 6 to 8.

HELPFUL HINTS:

A "mock" sour cream can be made easily by combining in a blender equal parts of cottage cheese and buttermilk and 2 teaspoons of lemon juice.

For a golden brown crust, the secret to successful browning is to brush the crust lightly with milk before baking.

ASTROLOGY

INSIGHT and FORESIGHT

Q. I read your column faithfully and am interested in Astrology. I was born in 1904 on July 3rd at 12:15 p.m. in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. Please answer in our paper

Signed: L.

A. The horoscope calculated for the above data indicates that while you have a sharp mind you are apt to be tactful, considerate and diplomatic and as a child or adult you are likely to try to avoid offending others.

Basically you are a very warm, sympathetic and friendly person and instinctively can feel when others may try to take advantage of you.

In addition to your keen intuition, there is a practical side to you that enables you to use your hunches to good advantage.

You have the courage of your convictions. As previously noticed you would not deliberately offend others but at times your mental control is not as good as it should be and what you say may be too direct, blunt or to the point.

In any event you have independent ideas and are not inclined to let others prevent you from expressing them.

Not only are you apt to be independent in thought but you are also apt to be independent in action and at times take risks which others may regard as reckless.

Speed in motion or the making of sudden changes or moves are fraught with danger which may lead to a serious accident if not controlled. The best way to avoid such is to drive conservatively within the regulated speed limits.

If you have not developed your natural possibilities for music or art at least you have a sincere appreciation for such and should enjoy poetry, the beautiful, concerts, the theatre, etc.

Lots Of EPA Weaponry

Virginia Payette says:

The clean-air boys are on the right track with their get tough crusade against auromobiles in the cities. Higher tolls, heavier gasoline taxes and prohibitive parking fees will probably drive most commuters to mass transit — eventually.

But thos things take time. There will have to be Congressional hearings and a lot of listening to outraged howls from businessmen, truckers, cab drivers and local governments. (Who will, of course, insist the crackdown is "unenforceable.")

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency folks are ovzglooking one of their most powerful weapons: the parking-lot attendants. If anybody can make it painful to drive a car into the city, those fellows can.

It wouldn't take much encouragement, either. Just a little official authorization to step up what they've been doing for years, namely: scratching, smashing, mangling, ripping and ruining any helpless automobile left in their clutches. (Speaking of clutcher, or the ruination thereof, they get bonus points for that.)

It's all very well to talk about horsepower taxes for gas guzzlers . . . compulsory car pools . . . a 10-cent boost per gallon in gasoline taxes . . and $5 and $10 tolls in and out of traffic-clogged cities. Sooner or later, it will probably come to that.

But it will require what a California pollution expert calls "incredible changes" in the way people drive. There's something about a man's feeling for his "wheels" that lets him pay a $10-a-day parking fee with only a docile shrug.

As long as he gets his car back in one piece, that is.

But Americans use up 6,500,000 parking spaces every day — and will, at the drop of a gear, tell you 3,250,000 horror stories of what happened to the family bus while in the custody of the parking attendant.

The evening "walk around" is an exercise in futility. Have YOU ever tried getting the manager to admit that foot-long gash in the fender wasn't there when you brought the car in? Welcome to the club.

Gear-stripping comes naturally to parking attendants. Something in their psyche screams for the sound of screeching brakes and crunching metal. Make it their patriotic duty, and you've solved the pollution problem, the gas shortage and traffic fatalities practically overnight.

A $300-a-month parking fee may not force the dedicated driver to ride the bus to work. But a steady diet of crumpled chrome, burned-out brake linings and torn transmissions just might.

They've made a believer out of Old Dad. The little sports job has taken its last trip to town.

Old Dad grew up in Los Angeles, where he learned about smog early. So it follows that he is a big booster of subways and buses. Sunshine or blizzard, he's on the platform every morning, waiting for his version of mass transit.

But, on rare occasions, he could be persuaded to drive into the city for a movie or play. That ended last July 4, when a a know-nothing attendant (and am I ever cleaning THAT up!) delivered the car in a swirl of smoking brakes and gargling gears.

Not all the fireworks were in the sky that night. Old Dad went off like a Roman candle. But all he has to show for it are mushy brakes, a leaping transmission and a sinking feeling whenever he thinks about the inevitable repair bills. (Plus a firm resolve never, never, never to let his automobile set tire tread in the city again.)

Multiply his troubles by a few million (which is only a day's work for parking attendants) and we may discover there's still blue sky above all that brown gook.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Beat the boring barbecue blues...try lamb, for a change! There's no more sensuous seasoning than smoke to turn on the subtle flavor of lean lamb!

Note that we said "lean" lamb...because some cuts of lamb are more fattening than beefsteak. Loin lamb chops are 1,329 calories a pound (meat only) and rib chops are higher still: 1,538 calories per pound.

But lean leg of lamb is under 1,000 calories per pound, and easily trimmed of surface fat. Fat-trimmed leg of lamb is only 590 calories per pound once all the fat has been trimmed away. Lamb shoulder is 671 calories per pound.

Here's a pair of exotic outdoor dishes based on lean cubes of lamb cut from fat-trimmed meat and threaded on inexpensive skewers (found in the housewares section of many stores). For a "cook-in" instead of a cookout, bake or broil the skewers in your oven; add a generous dash of smoke-flavored seasoning.

SKINNY SHISH KEBAB

1½ pounds fat-trimmed lamb, in one-inch cubes
2 green peppers, cut in chunks
4 tomatoes, cut in wedges
6 small onions, cut in chunks
6 tablespoons lemon juice
1 to 1½ teaspoons garlic salt
¼ teaspoon thyme or rosemary
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Water

Put lamb cubes in a plastic bag and add lemon juice, garlic salt, rosemary and Worcestershire sauce. Add just enough cold water to insure that lamb pieces are covered. Marinate in the refrigerator all day or overnight (or two hours at room temperature).

Drain meat and thread on six skewers, alternating the pieces with chunks of pepper, tomato, and onion.

Broil meat 15 to 20 minutes over hot coals or in broiler. Turn frequently and brush with reserved marinade. Makes six servings, 198 calories each.

POLYNESIAN SKEWERED LAMB AND PINEAPPLE

1½ pounds lean lamb, cut in cubes
20-ounce can unsweetened pineapple chunks
3 tablespoons vinegar
salt and pepper
½ teaspoon marjoram

Put the meat cubes in a plastic bag and add the vinegar and seasonings. Add just enough drained pineapple juice (from the can of chunks) to insure that all meat is covered. Marinate in the refrigerator all day or overnight.

Drain meat and thread on skewers, alternating with pineapple chunks. Broil 15 to 20 minutes over hot coals or in broiler, turning frequently.

Makes six servings, 184 calories each.

PINEAPPLE RICE (no butter needed!) – Ten minutes before dinnertime, combine "quick" rice with equal amount of boiling unsweetened pineapple juice. Season with salt, pepper and dried parsley flakes. Cover and keep warm until serving time; 80 calories per half-cup serving.

Joy Of A Cold

My old pal and faithful contributor, John Scott Fones, the demon public relations executive, tells me that many of the antique dealers in Connecticut, are pretty sick of the folks who cart in their old junk to be sold (hopefully) on consignment.

And one dealer in Stamford, Conn., has put up this sign:

"The Only Person Who Ever Wanted Anything Your Grandmother Had . . . Was Your Grandfather."

Okay — but John really gets to me when, in his PR newsletter, he tells his many clients not to be annoyed when they come down with the common cold. "God bless the common cold," he says. And he explains why:

"You come home from work with your nose running, your throat itchy, and coughing. And what happens? Your wife says: 'Oh, my baby has a cold! Get right into bed, sweetheart. What can I get you?:

"Now —

"You are in bed, warm and comfortable.

"You are eliminating all the poisons in your body, by coughing and sneezing.

"You are getting, for a change, all kinds of sympathy.

"You don't have to go out in the cold, heat, rain, or snow.

"You don't have to shave, shower, dress or eat until or unless you want to.

"You are not expected to do anything constructive.

"You can read all the accumulated magazines, newspapers and books.

"You can look at daytime TV.

"You can take a nap during the day.

"You can check up on how your spouse spends the day.

"You don't have to see or talk with anyone you don't want to.

"You can cancel all those dull social and business engagements.

"You can eat whatever you want, whenever you want to.

"You can, for once, drink all the beverages you want (alcoholic and nonalcoholic.

"You are on an enforced vacation — with no travel agents, airlines, or hotels to pay.

"BUT — if the condition persists, you should consult your physician!"

Speaking of illness, there's a man I met at the Rockville Centre Lindy's who said that he'd been to see his doctor, and he give me this report of the dialogue:

"I told the doctor that when I eat certain things, I get heartburn. He said to me: 'Well, then don't eat those things and you won't get heartburn.' I said to him: 'Well, all right, I'll try. How much do I owe you?' And he said: 'Twenty-five dollars.' And I said: 'Great! Now I got REAL heartburn!' "

And, since I mentioned drinking, I might as well tell you that a lawyer I met the other night — a man who was involved in the Heaven Hill Bourbon case with the U. S. Tax Commission — reminded me that, perhaps, there's nothing as strange in this world as whiskey.

"You know," he said, "whiskey, over the years, has had more PUBLIC enemies and more PRIVATE friends than any other comestible!"

Ted Atkinson, one of the greatest hockeys of all time, shook his head sadly during lunch at the King of the Sea, and said:

"I'm amazed at this Women's Lib business. But I guess it'll reach its peak when a male jockey passes a girl jockey during a race, and tips his hat!"

Songwriter Sammy Cahn ("Be My Love," "Three Coins in the Fountain," "Call Me Irresponsible," "All the Way," etc.) was honored on his 60th birthday with a party at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

The big moment came when Sammy, who dropped out of Seward Park High School in Manhattan more than 40 years ago, was awarded a graduation diploma. I'd hoped to be there, but back trouble interfered. So I asked Paul Anka what Sammy said when he got the coveted diploma.

"He seemed very much in awe," said Paul. "He just kept staring at the diploma. Somebody asked him: 'Now that you've got a high-school diploma, what are your plans?' and he said: 'Gee, I dunno. First, I've got to get a summer job.' "

Read This Menu And Weep

by Amy Vanderbilt

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I was cleaning out some old papers recently and found a menu from the Ritz Carlton in Boston dated August 26, 1937. I thought you might like to share some of it with your readers. The table d'hote dinner included grapefruit juice, pepper pot, hot or cold consomme. The price of the entree determined the cost of the dinner.

Grilled Tenderloin Steak - 75 cents.

Broiled Breast of Chicken - 75 cents.

Corned Beef and Cabbage - 65 cents.

Broiled Fresh Halibut - 65 cents.

Roast Leg of Lamb, Fresh Mint Sauce - 65 cents.

Grilled Filet Mignon With Mushrooms - $1.

"Here are some of the extras:

New Green Broccoli; Buttered Young Beets; Buttered Carrots - 15 cents.

Parsley or Delmonico Potato - 10 cents

Fresh Apple Pie; Fresh Peach Cake with Whipped Cream - 15 cents

Coconut Custard Pie; Peanut Brittle Ice Cream - 15 cents.

"And you could get:

Baked Stuffed Bluefish, Potato, Salad and Beverage - 50 cents. –Mrs. E.M., Boston, Mass."

If such nostalgia shakes you, you should remember that in 1937 a cleaning woman who really cleaned–on her hands and knees–was paid, in the New York area at least, $3 a day.

A full-time maid who lived out but reported to work at 8 or 9 in the morning and worked until after dinner, with Thursday afternoon and Sunday afternoon off, received $15 a week. Live-ins got about $60 a month and were considered highly paid. Elsewhere in the country pay was much lower.

It was possible to buy the family's weekend food for around $5 and that included a roast. Law clerks, by the way, got about $15 a week.

Hospital interns worked for nothing but their room and board. They weren't allowed to marry, either. The following year at top hospitals in New York, at least, after a terrific fight they did get $11 a month.

Jobs were scarce, and we didn't have Social Security. Although legislation had been enacted (September 9, 1937), we didn't begin to benefit for another year and a half.

A boy was glad to mow the lawn for 50 cents. Baby sitters got 50 cents for an evening. A young woman college graduate was lucky if she found an executive job at $40 a week.

Kids would buy 25 cents worth of gas (about 2 gallons). People were very polite–they had to be, in that competitive market. They were careful about their clothes and their grooming.

What do you remember about 1937? Post cards, please.

NOT POSSIBLE

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: When I was a teenager I became pregnant and got married. The wedding was very small and rushed. It took place in the chapel of our church, but there were no flowers, no music, no attendants. I wore a simple short dress. Everyone was too busy rushing around to get the wedding over with, so no one enjoyed it.

"That was several years ago, and on our anniversary this year we would like to have another wedding complete with bridal gown, attendants, flowers, music, reception--everything. The guests would be informed, of course, that they should not bring gifts. We would probably write our own wedding ceremony. What is your opinion of our plans?–Mrs. R.W., New Hope, Pa."

You have been married in a religious ceremony, and you can't have a traditional wedding now.

I have many letters from girls who married without fanfare and later regretted they did not have a traditional ceremony. Like you, they don't feel properly married, particularly if they have had a civil ceremony. You are fortunate in that you had a religious one.

Puzzling Economy

By Marquis Childs

With food prices certain to rise and no assurance that shortages will not persist even as Phase 4 is trundled on stage and the disaster of Phase 3 is thrown out, the men responsible for the predicament are still in charge.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz continues to preside over his empire with its 95,000 employes and far-reaching controls over food resources.

Butz engineered the sale to the Soviet Union last year of 20 million tons of grain. Half of that sale, or roughly 440 million bushels, was wheat with the price subsidized by the American taxpayer.

As a minor sideshow alongside Watergate, political charges and countercharges have never ceased to rain down over that deal.

Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson's investigation subcommittee is currently looking into the whole matter. The hope is to determine whether Uncle Sam got royally rooked in the deal, what it cost the taxpayer, and how much the big grain companies profited.

In the initial phase of the grain deal Butz dealt with his opposite Soviet number, Vladimir V. Matskevich. They handle these matters rather differently in the Soviet Union. Matskevich was abruptly dumped and, according to one report, is now serving in a minor post in Siberia.

The reason was not the deal, since that was obviously to the advantage of the Soviets.

Matskevich had made disastrously wrong forecasts about agricultural production last year and this put Moscow up against the necessity of foreign purchases made with scarce foreign exchange.

The Export Service in the Department of Agriculture is currently anticipating sales out of the 1973-74 crop of 128 million bushels of wheat to the Soviet Union and 59.8 million to the People's Republic of China. That will be roughly 10 per cent of the total crop.

For at least a year and a half, when it was obvious that a policy of high prices and scarce production had to be abandoned, Butz clung to the old formulas.

He failed to take the steps essential to open the range to more cattle. He made no move to open idle acres to production. If it had not been for action by Congress, the old subsidy system – paying farmers for not planting, and in many instances large factory farmers – would still be in effect.

Whether Butz can make up for the lost time and compensate for these errors of judgment is questionable, since he is so steeped in the psychology of scarcity and the protection of a narrow farm constituency represented by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

High food prices and threatened shortages turn off the average citizen, who may have little or no interest in politics as such for whom Watergate is a minor distraction.

This Administration not only makes mistakes, as all administrations do, but it boasts about them as though they were triumphs. To hear the designer of Phase 3 claim it was a success is astonishing.

Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz is a respectable economist who subscribes to the Milton Friedman-University of Chicago school of free enterprise.

In the groves of Academe Dr. Friedman can spin convincing theories. His disciple, Shultz, is faced with the stern necessity of trying to manage a complex and deeply troubled economy. Ideology does not serve him well in the crunch of inflationary prices and the dollar-trade gap.

By every indicator, from the slaughter of the chicks to the scarcity on supermarket shelves, Phase 3 was a failure. The grievous error was in scrapping Phase 2 under Shultz's tutelage. It had worked fairly well in restraining the rise in prices.

To be sure, powerful forces are working in the markets of the world that may put the economy of a single nation beyond any set of managers, however skillful and dedicated. More protein in the diet of the peoples of Western Europe, Japan and elsewhere puts a strain on available food supplies.

But the answer is not a sudden export embargo imposed without concern for America's trading partners or the American trade balance.

Repertory Theatre Plans Three Final Performances

The area's only fully professional repertory company, the Harvard Summer School Repertory Theater, is now performing all three of te plays in its 1973 repertoire. "Dear Antoine" by Jean Anouilh gets its first American production by this year's company, at the Loeb Drama Center in Cambridge, where it joins "Long Day's Jouney into Night" and "Lady Windermere's Fan" for the 1973 season. The repertory wil continue through Aug. 25, with performances at 8 p.m. on Monday through Friday nights; and two performances on Saturday nights, at 5 and 9 p.m.

And now that the ticket windows of all three of Boston's legitimate downtown theatres are shuttered until September, the Harvard rep company gives the local theatre activity a much needed boost. Boston and Cambridge critics alike have welcomed the three plays at the Loeb with favorable notices, and groups eager to form a distinctive party might consider the Loeb as a perfect place to spend a summer evening or three.

This is the Loeb's 13th summer of presenting theatre in Cambridge, and the repertory schedule offers audiences the diversity and quality of plays which theatregoers value.

Exhibits Of Butterflies And Honey Bees At Science Museum

Some of the mysteries of the elusive butterfly and of the inner workings of the honeybee's hive are now revealed in exhibits at Boston's Museum of Science.

Although the bees are alive, working at their highest pitch of the year, there is no danger of being stung because they inhabit a glass-enclosed hive in the Museum's Library. They come and go through a specially built window opening that leads directly into the hive.

A colorful display of more than 100 butterflies, moths, and skippers—all belonging to the order, Lepidoptera—form a new exhibit on the second floor of the east wing. From the Museum's collections, some are native to New England, others are exotica from South America, Europe and the Far East.

The exhibit points out differences among the three insects. Some seven variations in body structure and habits are noted.

Many Museum visitors will be surprised at the attractive appearance of the moths. Though more muted and subtle in coloring than butterflies, moths have a wide range of markings and patterns. Among the distinctive specimens are the pale green luna moth, the coffee-and-pale-pink ailanthus silk-moth, and the rich yellow-and-brown imperial moth.

Skippers, named for their quick darting flight and rapid stops and starts, are less well known than either moths or butterflies. Like butterflies, and unlike moths, they appear during the day. They are generally drab in color.

The exhibit was prepared by Anne Shepard of the Education Department and Bill Thayer of the Exhibits Department.

The beehive, located in the library, appears to be a mass of aimless, wriggling insects. Each one of the 9000 or so bees there is engaged, however, in doing a particular job.

The younger bees clean the cells to prepare them for eggs. They also take the nectar and pollen from the field, or worker bees and pack it into the cells. Later these adolescents will become workers, flying indefatigably in the search for food. Other bees guard the entrance to the hive to protect it from wasps, spiders, and other enemies. Still other bees feed the babies.

The queen was marked with red spots so she may be identified, spends her time walking over the cells to lay the 1000-to-2000 eggs a day she produces in the summer season. She usually chooses cells at the lower section of the hive. She also gives off chemical substances which indicate a state of well-being in the hive and which inspire the bees to continue their work.

There is no surplus of honey in the Museum hive because the bees need all they produce there to survive.

The bees come from Paul R. Comer, 106 Bellevue Ave., Melrose, who maintains apiaries as a hobby.

In the spring he cleans up the hive and brings the unit back to the Museum where it is placed in a specially designed see-through container. In the fall, when time for hibernation arrives, he takes the bees back to his property, where they hang in a thick cluster, consuming just enough of their stored honey to generate the heat needed to keep them alive.

A retired naval officer, Comer is president of the Middlesex County Beekeepers' Association, a director of the Essex County association, and active in several other groups. So interested in the subject has his family become that his wife participates in association meetings and his seven-year-old daughter, Criss, now has her own beehive.

Nature's Way

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

A Georgia bog can be dangerous to an insect's health Particularly if it is a pitcher-plant bog.

There is, of course, no shortage of insects in south-central Georgia where pitcher-plants really thrive. Pitcher-plants cannot trap all insects, which is a good thing since insects—with possible rare exceptions—are among the most beneficial beasts.

One of the more spectacular pitcher-plant bogs thrives on the drainage from a sandhill pinewoods near Doerun, Ga. Tom Barber of Moultrie recently took a group from the Georgia Botanical Society to the bog. Barber not only is the bog plant expert of the botanical society but also an executive of the Georgia Conservancy.

Although the estimate of acreage becomes complicated by the fact that the bog is a narrow fringe strung along the base of slopes, perhaps 50 acres of the bog support pitcher-plant colonies.

The most spectacular pitcher-plant is the yellow trumpet. In spring, the yellow trumpet turns bogs into golden glory. The first impression is of daffodils that have grown unbelievably prolific. And then one notices that the entire plant, insect-trapping tubes as well as flower, is bright yellow. The Doerun yellow trumpets had reached 14 to 16 inches high and many had two to three inches of insects trapped in the bottom of the tubes, with summer yet a few weeks away.

In some areas of the Southeast, yellow trumpets in a good year may approach four feet high. There are no equivalents to yellow trumpets among the pitcher-plants north of Virginia.

In the same Doerun bog were two other pitcher-plants, the hooded pitcher-plant and the parrot pitcher-plant. The hooded pitcher-plant has greenish tubes and looks similar to northern pitcher-plants, except its somewhat more developed cap. The parrot is a small pitcher whose tubes lie horizontally, almost concealed within the sphagnum moss.

Pitcher-plants grow in low nitrogen soils, but apparently require more nitrogen than the habitat can provide. Thus their leaves have evolved into tubes and they exude into these tubes a liquid which dissolves trapped insects. From the insect bodies they receive the enrichment that the soil lacks.

While pitcher-plants are the most showy of "meat-eating" plants, they seldom grow alone. With them are other plants which have evolved mechanisms for trapping insects.

At Doerun there are seven other meat-eaters. These include four sundews which grow in two forms: one has spatulate leaves like spoons which close upon insects trapped by sticky liquid on their "hairy" leaves; the other unrolls from a coil much like a fern fiddlehead. There are two butterworts which have leaves lying flat upon the ground but whose rolled edges give the leaves a triangular appearance, and the bladderwort which has small bladders underwater that traps swimming insects and even tiny fish.

Sportsmen finance fish and wildlife conservation in the United States by paying a federal excise tax on fishing and hunting equipment.

New Books

THE ELECTRIC KOOL-AID ACID TEST, by Tom Wolfe. Bantam Books.

By MARSHALL MILLER

There's probably not a better account of the "psychedelic sixties" than Tom Wolfe's brilliant piece of reporting, "The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test."

This book presents the reader with the life and times of novelist and acid freak Ken Kesey and his band of followers, known as the Merry Pranksters.

Kesey's life, unfortunately ever so briefly brought forth early in the book, is one fine stereotype of "the drop out." Ken goes from college jock to author of two highly acclaimed books, to drug-taking dropout, living communally with his Merry Pranksters in La Honda, Calif.

Wolfe, writing in a chaotic, but readable, breakneck pace akin to the LSD experience, takes us on bus rides throughout California with the group. However, Kesey's bus isn't your run-of-the mill school bus. His bus is a 1956 International Harvester, painted in psychedelic day-glow colors, equipped with a multitude of speakers, blaring rock and tape delays of the inhabitant's voices. Can you picture the face on the all night Los Angeles diner owner when the Merry Pranksters appear on the scene at two in the morning to interview him for their new psychedelic movie?

In this book, Kesey comes forth as an idolized but down-to-earth (with his Oregon drawl et al) figure who has confrontations with the feared Hell's Angels and wins the beer drinkers over with psychedelic drugs! Yet, on the other hand, the Pranksters' meeting with Timothy Leary and his group is a strained and unfortunate experience. The question arises as to whether "hip" drug-oriented people really can interact with one another.

Finally, the book culminates in the acid tests—the psychedelic parties with kool-aid spiked with acid served as punch, which became the forerunner of the Fillmores and other such rock theatres, with their rock music, strobe lights and dancing.

At the end of the book we see the Merry Pranksters splitting up, all going their separate ways.

1967, the year of psychedelia and love, peace and happiness, has come to an end. But we always have Tom Wolfe's book on hand to remember this remarkable way of life for so many young people.

Annual personal income per capita for New York State's more than 18 million residents is $844 higher than the U.S. national average, according to the State Commerce Department.

Summer Players Ready Trombones

The Reagle Players of the Waltham Summer Theatre will present Meredith Wilson's award-winning musical, "The Music Man," Aug. 8 through 12 at the Waltham High School, 617 Lexington St.

"The Music Man," which won the Drama Critics Circle Award as the best musical of the 1958 season, is set in River City, Iowa, and is the story of a rascally but attractive salesman of musical instruments and band uniforms who shuttles about in the midwest and prevails on small-town people to outfit school bands on the promise of teaching its members to play. Among the hit songs of the musical are "76 Trombones," "Til There Was You," "Goodnight, My Someone," and several quartet numbers.

The production is directed by Robert J. Eagle, director of drama for Waltham Public Schools. Musical Director is Peter J. Kennedy, and Daphne Lowell is choreographer, music and dance teachers respectively at the High School.

The Reagle Players are now in their fifth season, and have a membership of over 200 high school and college age students from Waltham and surrounding towns. The students themselves founded and operate the theatre, which provides summer activity for Waltham's youth, as well as entertainment for area residents, which has received popular and critical acclaim.

Performances will be presented on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, Aug. 8, 10, 11 and 12 at 8 p.m., and there will be a special matinee performance on Tuesday, Aug. 7 at 1:30 p.m. For information or reservations, write to the Waltham Summer Theatre, 617 Lexington St., Waltham, 02154, or call the box office at 891-5600, which has a 24-hour answering service. The box office at the high school is open daily from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., and tickets will also be on sale at the door at all performances.

Maritime Academy Welcomes Alumni

Vincent Lahey of Newton is serving on the committee to provide a red carpet welcome for several hundred graduates of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 18-19, when the Alumni Association holds its second annual reunion at the Academy's new 55-acre Buzzards Bay campus.

Lahey, member of the Alumni Association Board of Directors, said the two-day program will include a buffet dinner on Saturday night and a wide variety of events for graduates and their families.

An open meeting of the Association Board of Directors will be held on Sunday.

Lahey said that aalumni visiting the 55-acre campus for the first time in two years will have an opportunity to tour the new facilities, including the dining hall, dormitories, recreation building with olympic-size pool, gymnasium, rifle range, bowling alleys, science buildings, and others.

Lahey announced there would be an opportunity for all to participate in many sports. He said special recognition would be given to the oldest graduate attending and the graduate traveling the greatest distance.

Presenting

Outdoor Concert

The Impacts, a gospel singing group, and their band, Light, will present an evening of music on the outdoor stage of Newton Presbyterian Church Wednesday (Aug. 8) at 8 p.m. The Impacts have traveled throughout the United States and Canada, presenting concerts of gospel music and making radio and TV appearances. The concert is free and it will be held indoors if it rains. The church is at Park and Vernon streets in Newton Corner.

Student Attends Music Camp

David Hurwitz, son of Dr. and Mrs. Irving Hurwitz of Newton Center, recently appeared in the weekly student recital at the New England Music Camp in Oakland, Me., where he is a camper. The Friday evening recitals present students in ensemble groups, solo capacity, and as accompanists.

The New England Music Camp is a non-profit educational association dedicated to a summer program balanced with music and recreation for musical students, aged 10 to 18.

At the Camp, David is studying with Dr. Douglas Campbell of Michigan State. His major instrument is french horn along with performing in the band, orchestra and brass choir.

Bank Hosts Exhibition Of ViVardo Paintings

Works of Newton artist Marie J. ViVardo are on display at the Highlands Branch of the Newton Savings Bank throughout the month of August.

Mrs. ViVardo is a member of both the Newton Art Association and the Copley Art Society.

She was a student of the American impressionist Scot Carbee and it was through his teaching she learned to develop her sense of color that enables her to produce the brilliant and striking effect of her oil paintings, watercolors, and pastels.

The paintings she has selected to exhibit display her versatility, ranging from a classic allegorical marine painting "Wounded but Unbowed," which she says is representative of America's struggle in these times; an unusually executed pastel entitled "Vanity," wonderfully fanciful in a multiplicity of juxtaposized colors swirling throughout the abstract composition; and then the impressionistic "Kabuki Petite," a wide-eyed child that stares back inquisitively at her viewers, costumed gaily as a Kabuki player against a background of flickering colors.

The highpoint of this exhibit is a large seascape titled "Ever Onward;" the panoramic effect of the sky casting its illuminating light upon the eternal sea as it rolls ever onward, frothing wildly against the rocky shore.

Mrs. ViVardo has exhibited many years, having been an artist since her early childhood. She has had one-woman shows in New England and the South.

Her life centers around her love for art and she divides her time between her roles as an artist, painting restorer, auctioneer, appraiser and art collector. The ViVardo home reflects this total dedication to the arts and is a showcase for objects d'arts and paintings from all over the world. It is only natural that Mrs. ViVardo is a staunch supporter of federal funding for the arts and she believes federal subsidy is a necessity if art is to survive in America.

Former Greats Lead Local Baseball Clinic

Eddie Pellagrini former outstanding major league ballplayer with the Boston Red Sox, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds will conduct a clinic designed to stress the fundamentals of baseball to young players from this area.

Pellagrini will be joined by three top associates: Chet Stone, Harvard University equipment manager and Park League star Moe Maloney, baseball coach at Mass. Bay Community College-Watertown (state champions), and Mark Driscoll, former Arlington High and University of Arizona star.

Maloney and Driscoll both played in the National Collegiate Baseball Championships in Omaha, Maloney for Boston College and Driscoll with the University of Arizona.

The clinic is sponsored by radio station WHDH and Coca-Cola.

The teaching staff is one of the finest assembled in recent years to bring professional instruction and advice to young players. Pellagrini has won wide recognition for his ability to teach baseball and is presently baseball coach at Boston College.

Best Books On Display

The Newton Free Library and the Bookbuilders of Boston announce the exhibition at Newton's Main Library in Newton Corner of the New England Book Show, through Aug. 25.

A publishers' choice book show, as well as a juried exhibit of the best of New England book design and manufacturing, the exhibit is divided into three categories: education, general trade and other.

Thirty-two books were selected as the outstanding books produced in 1972 in terms of the total design concept, the selection of materials, the execution of manufacturing and the publishers's objective for each title.

The Bookbuilders is an organization of representatives of the publishing industry of New England, their suppliers of materials, manufacturers and individuals in related fields such as design, library work and education.

Its purpose is to foster an interest in better bookmaking and to further this cause by various methods toward improvements in book design and manufacturing.

Mayoralty Runoff Appears Certain

Newton's first preliminary election will pit three-time candidate William Carmen against Mayor Theodore Mann next Oct. 9, with late entry Elliott Berry nipping at their heels all the way.

Alan MacNeil, another announced mayoral candidate, failed to submit signatures for certification by the deadline Tuesday, and so is out of the race.

The requisite number of valid signatures on nomination papers for mayor is 400, for alderman at large 150, for ward alderman 50, and for school committee 150.

Signatures on a few nomination papers had not been certified by the Election Commission at noon Wednesday, but most of those certified before the Tuesday deadline had also been filed, indicating that most of the candidates are serious office-seekers.

All certified nomination papers must be filed with the Election Commission by Aug. 14 and may be withdrawn up to Aug. 16.

Three present aldermen will not be on the ballot this year. Lois Pines, Ward 5, and Peter Harrington, Ward 2, having served for the past year as both aldermen and state representative, will give up their aldermanic seats. Harry Crosby, Ward 7, will be out of the country and will not run.

Richard Douglas, Ward 3, and Franklin Frazier, Ward 1, have decided not to seek reelection to the School Committee.

Alderman at Large

Preliminaries will be held for the two aldermen-at-large posts in Ward 7, where the candidates are Mark White, Dominic Taglienti, incumbent Jason Sacks, Henri Pelletier, Alice Wilson and Melvin Norris.

For other at-large aldermanic spots two per ward, the following have sufficient certified signatures to be put on the ballot: Ward 1 —Ald. Robert Gaynor, Ald. Joseph McDonnell.

Ward 2 — Ald. Edward Richmond, Barbara Schiller, Terrence Morris, Douglas Howard.

Ward 3 — Ald. Robert Tennant, Ald. Matthew Jefferson.

Ward 4 — Ald. David Jackson, Nicholas Nardone, Ald. Louis Egelson.

Ward 5 — Ald. Sidney Small, Ald. Michael Antonellis.

Ward 6 — Ald. Michael Lipof, Ethel Sheehan, Joan Saklad.

Ward 8 — Ald. Eliot Cohen, Ald. Wendell Bauckman, Alan Katz.

Ward Alderman

Two wards will have preliminaries for ward alderman. In Ward 3 Paul K. Daley, Cynthia Louise Lacey, (not yet certified) and Robert J. Keefe will try to unseat Richard Bullwinkle, and in Ward 4 Leonard Frisoli and Alvin Huberman will try for the ward alderman position held by incumbent Richard McGrath.

The only other ward-alderman seats being contested are in Ward 6, where Theodore Gross will challenge Ald. Ernest Dietz, and Ward 5, where Susan Schur will run against Ald. Edward Uehlein.

There will be no contest for incumbent aldermen Andrew Magni, Ward 1; Thomas Concannon, Ward 2; David Cohen, Ward 7; and Alan Barkin, Ward 8.

School Committee

Chairman Manuel Beckwith will be unopposed from Ward 4, as will Alvin Mandell from Ward 8.

In other wards, candidates will be incumbent Eleanor Rosenblum and S. Leonard Spitz (not certified), Ward 2; John J. Keefe and Gerard Byrne (neither certified) Ward 3; incumbent Joan Needleman and Sumner Silton, Ward 5; incumbent Herbert Regal and Robert Cohen, Ward 6; and incumbent Dorothy Reichard and Harry Resnick (not certified), Ward 7.

Judge Approves Revaluation Plan

The revaluation plan for Newton real estate, ordered by the state Superior Court, was accepted by Judge Henry Chmielinski on Tuesday.

All restraints against the city's undertaking any assessment procedures or issuing real estate tax bills were removed by Chmielinski in a hearing attended by City Solicitor Howard Levine, Assessor Milton Manin, and Richard Gelerman, attorney for the taxpayers whose suit last fall brought the revaluation question to a head.

Levine filed the plan, submitted by the appraisal firm of Cole-Layer-Trumble, on July 27, four days before the Aug. 1 deadline ordered by Chmielinski.

The taxpayers' suit will remain pending until revaluation is complete in 1975.

The revaluation process will begin next Monday, with meetings being arranged with the City's assessing depart-

School Testing Results Made Public

By LEN BATEMAN
Of the Graphic Staff

Newton parents were given an opportunity this past week to check on the relative, academic ability of their children with the release of the results of a 1971, state–wide testing of the basic skills of fourth graders.

The release of the scores ended a three-month battle between the state Department of Education and the Massachusetts Advocacy Center, formerly named the Task Force for Children Out–of-School.

The education department had refused to release the results because of a pledge made by former Commissioner of Education Neil V. Sullivan to local school superintendents throughout the state, and its claim that the test results were exempt from a freedom of information order issued by Governor Francis W. Sargent in 1970.

The Center successfully argued that the governor's order pre-dated Sullivan's pledge to local school administrators and present Education Commissioner Joseph M. Cronin of Needham ordered the test results released to the public.

Governor Sargent had ordered in a letter last week that the results be issued, stating that Cronin's continued refusal exceeded the scope of the order.

The contested information had actually been in the hands of local educators since the spring of 1971 and several school committees throughout the state had released the test results in data form to the public at that time.

Unlike those in the nearby communities of Needham and Westwood, however, Newton school administrators declined to publicly release the test scores.

Instead, they issued a statement through Dr. Vincent Silluzio, director of research and development for the Newton School Department, that read, in part, "Newton children performed at levels either above or close to what would be expected for their ability in each of the four skills tested."

The 1971 tests were designed to measure the reading, language, arithmetic, and study skills of each fourth grade student in relation to his or her intelligence.

As a way of measuring a child's ability, "predicted scores" were worked out for each child through a system of "variables" obtained through intelligence testing, and grade, age and sex determinants.

The results of the basic skills testing were then compared with the "predicted scores" and rated according to a scale with the figure "0" as the base.

If a child scored higher than anticipated he was said to be overachieving in relation to his own ability. A child was rated as an underachiever if his basic skill, testing results were lower on the scale than his previously determined "predicted score."

The results, then, reflect, not the child's standing in relation to a national, state or community norm, but his relative standing in relation to his own tested ability.

For this reason, Associate Commissioner of Education James Baker warned, in releasing the scores, of possible misinterpretation of the data.

According to Ward 8 School Committeeman Alvin Mandell, the School Committee was hesitant to release the scores in 1971 because of their tendency to confuse.

"As released by the state," said Mandell, "the scores were meaningless and did not lend themselves to easy interpretation by the laymen on the street with no knowledge of statistical analysis."

Dr. Silluzio more or less said the same thing to Newton's Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink in a memorandum composed in 1971 when the scores were received by the school department.

"Caution should be exercised in interpreting data from this type of testing program which by design is limited to basic skills and does not attempt to measure the broad content areas taught in the fourth grade." wrote Silluzio.

Mandell also warned parents not to interpret the scores as an indication of the grade level their child might

Newton Gets Lower Taxes

The 1973 Newton tax rate will be either $134.80 or $135, Assessor Milton Manin announced this week, a cut of almost $5.

At a special meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night, Mayor Theodore Mann's request for a transfer of $1.9 million from surplus to apply against taxes was whittled down to $1.6 million after three hours of bargaining.

Mann's original request would have resulted in a tax rate of $134. The 1972 rate was $139.60.

During earlier Finance Committee debate on the amount to be taken from the $2.4 million surplus, Aldermen Peter Harrington and Richard Bullwinkle presented figures on unavoidable expenses over the next 11 months which they felt indicated the city might be in a precarious financial position if the mayor's request were granted.

The Finance Committee vote to recommend approval of $1.9 million was 4-2.

The recommendation was challenged again on the floor of the board by Bullwinkle and Harrington on Monday night and was buttressed by testimony of Comptroller and Director of Finance Arthur Marr, who said of Bullwinkle's presentation, "With a few exceptions, it's pretty factual."

"We've always reserved about $500,000, and in my opinion now we should be considering saving more than that for the additional six months," Marr said, referring to the state-mandated 18-month fiscal year which ends next June 30.

Bullwinkle's proposed amendment to transfer only $750,000 toward the tax rate failed 14-6, with four aldermen absent.

Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small tried unsuccessfully to amend the amount to be transferred to $1.7 million.

Small's move was countered by Harrington's motion to limit the amount to $1, which also failed.

The compromise figure of $1.6 was proposed by Small and was approved 14-6.

Voting in favor were Aldermen Alan Barkin, Wendell Bauckman, David Cohen, Eliot Cohen, Harry Crosby, Ernest Dietz, Louis Egelson, Robert Gaynor, Matthew Jefferson, Michael Lipof, Lois Pines, Jason Sacks, Small, and Robert Tennant.

Opposed were Bullwinkle, Thomas Concannon, Harrington, Andrew Magni, Joseph McDonnell, and Richard McGrath.

Aldermen Michael Antonellis, David Jackson, Edward Richmond, and Edward Uehlein were absent from the meeting.

Theodore Noel Gross of 181 Parker St., Newton Centre has announced his candidacy for Ward Alderman of Ward 6.

Gross, 25, has lived in Newton for 11 years. After his 1966 graduation from Newton South High School, he attended Newton Jr. College and Miami-Dade Jr. College as a business administration major.

An associate member of the Ward 6 Democratic committee, he contributed much of his time on the successful reelection campaigns of State Representative David Mofenson and Congressman Robert F. Drinan as well as other democratic candidates in

No Explanation For Posting Of Signs

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Signs directing prospective buyers to the luxury condominium project, "The Towers at Chestnut Hill," have sprung up around Newton, and nobody seems to know how they got there.

Inquiry at the Massachusetts Department of Public Works this week revealed that the sign fastened below a U-turn sign on the triangle at Langley Road and Route 9 is in clear violation of law.

No permission had been sought from the DPW, a spokesman said, and none is ever given for a commercial venture.

Two other white on green signs are nailed to utility poles, one on the turnoff from Route 9 to Hammond Pond Pkwy. and one on Beacon Street at Hammond Pond Pkwy.

Both poles are owned solely by Boston Edison, which does not allow signs posted on its poles. No permission was asked, Boston Edison said.

Gregg Jordan, vice-president of the Towers selling agents, Saunders and Associates, asked to explain the presence of the signs, said, "I don't know how they got there. I don't know who put them up. I have no idea who is responsible."

Jordan said that some other signs have been removed.

Mario DiCarlo, one of the principals in the Chestnut Hill Towers Trust, owner of the 428-unit Towers development, also knew "nothing about the signs."

"I just work here," Di Carlo said.

Jason Sacks, Ward 7 alderman who is a salesman for the condominiums, said, "I'm just as surprised as you are. I only saw them last week."

The state DPW plans to remove the sign at Langley Road and dispose of it in its disposal area in Lexington, a spokesman said.

The other two signs are in violation of Newton ordinanaces and subject to removal on that basis.

Pines Scores On Voting Record

Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX) has announced that Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) voted on six different occasions in accord with the position of CPPAX on election law reforms.

These votes dealt with extending the minimum hours for all polling places to be open, eliminating the necessity for a notarization of absentee ballots and providing a state system of absentee voter registration by mail as an alternative to the existing system requiring an in-person appearance by the applicant. CPPAX scored legislators on six votes in the 1973 legislative session.

Representative Pines was cited as one of only 30 state representatives of 240 scoring a perfect CPPAX voting record on election law reforms.

Board Confirms Appointment

The appointment of Mrs. Margaret L. Smith to the Newton Redevelopment Authority was confirmed by a unanimous vote of the Board of Aldermen Monday night.

Mrs. Smith replaces Robert G. Davidson, whose term expired April 12.

Mrs. Smith's appointment was announced by Mayor Theodore Mann on July 27. A special meeting of the Land Use Committee was held to interview Mrs. Smith Monday night so that her appointment could be voted on at the meeting of the full board.

Davidson's ouster and replacement by Mrs. Smith will clear the way for new action by the Redevelopment Authority on the controversial selection of the J.F. White Construction Co. as the developer for the Newton Lower Falls urban renewal area.

Residents of the community and city officials were outraged by the June 11 vote of the Authority, which selected the White firm over the first choice of the Lower Falls Project Area Committee and others in the area.

Edmund Mangini, assistant commissioner for urban renewal of the Department of Community Affairs, at a hearing held last month, said the DCA would not approve any plan that did not have approval of the community, the Planning Department, the mayor and the Board of Aldermen.

The Authority has maintained that it cannot rescind its June vote, but Alderman Alan Barkin, Land Use Committee chairman, said Monday night that a highly respected law firm, well known for its work in redevelopment, has written a lengthy opinion stating that the Authority may reject its earlier vote and vote again.

John E. Young, vice-chairman of LOPAC, commented on Tuesday that he is sure the members of the Lower Falls Community will be pleased with the appointment of Mrs. Smith, who was one of a number of persons proposed by LOPAC.

Multi-Residences Further Restricted

A bill reducing from five to four the number of unrelated persons that can occupy an unlicensed apartment or housing unit has been signed into law.

The legislation, drafted by Representative Peter F. Harrington of Newton "as a result of complaints and other information I received from single and two-family homeowners," he said.

"People have become aware that single and two-family homes are being converted into apartments for multi-residence use by landlords without concern for the problems of increased parking, noise or without regard for the zoning ordinances," Harrington commented.

The new law requires a lodging house license be obtained when more than four people not related by the "second degree of kindred," that is, second cousins, live in a housing unit.

"The problem first came to my attention as a member of the aldermanic Land Use Committee," Harrington said. "I have received calls from constituents about illegal apartments being the cause of excessive parking problems to neighboring homes.

He said the calls come from all areas of the city.

"Some of the complaints were solved by the Building Department, others only could be solved by a change in the lodging house license law," he said.

The Newton legislator and alderman also pointed out that a change similar to this one was attempted four years ago in Brookline. He explained that the local town bylaw was ruled beyond the power of the town and declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Judicial Court.

He also said there is "increasing concern" from housing proponents over the fact that many single and two-family houses in residential areas for families of low and moderate income, are being converted into student dormitories at "three and four times the rent a family could afford."

Harrington said his bill received the unanimous support of the Urban Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives.

LAWRENCE SUTTENBERG of Newton has been named to the board of directors of the New England-Israel Chamber of Commerce. He is a partner in the accounting firm of Ernst and Ernst.

Loyal Service Earns Award

A Newton man has received a longevity award from the federal government praising his more than a decade of service.

Vincent J. Tuscher, 19 Craigie Terr., Newtonville, was recently awarded a Certificate of Federal Service and accompanying lapel pin for his more than 10 years of "faithful, loyal and devoted service to our nation."

The certificate was signed by the national director of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency (DCPA) John E. Davis.

Presentation ceremonies were conducted at the Region One, DCPA, underground headquarters here by Allan R. Zenowitz, regional director.

Tuscher is the public information officer for the region which is responsible for the civil preparedness programs in New England, New York, New Jersey, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Why Jeffrey Can't Read Or Dance

Jeffrey, who will soon be seven-years-old, thinks summer school is a great way to spend his vacation. An active, gregarious little boy, he has all the enthusiasm of a good student.

But Jeffrey, who will be in second grade this fall, is at the pre-primer level in his reading. He has yet to master memorization of the alphabet beyond the letter "k." When he writes, he inverts his letters so that a "p" looks like a "9" and an "h" looks like a "d."

He also has "motor" problems. He cannot skip and cannot dance and has difficulty keeping his balance when he tries to hop.

Jeffrey is one of tens of thousands of children in Massachusetts with learning difficulties, but he happens to be one of the lucky 90 children whose needs have been spotted and who are getting help under a Title I summer school program at the Memorial School in South Natick.

After giving Jeffrey a battery of tests, Jean Brigham, a reading development teacher from Clinton, discovered that while Jeffrey has a definite problem with visual-motor integration that puts him as much as two-years behind in certain skills, he is bright and is actually two years ahead of the average child in his auditory and verbal abilities. Using his strengths as a basis, Ms. Brigham is now putting together a prescriptive program for the coming year which will be forwarded to Jeffrey's classroom teacher.

Ms. Brigham is one of 35 men and women participating in Boston College's Summer Seminar and Practicum in Remedial Reading and Learning Disabilities. The six-week course offers six academic credits to graduate students going for their master's and doctoral degrees, as well as to those like Ms. Brigham who are working on their post-master's certificate of advanced educational studies.

The Boston College program is one of the first in the country to train remedial reading and learning disabilities specialists together. Dr. John F. Savage, co-ordinator of the reading specialist program in the School of Education, says that until this year, specialists in the one area regarded those working in the other as belonging to a different camp.

"It was a little like the cowboys and the farmers," he remarked. "The reading specialist would say, 'teach Jeffrey to read and he won't have any other learning difficulties.' The learning disabilities specialist would say 'concentrate on Jeffrey's perceptual and motor difficulties and he won't have a reading problem'."

Now, Jean Brigham and other participants in Boston College's program are learning that children like Jeffrey need not only remedial reading help but special gym classes as well.

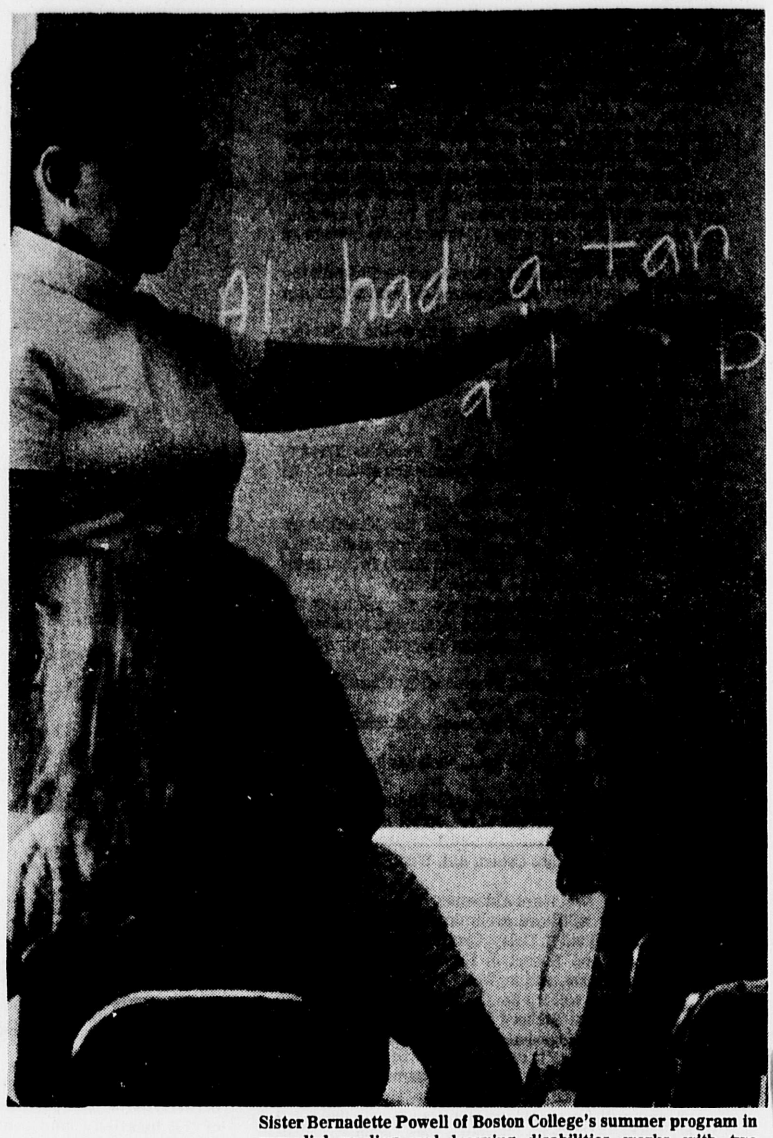
Boston College's attempt to bring the two "camps" together comes in the aftermath of Massachusetts' Bartley-Daly Special Education Act of 1972. The act stipulates that as of September, 1974, children will not longer be labeled - dyslexic, emotionally disturbed, retarded or handicapped - then isolated and perhaps even rejected from the public school in their community because it is not staffed to cope with them.

Instead, the act seeks to integrate children with "special needs" into the public schools in their community and to assure that these needs will be met by specialists trained in all areas of learning difficulties, working with regular classroom teachers.

It is with this legislation in mind, Dr. Savage says, that Jean Brigham and other students in the Boston College program are not only working this summer in a public school setting with a group of children and regular teachers, but they are also being trained to put together a prescriptive program which a regular teacher can then implement.

Jean Brigham accepts this new role, saying, "Among other things, I am going to recommend that Jeffrey work on the alphabet with plastic letters and finger paints since he has a good tactile sense. I am also going to recommend that he attend special gym classes. I myself, don't expect to make great strides with Jeffrey this summer. He needs individual help on a daily basis for the next year. With that help, he could do just fine."

Newton participants in the Boston College summer program are: Angela Prete, a teacher in West Newton; Paula Kaplan, a teacher in Brookline; Barbara Edmunds, a teacher in Needham; Judy Roberts, a teacher in Bedford; and Hannah Atkins, a teacher in Needham.



Reading

Sister Bernadette Powell of Boston College's summer program in remedial reading and learning disabilities works with two students who have trouble discriminating the sound of the letter "a" from the sound of the letter "i." The girls are being helped under a Title I summer program at Memorial School in South Natick.

Waste District Gets Director

Phillip Pattison of Wayland has been employed as the director of the Newton-Waltham solid waste disposal district by the planning board for the district.

Pattison will set in motion activity that must result in recommendations by the district by next Jan. 1 for submission to the mayors of the two cities.

The disposal district office is being set up in Waltham's Public Works Department building at 25 Lexington St., Waltham, and should be operating next week.

A veteran of 25 years in the public works field, Pattison was considering leaving the position of Public Works director in Canton and retirement from municipal employment when he learned about the regional waste district.

"I'd been looking into the consulting field," Pattison said, "looking for a completely different challenge, and my children weren't ready to move to Florida, where I thought I'd like to go."

"I met Dick Dudman (Newton's Director of Public Works) at Newton City Hall one day. We were talking and he suggested that I talk to the regional district committee.

"I was asked last week whether I'd take the job, and I accepted."

"We have a tremendous time problem to overcome here," Pattison said. "Nothing like this district has ever been done before. To bring together two cities is a terrific challenge."

Pattison played a major role last year in setting up a study, not yet completed, of the feasibility of a disposal district for all the towns in Norfolk County.

He has also been deeply involved in recycling and a recycling center in Canton was established under his direction during his tenure there.

The Canton landfill was cited by New England Construction magazine as one of only two properly operated landfills in New England.

A native of Newton, Pattison graduated from Newton High School and Northeastern Univesity and is a registered civil engineer. While at Northeastern, he worked for Newton's engineering department for several years in the university's cooperative program.

Pattison's $20,000 salary will come from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency grant of $112,000 for the district.

Tough Campaign Disclosure Law Will Be Sought Via Referendum

Election reform came up for discussion again this week with the announcement of a referendum drive for a tough campaign disclosure law.

The move to seek election reform by referendum started about six months ago under the leadership of State Senator John Quinlan. Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann has been working with Quinlan and others on the push for a referendum.

"I'm proud to be playing a major role in this drive to give Massachusetts the toughest campaign disclosure law in the nation," he said.

Both Mann and his challenger candidate William Carmen have been working on election reform plans. Carmen three weeks ago voluntarily disclosed his campaign contributors and expenditures and filed a bill in the State Legislature that would make pre-election disclosures necessary for candidates.

Newton's mayoral candidates, including Alan MacNeil and Elliott Berry, met two weeks ago to work out other compromise measures affecting the Newton campaign. Included were a spending limit and a ban on billboard, radio and television advertising.

Commenting on the Quinlan proposal, Mann said "The present statute with its woefully inadequate enforcement provision has failed to provide the kind of safeguards that the people of Massachusetts need and want.

"Our proposal, the most comprehensive electoral reform package offered to date, will truly ensure such safeguards and must be extended to cover every public officeholder in the state."

The mayor also said that in addition to the measures agreed upon by all four Newton candidates he had decided to limit single donations in his campaign to no more than $1,000. Carmen had proposed a $250 limit. The legal limit now is $3,000.

Mann said he also suggests that "no candidate spend more than $3,000 on his own campaign."

"Unless this is agreed to, candidates of modest means will find it impossible to compete with those who possess unlimited financial resources," he said.

The proposal for changes in campaign laws as worked out by Quinlan, Mann and others:

—Extends the jurisdiction of the current statute to apply to all candidates above the city and town level because many apply only to the six constitutional officers (governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, state treasurer and auditor).

—Limits candidates to one political committee. Under current law, candidates can have three separate political committees.

—Requires candidates above the level of city and town elections to receive and disburse all funds in amounts greater than $25 by check.

—Makes it a crime to knowingly receive a cash payment from a candidate or his committee for a service costing more than $25.

—Requires candidates to designate a single bank as a depository of funds and recordkeeper, records and receipts and expenditures to be open to public scrutiny.

—Extends new campaign spending limits to cover all media expenses.

—Requires all media to report the purchase of their services by political candidates.

—Requires candidates, upon official announcement or filing of nomination papers, to report all political receipts and expenditures since the date of the last general election for the office sought. This one, Quinlan said, is designed to "catch the large sums contributed and expended during the unofficial segment of the campaign."

Criminal penalties for violation of the law would be set at a mazimum of one year imprisonment and-or a $10,000 fine for "corrupt election practices."

Specific civil procedures would also be established to deprive an offender of any office won through corrupt election practices.

The final provision asks for the establishment of a Corrupt Practices Commission consisting of five members appointed by the governor with staggered five-year terms.

The commission would meet in closed session, have subpoena powers, and would make public disclosure on any investigation where "probable cause" was not found, and pursue both criminal and civil penalties through the attorney general where "probable cause" was found.

Jeffersons Chair United Way Campaign

Alderman and Mrs. Matthew Jefferson

Matthew and Lillie B. Jefferson will serve as Newton community co-chairmen in the first United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign, according to Marshall B. Balter, United Way west division chairman.

Alderman and Mrs. Jefferson are organizing and coordinating the Newton United Way Campaign in neighborhoods, schools, clubs and organizations, local businesses, municipal government, special gifts and professional services.

The United Way of Massachusetts Bay is a organization of the Massachusetts Bay United Fund and United Community Services structure to better service the needs of the community through its 203 family, health, child care, and youth-service agencies.

Jefferson, an electrician at General Motors Corp., is a board member of the South Middlesex branch of the NAACP, a trustee of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, former director of Newton Mental Health and past president of Community Parents Organization. He is also a member of the United Auto Workers Union. Jefferson is a graduate of Hampton Naval Training School and is currently attending Northeastern University.

Mrs. Jefferson, church secretary of Myrtle Baptist Church, in Newton, has served the United Fund in previous campaigns. She is a charter member of Newton Fair Housing, board member of the Newton Community Development Foundation, and corresponding secretary of the South Middlesex branch of the NAACP. She is also a member of the Health Area Planning Committee.

Ald. and Mrs. Jefferson live in West Newton.

Carmen Would Like To Hear Budget Projection

Mayoral candidate William Carmen this week said he thinks the mayor should project Newton's budget for the next two years before setting the 1973 tax rate.

"I sincerly feel that the long range security of the people of Newton is more important than short range political goals," Carmen said.

Carmen said the city will be in "financial trouble because the Mann Administration has chosen to indiscriminately borrow money and what will probably be the highest municipal bond interest rate in the history of the United States."

He said the mayor has "also ignored inevitable expenses and has overestimated potential revenue."

Carmen said Mann has plans to bond for "up to $10 million in new financial obligations at high interest rates."

"Every bonded item will cost the Newton taxpayers more in the long run," he said, "because they will have to be paid back with added interest."

The candidate mentioned $2 million for North High School, $2 million for incinerator repairs, $500,000 for the old F.A. Day conversion into a school administration building; $400,000 for capital improvements and $3 million for teachers' salaries.

Carmen pointed out that never before in the history of the city had it bonded for teachers' salaries.

"If the salaries were included in this year's tax rate, they would add approximately $8.50 per thousand to each person's bill," Carmen said. "Instead of paying $8.50 now, Newton taxpayers will have to pay $10.50 per thousand over the next three years to repay the loan."

Carmen also said Mann ignored many inevitable 1973 costs.

He cited a $1 to $1.5 million cost of living wage adjustment for teachers, $300,000 for city employees in cost of living wage adjustments, and the "normal inflationary increase in the cost of items such as gasoline, utility service and heating fuel.

"Newton's financial dilemma will be magnified," Carmen said, "because the mayor has overestimated the revenue that will be available to the city during the last third of his new 18-month budget."

"Mayor Mann says he will make use of motor vehicle excise taxes as income in the last six months of his new budget," Carmen continued, "while these funds will not be available until after July when the 1974-75 budget will be in effect."

The candidate challenged the mayor to project Newton's budget figures for the next two years "and show the people where he's leading them before he takes a record amount of money from the city treasury to adjust an election year tax rate."

"If the surplus were used to pay some of our current bills," Carmen said, "this year's rate would not go up and the tax rates of years to come would not be needlessly burdened with loan payments couple with heavy interest rates."

Chestnut St. Trees To Be preserved

Newton will get the improvement of Chestnut Street and still keep the trees along that street, Director of Public Works Richard Dudman said this week.

The state has given him assurances in writing, Dudman said, that the Chapter 90 state-aided project for road repair and aligning can proceed without the loss of eight trees originally marked for removal.

The proposed width of 26 feet has been revised downward, Dudman added. The new width will still allow for the installation of curbs and grass berms.

A month ago a public hearing about the threatened demise of the trees brought 150 residents of the Chestnut Street area to City Hall to protest not only the cutting down of the trees but also the manner of notification about the hearing.

Mayor Theodore Mann responded to the protests by ordering all progress on the Chapter 90 project stopped until further negotiation could be carried out with the state. He also ordered an improved procedure for notification of neighborhoods about any projected removal of street trees.

Return money

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make way for something that doesn't happen often—money reverting to the U.S. Treasury because it couldn't be spent the way it was supposed to be.

The news is in a bulletin from the American Association of State Colleges and Universities. To wit: "The $1 million authorized for the improvement of teacher preparation at the undergraudate level will revert —unspent —to the Treasury following an opinion of a consultants' review panel that none of the approximately 100 proposals met the criteria for funds."

Children's Services Council Gathers In Newton Meeting

On Tuesday, Aug. 7, the Office for Children, a state agency under the executive office of Human Services, will hold a meeting at Usen Auditorium in the Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Acting chairperson Thomas Holtey of Newton Lower Falls will open the meeting at 7:30 p.m. and members of the council's summer organizating committee will present their ideas on establishing the Newton - Wellesley - Weston Council for the Office for Children.

Letters have been sent to civic groups and citizens in the area inviting them to participate in the formation of a council.

The council is to be an area group established to make recommendations to the Office for Children about the allocation of funds to survey services for children to 18 years of age to establish priorities of service needs and to develop information and referral systems.

The council will broadly represent all children's services - services to emotionally disturbed children, learning disabled children, multiple and physically handicapped children, normal children, retarded children, the health needs of children and the mental health needs of children.

Membership in the council is open to anyone in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area. Similar councils will also be set up in 39 other areas throughout the state.

Each council will be expected to elect an executive board made up of 50 percent consumers - people who receive no money for providing services to children, i.e. parents, youths and interested citizens - and 50 percent providers - persons who receive money for services rendered children - teachers, social workers, doctors, psychiatrists and the like.

The agenda for the meeting includes discussion of how the executive board will be elected, the setting up of a committee to begin reviewing funding requests, and the report of the summer organizing committee. Everyone is invited to attend this and all other future meetings.

More information may be obtained by calling Margaret Haig or David Parachini at the Office for Children, Region 5 Office, Peabody School, 474 Brookline St., Newton Centre, at 965-4470.

Center For Palsied Names New Director

The Garden City Activity Center for Cerebral Palsy and other Physically Handicapped Adults has announced the appointment of Mrs. Susan Claxton as its Program Director. The Activity Center is located in the Post 440 Building at 295 California St., Newton.

For several years, Mrs. Claxton, a registered occupational therapist, has been involved with both physically handicapped and mentally retarded children and adults. Public education, individualized rehabilitation, and fair employment are high priorities for her in relation to the handicapped.

Regarding her plans for the center, Mrs. Claxton stated:

"The joint effort of United Cerebral Palsy of Metropolitan Boston and the Garden City Activity Center to create the program for this center is an exciting step towards achieving comprehensive, community services for physically handicapped citizens. We hope to attract adults with a wide variety of interests and needs by offering educational classes, therapeutic programs, recreational and social activities, and special interest groups."

Mrs. Claxton received a B.S. in occupational therapy from Boston University, and attended Northeastern University Graduate School of Education. Before accepting the directorship of the Garden City Activity Center, she was employed as a classroom occupational therapist in the Baylies Beginning Center, a preschool at the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton.

Prior to that, she was a staff therapist at the Walter E. Fernald State School in Waverly. Mrs. Claxton is a member of the American Occupational Therapy Association, the National Rehabilitation Association, Massachusetts Association of Paraplegics, the Task Force on the Handicapped, Inc., and Cerebral Palsy Associates.

Anyone interested in the Activity Center may call 965-3389 for further information.

Cole-Layer-Trumble will probably set up an office in Newton, Levine said.

The contract with Cole-Layer-Trumble calls for completion of the work on or before July 1, 1975. The total revaluation will cost $345,000.

The specifications for the contract were drawn up by consultant Martin Coleman of Waltham.

Among Coleman's many recommendations were that the two vacant positions of assessor out of a total of three be filled as soon as possible.

On July 20, Mayor Theodore Mann appointed Joseph G. Cosgrove and Philip J. Waterman to the positions.

Cosgrove has been an assistant assessor in Newton for the past year and is a graduate of Boston College and Portia Law School.

Waterman has been assistant assessor-appraiser for the town of Belmont for the past five years and a member of the Arlington assessors' office for the preceding five years.

During his employment in Belmont and Watertown Waterman supervised revaluation programs and most recently has been involved in maintaining the equalization program in Belmont.

Waterman is a graduate of Boston University.

Proposed salaries for the new assessors start at $15,000 for Cosgrove and $17,500 for Waterman, with $2,500 increases for both due Jan. 1, 1974.

Work plan

BONN, Germany (UPI) — German conscientious objectors to military duty will now be drafted to work for local authorities during their 15-months service.

Until Parliament passed the new law, Germany's record high number of 33,792 objectors could only work in hospitals and mental institutions and there were not enough vacancies to employ them all. "We respect a young man's decision not to join the army," a government spokesman said, "but we'll make sure the objectors are not let off any lighter than those in uniform."

What To Expect

Newton's revaluation of all taxable properties within the city's limits should be completed in about two years.

So what can taxpayers here expect?

At this point there seems no definitive pat answer to that question from anyone on the city or state level despite the fact that orders have been out for almost a dozen years calling for adherence to the Massachusetts law for full and fair valuation.

How many of the 351 communities in the state are at 100 per cent valuation? Only one city, Peabody, and 37 towns, according to the Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation.

The full and fair valuation law has been on the books for many, many years. But it was not until Springfield went to full valuation some dozen years ago that stricter adherence to the statute became a reality. Taxpayers suits have forced the change in many communities. But most, like Newton, have agreed to full and fair value slowly and reluctantly.

No one person can be singled out or blamed for the revaluation procedure here. That's what the law says and if there is a real crusader or two in our midst let them campaign for change through appeal in the courts. But don't blame someone for obeying the law.

Most taxes in Newton are paid on assessments of one-third the fair market value. The assessor's office says possibly 500 to 1,000 of the total 25,000 parcels of taxable property in Newton are above or below the one third level. Those below can expect, under revaluation, to pay more. The above could pay less. That's a rule of thumb but don't take it for our promise.

If fear exists among some homeowners that they can not afford to pay a higher tax then there also exists the reality among some that they are overpaying right now.

Revaluation should be the equalizer so that everyone pays the same proportion. Or at least we are told that is what to expect.

The firm that has been hired to do the revaluating has a clause in its contract specifying that it will conduct a "suitable program of education" on its program.

Wonderful.

Next question: What can Newtonites expect?

Bus Fare

What flashes through your mind when you see a brightly painted school bus lumbering up the street?

Most of us think: "Caution." That's the obvious reason for the highly visible yellow exteriors chosen for school bus fleets.

But if the school bus were marked "Framingham" there might be an added reaction. A school bus from that town is certain to make some taxpayers elsewhere green with envy or some officials red with embarrassment.

Over in Framingham they have come up with a school bus system that is described as super efficient. It must be. They are providing better service with safer buses and saving $120,000 per year. The new system, which has gained nationwide notice in education circles, also means that students spend less time jouncing along, have more pickup points and the town has cut the number of bus drivers from 56 to 44.

Worked into Framingham's new school transportation system are more short runs in place of a few longer trips. Bus stops were determined by computer. And probably one of the most unusual aspects of the new system was the fact that the choice of which stops to use was made by parents and students instead of being entirely up to school officials.

In some circles they are calling the new system the fiscal miracle of Framingham, Massachusetts. Pickup points increased from 830 to 1,140 giving far greater convenience to the youngsters who use the buses.

With the cost of school bus transportation riding deeper into every local dollar labeled education the question presents itself: does Framingham give students and taxpayers a better ride for their money?

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Quinlan Resentful That Sarge Posed For Photo With Burton

Governor Francis W. Sargent and State Senator John M. Quinlan have never exactly been political buddies even though they are two of the more prominent survivors of the gradually disappearing Republican party in Massachusetts.

Quinlan, an extremely ambitious young man, with his thoughts on higher public office, wanted to be the Republican nominee for Lieutenant Governor in 1970.

Both Sargent and Quinlan lived in Dover at the time. It was hardly practical that the GOP candidates for both Governor and Lieutenant Governor would come from that picturesque little town, especially when they were running as a team.

So Quinlan packed up and moved from Dover to Norwood. But that didn't raise any goose pimples on any part of Governor Sargent who simply did not want Quinlan as his running mate.

Sarge first tapped former Representative Martin Linsky of Brookline as his companion on the Republican state ticket and then lined up enough votes at the GOP State Convention to assure the nomination of Linsky.

But it developed that Linsky might be more of a liability than an asset to Mr. Sargent.

So Sarge dropped Linsky and hand-picked Donald R. Dwight of Holyoke, then deputy governor in the Sargent Cabinet and an extremely capable young man who had served on the State Public Works Commission with Sargent and earned his respect.

Political history will show that Sargent and Dwight did an extremely effective job in winning election in 1970 and will strive to repeat that feat in 1974. But that is not the main point of this report.

Neither is it the fact that Governor Sargent performed the virtually unprecedented political feat of lining up the convention votes for two different candidates for Lieutenant Governor against a potent challenger with a big following.

Anyone who doesn't realize that Francis Sargent has bulging political muscles and knows how to use them has not taken a good look at the record of the 1970 Republican State Convention.

Complaints by young politicians that Sarge twisted arms are silly. That's what conventions are all about. Most delegates go to the conclaves hoping that someone with power and patronage will try to twist their arms.

Now Senator Quinlan is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State. Ron Burton, a black and former star halfback for the Patriots, is seeking the same GOP nomination.

Burton sought the same nomination in 1970 but was defeated by former Representative Mary Newman of Cambridge who now holds a position in Governor Sargent's cabinet. Burton figures he staked out a claim to the office the last time around.

Incidentally, Senator Edward W. Brooke supported Mrs. Newman against Burton, a fellow black, in 1970.

As far as this observer has been able to ascertain, Governor Sargent has been carefully and prudently neutral in the fight between Quinlan and Burton.

However, Quinlan became incensed the other day when he learned that Governor Sargent had posed for a picture with Burton. His anger was heightened because he had just made a speech in support of a veto by the Governor.

Quinlan stormed into the Governor's office to voice his protests, and it is understood harsh words were exchanged between Quinlan and Sargent. The Governor's aides say it was a non-political photo of Sarge, Burton and a group of boy scouts. That did not satisfy Quinlan.

Sargent Attempts To Rebuild Political Fences For Next Year

Governor Francis W. Sargent already is undertaking to rebuild his political fences in anticipation of next year's state election.

Polls and surveys have indicated that Mr. Sargent is not as strong today as he was in 1970 when he defeated Boston's Mayor Kevin H. White but is still a pretty potent politician and is no one the Democrats should take lightly.

While he has made more than his quota of mistakes since he was elected Governor in 1970, Sarge has managed to turn some of his defeats to his own advantage and to convince the public that he has been abused and frustrated by a Democratic-controlled Legislature.

That is not entirely true, but Mr. Sargent builds a convincing case to show that it is.

For example, the most reliable observers on Beacon Hill now predict that eight of Governor Sargent's reorganization proposals will be rejected by the Legislature and that the other two will receive only partial approval.

That does not appear to disturb the Governor as much as you might expect. Some of his own top aides have been openly opposing his reorg bills and he has done nothing to chastise them.

The only one who has given all-out support to his plans for reorganizing the state government has been Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight, and lately Dwight has been forced to divide his attention between the legislative chambers and the Walpole State Prison.

All this should disturb Governor Sargent, but there is no substantial evidence that it does. Some of Sarge's closest aides say privately that the rejection of his reorganization plans will be the best thing that could happen to him, that it will place him in a stronger position to campaign against the Legislature and enable him to talk about the saving and improvements in government he could have accomplished if his reorg bills had been enacted.

Governor Sargent is devoting a portion of his time — usually about a day a week — to trying to mollify the business and industrial leaders who are understandably unhappy with him.

The business tycoons are no great force at the ballot box. But they're rather important when it comes to digging down for campaign contributions, and they often wield considerable influence in their home communities.

Their displeasure with Mr. Sargent stems partly from his support of a graduated state income tax last year. Sarge's aides say a number of the business chieftains agreed not to oppose the graduated tax and broke their word. The businessmen reply that they hardly consented to the adoption of a law which would give the Legislature a blank check to raise their state income taxes.

Notwithstanding the bitterness over the proposed graduated state income tax, which may be back on the ballot in 1976, Governor Sargent seems to be making some headway in breaking down their opposition.

That probably is not as difficult as it might seem at first glance. Attorney General Robert Quinn, a middle-of-the-road Democrat and the probable Democratic nominee for Governor next year, is at least as liberal as Governor Sargent.

Former Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline, who presently is challenging Quinn for the Democratic nomination for Governor, would be a disaster from the standpoint of the business community.

Mr. Sargent, incidentally, tells his businessmen listeners that if he is reelected Governor, he will serve out his term and would not run for the U. S. Senate in 1976 if Senator Ted Kennedy gives up his Senate seat to seek the Presidency.

Sarge insists convincingly that he has no desire whatever to move from Dover to Washington or to transfer the scene of his political operations from Beacon Hill to Capitol Hill. He doesn't believe that arguing the price of beef, important as that may be, is his bag.

John Boone Like Man Who Came To Dinner; He Is Not Leaving

John O. Boone is like the man who came to dinner. He is staying to work on prison reform even though Governor Francis W. SArgent fired him from the post of state correction commissioner after 17 months on the job.

Mr. Boone outlines a number of praiseworthy objectives which he says he will work to accomplish by trying to organize an agency to help local and state groups interested in corrections reform across the United States.

We would be more impressed if Mr. Boone had made more progress toward realizing his goals during the year and a half he headed the Massachusetts prison system.

He has said several times that racism was not the basic cause of his dismissal by Governor Sargent but that it was "part of the cause." Boone has never really explained what he means by that or by his assertion that "bad advice" caused the Governor to "sacrifice" him.

If he means that more blacks should be hired as prison guards, he's probably right. But racism played no part whatever in Governor Sargent's decision to dump Boone.

Mr. Sargent felt that the situation at Walpole State Prison had become so dangerous for both guards and prisoners that he could not allow it to continue and that he had no alternative but to replace Boone.

John Boone obviously is well-intended and apparently has some excellent ideas on prison reform and on preparing prison inmates for their return to the community.

Despite his many good points, he was a poor administrator. This led to one crisis after another at Walpole State Prison. It caused the Boston Herald American to demand editorially that Boone be fired, and eventually it caused Governor Sargent to demand his resignation.

Perhaps John Boone can work more effectively in promoting prison reform that he did in carrying it our.

Drinan Impeachment Resolve Viewed As Political Blunder

Astute observers on Washington's Capitol Hill believe that Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton committed a political blunder in filing a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Nixon.

They express the conviction that Father Drinan, a jesuit priest, submitted his resolution at the wrong time and for the wrong reason. In fact, House Majority Leader Thomas P O'Neill, Jr., a far shrewder and much more experienced politician than Drinan, tried to dissuade him from filing the impeachment measure.

Congressman Drinan said he was moved to file the resolution by the disclosure that President Nixon had waged a secret air war in Cambodia for 18 months prior to April 30, 1970.

His action came at a time when demands were mounting for fair treatment for President Nixon and the public appeared to be turning against the Senate Watergate Committee headed by Senator Sam Ervin.

Tests of public sentiment have indicated that many people feel the Ervin Committee members have been bullying witnesses, trying to improve their own public images and generally putting on a political show instead of conducting an impartial investigation designed to bring out the true facts.

Veteran Congressmen also report that there is no sentiment either in the national House or among the people in their home districts for the impeachment of President Nixon.

O'Neill sought unsuccessfully to convince Father Drinan that his resolution was premature, that the evidence is not all in yet and that the Democrats would be wise to sit back and let the Republicans fight among themselves. But Congressman Drinan insisted on raising the issue and filing his resolution.

Memo To The Tooth Fairy

By CYNTHIA BLACK

By the time you read this, I will probably be in a coma.

I'm joking, of course; but I am in a hospital and getting here was not easy.

For me.

I'm in the hospital because I had to have my impacted wisdom teeth removed.

I knew it would happen eventually, but, like most people, I was not psychologically prepared when it did.

First of all, I've never stayed in a hospital, so I had the whole hospital thing to contend with.

Second, I'm a typical "sick person" and that means I overreact.

And third, I take any incapacity as a personal insult.

To me, this is a mind versus body game, and the teeth scored a touchdown. Cindy 0 — Teeth 7.

The minute they started to bother me, I knew where we were going. In the past two weeks, I've seen a dentist, an oral surgeon and two doctors—a family record for consultations, I'm sure.

Nobody was fooling anyone. The teeth had to go.

And I was scheduled to appear in a hospital Wednesday.

The first thing I did to prepare for my stay in the hospital was go out and buy myself a get-well card. Not because I have no friends or family, but just because the thought of buying a get-well card for myself and mailing it to me made me laugh.

Since I'm not really "sick," I also considered driving myself to the hospital because I was concerned about putting my friends to all the bother and my family, easier to bother, isn't here.

It then occurred to me that hospitals probably don't have parking for patients.

Parking for doctors, parking for visitors . . .

But patients??

Does a "sick person" want their car towed?

The second concern was what to take with me.

I decided I'd need a book to read, so I went out to buy a book.

I bought six books.

I think I was nervous.

Six books for a day and a half?

Not only that, but I'd already read three of them by Tuesday.

Now, I reasoned, I'd also need a nightgown, bathrobe and slippers.

Okay, I had a presentable bathrobe, but for slippers I've got an 8-year-old pair of white shoes and I decided the nightgowns didn't qualify—either too sexy or too mangy.

What would people think if I showed up at a hospital with a bathrobe, white shoes and a nightgown with an arm missing?

I went out in search of a "suitable" nightgown.

I got one too. And I can probably wear it all winter and never freeze to death.

At this point, I was physically ready to go.

Only I knew when I got there they'd have "NERVOUS" written all over my chart.

You see, the dentist, oral surgeon and doctors all rhetorically asked the same question:

"Why are you so nervous?"

When the fourth and final medical man asked me that again on Monday, I decided I'd walk into that hospital Wednesday and everyone would start whispering, "Here comes the nervous one . . ."

The first person in this world that I choose to laugh at is me, and in this instance I have to laugh.

I'll be back at my desk Monday and I'll be happy because I'm like everyone else—I can stand the problem, I just can't take the WAITING!

Setting The Tax Rate

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to the Newton Board of Aldermen with a copy to the mayor and the Newton Graphic:)

Gentlemen:

In the August 2 edition of the Newton Graphic, I note a paragraph indicating the possibility that "some aldermen may be expected not to approve transfer of as much money as requested by the mayor so that he may not use the issue of a reduction in taxes as effectively in his campaign."

I am writing to urge that the matter of establishing this year's tax rate will in no way be affected by political considerations either on your part or the part of the mayor. It seems to me that in fairness to the already over-burdened Newton taxpayer, every effort should be made to keep the tax rate as low as practically possible. The fact that this is an election year should have no bearing on the setting of this rate.

It is my sincere hope that the Board of Aldermen will see fit to approve the lowest tax rate possible under the circumstances now prevailing.

Taxis-

A public hearing will be held Aug. 16 at 7:45 p.m. at City Hall on the taxi association's petition.

The proposed charge of $1 would be for the first mile or less, with a 10 cent charge for each additional seventh of a mile.

Jerald Stinson, director of the Human Resources Department, commented that such an increase might work a hardship on Newton's elderly and poor citizens, who are probably the most frequent short-distance cab riders.

There is no other means of transportation to and from grocery stores and doctors for many of these people, he pointed out.

The former president of the Newton Taxi Association, Dewey Mollomo, said that only about 10 or 15 per cent of all taxi rides are under one mile.

The association, which includes operators of Newton's 90 cabs, is faced with not only the increasing cost of gasoline and cars, Mollomo said, but also a reflection of the higher car prices in higher sales and excise taxes and insurance.

"We've had only a 40 per cent increase in revenue since 1945," Mollomo said, "but the city has had an almost 400 per cent increase in taxes during the same time."

"We're in the transportation business like the MBTA," Mollomo continued "but the MBTA and other forms of transportation are subsidized."

The Newton Taxi Association is also requesting permission to place advertising signs on the outside of the cabs.

Open Letter To Congressman Drinan

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Considered by some to be one of our more successful and admirable congressman is indeed Father Drinan.

His fame reaches around the globe. His current opponent and adversary at the moment appears to be the President.

In impeachment enterprises, motivations might be examined. Why impeach the President? Why the overwhelming desire to do so? Why the excitable rush?

Perhaps perfect men can jump on every misdemeanor of a President with swords drawn and shiny crusading shields in evidence, believing that simply because an individual holds a place of leadership that the caterpillar changes automatically into the butterfly, that he becomes perfect, without fault, and a sort of mythical superstar.

To the intelligent, obviously, this is never the case. The bombing of Cambodia is debatably legal depending, ofcourse, on the pressures of Richard Nixon to do so and the sort of emergency that existed at the time.

The question of national security is not a constitutionally black and white issue and takes on different perspectives depending on one's information and position. And Father Drinan appears to have a mouse-eye view. The truth is that Nixon's ground will probably, probably that is, hold on a strictly legal basis (depending on the judge).

But there is more involved than the cold mechanics of legalisms. There is both the issue of political expediency on the part of Drinan and the morality of Nixon's attitude toward the whole affair.

Why Drinan? Why is he the one to cry foul where there is none on legal grounds at this time, at least he is on the short end of the legal stick.

On the other hand, it is obvious that the government of Cambodia is a sort of feudalistic tyranny.

Defending it on legal grounds or not seems contradictory to our democratic and humane intentions.

But impeachment? Nixon is not perfect. These are hard times and many situations in which he is involved are "damned is you do and damned if you don't" enterprises. Nixon inherited such a sticky rotten mess. Inevitably, he made some mistakes in trying to solve it, unless, of course, he has a hotline to God.

He is fallable among other things. You and I would make some mistakes too. I think we must allow for human frailty. I agree with Father Drinan that we should get out of Southeast Asia on a military basis. It is a hopeless mess that one could not see through clearly with X-ray eyes and an ominscient mind, let alone those eyes and minds of the CIA and generals in the field; and our heinous crimes committed against the people of that area have clouded the issue even more. It is understandable that Father Drinan or anyone would react to Nixon with passion rather than a sense of true insight or Godly humanity.

Nixon is in a tricky position now on Watergate too. He is highly vulnerable and disliked. Even those who voted for him did so out of disgust for his opponent for whatever reasons they be and not due to admiration for the man, Nixon, with the exception of two pretty faces, Tricia and Julie . . .

They're not even damp behind the ears yet. Now let us examine Father Drinan's claim, Cambodia. Morally, the bombing should have stopped or never taken place. I agree with the congressman. But if Richard Nixon (in his most vulnerable hour because of Watergate when Serpent Drinan decided to strike) is perfect, then he belongs in heaven at the right hand of God and not on earth.

He is not the perfect man Drinan is (or thinks he is) nor can he ever be. He mistakes, sure, as has every mortal President since I can remember. If his mistakes seem larger than some others, it is because of two things: there is always more at stake where men are dying, and our news media is sharper than it ever was. Little gets by them and they can no longer be bought off.

If Mr. Drinan believes that every single time a man stumbles in office, he has the right to cry "impeachement" from the holy ramparts, I must call this cry one of Godly self-righteousness (although I'm not sure if the God of which I speak be one of ambition rather than our true Creator, yours and mine). To what degree is Nixon a sinner? He is a snob, casting aspersions on the Watergate Committee, many of whom are sharper than Mr. Nixon could ever be. He was an ostrich, burying his crowned head, royal jewels and all (or at least looking in the other direction) when Watergate broke, letting Pandora's demons stew in a pressure cooker until the whole thing burst open; and he is a man with his eyes, pulse and fingers on history books and he delegates the affairs of live people like you and me to others. But impeachemnt?

If I were Father Drinan, I would examine my motives for impeaching a man for being simply a man, fallable.

Silverstein Awarded Diploma

Mr. Harold H. Silverstein, of Newton Public Schools, Newton, and Ernest L. Herrman School, Lowell, have been awarded a Diploma in School Psychology by the American Board of Professional Psychology, Inc. (ABPP). The diploma will be conferred upon Mr. Silverstein during the annual ABPP Convocation which will be held in Montreal, Quebec, on Wednesday, August 29, 1973.

The shortage of professionally trained psychologists at a time of increasing demand for their services has given a particular urgency to the question of quality control in the profession. State certification and licensure programs set minimum standards for the practice of psychology. The American Board of Professional Psychology, Inc., however, was established to identify practitioners of advanced competence. ABPP Diplomas, therefore, certify that the Diplomat has been judged by his peers to have attained an advanced level of competence in his profession.

Firefighters Are Efficient

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins and a copy forwarded to the Graphic:)

Dear Chief Perkins:

On Friday, July 20, lightning struck the chimney of my house at 25 Beecher Pl., Newton Centre. Your department responded instantly to a call made by a neighbor. At the time of the incident, I was in Pittsburg, Pa.

The house was completely locked up. The firemen who responded to the call deserve high praise. First, the men gained entry to the house without causing damage to any part of the structure. Secondly, a neat and efficient inspection of the house was made. Finally, the house was left in a secure manner and all hazardous areas were made safe.

The men under your command exhibited a high degree of professionalism. My thanks to you and your men.

Dear Sir:

Please thank your men who so carefully and efficiently took care of our property Friday night, July 13, removing car from garage, cleaning up debris and bracing the house door.

We were deeply appreciative.

Knights Of Pythias Will Not Discriminate

Editor, Newton Graphic:

We have read with much interest recent stories of the problems certain fraternal organizations in Massachusetts are having regarding the "white clause."

We are proud to announce that the Knights of Pythias, which embraces more than 2,000 lodges in the United States and Canada, is the first national fraternal order to abolish the white clause. This means that no man will be denied membership solely on race, creed, color or national origin.

We are also proud to announce that it was the Massachusetts delegates, Sidney T. Small and Hyman Berman, who spearheaded the fight last year at the national convention to once and for all put an end to this injustice. The victory was the culmination of ten years of hard work.

It is fitting that the Knights of Pythias, which at the suggestion of President Abraham Lincoln, was the first American order to be chartered by Congress in 1864, be the first national fraternal organization to abolish the race clause and insure equal treatment for all applicants for membership.

This marks another giant step toward the revitalization of our order and a renewal of our sense of responsibility to our fellow man and to our community.

All Men Can Be Brothers—Even Fathers And Sons

For the first time in the 54–year history of the Jewish Big Brother Association of Boston, a father and son are both serving as Big Brothers.

The father is Stanley Gaffin of Newton, whho last month, was elected as president of JBBA. His son, Harris Gaffin, is a senior at Tufts University majoring in photography.

The decision by Harris to become a Big Brother was prompted in part by the fact that his father was becoming JBBA's new president.

"I felt for quite some time that it was something I should do," Harris explained. "I'd been putting off the decision, basically because I was reluctant to take on the responsibility of a Little Brother. But when I heard my father was becoming president, I just figured it would be a good time to quit stalling and go ahead and do it."

"I called up the JBBA office, went in for the interview and two weeks later became his Big Brother. I'm really excited about the whole thing," he said.

At 22, Harris is one of the new wave of Big Brothers, who are being drawn increasingly from college ranks.

His Little Brother, who is 12 years old, represents a continuing trend to younger Little Brothers.

"Because more and more young couples are getting divorced, the average age of our Little Brothers is down to about 10 years old," Stanley Gaffin noted.

The new JBBA president, who is 48 years old, energetic, and intelligent, projects an aura of strength and compassion, with a ready sense of humor close to the surface. He fits more closely the traditional image of the Big Brother: a mature man, married and with children of his own; someone who expresses his concern for people by investing his time and effort in behalf of a fatherless boy who could benefit from the one-to-one Big Brother-Little Brother relationship.

Gaffin has been an active Big Brother for 15 years, and has had six Little Brothers ranging in age from 8 to 16 years.

"There's a great deal of satisfaction in being a Big Brother," he said, "even though sometimes you may feel you're not giving a youngster all he needs. At times the most important thing you can do for your Little Brother is to act as a calming influence, to give him someone he can have peace with."

He recalled his experience with one Little Brother he had for five or six years before the Little Brother abruptly ended the relationship. Gaffin had not heard from him for about five years when he received a call that the youth had been arrested for serious offenses. Thanks to his intercession, and the JBBA professional staff, the boy was given a suspended sentance.

They were able to get him scholarship aid, including a JBBA scholarship, enabling him to attend a local school, where he ended up number one in his class. He is now married, and a successful commercial artist, and, in fact, he designed the striking JBBA emblem.

Stanley and Harris Gaffin

"I think its significant that when the young man got in trouble he turned to me and JBBA for help, even though we hadn't heard from him in years," Gaffin said. "It is tremendously gratifying that we were able to help him, and that everything has turned out well for a former Little Brother."

The new president takes over the leadership of JBBA at a crucial period in its history. The organization has more Big and Little Brother matches — 115 — than ever before, with 29 youngsters waiting for suitable Big Brothers to become available.

A constituent agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, JBBA has had to reduce its budget for the coming year, as have all CJP beneficiary agencies.

Therefore, Mr. Gaffin sees his two biggest concerns during the next year as "getting enough new Big Brothers to reduce the waiting list, to zero if possible, and finding ways to replace the funds cut from the JBBA budget."

In regard to the latter, he hopes to increase the dues–paying membership of the organization from its present of about 1800 to a minimum of 2,000. One innovative way to achieve this, he believes, is to bring in women as members.

"I've already obtained our forst female membership," he reported with a smile. "It happens to be another Gaffin, my sister."

Testing-

have been reading on when tested two years ago.

"We are all familiar with those reading tests which might tell you a child in the fourth month of the fourth grade is reading on a seventh grade level," Mandell stated.

"This was not that kind of a test," continued Mandell, who stressed that it did not give an absolute figure in terms of grade level achievement.

According to Mandell, it was left up to the principal of each Newton elementary school to divulge the test results of pupils to interested parents.

"The School Committee saw it as a tool for assessing the academic progress of each individual student, and not in comparing different schools within the Newton system," Mandell added.

Mandell also stated he agreed with Associate Commissioner Baker who had adamantly defended the confidentiality of the scores

It is Baker's contention that publication of the scores will now lead to a lack of cooperation on the part of parents who have misinterpreted them.

"These scores are to be used by teachers in cooperation with parents for the establishment of programs suitable to the ability of each child," Mandell stated.

"I'm sure some parents will now withhold that cooperation because of the meaninglessness of the scores and their misinterpretation of them," he added.

"As difficult as it is to compare the scores of each student to other students who took the same test because of the predicted score factor, it is just as difficult to do so with different school departments or even different schools within the same community," Mandell said.

"Those cities and towns which spend a great deal of time on drilling of the basics seemed to do better on the test results, but some, especially the more affluent, have more money to spend on other aspects of education," according to Baker, and this was reflected in somewhat lower scores.

In offering a general interpretation of the test results, Baker stated that "children below average and above-average in intelligence scored better than anticipated, while the scores of the average child held in the predicted range.

Although scores were issued to the individual school systems two years ago, it was found that some of them were in error when they were again compiled last week.

The state Department of Education made last minute changes and most of those were in high spending communities like Newton.

The state used the firm of McGraw-Hill as consultants in the testing and used the California Test of Basic Skills and the Short Form Test of Academic Aptitude.

The test score results for each school within the Newton system are as follows and represent the average fourth grader within that school, based, as with individual results, on a predicted score of "0".

SCHOOL
Angier	13.7
Beethoven	9.1
Bowen	4.7
C.C. Burr	5.0
Cabot	? 4
Carr	-7.8
Claflin	-1.9
Countryside	2.8
Davis	-1.7
Emerson	16.6
Franklin	19.9
Hamilton	6.8
Hyde	4.2
L. Eliot	-10.6
H. Mann	4.2
M. Rice	4.9
Memorial	4.1
Oak Hill	1.6
Pierce	12.3
Spaulding	-2.8
Underwood	-6.3
J. Ward	9.0
Williams	7.5

A plus score for a school indicates that the average fourth grade student in that school was overachieving in relation to his tested intelligence. A minus score indicates the opposite.

According to Dr. Silluzio the I.Q. of the average, fourth grader in Newton was determined to be 112.8. The state average was computed from the tests to be 106.4.

last year's election. He also has served the community by participating in the Leaf Day Drive of the Committee on Environmental Control, headed the Newton Jaycees' March for Mental Health held last May, and served as a judge for the Centennial Parade Committee.

When questioned on his reasons for running, Gross stated, "There is a need for a city-wide open space plan. These spaces should not be developed, but preserved for recreational activities or natural environmental areas. Otherwise, we may lose precious open space. However, so that a developer would not be permanently banned from developing a tract of land he considers essential, he might be allowed to develop it by finding a suitable replacement for what he wants to develop."

On other environmental problems, Gross said, "We should recycle as much refuse as possible because, at present, our incinerator causes pollution and our land fill area has a life expectancy of about a year. By selling our refuse that can be recycled, we may be able to offset some of the collection cost we now pay. I would also like to see a ban on no-deposit bottles in the city."

Gross said he feels that Newton needs more low and moderate income housing, "This housing should not be in one area of the city but rather in all areas, with each site having no more than 3 or 4 units. This is so that project-type developments are not developed."

He continued, "There is a need for a better mass transportation system, this is something we must work out with other communities. For transportation within the city, there should be more frequent cross-town bus service. People should be encouraged to take the bus. The schedules should be made known to all and the service should be reliable."

In conclusion, Gross added, "These are just some of the issues we will have to work on as we enter our second century as a city. Between now and the election, I will be walking through the ward to listen and to meet the people of the district. Any person who wishes to talk with me may call 244-2899."

Adults Like To Play Kids' Games Too

In a sunny room, bright with red and yellow stools and tables, thirty-four adults sat down to play. Some were given a tray of red and white beans; others, a tray of uncooked rice, and, still others, a tray of yellow corn meal.

For the next five minutes, the adults sat spooning rice into cups, tracing roads and molding hills in the corn meal and arranging the beans in a variety of mosaic designs. When the five minutes were up, the young woman in charge asked the group what skills small children could learn in playing with such materials.

One person suggested that a child could count the beans, separate them into categories by color and arrange them in squares, triangles and circles. Another suggested that a child could practice motor co-ordination and learn the concepts of "empty and full" by measuring the rice into cups.

Another suggested that children could be asked to identify and even write simple sentences about the materials such as "these are beans" and "that is rice," or "these beans are red" and "those beans are white." And still another person suggested that children could be asked to make certain comparisons such as "which is bigger, a bean or a grain of rice?"

This simple exercise was one of many techniques used by Dr. Eva Neumann co-ordinator of Early-Childhood Education at Boston College's Summer Institute on Competency Through Play.

The three week institute, attended by thirty-four men and women, aged 19-50, was devoted to helping early-childhood specialists, teachers, principals, and school administrators understand how children in nursery school through third grade learn skills and competency through play.

Dr. Neumann, a veteran consultant to Head Start programs, lab schools and day care centers, stressed the fact that while play may look like a waste of time to parents who are academically oriented, play, or self-directed activity, is of prime importance in the development of every child. "When children play, they create their own world in which they play god," says Dr. Neumann. "This means they create a world in which they are in control and that is very important for their effective development: their feelings about themselves and their environment."

When children play, whether with blocks, beans, puppets or paints, they are developing cognitive skills, Dr. Neumann asserts, explaining, that they are learning to distinguish objects and classify them by color, shape and size; and they are learning confidence in experimentation when they pick up and drop materials, roll them, bend them, and arrange them. When they design a house with blocks or a face with beans they are both "duplicating reality and creating a new reality." Dr. Neumann's philosophy is, that without the cognitive skills children learn in play, they will not have much luck with the academic skills of reading and math.

In addition to Dr. Neumann's workshops, Institute participants attended a mathematics workshop at Boston's Children Museum and a science workshop at the Advisory For Open Education in Cambridge.

The Institute, emphasizing Dr. Neumann's philosophy that "teachers and administrators must themselves become good players again," also offered participants opportunities for improvisation and self-critique during the dance and movement workshops organized by June Judson and Norma Canner, consultants brought in from Boston's Action Workshop.

Participants in the Boston College Institute were given opportunities to make observations of children at play at the Salvation Army Day Care Center in Dorchester and at the Trotter Elementary School in Roxbury.

Among other projects, they spent a morning teaching children themselves, another morning designing a learning-through-play environment, a third morning making instructional materials and a fourth, designing evaluation procedures.

The Boston College Institute in Early Childhood Education, open to undergraduates, master's and doctoral candidates offered participants six credits toward their respective degrees.

Participants from this area included: Ms. Elaine Grossman, 142 Eastbourne road, Newton Centre; Mrs. Barbara N. Boisvert, 26 Chinian Path, Newton Centre; Judity Ann Kenney, 25 Shornecliffe road, Newton; Clifford S. Essman, 42 Westgate road, Chestnut Hill; Pauline J. Robinson, 70 Bigelow road, West Newton; Jarmica Vogel, 72 Canterbury road, Newton Highlands.

Vale Fund Grows

John and Carol Derry of Newton Centre have boosted the Webster Vale Purchase Fund to $2300 with their donation of $150 according to an announcement made by Sharon F. Francis, finance chairman for Friends of Webster Vale.

In making their donation the Derry's expressed a hope their gift will encourage others to also contribute.

Their accompanying letter stated, in part, "This contribution must be conditional upon the purchase of the entire Vale, but it is given gladly and enthusiastically for such an important cause."

"As residents of Newton for five years," the Derrys continued, "we have come to love the city and certainly one of Newton's major attractions is its still remaining but precious few oases of green. To sacrifice such an idyllic spot as the Webster Vale on the altar of profit is unthinkable."

The Derrys' gift is being matched by an anonymous Newton resident who is matching all contributions of $50 or more, up to a total of $1000. So far, $625 has been declared eligible for matching funds.

Most contributions to the Webster Vale Fund have been in small amounts of one or two dollars. It is estimated that 1150 individuals have contributed to the campaign to date.

The fund for the Webster Vale began at the suggestion of Mayor Theodore D. Mann when he toured the Vale on Apr. 26 with interested citizens and members of the Newton Conservation Commission.

Contributions may be directed to the Friends of Webster Vale, 45 Monadnock Rd., Chestnut Hill, 02167, or to the Newton Conservatators Fund for Preservation of the Webster Vale, Newton Savings Bank, 1188 Centre St., Newton Centre, 02159.

Acapulco (the Miami Beach of Mexico) is not just the flash and glitter tourists usually hear about . . . Sure it's the "Flee-from-the-winter" retreat having ultra-expensive resorts with private beaches, clubs, and tennis courts, but it's more! . . . The Sierra Madre del Sur mountains which crowd the coastline add another dimension . . . They give Acapulco's coast its deep coves, and granite cliffs . . . Divers are seen plunging 125 feet to the seas . . . And partly because of the exchange rate advantage (12½ pesos to the dollar), you usually can find a comfortable beach-front hotel for $18 to $24 a day (double) . . . Unfortunately your impression of Mexico too often depends on why you're there . . .

Negligent Navigators Plague Safe Boating

By PA1 DANNY O'SHEA
USCG

Recreational boating demands a certain degree of knowledge that cannot be obtained by the trial and error method, especially on the congested waterways of today. One such example of this is the nautical Rules of the Road.

The disregard of the Rules of the Road accounts for a sizeable chunk of recreational boating's mishaps, particularly collisions. Furthermore, the boat's lookout is often the culprit in these collisions. But, posting a reliable lookout, or taking the responsibility yourself as skipper, is just half the battle. When another boat is sighted on a collision course, the helmsman must be able to determine which boat is "burdened," which one is "privileged" and what action must be taken.

The most obvious method of avoiding a collision is changing course. Unless you are in a submarine, there are only two directions to turn your craft: starboard or port (right or left). Learning the corresponding horn signals is the easy part. A single, one-second blast on the horn or whistle states, "I am shifting my course to starboard." Two such blasts signigy a port turn.

The three potential collision situations are meeting, crossing and overtaking another vessel. Each has its own set of logical rules and each can be likened to the same general situation in highway driving.

Two boats are said to be in a crossing situation if they are approaching each other at right or obtuse angles and will come at least close to colliding. It is extremely important that both skippers understand the meaning of the term "danger zone." The boat that is in this zone has the right of way (it is "privileged") over the "burdened" vessel.

The danger zone is on the starboard side and, starting at the bow, covers an arc of 112.5 degrees. This angle may sound familiar. By no accident, it precisely matches the arc covered by your green, starboard bow light. This light, if your boat has navigation lights, can be an excellent guide in identifying the danger zone.

An easy way to bring this into focus is to consider your red-green running lights as being sort of nautical traffice signals. If a boat approaches you from within the danger zone, it will seee only the green "go" light. You will see his red "stop" light. This takes some imagination in daylight, but the principle is the same.

A burdened vessel has two alternatives in yielding to a boat in its danger zone. It can slow down and allow the boat to pass or it can turn to starboard and pass the boat astern. The privileged boat must stay on course and maintain its speed, although most will make a slight turn to starboard for safety. Don't count on it.

When overtaking a boat that is on the same course as yours, he is privileged and you must alter course, usually to his left (same as in a car). Your "directional signal" is the same even though he will be making no turn. Passing on the right, with a single horn blast, is optional.

He Hates Peanut Butter And Jelly

By RONALD E. COHEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Mama, I'm home from school! What's to eat?"

If you're like most other mothers, it's probably a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Or milk and cookies. Or a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, and milk and cookies.

Does it occur to you that your children probably are getting tired of PB and J? Quite right, Ma'am. They are.

I have had an abiding hatred of peanut butter and jelly since fourth grade. I can recall with horror how difficult it was to be playing shortstop at the schoolyard and being unable to exhort my pitcher to championship heights because the blasted peanut butter was lodged unyieldingly on the roof of my mouth.

But feeding children after school is a problem, no question. Many mothers work and must leave a snack in the refrigerator, PB and J being the easiest. Many others have obligations and cannot be home every afternoon to greet the children and make sure they get a nourishing snack to tide them over to dinner.

How about doing what the French Mamas do? A French snack, something to break the monotony and give the youngsters a chance to try some safe, easy cooking on their own.

When a French schoolchild comes home for lunch, quite possibly he will have the warm, filling repast of soup and either a Croque Monsieur or Croque Madame.

Both the croques are easy to make, particularly Monsieur. Madame is a trifle more difficult, but if you aren't going to be home, you can make the topping before you go. It will keep in the refrigerator nicely, and all the kids have to do is pop it in the oven. Nothing like snacking continentally. Your children will love you.

The average iceberg that drifts as far south as Newfoundland and the Atlantic shipping lanes has a volume of 5 million cubic feet and weighs 150,000 tons, National Geographic says.

Had It With Rte. 128 Jam? Relax It's Almost Over

Have you had it with the traffic jams on Rte. 128 between Dedham and Needham? Relax, it's almost over.

As part of what it terms a major safety project, the State Department of Public Works has spent the last six months cutting back the granite ledge bordering Rte. 128 from Rte. 1A in Dedham to Rte. 135 in Needham.

The total Rte. 128 project also includes improvements and re-paving all the way to Rte. 9 in Wellesley. It will cost $3.2 million, half of which will be paid by the federal government.

According to a DPW spokesman, the project is on time and will be completed in November.

The towering granite ledges are being cut back 30 feet from the pavement to comply with national standards for highway recovery areas. That is, if a car leaves the highway, it will not immediately collide with the ledge.

The highway will not be widened, however, nor will any overpasses be replaced.

The wells, or open spaces between overpasses will be closed to prevent cars from plunging into the gap in the event of an accident.

New and stronger guard railing has been installed along the highway from Rte. 1 A to Rte. 9 as have new overhead and breakaway signs.

Another safety improvement will be the installation of inertial barriers, groupings of plastic barrels which collapse and absorb the impact when hit by a motor vehicle.

The DPW spokesman also said the rest area in the northbound lane in Westwood would be permanently closed. The rest area abuts a heavy residential area.

Asked why the improvements were necessary at this time, the spokesman said, "Anything we can do to make any highway safer we will do."

BONE UP ON GOOD GROOMING
By RICHARD W. BRYANT
Director of Education, Animal Resc. Leag. of Boston

Keep your dog handsome as well as healthy and happy. Dogs can't develop their own good grooming habits; they depend on you to keep their coats clean and smooth, and free from burrs, lice, ticks and other unwelcome guests.

New owners frequently ask how often a dog should be bathed. The answer is once a month if he needs one, unless he is sick. Use a gentle shampoo and keep the water temperature at about 100 degrees. Dry him with a thick towel right after his bath. Some dogs enjoy drying off with an electric hair dryer, or basking under a heat lamp. Don't let him outdoors after a bath. He may undo your efforts by rolling in dirt, or he may catch a cold.

Groom your dog regularly with a brush or comb to remove dirt particles, prevent hair mats, and distribute hair oils for a glistening coat. During shedding seasons, at least twice a day take him outdoors, massage his coat and skin with your hands to loosen hair to loosen hair, then stroke from head to foot with the palms of your hands to remove loose hair. To check for fleas, lice, ticks or other parasites, comb or with your hand brush the dog's hair in reverse direction, so the skin is exposed.

During the tick season—from April through August—daily grooming becomes a vital health measure. These pests, carriers of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, should be removed before they attach to the skin, and before the females have a chance to feed and produce eggs. They should be removed with tweezers, and disposed of in a container of motor oil. Be sure to wash your hands afterwards.

Fleas, ticks and lice can be killed, or prevented, by regular use of flea powder or spray.

Ears should be checked regularly for mites and louse eggs which are tiny specks stuck to the hair. Also trim excess hair that might block the ear channel. If you notice redness, inflammation or unusual odors, see your veterinarian immediately.

Q. D. F. of Hyde Park asks: Normally my dog Oscar eats anything within reach, but lately he's been acting very picky at mealtime. He also seems even lazier than usual. Can the warm weather affect animals this way?

A. Pets, like people, do react to changes in weather. But it's not safe to assume this is the cause until you've had him checked by a veterinarian.

Heartworm disease, once confined to the Southeast but now a problem in New England also, can cause the symptoms you describe. It can also cause weight loss and coughing, but sometimes shows no symptoms at all. For this reason, all dogs nine months or older should have a yearly blood test for this disease, which is transmitted by the mosquito. Dogs that test negative should be placed on preventive medication until the end of the mosquito season. If your dog's test is positive, your veterinarian will develop a treatment program based on blood tests, X-rays and urinalysis.

Having a problem with your pet? Write to Pet Care Corner, Animal Rescue League of Boston, P. O. Box 265, Boston, Ma. 02134. Space permitting, we will try to answer your inquiries in this column.

Phase Four and High Food Prices

A Purity Supreme statement to its customers:

Food prices are high.

Every indication is that they will go higher. We don't like today's food prices or tomorrow's food price trend, but Purity Supreme has no control over food price inflation and finds it a strain on its pocketbook just as it is on yours. Price increases make both our customers and ourselves unhappy.

Phase Four. What does it mean?

Briefly, the price freeze has been lifted on all food prices except beef. But retailers and all middle men are restricted to increase prices only by the exact amount prices have advanced to them. And they must reflect decreases immediately.

But there is no ceiling on the grower, rancher or farmer. The price of the raw product is controlled only by the market place. We all will pay more when and if the prices of hogs, cattle, lamb, wheat, etc. go up.

Under Phase 4 we are not permitted to pass on increases in operating costs such as utilities, taxes, packaging, and wages.

What is Purity Supreme doing about it?

Our pricing policy has always been to give to our customers the best quality we can buy at the lowest possible prices, to pass on all allowances and supplier deals, and to be the leader in specials and good values. This policy will not change.

We will, of course, abide completely with all regulations covering food pricing. But we won't go up just because Phase 4 says we can. We'll hold our prices down as long as possible.

What else are we doing?

Besides fighting price increases Purity Supreme is continuing its pro-consumer program:

- See through trays so you can examine both sides of the meat before you buy.
- Hamburg labelled with maximum fat content so you know what you buy.
- Single unit pricing so you are not induced to buy multiples beyond your needs.
- Better trim and quality on our meat products.
- Better quality in our fruit and vegetable department.

What's next?

We're all in this together. This is not a good guys - bad guys movie. Prices won't come down by finger pointing or blaming. Nor will they come down by government edicts or new phases. They will become more reasonable when more food is produced, when general inflationary pressures caused in part by world conditions and in part by government and private unbalanced budgets and excessive spending ease, and when we adjust our demands to what has been produced.

Let's work together.

Purity Supreme is grateful for and proud of its many friends who depend on us to supply their food needs. We pledge that our every decision in these difficult times will have their welfare as its primary goal.

Let's all work together to do our part to solve the problem of price inflation, and to support sound government policies rather than crisis edicts that add fuel to the inflationary fire.

Students Complete Architecture Course

The Harvard Graduate School of Design has awarded certificates to six Newton Students who completed the Career Discovery Program this summer.

The students are the first group to enroll in the program, developed to introduce the environmental design professions to high school and college students, as well as older people entering the job markets for the first time or contemplating a career change.

During the five-week course students had an opportunity to examine first-hand what architects, land planners and city planners do. The program was led by faculty from the Harvard Graduate School of Design, and all facilities of the school such as the Loeb Library, darkrooms and studios were available to the students.

Students selecting architecture, designed pavilions for the forthcoming bicentennial celebration, developed plans for a restsurant, art gallery, and day care center near Holyoke Center in Cambridge, and worked on models of individual houses.

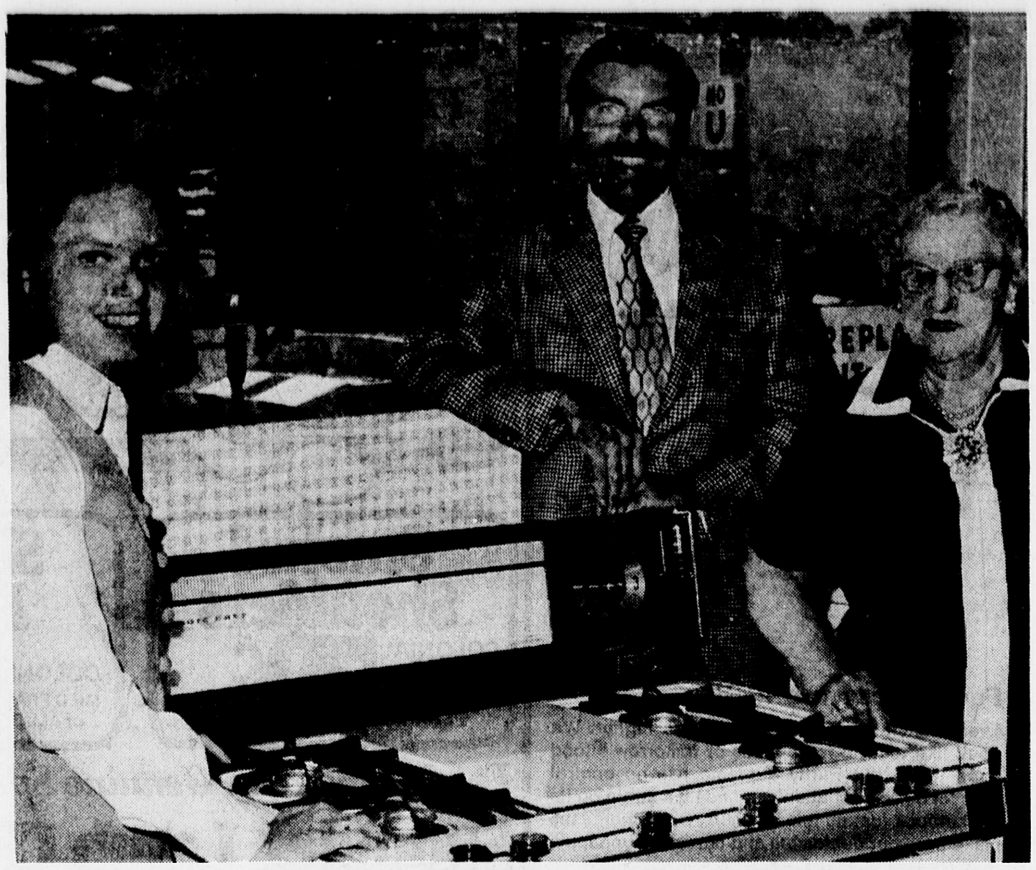
Those selecting the land planning option visited World's End near Nantasket Beach to investigate the relative environmental impact of a proposed camping site versus a housing development.

Using the City of Chelsea as their laboratory, the city planning group developed a land use classification system and studied analytical factors utilized by professionals such as economics, population distribution and politics.

For a final project, the group split into teams to develop alternative plans for the Chelsea Naval Hospital site.

During the course, practicing professionals presented lectures and provided criticism for individuals and group projects.

Members of the group from Newton who successfully completed the program include: Laurie Bell, 72 Westminster Rd., architecture; Sarah Fernandez, 91 Lenox St., city planning; Mara Gelbloom, 16 Furber Ln., land planning; Elizabeth Howard, 34 Fairfield St., land planning; Pamela Ringer, 29 Lombard St., architecture and Robin Young, 49 Helene Rd., architecture.



Winner

Curing The Disease Is Not Enough

Mr. X found himself facing several weeks of hospitalization following an amputation due to a circulatory problem, but as he viewed the present and future, his worries were as much about how his elderly mother with whom he lived would be cared for, what woudl happen when his sick pay and medical benefits ran out, and could he manage once he left the hospital.

Such concerns are typical of any patient in a chronic hospital such as Middlesex County Hospital in Waltham, and these worries can affect his recovery. These are the kinds of problems with which the Social Service Department at the hospital deals.

Although the social worker is prepared to help untangle financial snarls and arrange with other agencies for assistance to a family, actually what the patient really needs most is someone to talk to — someone who knows how to listen and help him express his fears. Often things aren't so threatening once a person has reached the point that he can put them into words, pointed out Olive Ryan, M.S.W., director of social service at Middlesex.

"Why can't the patient talk to his family about these concerns?" For example, a dying patient may feel fearful and alone but he can't talk to his wife about his dreads for fear of causing her more distress.

"Why can't a nurse be this 'third party' listener?" The social worker is one member of the hospital staff who doesn't physically "lay his hands" on the patient in the sense of direct medical treatment. The patient can thus talk to him about how scared he is of needles or his worries about what the medications mean. "Also, the social worker is not busy doing something else when he visits the patient. He is there for the specific purpose of talking to him," explained Mrs. Ryan.

Just as often the social worker spends his time working with the patient's family. "You might say, we try to enhance the way our patients and ther families go about the job of living," Mrs. Ryan said.

"I see the task of the social worker as bringing real understanding of an individual and what makes him function. We know what sick people feel and what their fears are from the theory we learn in the classroom and from living with it from day to day," Mrs. Ryan continued.

Perhaps the patient is a young mother learning to use the wheelchair she will be confined to for the rest of her life. She is fearful about how her family will accept her now, about having to find a new home with no steps and wide doorways to accommodate the wheelchair, about the financial burden to her husband and whether she will, in fact, be able to keep house from a wheelchair.

The social worker will encourage her to still be a mother even while she is in the hospital and take part in family decisions as much as possible. One of the problems a chronic hospital patient faces is loss of self esteem. Realizing she can still make some of the family decisions will help this young woman have a better view of herself.

Self image also plays a role in the person's changed physical appearance. Just as a person has to get used to his new self image when he gets glasses, the person suddenly confined to a wheelchair or a stroke patient who now finds one side of his face drooping must get used to his new appearance.

"So often the seemingly trivial things can change a person's self image," Mrs. Ryan pointed out. Once more, being able to talk about the changes helps the individual to deal with them.

In this case the social worker would probably help in the search for a new home by making a visit to the prospective new residence with the patient and the occupational and physical therapists to make sure it was accessible. She may also help in arranging for a home health aide or the search for a cleaning lady to help when the young woman gets home. However, as much as possible, she lets the patient make her own decisions and do her own looking, to pursue and enhance the patient's self esteem.

Army Reserve Testing Three-Year Enlistment

Army Reserve units throughout Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island are testing a three-year enlistment for men without any previous military service, it was announced today by Brigadier General Charles L. Easterday, commanding general of all medical reserve units in the three state region.

Under a new enlistment option, being tried now through September 30, men without any previous military service may join an Army Reserve unit in Massachusetts, Connecticut or Rhode Island for a period of three years, and then transfer to the Individual Ready Reserve (and not attend reserve meetings) for three additional years. In the past, men without prior service had to sign up for six years of duty with an Army Reserve unit.

"This new three year option should be especially appealing to recent high school graduates who are interested in learning a skill," General Easterday said. "They will no longer have to commit themselves to active participation in a reserve unit for six years, but will still benefit from the up-to-date skill training in the Army Reserve."

Right now, according to General Easterday, local Army Reserve units have openings for, and are willing to train men and women for, virtually every area of the medical arts, including jobs like medical technologists, X-Ray technicians, nurses, laboratory technicians and surgical technicians. Besides openings in medical skills, the Army Reserve is also willing to train men and women for administrative specialties like finance, personnel and general administration. Since these skills have a civilian application, the Army Reserve training can lead toward a profitable civilian career.

"The Army Reservist is also paid while learning," General Easterday pointed out. "After enlisting in the Reserve, a young man spends from four to six months at an active Army installation taking his basic and advanced individual training. He'll be paid $307.20 a month while on active duty and receive free room and board.

Upon completing basic and advanced training, the Reservist returns to his hometown, attends meetings with his regular reserve unit, and goes to two weeks of annual training with that unit each year. A total of 16 hours a month is spent at Reserve meetings and the new enlistee can expect to earn over $600 a year. Earnings increase as the Reservist is promoted.

At his regular unit meetings, Reservists continue to build and refine their skills. "In many instances," General Easterday said, "Reservists practice their skills working on community improvement projects."

Upon completion of three years service with the Reserve Unit, the Reservist who enlists under this special three year unit option has the choice of staying with the unit, or transferring to the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR).

African Art Exhibit Opens At Art Museum

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts' first major exhibition of African art explores the complex culture of the Dogon people of Mali. More than one hundred works of sculpture in wood, iron, brass, copper and terracotta compose a multi-media exhibition, entitled "African Art of the Dogon." It is now on view through September 2.

The exhibition departs from the usual survey exhibition of African art by concentrating on a single small West African cultural group — the Dogon — who inhabit the land at the great bend in the Niger River. All aspects of the society of cliff dwellers are represented. Functional objects such as bowls and benches are shown as well as objects of religious and social significance.

Dogon sculpture is intimately tied to the mythical traditions of the Dogon people and its significance can be understood only in the context of the culture. The exhibition takes the viewer beyond the individual works of sculpture and creates a total picture of the Dogon heritage.

Spectacular photomurals of the rough terrain and scenes of daily life by the late Eliot Elisofon, renowned photographer and Africanist, line the corridor outside the entrance and offset the sculpture in the exhibition. These suggest the environment of the Dogon people, and illustrate the uses of ceremonial masks and other objects.

These elongated figurative Dogon are similar to the art of Europeans such as Giacometti, Picasso and Modigliani who were much influenced by African art. A dramatically carved example of the primordial couple, which is central to the myth of the creation of the world, dominates the entrance to the exhibition. Among the ornate ceremonial masks are two huge "blade" masks that are placed in the Museum's grand staircase. Most of the works represent people or animals and are symbolically related to the Dogon myths and beliefs.

The Dogon exhibition was organized by the International Exhibitions Foundation, Washington, D. C., in cooperation with the owner of the collection of sculpture, Lester Wunderman. Edmund Barry Gaither, curator of the exhibition in Boston, has been special consultant to the Museum of Fine Arts since 1969 and Curator of the Museum of the National Center of Afro-American Artists. "African Art of the Dogon" will travel to nine other cities in the United States after its stay in Boston.

The Boston Museum offers a full film program during July in conjunction with the exhibition. Four films called "Black African Heritage" made by Eliot Elisofon cover the arts and traditions of many cultures of Black Africa including the Dogon. Another film, "The Good Man's Head Has Fallen: Death Among the Dogon," by Lester Wunderman and Hans Guggenheim will also be shown.

A fully-illustrated catalogue, "African Art of the Dogon: The Myths of the Cliff Dwellers" by Jean Laude, accompanies the exhibition. It traces the history, techniques and significance of this art. There is also a children's "coloring book" catalogue prepared by Hans Guggenheim with a short introductory note by Edmund B. Gaither.

Air Show And Open House At Naval Air Station Aug. 18, 19

The Air Show and Open House is still scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, August 18 and 19 at Naval Air Station, South Weymouth, despite a recent tragic crash in which three members of the Navy's Blue Angels precision flight team were killed.

The crash occurred when two of the team's F-4 "Phantom" jets collided during practice maneuvers near NAS Lakehurst, N.J. Killed in the accident were team leader Lieutenant Commander Marvin F. Umstead of St. Charles, Mich., Marine pilot Capt. John M. Murphy of San Antonio and an enlisted crewman, Petty Officer First Class Ronald L. Thomas of Ponca City, Oklahoma. Injured was PO1 Gerald G. Harvey of Sweeney, Texas.

The Naval Training Command has announced that as a result of the loss of personnel and equipment, the Blue Angels will not perform for the remainder of 1973. International League

A little rain here and there was enough to mess up the Newton International League scheduled last week, but whatever games the league did get in just went further to prove that Waban is the best club in the loop.

In their only encounter the Chiefs remained comfortably perched in first place by topping the Elks Red Sox, 6-2.

Robbie Alevizos dominated the game with a three-hitter from the mound and two RBI's at bat.

Simon Longson also drove in two runs in the abbreviated four-inning game which found Waban scoring in every frame. Waban is 14-1.

Second-place St. Bernard's spurted to a 5-1 lead over Upper Falls and then held on for a 5-4 decision to preserve its high standing.

Bobby Vona whacked a triple and a single to give St. Bernard's its early lead. St. B's is 13-5.

Totem Pole, which gradually started moving towards the top two weeks ago continued its upward rise with a win and a tie in two contests. The Braves beat Our Lady's, 7-5, and struggled through a scoreless tie with Oak Hill before losing to Post 440, 2-1 to complete the week at 10-6-1.

The Totem Pole win followed the same pattern as St. Bernard's. The Braves opened a 7-2 lead quickly, then had to fight off a late-inning challenge from the Lancers.

Brian Kinsella, Matt Berry, Steve Reilly, and Bob Manning each slugged two hits to spark the winners' offense and Bob Carey earned the win.

Don Morrell poled a home run and added a single for Our Lady's.

Frustration was the result of Totem Pole's tie with Oak Hill. The Braves left the bases loaded twice without getting a run.

Each team managed just two hits as the hurlers were in charge. Southpaw Bob Eaton controlled things for Oak Hill and Dom Russo was the boss for Totem Pole. Russo fanned 12 men in the six-inning game.

Boys' Club routed Oak Hill, 10-3, to stay in contention with an 11-5-1 record.

Steve Cononico smashed two triples and drove in three runs and Mario Lucchetti added two hits to pace the Clubbies.

John Leone fanned six batters and scattered four hits for his fourth win of the season.

Post 440, which also dropped a forfeit decision to Upper Falls, chalked up a win over Totem Pole, 2-1.

440 scored twice in the first inning and made those runs stand up as John Sementelli's one-hit, eight-strikeout pitching baffled the Braves.

The Highlands AA employed similar strategy in topping Carson Post, 3-0. The Highlanders spurted to all three runs in the first frame and left the rest up to righty Mike Disabito. Disabito responded with a five-hit shutout.—LEWIS FREEDMAN

National Division

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Every year about this time in the Newton National Division the pennant-winning team finds out it has labored in vain and ends up being knocked off by one of the other top four teams before reaching the finals of the playoffs or in the finals themselves.

This year's post-season action seems little different than the past history of upsets which signal the arrival of the playoffs.

For St. Bernard's to beat defending champion Boys' Club was not too surprising, but the ease with which St. B's copped the best-of-three semi-final series was the stunner.

St. Bernard's hurlers Jim Blake and Bill Vello aallowed just seven hits combined to the usually heavy hitting Clubbies as their team bested the Boys' Club, 3-0, twice in a row.

St. Bernard's also could only come up with four hits in support of Blake, but smart baserunning and a timely single by Rick Hyman proved the difference.

Ed Beckler was also sharp for the losers, striking out seven and surrendering just four singles.

Bill Vello worked in the second game for St. Bernard's and was touched for only three hits as he fanned four and walked nobody.

Ironically, Vello, who scored a key run for Blake, got his winning run via an RBI single from Blake's bat. Blake and Wayne Johnson provided the hitting heroics with two safeties apiece for the winners.

The second series involved pennant-winning Upper Falls and fourth place Newton Centre.

Centre started things off with a rather unceremonious dumping of the Panthers in the first game. A nine-hit barrage cascaded down on Falls' hurler Jim Kavanaugh and the Centre captured the opener, 7-1.

Upper Falls opened the game with two straight hits and seconds later scored a run on an error and a walk, but Centre pitcher John Carey then slammed the door and allowed only one hit the rest of the way as his teammates woke up.

John Connolly blasted a triple and a single for five RBI's, and Bob DeRubeis and Cliff Astone clubbed two hits each to bombard Kavanaugh.

The second game proved nothing, except that Upper Falls can come back. Trailing 6-5, the Panthers got a last-inning run to stay alive with a 6-6 tie.

Paul Ciccone drove in the tying run with a double after an earlier single in the fairly non-descript game. Larry White had two hits for Newton Centre.

Upper Falls showed the form that made it the flag-winner by triumphing 4-3 and evening the series in the third game.

Steve Tresca collected two hits and Mike Malkasian had a triple, but the winning run came in on a bases loaded walk to Bob D'Angelo. Kavanaugh, looking much better, pulled a Wilbur Wood and pitched with only two days rest. He struck out five and earned the win this time. Bob DeRubeis had two hits for the losers.

The deciding game was scheduled for Thursday night, but rain washed it out. That left St. Bernard's hanging around waiting for a finals opponent.

Legion Baseball

Four hits were all the Newton Post 440 American Legion team could scratch out in its meeting with Norfolk Division leading Norwood, but they produced three runs and that was enough to keep the Newtonites unbeaten with a 3-0 victory, last week.

Post 440 upped its record to 6-0 in Middlesex Division play, while Norwood's mark is 10-5.

Ken Billings' triple, sending home Ron Wilson and Dave Boyijian in the first inning, was the key blow and a triple and subsequent run by Brian Pendergast in the second frame took care of the rest.

The other Newton hits were registered by Wilson and catcher Bill Roman.

Coach Mickey Boyijian stuck to his practice of utilizing three pitchers in the game and the pitchers stuck to their successful habits. Paul Goldman, picking up his third win, Steve DiBenedetto, and Gary Vitti all worked, and limited to Norwood to two hits.

Stan Musial League

Ralph Calitri stepped out of the shadows last week to spark the Newton Capello Club to a win and a tie in two efforts and move the squad to within one point of second place in the Stan Musial League.

Calitri, a star pitcher last year, had vanished from the limelight this season, but regained the spotlight in both contests last week with performances on the pitching mound and at bat.

Capello topped second-place Northgate, 2-1, after tying league-leading Fucci, 2-2.

Calitri hurled a complete game victory over the Colts, surrendering just one run in the sixth inning while chalking up seven strikeouts. Northgate managed just two hits.

Jerry Quaranto accounted for the whole offense, whacking two singles for two RBI's, and throwing a runner out at the plate.

Losing pitcher Jim Lupo dazzled Capello with a blazing fastball and whiffed 11 men, but he was touched for five hits.

The tie with Fucci was a good moral victory, though it was worth more than that to the Waltham club. The game gave Fucci the pennant. It's 16-1 record is insurmountable.

Fucci had a 2-0 lead, scoring both runs in the third inning, but Capello registered single tallies in the fifth and sixth innings to knot things.

Calitri's long triple to center field brought pitcher Jethro Mills home with the tying run as darkness moved in and prevented extra innings.

Bob Fay, Larry Marino, and Quaranto were the only Capello players who found Fucci pitcher Gerry Keil easy to hit, but Keil obliged Capello's befuddled batters by walking six of them.

Southpaw Mills, who walked before scoring, issued four free tickets to first himself, but struck out seven Waltham players.

Ex-Newton South and ex-Capello player Jimmy Gamble, had a big night with a triple and two singles.

Capello is now 9-8-2 on the year, while Northgate looms on the horizon with a 10-7-1 mark.

Harvard Gridder

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Newton's Andy Bender will be among 101 varsity candidates reporting to Harvard football coach Joe Restic when preseason drills begin for the Crimson on September 1.

A sophomore, Bender will be trying to move into the scene at fullback after having played at that position last year on the freshman squad. Restic hopes that Bender can move in and help provide depth at what will be a critical spot for the Crimson this year.

Coming off a 4-4-1 campaign and fifth-place Ivy finish in 1972, Harvard faces a major rebuilding job, and Restic feels that a shift in offensive philosophy may be the stimulus to a challenge for the top in the league.

"We've got to change our plan of attack in a basic way," he says. "We've got to fit our system to take advantage of the kinds of things our players can do. We've got to tailor the system to the talent, not vice versa."

An anthropology major, Bender is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Bender of 17 Grace Road.

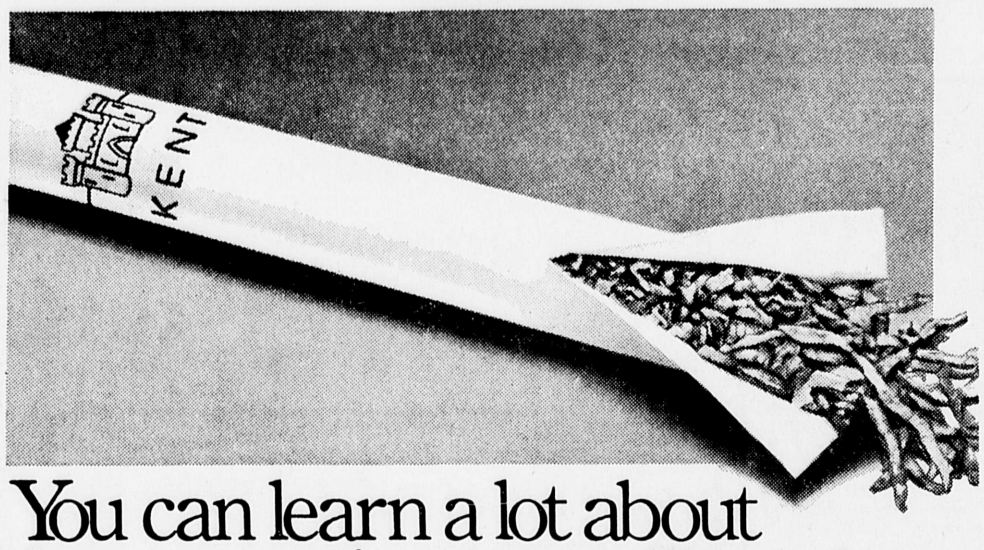
Read the tobacco.



You can learn a lot about how your cigarette will smoke.

Tear open one of your cigarettes.

Look at the shape the tobacco's in.

The shorter and choppier the tobacco, the hotter and faster it's going to smoke.

If your cigarette seems to be long on the "shorts," look into a Kent.

We blend 24 premium tobaccos into Kent and carefully cut them into longer and more uniform strands. These strands intertwine and hold together better.

That way they pack firmer and smoke slower and more evenly.

That's important.

Because with a nice, slow, even burn, you get the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is:

America's quality cigarette.

Mild, smooth taste. Micronite filter. Kent. America's quality cigarette.

Hub's Enthusiasm For Stars Drove Robert Mitchum Back To The Ritz

Boston's enthusiasm for a film star in its environs proved harrowing for hard boiled, customarily cool Robert Mitchum. When he was in Boston, Cambridge, Milton and other local suburbs last November making "The Friends of Eddie Coyle," now in release here, he found visiting pubs, inns and night spots an unnerving experience.

"It was like being a giant panda at the zoo," he declared. "Look, look, there it is. See! See!"

In one local spot a near riot ensued as everyone tried to crowd in on Mitchum and grab his hand or slap him on the back. The police had to restore order and the film actor beat a retreat for his suite at the Ritz-Carlton.

From then on Mitchum's solace was a pitcher of New England cider; and a hunk of gorgonzola cheese. This is one star who relishes as little attention from the public as is possible, and sometimes doing an interview with him is as purgatorial an assignment as even a veteran writer can go through.

But you never know this man! At this interview not only was he charming, at least on the surface, to me, but to everyone else. "That man has three faces," observed a film man who knew him well. "You are now seeing the good face."

For the first time I learned from Bob that he doesn't have an agent. I had believed everybody had an agent in the entertainment world. But when someone wants him for a role it is a secretary, a woman, who has worked for him since she was 18, who takes the first telephone calls.

"Do I have to go to work?" he asks plaintively. A whole squad of people answer that question for Mitchum, delving into figures which he himself ignores.

There's an investment counsellor (a firm, in fact), a dozen legal accountants, and finally a man from the Internal Revenue Service gets into the act.

by Marjory Adams

So little does Mitchum involve himself in the matter that after he accepted the role of the assassin, Dillon, in this picture, which was supposed to take three weeks, there had to be a whole recount before he would accept the bigger title part of "Fingers" Eddie Coyle.

Paramount couldn't understand him. "It's more important than the one we planned to give Peter Boyle," he was told.

"And how long will it take," he asked. When they said six weeks, as compared to the three weeks needed for Dillon, there was an impasse. "I don't want to have to work six weeks," maintained Bob. "Especially on location."

Director Peter Yates promised to cut down working time to four weeks or less and that is how "Friends of Eddie Coyle" nailed down Mitchum.

One of the last times I interviewed Mitchum was in Dingle, Ireland, where he was working on "Ryan's Daughter."

That was one of his bad times. He was in a rage because David Lean, producer-director, will NOT be hurried. He was waiting for some dilatory sea gulls to fly over the seashore for a 'perfect' scene. The seagulls had been fed so much they disappeared out in the wild blue yonder. It was a long time before they were hungry again.

When they did arrive and the cameramen went to work, Lean looked up with a ravaged face. "N good," he moaned. "That wave was terrible. I want a photogenic wave."

"Never again," said Mitchum to me later, as we stood outside the little schoolhouse where he was supposed to be the schoolmaster in the film. "I want to go home."

His wife, vivacious, intelligent, delightful Dorothy Spence, obviously is like him. She yearned to go right home during this current tour. When I asked her what she wanted to see most as she departed on a sight-seeing trip of Boston, her quick answer was "I want to see California."

Most people know some early facts about Mitchum. He was born in Bridgeport, Connecticut on August 16, 1917; was brought up by his mother, a newspaperwoman; and at the age of 14 became a deckhand on a salvage ship.

Later adventures included hitchhiking across the country, operating a punch press in Toledo, and even writing two children's plays which were performed by the Long Beach Theatre Guild.

"The Friends of Eddie Coyle" is Mitchum's 85th film. One of the star's early chores was organizing a road tour for astrologist Carroll Richter. If Richter ever foresaw in the stars the success his young assistant was to attain, Bob says nothing about it.

Wester star William Boyd got Mitchum his first job as an extra and he played bits in a string of Hopalong Cassidy pictures. He was also in a Laurel & Hardy comedy; a Leon Errol musical and a Momogram murder mystery, "When Strangers Marry."

Cinema Review: "O Lucky Man!"

O LUCKY MAN! runs for well over two and a half hours as directed by Lindsay Anderson, and it often seems much too long as it is now presented.

Yet the film has a fascination which has brought about critical applause from famous critics such as "triumphant" and "sparklingly witty, heartbreakingly perceptive."

My own opinion is that, like "Clockwork Orange," last year's popular film which also stars the talented young Malcolm McDowell, this film contains some scenes and characterizations which are brilliantly effective, as well as scenes which are offensive and unnecessary.

McDowell as an innocent in this world's life struggles proves his versatility as an actor, as he tries to fight through a horrid jungle of so-called respectability.

The monsters are big business men, doctors who use men's bodies for their experiments, judges influenced by false standards, and policemen on the take.

It's crazy, yes. The basic truth is that life is a series of unbelievable events and that standards can't be trusted.

Also, if some of the dialogue is clever enough, it doesn't matter whether all of it can bear the light of repetition once you are out of the theatre. This is not a film you can go home and describe the action without finding yourself in a morass.

Scholarship Fund Honors Late Alderman Cosgrove

Friends of the late Alderman Charles H. Cosgrove of West Newton have kept his memory alive through the establishment of a permanent scholarship fund.

This year the committee on its 12th anniversary has announced that a $1,000 scholarship award will be made on Sunday, Sept. 9, at the annual dinner at St. Bernard's Club in West ewton.

Cosgrove, a Boston attorney, lived in West Newton for many years and represented Ward 3 on the Newton Board of Aldermen. When he died a small group of friends he annually led to the Cape for a golf weekend wanted to remember him in an appropriate way so the Charles Cosgrove Memorial Golf Tournament and scholarship fund was established.

Over $7,000 in scholarships have been waarded. Now in its 12th year, the tournament will be held Sunday, Sept. 9 at the Wayland Country Club.

Applicants for the scholarship awards must be West Newton residents, either enrolled or accepted at a college or junior college. Scholarship applications are available by writing to the scholarship chairman, Dr. Ben Antonellis, 130 Walnut st., Newtonville, Mass.

Co-Chairmen of the event are Edmond White and Paul Burke. Francis "Chick" Carvelli is serving as golf chairman, Bob Cronin as ticket chairman, Billy Hannan as prize chairman with the following committee members, Joe Cosgrove, Ray and Mickey Demeo, Jim Ryan, Jim Picariello, Donald King, John Tedesco, Ed Scarlett and Harold Mace.

Tickets are available from any of the committee members. Persons wishing to donate to the scholarship fund may do so by contacting the treasurer, Ed White, at 79 Cleveland st., West Newton.

Job Bank Puts Youth To Work

The Newton Job Bank employs youngsters from ages 13 through 22 doing odd jobs such as yard care that includes mowing, weeding, and garden work; painting, both interior and exterior house painting, fences and basements, and odd jobs such as cleaning gutters, babysitting, house cleaning, and acting as home companions.

The Job Bank often employs youngsters on a full time basis as well. Local businesses interested in hiring youth on a full time basis are also encouraged to contact the Job Bank program.

In commenting on the program, Martin Cohen, Senior Job Counselor, indicated that the local news media as a public service, has made known the availability of the Job Bank for Newton's youth and employers. This has enhanced greatly the number of job listings and job applicants.

The program fills a wide variety of jobs in settings ranging from private homes to businesses. One time only, part time, and full time positions are welcomed. Anyone, private individual or business representative is encouraged to call 969-5908 to list a job. Ask for Pat or Marty. They are located at the Newton Community Service Centers, 429 Cherry street in West Newton, which administers the program. This activity is sponsored by the City of Newton through the Newton Youth Commission headed by Rev. Charles Coyle as Chairman and Mr. Jerald Stinson as Executive Director.

Walden Pond Dominates County Board Meeting

The Middlesex County Commissioners have announced that the meeting of their board on Aug. 15 will be held in Concord, the fifth meeting to be held outside of Cambridge.

The purpose of the meeting, in addition to regular business relating to the county, will be to discuss Walden Pond. Three months ago, a citizens advisory council was set up by the Commissioner to develop short and long-range plans for the development of Walden, located off Route 126 in Concord.

ONE OF THE MEMBERS OF THE Advisory Council is Kenneth Bassett, a landscape architect. According to Commissioner Paul Tsongas of Lowell, the proposal to be submitted by Bassett is very exciting in terms of what it will do for the immediate area around Walden.

The State Department of Public Works has plans for relocating Route 126, and redesigning the present interchange of Routes 2 and 126. These two steps, according to Commissioner Tsongas, should result in lessening what he termed the Coney Island atmosphere at Walden and will give the County Commissioners the opportunity for more appropriate facilities around the pond area.

"It is my hope," Tsongas concluded, "that Waldon Pond will, before this country's Bi-Centennial Celebration in 1975-76, be a major focal point for citizen involvement and pride."

Police Issue School Safety Guidelines

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn has sent letters to all parents in the vicinity of the new Newton High School indicating the safest route for children to and from the Claflin School.

"It is our recommendation," stated Chief Quinn, "that Claflin students living on Elm Rd., Blithdale St., Kimball Terrace and children living northeast of Otis St. cross Lowell Avenue at the pedestrian light on Otis Street."

Citing the expected increase in traffic flow, especially between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m., when the new school opens in September, Quinn told the parents that "the improved safety factor obtained by using this route, coupled with the avoidance of poor safety habits that might evolve from any usage of Elm Road, increases the value of this route."

Quinn indicated he would assign a police officer, at least on a temporary basis, to supervise traffic and render assistance at both corners of Elm Road and Lowell Avenue as well as at Hull Street and Lowell Avenue.

As a further recommendation, Quinn wrote, "we feel the west sidewalk on Lowell Avenue offers the safest approach to the Claflin School and earnestly suggest that all children use this route."

Quinn also appointed Sgt. Charles E. Feeley of the Community Services Division to serve as a contact with parents who wish to discuss the suggested routes. Feeley is also available to take children and parents on walking tours of the suggested routes either before school opens or on school days starting Sept. 6.

Any parents in the area who have not as yet received their copy of Chief Quinn's letter and who wish more information may call Sgt. Feeley at Police Headquarters.

Peachy dandy! This is the time of year when peaches, the rosy-cheeked fruit belonging to a family named Prunus Persica, cousin of the cherry, the apricot, the almond and the plum may be found in abundance at roadside stands and at the local produce market.

More than 300 varieties of peaches are grown in the United States alone. They are generally classed as either freestones or cling-stones depending on how hard the pit is to remove. The peach is chiefly valuable for its carbohydrates. There are also small quantities of protein, fat and minerals. A medium-sized peach contains 50 calories.

You can't judge a peach by the blush on her cheek. Redness is a sign of variety, not of ripeness. Peaches generally need to be stored at room temperature for a few days to develop full mellow flavor. When a cream-to-golden background color develops the peach should be ripe.

The juicy golden fruit is one of the most refreshing taste treats of the summertime and though the fruit is delectable eaten out of hand, do experiment with the variety of sweet delights involving the peach.

FRESH PEACH DELIGHT

1½ cups mashed fresh peaches (3 or 4 medium size)
¼ teaspoon almond extract
2 cups (4 oz.) midget marshmallows
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice,
2 cups all purpose cream (for whipping)
2 cups sliced fresh peaches
½ cup sugar

Mash unpeeled peaches in food mill or blender, or chop with small can with both ends cut out. Add almond extract. Combine marshmallows, one-fourth cup sugar and lemon juice in saucepan. Stir over very low heat until partly melted. Remove from heat. Whip cream in ice-cold bowl with cold beaters. Stir mashed peaches into marshmallows. Fold peach-marshmallow mixture into whipped cream. Pour into 1½ quart shallow dish or bowl. Chill several hours or freeze. Serve in sherbet dishes topped with sliced peaches sweetened with one-half cup sugar. Makes 6-8 servings.

PEACH-ORANGE CONSERVE

2 oranges, unpeeled, chopped
2 quarts peeled chopped peaches (about 12 medium)
1 quart sugar (4 cups)
1 cup molasses
½ teaspoon ginger
½ cup chopped blanched almonds

Wash oranges and cut into quarters. Remove seeds and chop. (May be put through medium-size blade of food grinder.) Combine oranges and peaches in a large heavy saucepan. Cover and cook slowly about 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add sugar, molasses and ginger; stir well. Bring to a boil and cook over medium heat, uncovered about 20-25 minutes longer, stirring occasionally until thick. Add almonds the last 5 minutes of cooking. Ladle boiling hot conserve into clean sterilized jars. Cover with ⅛-inch hot paraffin. Makes 2½ quarts or 10 ½-pint jelly glasses.

FRESH PEACH COBBLER

4 to 5 cups peeled, sliced fresh peaches (7-8 medium)
Juice of 1 lemon
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1½ cups biscuit mix
1 egg
½ cup cream or evaporated milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
Grated rind of 1 lemon
¼ teaspoon mace or nutmeg
1 tablespoon sugar

Grease inside of a 2-quart baking dish. In the dish mix peaches, lemon juice, almond extract, 1 cup sugar and cornstarch. Place the mixture in a 400 degree oven while mixing the topping. Beat egg with cream. Add biscuit mix. Add butter, lemon rind and mace. Spread batter evenly over warm peaches. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon sugar on top. Return to oven and continue baking at 400 degrees for about 30 minutes or until topping is brown. Serve with peach or vanilla ice cream. Serves 6-8.

WHOLE COFFEE BEANS go into classic Cafe Diable. The other fine ingredients include grated orange rind, apple peel, spices, and three liqueurs. Add coffee and orange juice, strain, and serve in demi-tasse cups. See Information, Please.

EASY PEACH SALAD MOLD

1 cup boiling water
1 pkg. (3 oz.) orange gelatin
¾ cup cold water
1½ cups diced fresh peaches
1 cup slivered almonds

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in peaches and almonds. Chill until firm. Serves 6.

FRESH PEACH TAPIOCA

2 cups sliced peaches
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup sugar
One-third cup quick-cooking tapioca
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
2½ cups water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Combine peaches, butter, granulated sugar, tapioca, brown sugar, salt, nutmeg, lemon rind, water, and lemon juice in a saucepan. Let stand for 5 minutes. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 2 minutes, or until peaches are tender. Add almond extract. Pour into individual dessert dishes or serving bowl. Serve warm or chilled, topped with whipped cream or whipped topping, if desired. Serves 8.

PEACH COFFEE CAKE

½ cup butter or margarine, softened
Two-thirds cup sugar
3 large eggs
1¾ cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
Grated rind of 1 lemon
½ cup milk
1 cup diced fresh peaches

Cream butter (or margarine) until creamy; add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Sift flour, salt and baking powder. Add the lemon rind to the milk and stir into creamed mixture alternately with dry ingredients; fold in chopped peaches. Pour into well greased and floured 9-inch tube pan. Prepare Streussel:

Combine one-third flour, one-third sugar and one-third butter or margarine and mix until mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle over top of batter. Bake in 350 degree oven for 40-45 minutes.

FRESH PEACH PIE

5 cups sliced fresh peaches (about 8 medium-size)
¾ cup cup sugar
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter, cut into bits
Pastry for two-crust 9-inch pie
1 teaspoon sugar

Mix first seven ingredients. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry. Pour in peach mixture. Cover with top crust. Seal, flute, prick with fork. Brush lightly with cold water. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon sugar. Bake on lowest rack in preheated 400 degree oven 40 to 50 minutes.

HOT CURRIED FRESH PEACHES

8 unpeeled fresh peaches, halved
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon curry powder
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 can (13½ oz.) crushed pineapple
6 maraschino cherries (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Arrange half of the peach halves, cut-side down, in greased 2-quart casserole. Mix the brown sugar and curry powder; sprinkle one-third of sugar mixture over peaches; dot with one-third of the butter. Repeat layers of peaches, brown sugar and butter. Spread pineapple over peaches; arrange cherries on top. Sprinkle with rest of brown sugar and dot with remaining butter. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serve warm with grilled meat.

Face Up To Fall

The ravages of wind, sun, salt or chlorinated water on hair are all too apparent at the end of summer.

Unfortunately, simple, quick-conditioning or instant hair treatment doesn't seem to repair the damage. What is needed is deep conditioning with heat treatments.

Heat is the secret ingredient because it is penetrating, therefore more effective. Heat also aids the restorative agent used to penetrate the outer layer of the hair and get into the soft, pulpy inner part of the hair shaft, applied one week before hair is to be tinted, permanented or straightened.

In the latter case, the treatment actually ensures better distribution and therefore more eveness of color. Also, a heat treatment helps make the hair more receptive to the chemicals used in coloring, permanenting, and straightening.

There are two basic types of heat treatment—oil and cream. Nearly all cosmetic houses offer these products (at fancy prices). At home you may use mineral, castor, baby, or olive oil.

When choosing your commercial heat treatment, read the label on the product and be sure that it is suggested that heat be used. (Some conditioners tend to dry out the hair when exposed to heat and are therefore difficult to rinse out.)

Once the conditioner has been applied you may use an insulated, electrically heated hair dryer (bonnet-type is best). Your grandmother probably used towels wrung out in hot water and wrapped turban-style about the hair.

Wrapping the hair in plastic wrap, foil, or a pliofilm bag will help contain the heat until treatment is complete. Time is gauged by the product used — read your labels. Usually the time ranges from 30 minutes to an hour.

When completed, massage hair until cool; then rinse thoroughly in tepid water.

It's almost time now for the sun worshippers who have been out seeking a nut-brown summer look to take a long, hard look in the mirror.

Ugh! Fine lines that seem to have arrived overnight. Dry flaky skin. Puffy folds under the eyes. Yellowing of the skin.

It can be pretty depressing. generally this honest appraisal is followed by a quick trip to the nearest beauty counter with the express purpose of purchasing packages of pie-in-the-sky cosmetics.

Here's a suggestion. Instead, go out and buy a newly published book, "The Guide to Skin Care and Beauty," E. P. Dutton & Co., $7.95, written by Irwin Lubowe, M.D., F.A.C.A.

Dr. Lubowe writes in everyday layman terms detailing an easy-to-understand guide for keeping your skin healthy, youthful-looking and alluring. This world-famous dermatologist has written definitively on all aspects of skin care and disorders in men, women, and teenagers.

In his book, Dr. Lubowe comments on the Do's and Don't's of aging skin: "There is hope for the aging skin, even the skin that seems well down the road to total ruin. DO NOT, except for very brief periods, expose hand or face to the sun's rays without protective sun hat and an effective sunscreening cream or lotion."

Do not assume that the only benefit of diet control is weight control. Correct diet means proper balance of all essential nutrients, and for seniorish citizens the emphasis must be on proteins, unsaturated fats, fruits, vegetables, trace minerals, and vitamins."

"A low starch intake is advisable. The controversy over organic foods versus non-organic foods is not solvable at present."

Vitamins play an important part in the doctor's battle against aging skin. With regards to facial cleanliness, he says, "Keep the skin clean but without excessive washing — and never wash with very hot water. Use soap sparingly. Soap is drying, alkaline, and the detergent types are even more so . . . Be most frugal with soap and water in cold weather. The superfatted and transparent soaps are less drying. The use of cleansing cream is advisable."

Dr. Lubowe writes of the hoax perpetrated on the women who, a few years ago, purchased products that promised the reduction of facial wrinkles. He states, "The FDA ordered these preparations removed from the market because of their makers' unsubstantiated claims. However, the application of FRESH egg white will contract the skin and will temporarily improve disfiguring lines. The egg white should be placed in a clean dish and applied with a wooden, cotton-tipped applicator, in an outward direction."

Following are some notes on cleansing and moisturizing suggested by Love Cosmetics:

FALL IS COMING — Time to pay special attention to hair, skin and hands damaged by summer sunbathing. Application of a cleansing cream followed by a warm tub leaves the skin clarified and velvety.

Question: I have a dry skin — what is the best way to cleanse it?

Answer: Dry skin responds best to a creamy face wash that comes in a tube. The gentle frothy lather easily removes oil and dirt leaving the face lightly moisturized, feeling soft and smooth.

Question: My skin is oily, but strong soaps seem to irritate it. How can I get it clean and still keep it looking lovely?

Answer: Oily skins need a gentle, non-detergent soap bar that cleanses effectively and thoroughly. Choose one that contains pure soft water and natural skin moisturizing oils — the rich lather is non-irritating.

Question: My face has a taut, tight feeling after cleansing. How can I eliminate this?

Answer: Cool and sooth your skin with a soft water face freshener. It helps remove cleansing cream and leaves your skin feeling fresh and alive.

Question: Are moisturizers good for all skin types?

Answer: Yes, most people, no matter what their age or skin type, should use a moisturizer regularly.

Question: What's the ideal time to apply a moisturizer?

Answer: Immediately after you've washed your face.

Question: What is the best treatment for dry patches?

Answer: Every skin has areas that are especially dry and sensitive. Usually they are found around the eyes and mouth, along the forehead. Use a concentrated dry spot creme, rich in emollients and natural moisturizers to help restore lost moisture to these driest facial areas.

Question: Do you have a recipe for a mock lobster salad? I would be very pleased if you printed this recipe. Thank you. — Mrs. G., Sharon

Answer: Here's the recipe taken from the Temple Israel cookbook, "Specialty Of The House."

RUTH L. KOTLIER'S MOCK LOBSTER SALAD

1½ pounds fillet of haddock or scrod
1 small onion sliced
4 slices of lemon
2 teaspoons salt
3 stalks of celery, chopped finely
1 carrot grated fine
½ cup mayonnaise
½ bottle chili sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
1 chopped green pepper (optional)

Directions: Steam fillet of fish with onion, lemon slices, and salt for 20-25 minutes. Drain, cool and flake. Add celery, carrot, mayonnaise, chili sauce, salt, and pepper. Mix well and chill thoroughly. This can be molded or served on lettuce as salad.

Question: My neighbor and I tasted "caramel" brownies in another neighbor's home and we thought they were unusual. When we asked for the recipe, we were told it was a secret and were refused. Have you ever heard of this brownie, and if so, please print the recipe. Thank you. — Mrs. S. McD.

Answer: We don't believe in "secrets" of this sort — recipes are meant to be shared and that's what this column is all about — so, here goes with:

CARAMEL BROWNIES

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
Two-thirds cup margarine
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup chopped nuts

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Melt margarine and add brown sugar, eggs, vanilla, nuts and sifted dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Spread in a greased and floured jelly roll pan (15 x 10½-inches). Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool and cut. Yield: 6 dozen 1½-inch square brownies.

Question: I've always thought the spectacular manner in which blazing coffee was presented at elegant restaurants was something I could never do myself at my own dinner party. However, recently I heard of one hostess whose husband always serves this beverage with a great flourish whenever they entertain and I would be grateful if you would publish the recipe. — Mrs. A. T., Dedham

Answer: It's a pleasure to help your husband assume the role of "Memory-Maker" at your next dinner party. Dim the lights if you want to add a note of melodrama for this simple but spirited method of ending a sophisticated party.

Organize for the event by having a ready tray with everything handy . . . coffee, sugar, spices, grated rind, ladle, fuel. Best fuel for the party is Sterno canned heat or chafing dish liquid. The canned heat is safe, smokeless, odorless.

Cafe Diable is one of the most famous blazing-coffee classics. HOW TO FLAME: To flame the liqueurs, tilt the pan and touch a match to the edge. Be sure to do this at arm's length as the alcohol flames instantly. Stir constantly to prolong the flames until all the alcohol has been consumed. And a word of caution: NEVER ADD MORE LIQUEUR DURING THE FLAMING OR THE STREAM OF LIQUID COULD IGNITE.

CAFE DIABLE

3 small sugar cubes
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup whole coffee beans
Grated rind of 1 orange
Chopped peel of 1 apple
2-inch piece of cinnamon stick
12 cloves
6 tablespoons cognac
6 tablespoons kirsch
6 tablespoons curacao
1¼ cups freshly made coffee
Juice of 1 orange

Place sugar and butter in chafing dish or diable pan over direct flame. Melt butter but do not brown. Add coffee beans, orange and apple peel, cinnamon and cloves. Pour in cognac, kirsch and curacao. Stir and heat. Apply lighted match and flame. When the flame dies out, add the coffee and orange juice. Let heat to steaming; pour through strainer into demitasse cups. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Question: I hope you have a recipe for a small, 9-inch tube pan, chiffon cake — one that does not require a frosting but is moist and light. Thanks. — Mrs. D. M., W. Roxbury Answer: Here it is, a dream of a cake needing no frosting or gilding — but, if you care to spoon stewed strawberries or blueberries over a thick wedge, it's a delicious dessert. Enjoy!

3 EGG CHIFFON CAKE

1⅞ cups sifted cake flour (1 cup plus 2 tablespoons)
¾ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup corn oil
One-third cup water
3 egg yolks
¾ teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon almond extract
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
3 egg whites

Mix and sift first four ingredients. Make a well and add in order corn oil, water, egg yolks and flavoring. Beat with spoon until smooth. Add cream of tartar to egg whites. Beat until egg whites form very stiff peaks. Gently fold first mixture into egg white until well blended. Fold, do not stir. Turn into ungreased 9-inch tube pan. Bake in 325 degree (slow) oven 1 hour or until cake springs back when touched lightly with finger. Immediately turn pan upside down, placing the tube part over neck of funnel or bottle. Let hang, free of table, until absolutely cold. To remove from pan, loosen side of cake with spatula. (For ORANGE CHIFFON CAKE: Follow above recipe substituting 2 tablespoons grated orange rind and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind for flavoring.) For a large 10-inch tube cake, double all ingredients. Bake for 70-75 minutes.

Question: I seem to have no luck at all with frostings — they are either too thin or too sugary and many times I ruin an otherwise lovely cake with a poor icing. Can you print one or two, please? — Mrs. W., Newton

Answer: Worry no more, here are two recipes you'll use again and again!

CREAMY FROSTING

1 cup margarine, softened
1 pound confectioner's sugar, sifted
2 unbeaten egg whites
Dash salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream margarine. Gradually add half the confectioners' sugar, beating until smooth. Add egg whites and salt; beat until light and fluffy. Gradually add remaining confectioners' sugar, beating well. Fold in vanilla (add 3-4 drops food coloring if desired) and blend well. Makes about 3 cups, enough to frost tops and sides of 2 9-inch layers.

NO COOK MARSHMALLOW FROSTING

¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
¾ cup light or dark Karo syrup
1¼ teaspoons vanilla

Add salt to egg whites; beat with electric or rotary beater until mixture forms soft peaks. Gradually add sugar, about 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until smooth and glossy. Continue beating and add corn syrup, a little at a time; beat after each addition, until frosting peaks. Fold in vanilla. Makes enough to frost top and sides of two 9-inch layers.

HELPFUL HINTS: For a new flavor in gravy, add one teaspoon of instant coffee powder to the flour.

Peanut butter gives a flavor treat to baked beans. Add one tablespoon of peanut butter to one-pound can of baked beans and heat through.

First School Day: Smooth Or Traumatic

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — For millions of boys and girls a little taller than a fireplug September marks the start of a nerve-tingling adventure or a traumatic experience or —a natural next step in development.

For the first time, they are going to school —nursery, kindergarten or first grade. Whether the transition from the familiar at home to the new at school is smooth or traumatic depends a lot on what most in child-raising depends on — parents.

So holds Dr. Cynthia Deutsch, professor of psychology and acting director of the New York University Institute for Developmental Studies.

Too much preparation.

Dr. Deutsch is the author of "The Disadvantaged Child." With her husband Martin, also a PH.D. and head of the Institute, she has co-authored many studies on child development and behavior.

In an interview, Dr. Deutsch said many schools tend to make too much of getting the child ready for school the first time. Too much preparation can lead to a letdown.

"My attitude," she said, "is to wait and see if the transition is difficult. If so, handle it.

"Generally parents should indicate to the child that a new and positive experience is about to begin. It's not the sort of thing you leave 'til the day before.

"Actually it is something that occurs from the time a child is born. You get them set, for example, by providing playthings the school has —similar blocks and so on.

"If it's a first time away from home for a child there's bound to be a more difficult adjustment."

Don't threaten

Parents constantly holding school over a pre-school child's head in a threatening way aren't doing a thing to help that first day.

Such Moms and Dads, according to the psychologist, say -"Wait 'til you get to school; you won't be allowed to do that or act like that."

The toddlers get the idea school is some sort of straitjacket. This notion upsets them.

Tension natural

Dr. Deutsch said it is natural to expect some tension, even if a child seems to enjoy the starting of school days. Those terribly upset may revert to bed-wetting or thumb-sucking.

Those not showing the tension on the outside will feel it inside.

And all will be weary. The tension makes them tired, costs extra energy as they function in a new situation.

If you don't believe that, Dr. Deutsch suggested you think back to times when you were in a new situation. It took a lot out of you, didn't it?

Now in a case where the adjustment to school brings back bad habits —thumb sucking, bed wetting —don't scold.

"Give him an extra snack before bed if he does revert," Dr. Deutsch said. "Let him alone. The habit will go away when he's fully adjusted to school."

Talking at lunch

Other tips from the psychologist:

—Give school a month or so, If the child doesn't settle in maybe there is something wrong and you should seek help.

—In a couple of months it's a good idea to visit the school and observe your child, whether he has problems or not.

—Kids don't develop at the same rate. Don't compare your child with others the same age, thinking something's wrong if Bud next door fingerpaints in bigger strokes and your child fingerpaints in teeny-tiny strokes.

—A regimented lunch is the worst thing. No talking in the lunchroom, for example. Kids ought to be able to talk at lunch. Mealtime is a relaxing time.

—There is an advantage to a hot lunch. Nutritionists recommend that the heaviest meal be scheduled at mid-day.

Aerotech, Inc. Leases More Space In Westwood

Acrotech, Inc., a Westwood equipment manufacturer, has leased an additional 4,591 square feet of space to expand its operating facilities at the 128 Westwood Industrial Park, it was announced by the company's president, Samuel Rubin of Dedham.

Other officers of the corporation are: Hugh J. Crossland, esq., of Dedham, vice president and legal counsel; Antoinette Rubin of Dedham, vice president administration; and Leon A. Glickman of Westwood, vice president engineering.

Roche Brothers Plan Christmas Parties

The successful series of Senior Citizen parties held last year for surrounding towns, will be repeated on an even bigger and better scale. Rita Sanford, Consumer Hostess for Roche Bros. has already had many visits to Councils on Aging, Organization groups, Sheraton Tara Hotels and other sites to set ideas in motion. "Our aim," she says "is to provide each group with a glamorous setting to add to the excitement of the festive occasion. Many of our older friends have never had an opportunity to visit some of the modern facilities, and we would like very much to find a perfect background for every party."

Moseley's has been completely redecorated since the parties held last year, and though it was quite lovely then, it is wonderful news for those who remember the years when it was the pride of the community to know that the new owners Joe Castignetti and Lou Melchionna are once again bringing it to a spot of elegance as it once was. Joe and Lou assured Roche Bros. that the offer they made last year will be repeated again this year. "Such news is most encouraging," Rita said. "We couldn't begin to say how wonderful and how helpful they were in every part of our plans. Much of the success of the Dedham and West Roxbury parties, was directly due to their invaluable assistance, it will be a pleasure to work with them again, and we more than appreciate their generous offer."

Rita also reports that she has been in touch with the Sheraton Tara with a view to the possibility of obtaining a function room there for Framingham and Natick Senior Citizens, as Roche Bros. will be located in their new home in that area by the end of the year. Many seemingly small details help the parties run smoothly, when they are arranged far in advance. A tentative date has been set for Dedham on Dec. 3rd and West Roxbury on Dec. 4th, both at Moseley's. Senior Citizens are advised to watch for further details in coming months. Finding sites that provide elegance and still allow enough room for the number expected in Norwood and Walpole is the next objective in the plans. Everyone contacted agreed that the numbers would be almost doubled, due to the tremendous success of the parties held last year. Roche Bros. are planning Christmas in August, and it will probably mean a smooth-running series when December arrives.

For A Carefree Motor Vacation

By AUTOMOTIVE COUNCIL

Despite the lure of jet travel, eight out of 10 vacation trips are still made in the family car. Motoring is the most popular form of vacation travel because it allows you to set your own pace and the interstate highway system speeds you over long distances to your destination, after which you can stop and sightsee at your leisure.

A well maintained car is a prerequisite for a carefree motoring vacation and a pre-trip checkup is a good idea even if you've been following a recommended periodic maintenance schedule. This will give you an opportunity to correct such items as wheels that are unbalanced or out of alignment which may not be noticed when you're just driving around town, but they can cause severe vibration at high speed or develop an uneven wear pattern in just a few hundred miles of turnpike travel.

Tires are another item to check. Those with badly worn treads should be replaced before you depart. Be sure to inflate your tires to the recommended pressure while they are cold. If you plan to carry a heavy load or drive at high speed, increase tire pressure, but do not exceed the maximum recommended in your owner's manual.

It also pays to check the fan belt and other drive belts and replace any that are in doubtful condition. In addition, inspect the radiator hoses and replace them if they are soft, swollen or cracked.

You should carry the necessary tools for changing tires or making minor repairs.

Brochure Is Available On Lakeside Recreation

Public recreation facilities at federal flood control lakes in New England are described in new color lakeside recreation directories now available at the U. S. Army Engineers' New England Division at Waltham, Mass.

Locations of the federal reservations in Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut and the types of recreational opportunities offered at each are described in a large fold-out brochure which is faced with an easy-to-read map of the region. Major cities, interstate highway system, national parks and forests, and the Corps-operated Cape Cod Canal and other points of interest for outdoor enthusiasts are shown.

"We welcomed approximately three million people to our 55,000 acres of reservation lands and water in 1972," Colonel John H. Mason said "and annual visitation is steadily increasing. Corps water resources projects offer boating, swimming, picnicking, nature trails, camping and a variety of outdoor leisure opportunities."

Because the recent flood storage operations inundated reservoir recreation areas, the Colonel said, seven Corps areas are temporarily closed during clean-up activities.

They are: Hopkinton and Surrey Mountain Lakes in New Hampshire; North Springfield, Ball Mountain, Townshend Lakes and Union Village Dam, all in Vermont; and West Hill Dam, Uxbridge, Massachusetts. All other recreation areas managed by the Corps of Engineers are open, the Colonel announced.

Copies of the New England directory and those covering Army Engineer reservoir areas in other parts of the country are available from U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, New England Division, 424 Trapelo Road, Waltham, Massachusetts 02154, Attn: Public Affairs Office, or any Army Corps Division, District or project.

Boston — The gasoline supply situation continued its general upward trend last week, the ALA Auto and Travel Club announced yesterday. Although noteworthy problems can still be found in a few areas of the six-state region, recent trends indicate that families can pursue their summer vacation plans with little, if any, inconvenience.

According to an ALA spokesman, the easing of the shortage in most other areas of the country parallels that noted in New England. Stations on most major turnpikes still impose 10 or 12-gallon limits on individual customers, but, on the other hand, tend to be open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Off the turnpikes, fewer limitations are imposed, but there is still a significant number of evening and Sunday closings. Even these early closings should not unduly inconvenience travelers who do not let their tanks run too low and are not overly fussy about what brand of gas they buy.

Region-wide, the current figure for runouts of one or more grades of gas is 13 per cent, reflecting a steady drop from last week's 19 per cent and the 28 per cent figure of the week before. Stations limiting sales to individual customers remain at a fairly steady 11 per cent, and closures on evenings or Sundays are still above the 40 per cent mark.

Last week's major trouble spot, Western Massachusetts, has shown at least temporary improvement over the last few days, but Rhode Island continues to experience serious supply problems.

President James Madison held office from 1809 to 1817.

Boston — The gasoline supply situation continued its general upward trend last week, the ALA Auto and Travel Club announced yesterday. Although noteworthy problems can still be found in a few areas of the six-state region, recent trends indicate that families can pursue their summer vacation plans with little, if any, inconvenience.

According to an ALA spokesman, the easing of the shortage in most other areas of the country parallels that noted in New England. Stations on most major turnpikes still impose 10 or 12-gallon limits on individual customers, but, on the other hand, tend to be open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Off the turnpikes, fewer limitations are imposed, but there is still a significant number of evening and Sunday closings. Even these early closings should not unduly inconvenience travelers who do not let their tanks run too low and are not overly fussy about what brand of gas they buy.

Region-wide, the current figure for runouts of one or more grades of gas is 13 per cent, reflecting a steady drop from last week's 19 per cent and the 28 per cent figure of the week before. Stations limiting sales to individual customers remain at a fairly steady 11 per cent, and closures on evenings or Sundays are still above the 40 per cent mark.

Last week's major trouble spot, Western Massachusetts, has shown at least temporary improvement over the last few days, but Rhode Island continues to experience serious supply problems.

President James Madison held office from 1809 to 1817.

CREEL CENSUS REVEALS INTERESTING FACTS

A three-year winter creel census at 418-acre Cheshire Reservoir (also known as Hoosac Lake) has revealed one of the best populations of northern pike in Massachusetts. The population was originally established by volunteer fishermen who, under the direction of the Fish and Game Division, brought back fish they had taken in Lake Champlain and released them in the reservoir.

While biologists noted a steady increase in number of fishermen, hours fished, and fishing success, they have not yet determined what the maximum sustainable yield is for Cheshire. It is hoped that the figure can be determined from further analyzation of creel census data.

NOT 'OUT'

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Is it still proper to send out birth announcements? I understood that social climbers and people in high society have stopped doing so. I still get them, but my sister-in-law says they are 'out.' I would like to show her your answer.—Mrs. J. B., Camden, N. J."

Birth announcements are certainly not "out." I receive very beautiful engraved ones from time to time, as well as many amusing or charming printed ones.

Teachers SurpriseColleague

The Emerson School bowling league surprised one of their fellow teachers and team member with a bridal shower when they heard of the approaching wedding of Miss Rosemary Fraioli.

Mrs. Lillian Stroum offered her home for the party and acted as hostess for the affair. Miss Catherine Harney and Miss Joanne Kwarta were in charge of gifts.

The party was attended by most of the Emerson School faculty and friends as well as Mrs. Peg Paulin, the school secretary. Other invited guests were Rosemary's mother, Mrs. Loretta Fraioli, and her aunt, Mrs. Josephine Gentile.

It was a beautiful party complete with a lovely "shower" cake and delicious buffet.

A second bridal shower was held for Miss Fraioli by her future maid of honor, Nancy Fraioli, assisted by her aunts: Mrs. Mary Pearson, Mrs. Rose Cardarelli, Mrs. Grace Antonellis, and Mrs. Josephine Gentile. The party was held in the Pope John Room of Our Lady's Parish Center, Newton. Many friends and relatives attended as well as Mrs. Claire Porfert, mother of Miss Fraioli's fiance, and several of his aunts.

Miss Fraioli is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Fraioli of Newton. She is a graduate of Framingham State Teacher's College, 1971. She is currently teaching second grade at the R.W. Emerson School, Newton.

She is engaged to Mr. Charles J. Porfert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Porfert of 18 Columbine Rd., Norwood.

Mr. Porfert, a graduate of Northeastern University, has a B.S. degree in chemistry and is currently working at Harvard University as a research assistant. An August wedding is planned.

Music Education Continues At Tanglewood

Adam Grossman, 14, son of Mrs. Meryl Cohen of 91 Pine Ridge Rd., Waban, is continuing his musical education this summer in the Young Artists Program of the Boston University Tanglewood Institute in Lenox.

As a Young Artist, Grossman studies with the institute faculty, including members of the Boston University faculty and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He also plays in a chamber music group and performs in the Young Artists Orchestra at Tanglewood.

The eight-week Young Artist Program enables selected high school instrumentalists to study with prominent artists in the lively musical atmosphere of Tanglewood, summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The Young Artists practice privately and in groups on the Tanglewood grounds, and participate in the many concerts held throughout the season. They receive four credits toward their bachelor of arts degrees.

Grossman, who plays first chair second violin in the Young Artists Orchestra, will be a sophomore this fall at Newton South High School. A violinist for seven years, Grossman studies music under Kenneth Sarch of Boston University's School of Fine and Applied Arts, and under Roman Totenburg. He has participated in high school musicals, and he conducted the orchestra for his high school production of "Pajama Game."

This is the eighth year that young students have been given the opportunity to study music, art or theater at the Boston University Tanglewood Institute. They work in rehearsal halls, classrooms, old barns, wooden sheds, and even tree-lined clearings scattered about the 210 acre estate overlooking Lake Mahkeenac which attracted Emerson, Holmes, Melville and Hawthorne many years ago.

Of the 244 people enrolled in the 1973 season of the Tanglewood Institute, 96, who are instrumentalists between the ages of 14 and 18, comprise the Young Artists Program. Another 49 in the same age bracket belong to the Choral Institute. The remaining 99, mostly college students, are enrolled in the piano, theater, applied music, choral conducting or painting and drawing programs.

Before being accepted by the institute, the students go through stringent screening. But the stringency does not end after they are accepted. Everyone in the Young Artists Program begins work in full ensemble early in the morning and reassembles in a chamber music group after lunch, which breaks for individual in- or practice. They perform periodically before the appreciative audiences attending the summer-long Tanglewood Festival.

Judith Wyman Studies Music At Tanglewood

Judith Wyman, 16, daughter of Mrs. Sylvia L. Wyman of 493 Auburn Street, is one of a select group of teenagers continuing her musical education at the prestigious Boston University Tanglewood Institute in Lenox, Massachusetts.

A participant in the 49-voice Choral Institute, Ms. Wyman studies voice with artists-in-residence, and sings in a solo group, a madrigal ensemble, and the Institute Chorus, directed by Boston University Associate Professor Joseph Huszti.

The four week Choral Institute enables selected high school singers to study with prominent concert artists, and to spend part of the summer in the lively musical atmosphere of Tanglewood, summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. In the peaceful surroundings of the Berkshire Mountains, the students attend group sessions in solfege, conducting, diction, movement, and private master classes. They receive four college credits for the summer program.

Ms. Wyman attends Newton High School and has been a member of the school chorus for three years. She has performed in "Cabaret", "Fiddler on the Roof", and other productions. Ms. Wyman is also a student of piano.

Before being accepted by the Institute, the students go through stringent screening. But the stringency does not end after they are accepted. Everyone at the Choral Institute begins work in full ensemble early in the morning reassembles in a madrigal group after lunch, with breaks for individual instruction or practice. They perform periodically before the appreciative audiences attending the summer-long Tanglewood Festival.

At The Site

Residents of Newton Lower Falls were shocked to see a truck owned by Mario DiCarlo, Newton Redevelopment Authority member, on the site of an authority project at the corner of Washington and Concord Streets late last week. The presence of the trucks clearly raised questions of "conflict of interest" in the minds of several residents of the area as they watched the DiCarlo truck haul away fill from the site where the historically significant Baury House is being moved on its axis and restored.

'Conflict' Allegations Stir DiCarlo Probe

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The presence of a DiCarlo Bros., Inc., truck on the Newton Redevelopment Authority site in Lower Falls has set off an investigation of possible conflict of interest involving Mario DiCarlo, controversial authority member.

DiCarlo is an officer in DiCarlo Bros. contractors.

The events leading up to DiCarlo's truck being used to move fill from the new location of the DAR's Baury House are these:

Bids were obtained by the NRA for moving the house. Of the two firms bidding, Metropolitan Building Movers Co. of Hyde Park was the lower by 10 per cent, is a reputable firm, and was awarded the bid.

According to NRA executive director Gerald Early, at the time of NRA approval of the bid, DiCarlo abstained from the vote, which was otherwise 4-0 in favor of Metropolitan because, he said, he was negotiating with Metropolitan for moving a house on the Towers condominium site in Chestnut Hill.

(DiCarlo owned the land on which the Towers is being built and is a principal in the corporation.)

Metropolitan subcontracted to a Newton Centre firm, T.J. Regan, excavators. Harry Coughlin of Metropolitan said he does not remember where he heard the name Regan, but thinks it may have been in Hopkinton, where he does iron work.

Regan has an office in Hopkinton, and there is or was a DiCarlo Bros. Realty, Inc. in Hopkinton, which Assessing Department records show as the owner of several properties on Rowe St., Auburndale, where DiCarlo Bros. contractors maintains its yard.

Regan's wife is Mario DiCarlo's niece, according to Regan.

Regan told the Graphic this week that he called for equipment to D & D Excavators, which is known in the trade as the place where availability of rental equipment of various firms is known and "they are willing to call around."

Regan said that D & D sent him the DiCarlo Bros. truck.

D & D Excavators is registered at the State House with David DiCarlo as president and treasurer; Joan DiCarlo, clerk; and Dino DiCarlo, director, at 331 Upland Ave., Newton Highlands.

Dino DiCarlo is Mario DiCarlo's brother and father of David.

Regan reportedly has said elsewhere that he called Ace Rental Equipment, Inc., for the equipment. Ace Rental is another DiCarlo firm.

Walnut Trucking, also a DiCarlo enterprise, was said by Regan to be the owner of DiCarlo Bros. trucks.

John Coughlin of Metropolitan Building Movers said Tuesday that he is disturbed about what effect the situation may have on his business' reputation.

"We try to do the right thing. We gave the city a good price, and we're ahead of the time schedule. I never even heard of Mario DiCarlo. If he says he was negotiating with us, he could have talked to about five or six people here, and I wouldn't know it."

Coughlin offered "to leave all Metropolitan's records open for inspection."

Mayor Theodore Mann on Monday wrote NRA Chairman Cecil Cadwell that he had instructed the Law Department "to review the situation to see whether or not there is an infraction of the law being committed."

"The presence of vehicles owned by a member of the Redevelopment Authority doing work at that site certainly suggests in the minds of people who live in the neighborhood, as well as all the citizens of this community, that there may be something amiss at the site," the letter continued.

"It is the matter of insensitivity to the public trust that disturbs me . . . While I don't want to prejudge, I certainly feel that the presence of these vehicles represents an insentience to good relations," the mayor's letter said.

Mayor Mann has said publicly on several occasions that he has requested DiCarlo's resignation from the Redevelopment Authority twice, and has twice been turned down.

The legal counsel for the Department of Community Affairs, Maurice Corman, said on Wednesday that the conflict of interest laws are very clear

Housing Authority Runs Into More Bid Delays

BY DANIEL BARKIN

The Newton Housing Authority has learned of further delays, forcing the postponement for two weeks of the construction bid schedule for three housing developments.

During the Housing Authority's recent monthly meeting, Richard Brimley, representing Architect's Collaborative, informed members that the development plans would be submitted to the state Department of Community Affairs (DCA), the funding agency, by Aug. 9.

The state agency would, in turn, review the plans for approximately ten days, judging the authority's fulfillment of certain criteria, established by the DCA, as necessary for adequate family and elderly housing.

Brimley, filling in for the vacationing David Sheffield of the collaborative, added that DCA, in its role as the funding agency, sets the dates for the bid schedule, and "should be ready by Aug. 20" to advertise for bids.

Brimley pointed out that the bid opening date would fall in the third week of September, due to the usual DCA bidding schedule, which calls for a four week time allotment following the release of specifications to bidders.

Questioned by authority member Mrs. Donna Berman regarding the nature of the latest delays plaguing the three developments, Brimley responded by explaining that the collaborative had been hindered by the tedious procedure necessitated by the separation of materials in order to allow private contractors to bid on all three projects or any combination thereof.

Another problem cited by Brimley was the difficulty in establishing a water transport procedure for the Thurston Road site because of its altitude in relation to surrounding lots.

According to Brimley, the rocky and fairly steep topography of the site also impeded his firm's efforts in establishing a landscape plan.

Attempting to place the latest setbacks in their proper perspective, Authority Vice-Chairman James Miller remarked that, "one month or so either side of a projected deadline is not so important when housing is being built to serve residents for 20 to 50 years.

Another subject pending before the Housing Authority, the business of designating an auditor to examine authority books for the period ranging from March, 1970, to December, 1972, was left unresolved.

The need for an outside auditor was created recently as a result of an austerity move by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which precluded the use of the HUD's staff auditors.

Of the bids accepted by the Housing Authority for an auditor, the low bid was submitted by the firm of Sullivan and Harris, which has done previous accounting work for the authority.

Mrs. Berman raised the point that it might be questionable to engage an auditor who might possibly end up auditing its own accounting work. She moved to accept the next lowest bidder, the firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co.

During the ensuing discussion, it was pointed out that Sullivan and Harris had extensive experience in performing audits of governmental agencies, serving 30 housing authorities throughout New England.

The resulting vote on Mrs. Berman's motion ended in a two-two split with Authority Chairman Anthony Medaglia Jr. absent for the meeting.

Vice Chairman Miller sided with Mrs. Berman, and authority members. Henry Wilson and Donald Ferreri voted together to block the move.

The matter is expected to be taken up again and resolved at the next meeting of the Housing Authority.

Private Schools, Mayor Meet On Taxes

Presidents of Newton's seven private colleges and three private secular schools have been asked to meet with Mayor Theodore Mann to discuss payments to the city in lieu of taxes.

A report issued this week outlines the services rendered to the tax-exempt institutions by the city and possible services and resources that could be offered to the city in return.

According to Donald Levitan, Newton's director of intergovernmental relations, who prepared the report at Mann's request, the 10 schools if taxed would account for 16 per cent of the assessed real estate value of the city.

In 1972 taxes would have amounted to over $6 million.

The report acknowledges the reciprocal nature of the coexistence of the schools and the city: "... these schools are important in the setting of the Garden City milieu — their mere presence in Newton possesses substance. And as such they contribute to the maintenance of the Newton environment.

"Further, it must be acknowledged that the maintenance and improvement of Newton's environment is a definite asset in terms of the colleges' and schools' ability to maintain their image and attract faculty, staff, and students.

"This, too, is an intangible, but the cost involved is not."

Some of the municipal services provided by the city are public health inspections, inspections of buildings, human services (e.g., counseling and third-party assistance), the Newton - Wellesley - Weston Multi-Service Center, recreation facilities, library privileges, and Planning Department assistance.

Every Newton college student using the MBTA adds to Newton's assessment, the report points out.

Public safety and Public Works account for a large part of the service required by the schools. In 1972 the Newton Fire Department responded to 43 school calls and the police to more than 250 school calls.

Besides responding to emergencies, the Fire Department is responsible for the safety of occupants of the schools' buildings and the maintenance of alarm systems.

The police often provide traffic-control assistance beyond the police personnel who are hired for on-campus activity during sports events.

The Public Works Department is charged with keeping the streets around and, in the case of schools that are spread over several city blocks, within campuses free of snow and ice and in good repair.

Daily garbage pickup is provided to nine of the 10 schools, while rubbish is collected weekly from five.

Services being rendered to the city by the schools and colleges fall into four categories — employment of Newton residents and purchase of goods and services from businesses in the city, spending by students and visitors, various "outreach" programs to community groups and municipal government, and permission to use selected facilities at a lower than usual fee or no fee.

At his meeting with the school presidents, Mayor Mann will discuss the following possibilities for restitution by the schools:

—Cash payments for refuse and garbage collection, fire and police, and sewerage charges.

—Special scholarship programs for Newton students.

—Admission of high school students to courses not available in the Newton schools (e.g., Chinese and Portuguese language studies).

—Provision of an in-service student intern program for municipal departments.

—Establishment of management training courses for midlevel city employees.

—Extension of library facilities, including book borrowing, to Newton residents.

—The use of meeting and dining rooms by community groups at no fee or reduced fee, with special arrangements and fees for senior citizens.

—Reduced fees for use of Tactics Stall Progress On Waste District

The Newton-Waltham regional solid waste district, which crept its way into existence last month through a fog of parliamentary delaying tactics, has been slowed down again.

The Board of Aldermen this week failed to approve the appointment of the five Newton members of the district committee, referring the names to the aldermanic Public Works committee instead.

Waltham's city council approved that city's five members last week.

Approval of the appointments is necessary to establish an official planning district which, under the terms of the Newton-Waltham agreement, must submit its recommendations by Jan. 1, 1974, as to whether to proceed to an operational disposal district.

Of the five names submitted to the aldermen by Mayor Theodore Mann, three were members of the group that were instrumental in getting the two-city region established under a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. They are Ald. David Jackson, Mrs. Mary Adelstein, and Dr. Melvin First, all well known for their concern with and knowledge of solid-waste problems.

The other two appointees are Newton Director of Public Works Richard Dudman and James E. Tatten, a foreman in the Newton Street Department.

Tatten was appointed to the district committee last month,

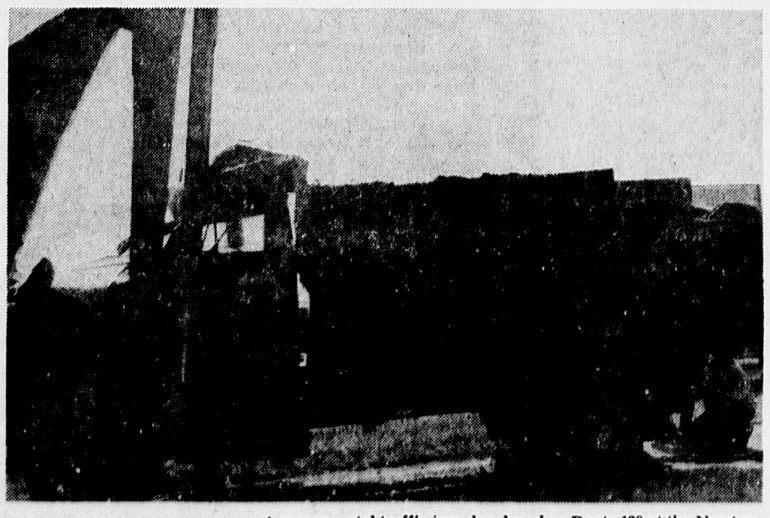
Notice To Candidates

The Newton Graphic will print announcements and pictures of candidates for the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee in the next four issues of the newspaper.

Stories will appear in the order received. Announcements arriving at the Graphic office after Monday, September 10, will not be printed. The cut-off date for announcement stories is the September 13 issue of the paper.

Candidates are advised to submit announcements well in advance of the deadline to afford themselves the best chance possible of having the stories appear in the paper.



What A Mess

A monumental traffic jam developed on Route 128 at the Newton-Weston boundary on Tuesday morning when the above six-wheel truck, laden with asphalt, overturned. The driver, Nellio DiNana of Medford, suffered slight injuries when thrown clear of the overturned vehicle on a southbound lane of the busy, circumferential highway. Spilled asphalt blocked travel in three of the road's lanes and traffic was estimated to be backed up at least five miles during the morning rush hour.

Newton Develops Program For Education Of The Deaf

By LEN BATEMAN
Of The Graphic Staff

Until the Newton School Committee took affirmative action on a unique proposal last month, hearing-impaired children in the Greater Boston area did not have much of a choice after completing the eighth grade.

They could either enter a regular high school and run the risk of obtaining a less than adequate education because of the obstacles set up by their handicap or go out of state, at tremendous cost, to attend specially equipped and staffed boarding schools.

But now, thanks to a determined group of parents and the members of the Newton School Committee, these children have a viable alternative.

Starting in September, 21 deaf or hard of hearing students from Newton and surrounding communities will be integrated as much as possible in regular classrooms at the new Newton North High School.

In addition, the students will be supported by a staff of specialists hired especially to see that their high school experiences are as educationally valuable as possible.

Actually, the students will be attending a school within a school.

The proposal, unanimously approved by the School Committee, calls for the establishment of a private school within the confines of the public high school.

Administrated by the Massachusetts Parents Association for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, Inc., the school will serve as a pilot program and hopefully the basis for establishment of similar, regional schools throughout Massachusetts.

The teachers and therapists hired by the association to deal directly with the hard of hearing students will be paid by the association and not the Newton School Department.

In addition to a program coordinator the association will place two teachers of the deaf, a teacher's aide, a part-time guidance counselor, and a part-time speech and hearing therapist at Newton North High School.

Aldermen Confirm New City Agencies

The Department of Human Resources and the Personnel Department were officially established last week by affirmative action of the Board of Aldermen.

The Department of Human Resources has been in operation unofficially since last October. At that time the Community Relations Commissions, the Youth Commission, and the Council on Aging were put under the administration of a single executive director, who is the head of the department.

Each group will continue its separate functions and will maintain its budgetary independence.

Alderman Richard Bullwinkle, who, along with Alderman Joseph McDonnell, voted against the new department, said at last week's meeting of the board that he feared the effectiveness of the Community Relations Commission especially might be diminished by its executive director being responsible to the mayor instead of to the commission alone, as previously.

McDonnell, who said he had not had time to read the revised ordinance before the board meeting, called the appointment of the executive director by the mayor "a fatal defect."

"This makes everything a political question. The purpose of the Community Relations Commission is to have people free of political influence," McDonnell said.

McDonnell then proposed an amendment to make the executive directors term of appointment not co-terminous with that of the mayor's term of office.

Alderman Louis Egelson argued in response, "Before us now is whether the new department should be given the status it deserves," adding that he would support McDonnell's amendment at a later time.

The vote on the Human Resources Department was 16 in favor, two opposed, six absent.

The Personnel Department, also in existence on a temporary basis for about a year, was approved 18-0 with little comment.

Richard Bullwinkle said that "anytime in the future when we have reorganization, we should have a table of organization and equipment for the department."

Board President Eliot Cohen argued that a "TO&E" should accompany reorganization plans and said he would endorse Bullwinkle's request.

Under the city charter, the establishment for new departments or reorganization of existing departments must be presented at a public hearing, and voted on by the Board of Aldermen within 10 days following the hearing.

Tax Rate Officially Approved

It's official.

The 1973 tax rate in Newton is $134.60 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation, a degrease of $5 from the 1972 rate.

Announcing the tax rate had been approved by the state Department of Corporations and Taxation, Mayor Theodore D. Mann said this week he would like to recognize the cooperation from Newton's Board of Aldermen, School Committee and Municipal departments for "helping to produce the largest property tax decrease in more than 20 years."

Tax bills will be prepared and mailed within the next two weeks.

Signing

Lt. Governor Donald Dwight has signed State representative Lois Pines' jury duty bill. With the lieutenant governor at the signing ceremony were Rep. Pines(right) of Newton, Rep. Marie Howe (left) and Rep. John Businger (center), co-sponsors of the bill to allow women with children under 15 to serve on juries unless they choose not to do so.

It's Women's WORC

Women in this area will have a chance to find out more about programs and courses open to them by attending an Opportunity Open House from 9:30 a.m. to noon Tuesday morning, Sept. 11, at Women's Opportunity Research Center.

The Center, a program of the Division of Continuing Education at Middlesex Community College, is located at the Marist Seminary, Springs Road, Bedford.

Now in its second full year of operation, the Women's Opportunity Research Center is planning its third open house - this time with a difference. As before, there will be printed materials and resource people to acquaint women attending with the variety of area opportunities in full or part-time study, full or part-time employment, operation of small or home-based businesses, or full or part-time volunteer work.

This year's Open House, titled "Women's World at WORC" will also feature the additional chance for personal contact with workshop directors, consultants and volunteers associated with the Center.

One of the morning's attractions will be the giving of special recognition - by a leading figure in Massachusetts' volunteerism - to the volunteer professionals of the Center. Information about scholarships now available to women wishing to enroll in one of the WORC programs will also be available.

Those women interested in previewing programs scheduled for this year at the Women's Opportunity Research Center - or just curious about "Women's World at WORC" are invited to participate Sept. 11. Registration forms are available at WORC, Division of Continuing Education, Middlesex Community College, Springs Road, Bedford, Massachusetts 01730.

City Must Decide About Solid Waste

By the end of 1973, Newton must decide what to do with its solid waste.

A concomitant decision must be made on whether to go alone or extend the recently established Newton-Waltham regional disposal planning district into an operational district.

A report by consulting firm Arthur D. Little last week presented three alternatives for solid waste management — upgrade the incinerator, transfer rubbish out of the city, or build a resources - recovery plant.

The time pressure arises from state and federal anti-pollution laws, which require the incinerator meet certain standards no later than July, 1975.

A. D. Little estimates that at least 18 months and $2 million will be required to modify the incinerator to meet emission standards if incineration is chosen as the solution.

The most practical solution, according to A. D. Little's recommendation, is the transfer-haul system, in which Newton's incinerator would be converted to a transfer station for compacting rubbish and loading into large trucks to be hauled away.

The transfer station could be made a regional facility by Waltham and possibly other communities.

Objections from environmentalists that transfer-haul only transfers the rubbish problem out of Newton were met by A. D. Little's finding that there are several destinations to which the rubbish could be sent for useful disposal; for example, a resource-recovery operation being built in East Bridgewater and landfill sites in Billerica and Carver.

The consultants also mentioned that the new Framingham incinerator needs additional rubbish tonnage.

The Newton incinerator could be converted to a transfer station for about $300,000 by equipping the pit with a compactor.

Other advantages of the transfer-haul system are its simplicity and the small labor force required to operate it. ADL said that five men could handle the operation, contrasted to 28 for the incinerator.

The consultants' projection of solid waste generation showed that Newton alone could be served until the year 2000 by an upgraded incinerator, at an additional operating cost of more than $250,000 per year for pollution control.

With the incinerator serving Newton and Waltham, capacity would be reached within a few years.

Waltham has no landfill area, and Newton's present landfill will be inadequate within an estimated two to five years, so that incinerator residue would have to be trucked away.

The cost per ton of rubbish, either with the use of the upgraded incinerator or the transfer-haul system, would be about the same, $17 per ton, ADL said.

To build a municipal resources-recovery plant would br "sheer madness," ADL said, because of the $6-7 million cost and the technical risk involved. (There is no such system in operation yet.)

The newly formed Newton-Waltham regional disposal district will have to ponder all these questions, while deciding by Jan. 1 whether the two cities should continue as a region after March, 1974.

A major point in favor of the transfer-haul system is its compatibility with the state master plan for solid waste management, legislation for which is now before the legislature.

If the bill goes through, the state will set up regional transfer facilities, of which 50 per cent of the cost will be reimbursed to the communities where they are located.

If the Newton and Waltham operational district for solid waste disposal is created, and if the transfer system is agreed on by both, the cost per ton of rubbish could be expected to drop to $15, according to ADL

School Committee Votes Appointments

The Newton School Committee voted in a special executive session recently to appoint a principal, assistant principal and acting principal to the Day Junior High School, Bigelow Junior High School and Bowen School.

Edward C. Martin, 37, was selected from a field of 56 candidates to be the new principal of the Day Junior High School.

He, along with 20 other candidates, was interviewed by Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, members of the School Department's Personnel Division, and a group of Day faculty acting as an advisory committee.

Martin is a graduate of Williams College where he won the Arthur B. Graves Essay Prize in History in 1958, the year he received his bachelor's degree.

He received an A.M.T. degree from Harvard University in 1959 and returned there for a year in 1965 as a John Hay Fellow. He also attended a summer institute in history for curriculum specialists at the Carnegie-Mellon University in 1969.

Martin taught at Newton North High School from 1958 to 1966 when he left to become Social Studies Coordinator for the entire Newton School Department.

He has also served as a director of teacher education for the social studies program of the Educational Development Corporation in Cambridge and as a staff associate for the National Council for the Social Studies.

In addition, Martin served as a regular consultant to Project Social Studies at the Graduate School of Education, Harvard University.

The new principal of the Day Junior High School was the initiator and director of a social studies program for the non-college bound student at Newton High School and co-authored several Newton Public School publications, including: a syllabus for teaching ancient history, a student social studies handbook and a "Notebook About the Training of the Student Teacher in the Newton High School."

Martin also co-authored a history textbook for secondary students entitled "The People Make a Nation," published by Allyn and Bacon in 1971.

John Paul Welsh, 34, was appointed assistant principal of the Bigelow Junior High School.

He received his bachelor's degree from San Francisco State College where he majored in English. In 1967 he received a master of fine arts degree from the University of Iowa and in 1969 earned a certificate for advanced studies from Harvard University.

Welsh is presently a doctoral candidate at Harvard University, concentrating in the fields of curriculum and supervision.

Before coming to the Newton School Department, Welch was an instructor in English at the University of Hawaii for two years.

In 1969 and 1970, he served as teacher supervisor in English and French at Murray Road in Newton, and in September, 1970, went to Day Junior High School as a cirriculum coordinator.

The following year he became guidance coordinator at the same school.

In addition, Welsh has served as a Harvard University teaching fellow in guidance and as an instructor in the Harvard-Newton Summer Program. He has also been a group leader on "Interpersonal Aspects of Supervision" at the Boston Association for the Education of the Young Child.

His clinical experiences include service at the University of Iowa Psychopathic Hospital's Treatment Unit of the Alcohol Addiction Service and as a psychiatric technician at the Gladman Psychiatric Hospital in Oakland, Cal.

Welsh served in the United States Marine Corps from 1956 to 1958.

Daniel K. Kehoe, 36, the new acting principal of the Bowen School, received his bachelor of science degree in chemistry from Boston College in 1958.

In 1961 he received a master's degree from Union College in Schenectady, N. Y., and is presently a doctoral candidate at Boston University.

He has taught in the Quincy and Dedham school systems and has been a science teacher at Meadowbrook Junior High School in Newton since September, 1970.

Kehoe has also taught courses at Eastern Nazarene College, Fitchburg State College, Quincy Junior College and Massachusetts Bay Community College.

In 1970 he delivered a paper entitled "A Model Program for a Regional Approach to In-Service Training in Science, K-12," at the National Science Teachers Association meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Kehoe is a member of the Massachusetts Advisory Council on Education, serving on the Advisory Committee to the Study of Science Instruction in the Elementary Schools of Massachusetts.

Newton Solons Meet With Cesar Chavez

Cesar Chavez, head of the United Farm Workers-AFL-CIO, met with Newton Representatives Lois G. Pines, Paul H. Guzzi, and Peter F. Harrington at the State House during his visit to Boston lst week.

During the brief meeting in the lobby of the House of Representatives Chavez said, "Please tell of my gratitude to the many citizens of Newton that have given their time and money during the past years to support the cause of my people."

Earlier this year a resolution supporting the lettuce and grape boycott of the United Farm Workers (U.F.W.) was passed by the Newton Board of Aldermen.

A similar resolution, sponsored by all four Newton Representatives was introduced by Rep. Peter F. Harrington and passed by the Massachusetts House of Representatives on last Wednesday.

Concerning the resolution Chavez said, "We need the support of public officials. We are pleased to have public endorsements. It helps people remember our cause."

"Maybe now," he continued, "When people of Massachusetts go to the supermarket they will think not to buy lettuce or grapes unless they have the Black Eagle of the United Farm Workers. AFL-CIO."

The resolution introduced by Rep. Harrington "urges all citizens and commercial enterprises in the Commonwealth to observe the Farm Workers boycott."

It also "requests all state institutions and facilities to purchase only U.F.W. harvested iceberg lettuce and grapes."

Joining in the meeting was Edward F. Harrington, former head of the Justice Department-Mass Strike Force and unannounced candidate for Attorney General who said, "One of the first duties assigned to me by former Attorney General Robert Kennedy was to enforce and protect the rights of minority unions. I have followed his continuing fight for the migrant farm worker and would like to join the Massachusetts House of representatives in supporting him and his cause."

Also present were Senators Irving Fishman and Jack Backman and representatives from Brookline, Framingham, Natick and Waltham. Representative Barney Frank (D-Boston) called for a "prohibition of the use of any state funds" for any purpose which is anti-boycott.

"Because the United Farm Workers are presently engaged in jurisdicitonal disputes with the Western Conference of the Teamsters Unions it is a surprise," noted Chavex," that Joseph Sullivan, James Broyer and other AFL-CIO officials were also present at the meeting and indicated support for the resolution."

Newton's Subsidized Housing Trails Metro Average

With a total of 422 units of subsidized low-income housing built or administered by the Newton Housing Authority, Newton appears to lag far behind the average for the 101 communities in the Metropolitan Area Planning Council region.

According to a report issued recently by the MAPC, 6 per cent of the housing stock in the entire MAPC region was available for occupancy by low and moderate income households. In the six "core" communities (Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Chelsea, Everett, and Somerville) 10.7 per cent, and in the 95 other communities 3.5 per cent, of the housing stock was devoted to low and moderate income subsidized housing.

But in Newton only 1.5 per cent of the total housing stock is subsidized for low-income persons, and there are three moderate - income housing units.

In the MAPC region 69.4 per cent of the total number of subsidized units available as of the end of 1972 were for low-income households. Of these, 56 per cent were built for or acquired for family housing, 30 per cent for elderly housing, and 14 per cent were leased units in privately owned housing.

In Newton all units constructed by the Housing Authority have been for the elderly (225 units). Of the 197 or so leased unts, 90 or 95 are for the elderly and the remainder, about 105, are family units. Thus Newton's percentage is 25 per cent of subsidized units for family housing and 75 per cent for elderly housing.

In Newton, 46.6 per cent of the subsidized housing is leased, compared to the MAPC region. figures of 14 per cent.

In the year 1972, the number of low-income units increased by 6.6 per cent in the MAPC region. Of the increased number of units, 81 per cent were units for the elderly. Leased housing for both elderly and families represented 19 per cent of the increase.

In Newton the number of unts for both low-income elderly and families increased from 401 in 1971 to 422 in 1972, an increase of 5.2 percent, all in leased housing.

Moderate income housing has fared badly in Newton.

Only three units of moderate income housing were built in Newton during 1972, though the MAPC says, "Moderate-income units and low-moderate income (mixed income) units are becoming of greater importance in meeting the housing needs of the region.

As of December, 1972, moderate-income units accounted for 25 per per cent of all subsidized units in the region, and mixed low-moderate units for almost 6 per cent.

Low and moderate income housing is not constructed or administered by local housing authorities. The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency administers the low-moderate housing program, while a variety of subsidy programs is available for moderate-income housing.

Low-moderate housing under MHFA increased more both in numbers by percentage than did any other subsidized housing.

In comparison with other cities of comparable population, Newton, with a 90,000 population and a total of 422 low-income units, including family and elderly, does not stand up well.

Cambridge has 155 elderly, 1605 family, and even 575 leased units for low-income households, with 704 elderly units under construction. It has 892 moderate and low-moderate units and 862 more under construction.

Lynn has a total of 1653 subsidized units, of which 1469 are for low-income households.

In Quincy there are 702 units for the elderly, 580 for families, and 429 leased for both. Already built are 443 units of moderate-income housing, with 353 more on the way.

Somerville has 672 family units, 146 elderly with 80 additional under construction, and 276 leased units. More than 500 units have been built for moderate-income households.

Comparing Newton's stock of subsidized housing with surrounding west-suburban towns that similar to Newton in economic and other characterictics does not result in a more favorable outcome.

Belmont, with a population of 28,000, has 100 low-income family and 80 elderly units.

Brookline, whose population is 59,000, has 833 units of low-income housing, which include 288 elderly, 363 family, and 182 leased for both. Brookline also has 115 units of moderate-income housing.

Framingham, a town of 64,000, has 345 elderly and 310 low-income family units, plus 779 moderate income units constructed. An additional 84 elderly units are under construction.

Natick, (31,000) has built 164 units for the elderly and has 96 more under construction, and has 52 family units.

Needham, with 30,000 population, has 72 units for the elderly, 80 under construction, and has built 80 family units.

Waltham has 291 elderly units, 276 family units, and 196 leased units for its low-income residents.

Wellesley has 36 existing units for the elderly, with 40 additional under construction, and 90 family units.

The Newton Housing Authority hopes to advertise by Aug. 20 for bids on its three developments that will add 50 units of elderly housing and 28 units of family housing to available low-income housing in the city.

Deaf-

It will be the task of the program coordinator to select and admit eligible students from different school districts within a 25 mile radius of Newton.

The Massachusetts Parents Association will be responsible for all operating costs of the program including rental of space from the Newton School Department; tuition charges for the deaf students to attend regular classroom instruction; athletic participation costs; and any health services offered the students by the regular high school staff.

Operating under state law as a private school corporation, the parents' association will in turn bill the state Department of Education for 100 percent reimbursement.

Transportation costs for the initial year will be covered by a combination of state and federal funds. In subsequent years, busing fees for each student will be paid by his or her local school district.

One small study room at the high school will be set aside for the exclusive use of the students and their supportive staff for learnning and tutoring sessions. The rest of the school day will find the students in regular classrooms.

According to Jack Fleishman of Newton, president of the parents' association, only those students whose hearing impairment would be serious enough to interfere with their academic progress without supportive services, will be admitted to the program.

"Included among the pupil candidates are those who have been attending regular high school in their home districts but who are experiencing serious academic difficulties," stated Fleishman.

An orientation week is planned for the entering students before school officially opens to familiarize them with the facilities, the school environment, and the rules and regulations of the school department.

An in-service orientation will also be held for the regular teaching staff of the high school to give instructors an increased awareness about deafness.

State Senate Supports Farm Workers' Boycott

With Cesar Chavez looking on, and later addressing the Senate, the Massachusetts State Senate unanimously passed a resolution supporting the Farm Workers' Boycott. The resolution was sponsored in the Senate by Senators Irving Fishman (D. Newton-Watertown), Chester D. Atkins (D. Acton) and Jack H. Backman (D. Boston-Brookline).

The resolution, which points out the extreme hardships under which some five million seasonal and migrant farm workers in the United States are forced to work and live, supports the boycott of non-UFW iceberg lettuce and grapes.

The resolution commends First National, Purity Supreme, Star Markets and the Boston Division of Stop & Shop for their refusal to purchase non-UFW lettuce and grapes.

"It is clear," said Senator Fishman "that these farm workers have been exploited by every means possible, and that the attempt by a legitimate union to unionize workers has been rebuffed by the most questionable of tactics."

"The farm workers first went on strike in 1965 to achieve recognition for their union as a bargaining representative for the farm workers. In 1970 the farm owners recognized the United Farm Workers. In a sad turnabout, the farm owners are now trying to break the union."

"It is a cause which every member of the Senate, regardless of his or her political party or philosophy, has seen fit to support and I would hope the public at large joins in these efforts."

Fire Destroys Mail

Superintendent Edward J. Whelan of the Newton Post Office has announced there was a fire in the mail box at Hyde Street and Lake Avenue, Newton Highlands, on the evening of Sunday, August 5.

According to Whalen, all mail placed in the box between 2 p.m., Saturday, August 4, and 9:30 p.m., Sunday, August 5, was destroyed in the fire.

What's The Buzz?

By dialing 244-5550, Newton residents will soon be able to hear "Newton Community Notes," a recorded announcement of public events of interest to the community.

The new service will begin Aug. 20 and will be in operation 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

In a letter to Newton's public agencies and organizations, Mayor Mann said, "This system will enable us to make a weekly tape of events that will be automatically played when the number 244-5550 is dialed. News of cultural affairs, recreational events, library programs, civic affairs and educational programs will be included. Meetings or events open to the entire Newton community will be announced."

The weekly message will be changed every Monday morning. Public organizations, agencies, and groups who desire to have their events recorded on the message must complete a form obtainable at the Department of Human Resources in Newton City Hall.

The form must be returned to the department two weeks prior to the date of the event to insure that it will be included in the proper week's tape.

The Newton Community Notes telephone recording system is funded as part of the federal Action grant and for a volunteer coordination program and will be operated by Karen Adler, coordinator.

Mayor Mann said, "The institution of the Newton Community Notes telephone line will add a new dimension to the methods of communicating programs, events and happenings to Newton's residents."

Draft Registration Still Necessity

Even though the draft for military service is over, registration for Selective Service is still required by all male citizens upon reaching the age of 18.

Mayor Theodore Mann announced this week that instead of having to go to Local Board 116 in Cambridge, Newton boys may now register at the Veterans' Service Department at City Hall.

Mann said, "The Massachusetts Veterans' Agent Association has endorsed the proposal that local agents serve as registrars within their communities.

"I am pleased that our Newton veterans' agent Carleton P. Merrill, has agreed to undertake the responsibility, and accordingly on Aug. 7 he took the oath of office for this nonsalaried position of registrar.

"It is my hope that our having a member of city government handling the Selective Service registrations in an office at City Hall will eliminate some unnecessary hardships for our young citizens," Mann concluded.

Merrill reminds Newton residents that federal law requires that every male of the United States to register for Selective Service on his eighteenth birthday or within a period of 60 days commencing 30 days before attaining age 18.

"Our office is open at Newton City Hall Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. We shall be pleased to answer any questions that our young men may have in respect to Selective Service registration as well as to assist with the registration form," Merrill said.

Merrill advised that registration forms executed at the Veterans' Services Department will be mailed daily to the regional Selective Service office.

Andrea Doria

Right now it's merely an intriguing guessing game as to how much treasure the trio of young underwater divers will actually salvage from the sunken liner Andrea Doria at the bottom of the Atlantic within a gull's flight from the shores of Cape Cod.

Some speculate millions in jewelry and valuables will be raised from the remains of the most luxurious liner on the seas 17 years ago. But there are secrets aboard the Doria's remains that no underwater exploration will ever unlock.

The Andrea Doria, which was carrying 1134 passengers and over 500 crew members, sank after being in collision with the Swedish-American liner Stockholm. It became one of the worst sea disasters in history and the first time ever lives were lost in the collision of two passenger liners. The final death count came to 51.

How was it that two modern, radar equipped ships could collide as they moved closer and closer toward each other at a speed of two miles every three minutes?

The westbound Andrea Doria, heading for New York behind schedule, was enveloped in fog so thick that the crew could not see the bow from the bridge. And a few miles away, aboard the Stockholm that humid July night, a crewman wrote in his log: "Beautiful night." From the all white Stockholm the moon was bright and the seas were calm.

Then suddenly the ships were almost on top of each other. The Doria came out of the fog and there was the Stockholm. Both crews claim they attempted to turn their ships away but the sharp prow of the smaller Stockholm knifed deep into the Doria killing at least 26 persons in their cabins.

How could it have happened shortly after 11 p.m. on July 25, 1956? No conclusive explanation was ever forthcoming. In the aftermath owners of each line agreed to settle out of court and no official blame was ever fixed.

And what happened to the rule of the sea "Women and children first" in abandoning ship? As passengers were brought to rescue ships they were astonished to see that many lesser crew members of the sinking Andrea Doria were already safely aboard other ships and had been for some time. Crew members were reported to pull away from the Doria in lifeboats only half full and screams from those still aboard the tilting liner were unanswered.

One passenger sought for hours to have his wife freed from the crushing cabin wreckage around her. She died as her exhausted husband had her inches from safety.

Minutes after the collision the 697 foot Andrea Doria tipped so hard to the right side that half her lifeboats were rendered useless. Yet this was the most modern of liners.

Some passengers say they were never told to abandon ship. And when they reached the useable lifeboats they had already pulled away. Parents threw their children towards the small boats. Some jumped two stories down to the sea.

Because of our proximity to the Cape, and the collision 50 miles south of Nantucket, this area was more closely drawn to the disaster than any other part of the world. The first SOS was heard at Chatham. The Coast Guard from Boston made the first move. This area was locked in drama.

The raising of treasure, if it does come to pass, will not answer the questions that remain within the sunken Andrea Doria. Both ships together carried over 1,600 passengers. The miracle is that so many escaped when so much appeared to go wrong. But the real wealth that remains is the number of survivors who lived to relate fragments of their night off the Cape.

Did Legislators Play Into Sarge's Hands On Reorg Bills?

Some political pundits on Beacon Hill believe the legislative leaders may have played into Governor Sargent's hands in postponing action until next year on all but one of the Governor's proposals for reorganizing the state government.

Other State House observers express the conviction that the Democratic chieftains in the State Senate and House of Representatives did the only thing they could do and that their action was a political plus for Mr. Sargent only because his reorganization bills would not accomplish as much as he claimed in the way of providing better state services at lower cost.

From a strictly political standpoint, Governor Sargent and his partner in the fight over the reorganization recommendations, Lieutenant Governor Dwight, are probably in a stronger position as a result of the postponement of legislative action on the reorg proposals then they would be if the plans had been approved.

It's doubtful that the reorganization bills would have improved state services or lowered their costs to the extent that Sargent and Dwight claimed they would.

But it probably will be impossible to offer any evidence in next year's state election campaign to dispute their claims. They can argue that they had worked out an effective reorganization scheme but that the big, bad Legislature would not give it a chance to work.

It always is difficult to justify a delay and postponement, and Democratic leaders will be at a disadvantage in trying to convince the people that the reorganization bills were not as good as Governor Sargent and Lieutenant Dwight said they were.

If Attorney General Robert Quinn is the Democratic nominee for Governor next year, as is expected, he will not be obliged to accept any responsibility for the delay in action on the reorg bills. But Sarge likes to run against the Legislature whenever he can, and he presumably will try to do that next year.

Sam Ervin Convicted Nixon In Early Stage of Hearings

A number of readers have written in to express indignation and objection to Senator Sam Ervin's strange statement that the Watergate scandal was our nation's worst tragedy and was even more tragic than the Civil War which left 780,000 Americans dead.

Watergate, of course, was an incredible and completely unnecessary political mess. Even though there does not appear to be the hard evidence necessary to impeach Richard Nixon, his ability to function as an effective President probably has been crippled.

Yet, we would not consider the Watergate scandal as great a national tragedy as the Civil War, World War 1, World War 2 or the War in Vietnam, each of which claimed so many American lives.

From where we sit it seems somewhat ridiculous for a southerner such as Sam Ervin to assert that Watergate is a greater tragedy than was the Civil War.

If he's right, which we do not believe he is, he and some of his fellow committee members helped to make it the terrible tragedy he considers it to be.

Ervin's southern drawl, when he deliberately talks as if his mouth were full of molasses, sometimes conceals the fact that he is a sharp and experienced lawyer and partisan politician. The ham actor in him too often has prevailed over whatever legal abilities he possesses.

Many people believe Ervin has not conducted either fair or impartial hearings and that he and other committee members have harassed and harangued witnesses. The charge from the White House that the Ervin Committee was conducting a witch hunt and was out to get President Nixon was not without some foundation.

It was obvious from the statements and speeches made on his weekend trips back to North Carolina that Ervin had convicted Nixon in his own mind in the early stages of the proceedings over which he presided.

Ervin was assailing Nixon as the most repressive President in history and telling his North Carolina listeners that Nixon was lacking in moral leadership when he should have been striking a more impartial posture.

It was the overbearing attitudes of Senators Ervin, Weicker, Montoya and Talmadge that caused a gradual change in the public attitude—a shift which became evident when John Ehrlichman was on the witness stand.

Old Sam with the molasses in his mouth had the people behind him when the hearings began, but he lost them because of his pomposity and that of certain of his committee colleagues and because they under-estimated the amount of fair play demanded by the American peole.

The Readers Write

Here's another interesting note from a reader: "What stands out in my mind after watching the Watergate hearings is that these brilliant young men who worked at the White House couldn't remember any details when they were testifying. Almost all of them had remarkably poor memories. I predict that sometime in the future they will suddenly recall all the details they can't remember now and start writing books. I told my granddaughter to watch the Watergate hearings because we are seeing history made. Teachers will be talking about it in their classrooms 100 years from now."

Two District Attorneys who were questioned about the Watergate hearings thought that Senators Gurney and Baker have asked the most professional questions, that Senators Weicker, Montoya and Talmadge have asked the poorest questions, that John Ehrlichman was the most effective witness, met the questions head-on, was not evasive, picked through the questions and stood up to the committee.

One D.A., a veteran of many court trials, observed: "When you bring in those cameras, everyone thinks he has to become an actor, and we just have too many actors on the Senate Committee and its staff."

Mixed with the bad news that meat shortages will become gradually more acute between now and mid-September was the good news from Washington that gasoline supplies have increased and that shortages of fuel oil for heating homes may be averted next winter.

Washington officials say there is some evidence that hoarding has started and that this could increase the price of chicken, turkey, pork, lamb, mutton and eggs.

One of the most unusual items which reached our desk was that synthetic steak made from soybeans is delicious, nutritious, and you wouldn't know the difference from the real thing.

Poll Prods Sarge To Early Start For 1974 Election Bid

This point in time, as some of President Nixon's former aides would say, is known by animal-owners as the dog days of August and by public officials as the political doldrums of summer.

Public interest in politicking reaches a low ebb during the mid-summer heat and humidity. It is not a time for campaigning, and generally there is no need for electioneering.

Politically, this is known as an off-year. There is no state election until next year. In a few cities such as Newton, Mayors will be chosen in November. In many cities such as Boston only City Councils and School Committees are to be elected.

However, one prominent public leader is away from his State House office an average of one day a week meeting the people, hand-shaking, trumpeting his political message and generally rebuilding his political fences.

His name is Francis W. Sargent, and his term as Governor runs through the end of next year. He is sure of renomination if he wants it, and he may not know who his Democratic opponent will be until after the primary is held in September of next year.

A professional poll made for Governor Sargent indicated that he may be in political trouble, particularly if his Democratic adversary next year is Attorney General Robert Quinn.

So Sarge decided to hit the hustings, the hot weather notwithstanding, and try to boost his political stock.

Ironically, a poll by the writer showed Mr. Sargent stronger than did his own survey for which he reportedly paid $12,000. It indicated he would win easily over former Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline but would face a much closer race with Attorney General Quinn.

Governor Sargent's poll was made when John O. Boone was still state commissioner of correction and public dissatisfaction was evident against the administration of affairs at Walpole State Prison and the chaos, confusion, disorder and periodic murders at that institution.

Some of the public criticism of the poor administrative job done under Boone and the dangerous conditions at the Walpole prison which created a hazard for both inmates and guards presumably rubbed off on the Governor.

The writer's tests of voting sentiment were made after Boone had been dropped by the Governor. That may account for the improvement shown in Sarge's standing with the public.

In any event, he is taking nothing for granted. He apparently intends to keep a hand on the public pulse by having continuing professional polls made for his information.

While Mr. Sargent insists at every turn that he will be a candidate for reelection next year, persons close to him say that he will stand for another term only if he is satisfied he can win.

If subsequent surveys and polls show him in any serious danger of defeat, they predict Sarge would retire voluntarily from office at the close of next year and allow Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight to run as the Republican candidate for Governor in 1974.

This observer's poll indicated that Governor Sargent is not nearly as strong today as when he defeated Boston Mayor Kevin H. White in 1970 but that at this time he would be rated a slight favorite to win reelection.

However, a Governor's popularity and political stock usually go down in an election campaign. Incidentally, some State House observers are not completely convinced Governor Sargent will seek reelection despite his statements. They're not sure he likes his job all that much. Six years of the stress and strain of running the state government take quite a toll on a man.

Two elements of great political uncertainty which could make a strong political impact on the elections next year in Massachusetts and other states are the Watergate mess and the Agnew probe.

Many experienced and realistic Republican leaders are fearful that these scandals could cause a Democratic tide and voting trend in 1974 which would sweep a substantial number of supposedly strongly entrenched GOP Governors and Congressmen out of office.

That happened back in 1946 when the voters virtually revolted against wartime shortages and rationing and vented their displeasure upon Democratic office-holders. Victims of their dissatisfaction here in Massachusetts included such Democratic stalwarts as Maurice J. Tobin, Paul A. Dever and David I. Walsh.

They were helpless to swim against the Republican tide which simply engulfed them. If Governor Sargent sees anything like that shaping up, he may ship out. At least that's what some of his aides think.

Nixon May Have Made Error In Letting Haldeman Hear Tapes

Legal sharps tell us that President Nixon may have locked the handcuffs on himself and lost the key, legally speaking, when he allowed H. R. Haldeman to hear the tapes of key meetings the President held with Haldeman and John W. Dean, 3rd.

They say that Nixon may be able to withhold the tapes from the Ervin Committee on the basis of the doctrine of the separation of powers but that he would not be on solid ground in denying special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox access to them after having shown them to Haldeman since the separation doctrine does not apply to them.

Aside from the legal aspects of an unusual situation, observers are speculating as to what caused the President to permit Haldeman to take the tapes home overnight.

The tapes presumably would settle a dispute between President Nixon, Haldeman and former White House Counsel John Dean.

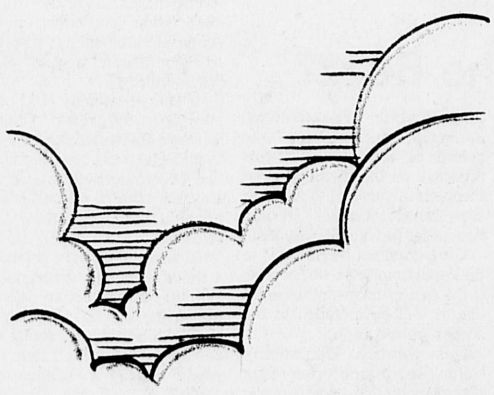
Dean claims, in effect, that the records of discussions on Sept. 15, 1972, and March 21, 1973, would show that President Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up.

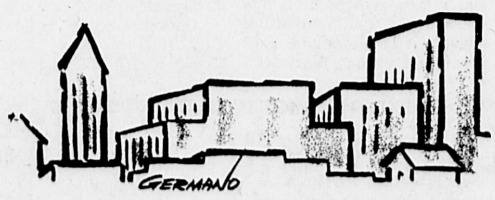
President Nixon insists he did not know about the cover-up, asserts that the tapes would support his denial but that they could be misinterpreted.

Haldeman has said that the tapes corroborate the President's avowal of innocence.

Most people can't understand why President Nixon would stand on technicalities and withold the tapes if they say what he and Haldeman claim they say.

Some students of government argue about the ethics of allowing Haldeman to hear the forbidden tapes. We're not interested in that issue. We think everyone should be permitted to hear them.





Walpole State Prison Inmates Are Caustic Letter-Writers

Inmates at the Walpole State Prison, who apparently read their community newspapers closely and carefully, are supersensitive about any criticism concerning the management of the institution in which they temporarily reside.

A substantial number of them have given expression to their indignation by writing caustic letters to this observer. One of their pet theories seems to be that an outsider, who has never been an inmate or a regular visitor at the prison, is not qualified to comment on conditions there.

What some of them, at least, appear to overlook is that much of the criticism directed at the administration of Walpole State Prison when John O. Boone was state correction commissioner was that it wasn't safe for prisoners, let alone the guards.

Prisoners, who were minding their own business and who wanted to serve their terms and get out, were being beaten up and even killed by other inmates. Obviously, that could not be tolerated; neither could the wanton destruction of property running into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Governor Sargent did not want to drop John Boone. He felt conditions at Walpole left him no alternative but to do so. He came under a fire of criticism for leaving Boone on the job after it became obvious he was a poor administrator.

All this does not mean we're against prison reform or that we object to periodic furloughs for those of our readers who reside in cells at the Walpole State Prison and are sufficiently good safety risks to merit an occasional vacation in the world beyond the prison walls.

We even enjoy some of the "wish you were here" letters from inmates. But if the prisoners want to run the prison, they must do a better job than they've done in the past.

The Fine Art Of Mumbling

By CYNTHIA BLACK

At this point, I have mumbling down to a fine art and I fear I may never be able to talk out of both sides of my mouth again.

Just think, all the people who did not read my column last week and are reading this don't know what I'm talking about.

I think I'll let well enough alone.

Okay, I'll give them a hint. I'm glad my wisdom teeth are gone — at least I'm starting to be glad they're gone.

I'm not going to joke about my stay in the hospital or the treatment I received because everyone took very good care of me and I'm going to be eternally grateful. Luckily I'm in a position to publicly thank Glover Memorial Hospital in Needham and a very patient oral surgeon, Dr. Irwin Mirsky of Westwood.

I'm not here to bore you with details, but I do have a story to tell.

I sat very quietly at home throughout the weekend and Monday. I finished reading all six of my books, listened to music and watched television. None of those, after all, require talking.

In fact nothing compelled me to speak up until I turned on the Merv Griffin Show Monday and came face to face with "authoress" Jacqueline Susann (hopefully I just spelled her name wrong).

She may have been in California and I may have been in Massachusetts but I talked back to her anyway.

I consider her a phenomenon. I realize she is the source of great humor in many circles and I agree with the prevailing theory that the only real mistake she makes is taking herself seriously.

In addition, it greatly amuses me that people have taken to calling her an "authoress". I think it's a polite way of making sure she is never referred to as a writer.

This program ostensibly was to be about liberated women. The other panelists were Patricia Carbine, editor of Ms. Magazine, Polly Bergen, and Adela Rogers St. John. They didn't accomplish anything in the way of a discussion.

I didn't even mind that. I did take issue with the "authoress" though when she made the statement that 80 per cent of the people in this country are under 25.

"What are you talking about?" I mumbled at her.

My rest ended Tuesday when I went back to work. I considered it a blessing. How would you feel if the only person you'd spoken to in four days was Jacqueline Susann?

Colbert Misses Mark On Drinan

Editor, Newton Graphic:

For years, James G. Colbert has impressed me with his knowledge of practical politics, local, state, and national. But his 9 August squib on Father Drinan's impeachment resolution omits three out of the four reasons supporting the resolution. The result, possibly because of the brevity of Mr. Colbert's remarks, is a serious derogation and distortaion.

Mr. Colbert would do Graphic readers a real service, if he would digest and adequately report not only Father Drinan's statement of 31 July 1973 but also Congressman Pete McCloskey's statement of 6 June 1973, both reported respectively in the Congressional Record, vol. 119, No. 123, and No. 86. In addition, Father Drinan announced a considerable sentiment among his constituents for such a move, and he should be commended for representing their views in this way.

In my own opinion, the President's actions merit an inquiry into whether or not he has violated Article II of the Constitution, which requires him in Section 3 to "take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed," and Title 18 of the U.S. Code, Sections 3 and 4, which make it a crime to conceal or otherwise be an accessory after the fact of a federal felony or of other crimes against the United States.

Quite apart from the Watergate revelations, apart from Father Drinan's reasons, and apart from Congressman McCloskey's reasons, Mr. Colbert would do well to consider the following, almost all of it uncontroverted evidence supplied either by the President himself or by members of his Administration. On 22 May, the President admitted that in the wiretapping project of 1969-1970, unnamed persons were apprehended for leaking secrets endangering the national security as defined by the President himself. Why were these persons not charged with these crimes? There is plenty of evidence, furthermore, and this supplied by the President and his friends and followers, that federal offices, cars, telephones, stationery, secretarial services, and White House staffers and other Administrative officials on the federal payroll were all exploited for the President's private political interests, namely, for his re-election campaign. Is not this the conversion of federal monies to private uses? Isn't this activity worth inquiring into?

Or consider something more serious: Keyes Beech, the seasoned foreign correspondent, reported shortly after the Cambodian invasion in 1970 that "field officers" had assured him Cambodia, the American command communiques from saigon announced that aerial reconnaissance was being flown over 32 artillery bases to make sure that orders for their dismantling were being carried out.

The Constitution requires the President to act as Commander-in-Chief, the responsibilities for which requirement the President often invoked by way of justifying his Southeast Asian actions. Don't the Beech report and the reconnaissance flights suggest that the President had lost control of the armed forces?

Finally, the recently released Dun and Bradstreet report alleges that the FBI itself claims the President received a bribe for releasing the supposed underworld figure, Gyp DeCarlo, from prison over the objection of law-enforcement officials. The report further alleges that underworld monies were luandered through the Teamsters Union and eventually accepted as a contribution towards the purchase of San Clemente. This recitation only skims the surface.

So the issue, in my view, is not, as Mr. Colbert says, whether proposing hearings on whether or not to hold impeachment proceedings is a "political blunder"—not whether the tactic is wrong—but whether we are a nation of laws or a nation of one man's unlimited executive power.

It was to prevent the return of totalitarian ruls (in their terms, monarchical rule) that the Founding Fathers made the House of Representatives responsible for determining whether "probable cause" exists for the Senate to hold an impeachment proceeding. The analogy is to that of a Grand Jury, which hands down an indictment, and to a court, which holds a trial.

In my view, Father Drinan is performing his constitutional obligations in recommending that the House of Representatives consider whether or not to enjoin the Senate to an impeachment proceeding. He is hewing to the Founding Fathers' notions of our political system and how it should work. He should be celebrated for his efforts instead of being charged with political inexpediency. And he has asserted his conscientious convictions in the matter, as well.

Why does Mr. Colbert not acknowledge those, even if he disagrees with Father Drinan? Finally, if, as I think, there is sufficient self-admitted Administrative testimony as to "probable cause," the President himself merits the inquiry of the impeachment proceedings.

Impeachment, widely misunderstood, is not in itself removal from office but an inquiry into whether there is enough evidence to warrant the removal. There is still the possibility that the inquiry would vindicate the President. He is innocent of "treason, bribery, and high crimes and misdemeanons" until the Senate proves him guilty.

A bewildered and troubled citizenry, and the political system itself, deserve better than they got from the omissions and the distortions by Mr. Colbert. Indeed, the Graphic would perform a great public service by publishing the Drinan and McCloskey statements in full and any rebuttal statements which might accord better with its editorial policy and the views of Mr. Colbert.

Thanks Police Department

Ed. note: the following letter was sent to Newton Police Chief William Quinn.

Dear Chief Quinn,

Recently our son, Marc, wrote a letter to you suggesting that the Animal Control Officers use tranquilizer guns. We were most impressed with the quick response from the Police Department.

We want to thank you not only as Newton taxpayers, but as parents - our son now has a much better understanding of policemen and their job, and also has been shown that you do get results when you use the proper channels to express dissatisfaction.

Our special thanks to Officer McLaughlin, who took the time to give us a complete tour of the Station - everyone made us feel welcome - and to carefully answer all Marc's questions.

Now he understands why tranquilizer guns are not the answer to every question, in spite of what he sees on television.

Again, thank you, to you and the Newton Police Department.

Sincerely,
Patricia A. Bishoff

Family Found Police Superb

(Editor's NOTE: This letter was sent to Mayor Theodore D. Mann with a copy to the Newton Graphic):

Dear Mayor Mann:

It is our wish that you should know of the cooperation we received from the Newton Police Department when it became necessary to rush Mrs. Sieve to the hospital in the very early hours on Monday morning, July 16.

At 12:30 a.m., Mrs. Sieve was suddenly stricken with excessive chest pains and unable to breathe properly. One of our children called the Police Department requesting ambulance service and within a matter of 10 minutes or less, the ambulance arrived together with a cruiser. The four police officers immediately assumed complete responsibility with an attitude of kindness and courtesy and we were on our way to the Newton-Wellesley Hospital with no time wasted.

We arrived at the hospital before one o'clock and the hospital attendents were waiting for us at the Emergency Entrance - having been alerted by the Police while we were on our way. Here again we were extended immediate consideration for which we express our gratitude to the hospital authorities and to the attendents who took over and proceeded to give the necessary treatment in a professional manner.

We therefore commend you as the Chief Executive of our city and through you we offer our appreciation to Chief of Police William F. Quinn and his department for having instituted such an efficient emergency system at a time when the health and welfare of a human being is involved. We have lived in Newton since 1948, and fortunately, we have not had the occasion to call on this service. But until such an occasion does arise, one cannot truly appreciate its value and its efficiency. Now we know and we can tell you that this family, at least, will gripe a little less when the tax bill comes in the mail!

Kindly express our heartfelt gratitude to the following four police officers who came to our assistance and did what had to be done with a sincere understanding of the need and our feelings:

Departs With Thanks

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Recently I have decided to leave Newton South High School as its varsity soccer coach and junior varsity lacrosse coach to become head soccer and lacrosse coach at Frandeis University. I would like to thank many people for all the help they gave me in helping soccer grow as it has at Newton South High School.

First of all I would like to thank George Winkler and his entire athletic department. Mr. Winkler is an extremely fine gentleman, and an excellent athletic director. Without his help and guidance soccer at Newton South would never have come as far as it has.

I would like to thank Mike Buzzi, coach of Newton High's soccer team, president of the Eastern Massachusetts State Soccer Coaches Association and co-founder of the Newton Youth Summer Soccer League. Everything that I have accomplished at South has been with Mike's help. He has helped me tremendously with my program at South.

He helped me set up both the spring and summer soccer programs for the City of Newton and he has helped me to be elected secretary of the Eastern Mass. State Soccer Coaches Association. For all these things, and for being such a good friend I would like to thank Mike Buzzi.

I would like thank all of the soccer players at Newton South. During the two years that I coached at Newton South I have had the pleasure to work with many excellent soccer players, who were not only tremendous athletes, but also great kids. I will never forget any of them. Richie Izen, Lee Grossman, Jerry and Andy Moore, Paul Murphy, Mark Sturnick, Mike Gordon, Jim Noymer, Ron Burman, Roger Gordon, Aris Bidianos, Robbie Shahon, Paul Linn all of you, every boy that I ever coached, thank you.

Lastly I would like to thank this newspaper for all the fine publicity that they gave my teams at Newton South and my summer programs. Thank you very much.

In conclusion, I can only wish everyone at Newton South High School the best of luck. I hav appreciated the opportunity of working in your fine school, and I hope that I have helped out your athletic program. Thank you all!

MBTA Repairs Will Increase Bus Traffic

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department announced that starting on, or soon after, Sept. 1, reconstruction of the Highland Branch Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority line will be undertaken.

As a result, buses to and from Newton Highlands to the Riverside Station will be running every 10 minutes, on Lincoln, Woodward, Beacon, Washington and Grove streets.

"Each of these streets have a reasonably heavy flow of traffic and the addition of these buses should not create any new problems. However, parents of children traveling to and from school, or riding bicycles, should check routes with their children and cross streets at crosswalks, or where we have police supervision," stated Quinn.

He went on to state, "The buses concerned will be limited to stops on the previously mentioned streets to pick up MBTA passengers ordinarily using the Highland Branch for a period as long as three months. Should any unusual traffic problems arise, this department, with the cooperation of the MBTA will take any necessary steps to maintain safety."

Medical breakthrough

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The first cross-country computerized monitoring of acutely ill patients has begun between Pacific Medical Center here and Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

Via a private line, patients in the intensive care unit at Mt. Sinai are being montored on a 24-hour basis by a computer-based system originated and developed at the San Francisco Medical Center.

The system reports 35 different measurements every 10 minutes or, on request, every 45 seconds, through eight different sensors leading from the patient.

Clams in the Great Barrier Reef of Australia often span four feet and weigh more than 500 pounds.

Job mishaps

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Florida Department of Commerce says 27 deaths and nearly 35,000 injuries from on-the-job accidents were reported to the department's Bureau of Workmen's Compensation during May, 1973. Of the injuries, 13,341 were listed as disabling.

Problem solved

VERANAPOLIS, Brazil (UPI) — This little town in southern Brazil holds an annual Festival of Apples" to celebrate the development, three decades ago of a new strain of apples by Jose Bim, an agricultural innovator.

When preparations were well advanced for this year's festival, it was found tht there weren't enough "Jose Bim apples" to distribute to visitors and residents attending the celebration. The problem was solved by importing Argentine apples on a large scale.

Texas, known for its wide open prairie land, has cut nearly a million board feet of lumber per year for the past 30 years.

District-

shortly after Ald. Joseph McDonnell wrote the mayor to express the concern of some of the Street Department employees that the new disposal district, even though only in the early planning stage, was an immediate threat to their jobs.

McDonnell suggested that the mayor appoint a member of organized labor to the district committee so that the men would be represented.

Tatten's appointment did not suit Local 800 president Louis Rufo, who considers Tatten too management-oriented.

Jackson attempted to get the Board of Aldermen to approve any three of the five appointees to give the district committee the quorum necessary for binding votes.

Jackson explained that as interim chairman he is charged with meeting the contract deadline of Dec. 31. During the intervening time the district committee must prepare specifications for a consultant, examine the disposal options available to the two-city district, and make final recommendations.

Ald. Harry Crosby had reservations about the propriety of only three members setting policy until the other two were approved.

A motion by Jackson to take the matter from committee and vote on the appointments was defeated 12-6, with six members absent.

In favor were Ald. Alan Barkin, Wendell Bauckman, Louis Egelson, Jackson, Jason Sacks, and Robert Tennant.

Opposed were Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, Thomas Concannon, Harry Crosby, Robert Gaynor, Peter Harrington, Matthew Jefferson, Andrew Magni, Richard McGrath, Lois Pines, Edward Richmond, Sidney Small, and Board President Eliot Cohen.

Absent from the entire meeting were Ald. Michael Antonellis, David Cohen, Ernest Dietz, Michael Lipof, Joseph McDonnell, and Edward Uehlein.

In other action, the Board of Aldermen concurred with the aldermanic Finance and Legislation & Rules Committees that Mayor Theodore Mann's proposed amendment to the aldermanic pay ordinance, to deny all benefits except the $1200 compensation, is of no effect and therefore required no action by the board.

An opinion by City Solicitor Howard Levine on the amendment stated that benefits, such as being included in the state pension plan and the city hospitalization and medical plan, cannot be taken away by city ordinance, since they are provided by state law. Levine further stated that even when the board was an unpaid one, the aldermen had been entitled to these benefits on a voluntary basis.

The $1200 pay takes effect Jan. 1, 1974.

in respect to redevelopment authorities.

The city's legal department said that essentially the law prohibits municipal and special municipal employees (a redevelopment authority member is the latter) from receiving compensation directly or indirectly from a matter in which the city has an interest.

In the laws, according to the Newton Law Department, it appears that a distinction is made in the degree of family involvement permitted between special municipal and municipal employees.

A municipal employee is prohibited also from participating in a matter in which, to his knowledge, his immediate family has a financial interest.

The Law Department is investigating whether in fact there is a distinction between type of employee. Also under investigation is DiCarlo's interest in the chain of various firms leading to the presence of his truck at the NRA site.

DiCarlo has been unavailable for comment.

—Assistance to the city in social services to the elderly and youth.

In preparation of the report (data for which were gathered by a Lasell Junior College class), it was learned that many other communities make outright cash payments in lieu of taxes, or for specific services such as sewerage use and public-safety services.

Acapulco (the Miami Beach of Mexico) is not just the flash and glitter tourists usually hear about . . . Sure it's the "Flee-from-the-winter" retreat having ultra-expensive resorts with private beaches, clubs, and tennis courts, but it's more! . . . The Sierra Madre del Sur mountains which crowd the coastline add another dimension . . . They give Acapulco's coast its deep coves, and granite cliffs . . . Divers are seen plunging 125 feet to the seas . . . And partly because of the exchange rate advantage (12½ pesos to the dollar), you usually can find a comfortable beach-front hotel for $18 to $24 a day (double) . . . Unfortunately your impression of Mexico too often depends on why you're there . . .

For exciting vacations at home or abroad let the well traveled staff at REGENCY TRAVEL INC. take complete charge of your trip. There's free parking available or we will deliver tickets free of charge. For your convenience we are open Mon. thru Fri. 9 AM - 5:30 PM, Evenings by Appointment. Recreation Notes

Annual Field Days Mark Playgrounds' Close For Season

The Newton Recreation Department's Annual Field Days were held this week at all playgrounds in the four districts. These field day programs mark the close of the formal playground season which began eight weeks ago, but after the Aug. 17 closing date, there will still be a limited activity schedule.

At the following playgrounds, leaders will continue beyond the regular season closing date: Boyd Park; Memorial; Hyde; Hamilton; West Newton Common: and Thompsonville will close on Aug. 24.

Franklin; Angier; Upper Falls; Burr Park; Auburndale; and Newton Center will close on Aug. 31.

Leaders assigned to areas are as follows: Charles Chaisson at Boyd Park; Beverly Kandler at Franklin; Nicholas Siciliarno at Angier; Richard Learner and Robert Sherman at Upper Falls; Ann Earthrowl at Memorial; Steve Goldman at Hyde; James Shaw and Stephanie Messina at Hamilton; James McLaughlin and Robert Ball at Burr Park; James Ryan, Kathleen Sweeney and Nancy Finkelstein at Auburndale; Robert Worden and Michael Butts at Newton Centre; Jayne Hart and Stephen Kaye at West Newton Common and Paul Arduino at Thompsonville.

During the field days, hundreds of Newton youngsters competed in running events, sack races, pie eating contests and doll carriage parades. Award presentations were very much a part of the field days including achievement awards to the outstanding boy and girl at each playground.

Awards for arts and crafts and certificates for championship baseball and softball all played a big part in the field days.

Instructors Paul Patricca and Robert Braceland, who handle over 60 youngsters at the Mini-Bike Program on Saturday mornings and afternoons at the Infirmary Land on Winchester Street, Newton Highlands, have announced that it will be closed on Aug. 25 and Sept. 1. It will reopen for the fall schedule on Sept. 8.

The Newton Women's Twilight League playoffs are now in progress. The top four teams of the league are in contention for the championship title. Below are the final league standings:

	W.	L.
Tony's Villa	11	1
Jesters	9	3
Garden City Trust	8	4
N A A	6	6
Auburndale Gulf	6	6
Bell Telephone	2	10
Newton-Walth. Bank	0	12

The fourth place tie was broken by one game with NAA winning, 20-13, over Auburndale Gulf. Championship games are being held Sundays at Albemarle, 8 p.m. and Wednesday, 6 p.m. at Lyons. The playoff schedule for the semi-finals is Tony's Villa vs N A A and Garden City vs Jesters.

The International Division of the Newton Twilight Baseball League saw a fight for positions in the playoff series down to the last week of play.

Starting on Monday evening of this week, Waban Chiefs, who finished in first place, will play Totem Pole Braves, fourth place finisher at Lincoln Field, Waban, Second place Boys' Club will host St. Bernard's at Cabot Park.

On Tuesday evening, the same teams will play at Auburndale Playground and West Newton Common. If third games are necessary, they will be played on the original field. The final series will get underway with a best two out of three series between the winners of the semi-final series on Monday, Aug. 20. All games start at 5:30 p.m. Winners of the City-Wide Track Meet sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department met on Monday, Aug. 6, at Dickinson Stadium, Newtonville. District Champions from each of the four districts participated in this event, and several were crowned City Champions.

Award Ribbons were presented to each by Commissioner John B. Penney, assisted by Joseph Sainto, director of Track and Field Events for the Newton Recreation Department.

On Thursday, Aug. 9, the winners competed in the Inter-City Track Meet at Leary Field, Waltham and captured first place, Newton scoring 133 points, Waltham 81, and Cambridge 63.

Pool and Tennis Rates

The Newton Recreation Commission at a special meeting held Aug. 6, considered the future use of the pool and gym facilities at the new Newton North High School for public recreation.

The facilities will be available to the public under the supervision of the Recréation Department for non-school activities weekday evenings, weekends and school vacations. A variety of programs will be scheduled for the pool including organized classes for different skills and age groupings, as well as recreation swimming and lap swimming for physical fitness.

The Commission voted to institute the following fee schedule: yearly membership (including Crystal Lake and Gath Pool summer season), individual adult-$15, individual student-$5, family-$15. There will be a daily session fee schedule available for those who do not choose to purchase yearly memberships as follows: elementary and junior high students 10 cents, junior high and college students, 25 cents, adults, 50 cents.

The Commission also voted not to charge any fee for the use of the other gym facilities for jogging, gymnastics, basketball, volleyball badminton, etc., on an informal unstructured basis. Use of the indoor tennis courts will be made available to the public on a similar basis as the reserved outdoor courts at Newton Centre Playground and Burr Park and the lighted courts at Newton South High School. The current seasonal tennis permit of $10 for adult, $5 for student will be extended to use the coming indoor season at Newton North High School Courts.

The Commission decided to leave the scheduling of the indoor tennis on the Newton South High School gyms in the hands of the Newton Indoor Tennis Club.

In spite of rain, over 100 youngsters recently attended the Baseball Clinic at Newton Centre Playground, sponsored by WHDH Radio and the Coca Cola Company.

Handling the clinic was Eddie Pellegrini, former Red Sox player, and presently coach at Boston College, Richard Maloney, baseball coach at Mass. Bay Community College and a Newton resident, and Mark Driscoll, recently with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Instructions in hitting, fielding, pitching and catching were enthusiastically received by the youngsters.

Free Coca Cola and tickets to the Red Sox game on Saturday, Sept. 15 were given to all youngsters.

Another J. Homestock Location

J. Homestock President Joseph J. Freeman (left) and Gerald Rose, Executive Vice President walk thru the new Homestock store on Long Island, New York.

J. Homestock Expands To N.Y.

J. Homestock has expanded their ideas in retail furniture merchandising to the state of New York with the recent opening of a large warehouse showroom at the Roosevelt Field shopping plaza in Garden City on Long Island.

The opening of the Garden City location marked the first J. Homestock opening outside of New England for the firm which has its corporate headquarters at Dedham.

The warehouse showroom comprises 145,000 square feet and houses 250 room arrangements at the Long Island location located just off East Gate Boulevard. The warehouse-showroom is situated on the site where Charles Lindbergh departed for his famous 1927 solo flight to Paris.

J. Homestock Manager, Howard Glance, and the local staff of 126 people are from surrounding Long Island communities and they're looking forward to establishing warm relationships throughout the area. According to Glance, "We're excited about our new store in Garden City and we're glad to be part of the expanding economic base in this area."

Consumers no longer need wait for weeks or months for delivery of their furniture, all they have to do is pick it out and take it with them. And there is parking for hundreds of cars and a credit plan for customer convenience.

In an effort to lower overhead, all displays, selling, warehousing, and inventory are handled in this one store. The savings are passed onto the J. Homestock customer in the form of lower prices.

To help the consumer find an item's cost quickly, price tags list not only the price but give the cost of extra services such as delivery and set-up.

New shipping techniques are also part of the enormous J. Homestock building. Customers can either pick up their furniture at the warehouse dock and set it up themselves or have it delivered for a small charge.

The Homestock concept of combining warehouse and showroom under one roof was started three years ago in the Boston area. The Garden City facility is the fifth unit for the firm.

Future Exhibition Schedule At Museum Of Fine Arts

Classics in Modern Decorative Art: Europe and America 1880-1970: August 20 through September, Recent Accessions Gallery. One of the Museum's first exhibitions of 19th and 20th century decorative arts, this selection illustrates major trends in design from the 1880's to the present, including Art Nouveau, the Bauhaus, the English Arts and Crafts Movement, as well as contemporary designs drawn from earlier developments and reflecting space-age technology.

The exhibition is sponsored by Bloomingdale's. Many works on view will be offered to the Museum by Bloomingdale's to form the nucleus of a new collection of modern decorative arts.

Porcelains from the Collection of Sigmund and Jesse Katz: October through November, Recent Accessions Gallery (tentative). One of the finest collections of 18th century English porcelain includes examples from Derby, Worcester and Longton Hall. Superb works in silver by Nicholas Sprimont, London, director of the Chelsea factory, complement the porcelain.

Confident America: Monuments in Painting, Sculpture and Prints: October 2 through November, Gallery DD. Various themes of 19th century American art are explored in this exhibition of painting, sculpture and prints from the New-Classical period to the turn of the century.

Many of the large works of sculpture are on exhibition for the first time. The artists include John Singer Sargent, William Rimmer, Frank Duveneck, William Morris Hunt and William Wetmore Story.

Boston Collects Boston: October 12 through December 2, Gallery CC. This collaborative exhibition presented by the Museum of Fine Arts and the Institute of Contemporary Art draws attention to the work of Boston's contemporary painters.

The six artists in the exhibition are Natalie Alper, Sharon Friedman, Jaqueth Hutchinson, Joel Janowitz, Todd McKie, and Katherine Porter. Drew Hyde, Director of the Institute of Contemporary Art is guest Curator of the exhibition.

Unearthing China's Past: November 15, 1973 through March 1974, Galleries AA, BB. This spectacular exhibition shows the results of recent archaeological excavations in China, while stressing the importance of scientific excavation for the preservation of knowledge.

The exhibition will juxtapose works of art from Western collections with photographs of similar ones recently excavated from China. These excavations have helped establish the dates, function and origin of objects about which all information had previously been lost.

Visual aids, such as maps, models and slides supplement one hundred works of art from collections in the United States and Europe.

100 Master Drawings from New England Private Collections: December 14, 1973 through January 25, 1974, Gallery DD. This exhibition, organized by the Hopkins Center Art Galleries, Dartmouth College, presents one hundred drawings by ninety artists, from the 15th century to the present.

Most of the greatest draughtsmen in the history of European and American art such as Rembrandt, Van Gogh, Matisse, Picasso, Klee, Delacroix, Degas, Blake, Fragonard, and many others, are included. Most of these beautiful drawings have never been exhibited to the public before.

Turkish and Greek Island Embroideries: December 18, 1973 through March 3, 1974: Gallery T-1. An exhibition of domestic embroideries and costumes from the Greek Islands and Turkey, from the 17th through the 19th centuries. These embroideries, drawn entirely from the Museum's collection, are distinguished by lively designs with bright silk and metallic yarns.

A.C. Goodwin: February 5 through March 3, Gallery DD. Oils and pastels, from Boston collections as well as from the Museum's own collection, show the achievement of one of Boston's great 19th century painters, Arthur C. Goodwin (1866-1929). Views of the city are complemented by lyrical landscapes of New England.

Mound of Darkness: March 15, 1974 through April 28, 1974. Recent Accessions Gallery Bronze age pottery and other works from the excavation near Morphou, Cyprus, jointly sponsored by the Museum of Fine Arts and Harvard University. All the most recent discoveries will be on view.

Recent American Photography: Private Realities: March 14, 1974 through April 12, 1974, Gallery DD. This exhibition presents the work of approximately 12 contemporary photographers whose work departs consciously from the classic "straight" approach to reality.

A variety of techniques will be explored, such as multiple negatives, transformations of photographic prints, constructed scenes and juxtaposed images. The photographers include David Batchelder, Judy Dater, Benno Friedman, Emmett Gowin, Jerry Uelsmann, Carey Wasserman, Kelly Wise, Linda Connor and Les Krims. An original catalogue accompanies the exhibition.

The Far North: 2000 Years of American Eskimo and Indian Art: mid-March, 1974 through June 1, 1974.

Goya Prints (tentative) September through December 1974. A retrospective exhibition of Goya prints presents an in-depth study of one of the great graphic artists of all time. Prints from all phases of the Spanish master's career are included.

New National Youth Soccer Program

The United States Soccer Football Association held its 57th Annual Convention recently in Washington, D. C. and of major significance was the adoption of a proposal to form a new organization whose purpose will be to develop a national youth program separate from the senior body. The organization will be called the United States Youth Soccer Association and will be headed by the U.S.S.F.A. 5th Vice President for youth.

This is a significant development in respect that in the past, the senior state associations affiliated with the U.S.S.F.A. have had control of youth development and more often than not, have not understood the problems of youth and neglected this important factor in the overall development of the game in the United States.

The new organizational structure will streamline the youth movement and give youth state associations direct access to the U.S.S.F.A. via state and regional commissioners.

Locally the organization will get off the ground in the form of the Massachusetts Youth Soccer Association and will be launched later this year. Important features of the program include; national uniform age division, insurance plans and computer registration plus state, regional and international, club and all-star competition with a view to selecting talent for future olympic and World Cup squads.

1974 WORLD CUP

Tickets for the 1974 Soccer World Cup finals to be played in West Germany are now available. The finals commence on June 13 in Frankfurt and finish with the final game at Olympic Stadium, Munich, on July 7.

Tickets are extremely scarce in the U.S. and are sold on a first come, first served basis. For information contact Al Peterson, 777-2870

140 countries enter the World Cup in 6 global zones. The U.S.A. team was eliminated in the preliminary playoffs between Canada and Mexico during 1972.

NEW M.S.A. SEASON BEGINS

The Massachusetts Soccer Association 1973-74 season will commence the weekend after Labor Day. New teams interested in competing contact 777-2870 or 924-4081.

Fatigue blamed for accidents

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most accidents happen at midmorning and midafternoon. Many of these can be blamed on fatigue. That's why a University of Illinois safety specialist recommends the relaxation of a "coffee break."

Excessive noise leads to fatigue and hence helps cause accidents, says the expert, Ordie L. Hogsett, in an article in the Journal of the American Water Works Association. Anger also makes people more accident prone. Hogsett says it reduces vision, perception and judgment.

H&R Block Offers Two Courses

"H & R BLOCK, Americ's Largest Tax Service, will offer two tax courses at Dedham Mall beginning in mid-September," stated David M. Mortimer, Jr., local manager in the Boston area.

"The first course will provide instruction in basic tax preparation, Mortimer said, "while the second will give advanced tax training to those with a working knowledge of income taxes."

Mortimer pointed out that the ever increasing detail work involved in preparing tax returns makes it imperative that a tax man or woman know their job thoroughly, hence the necessity for the basic and the advanced courses.

"One of the most exciting things about the H. & R BLOCK Tax Courses is that when successfully completed, a job interview will be arranged if you so desire. Graduates of the course are under no obligation to accept employment," Mortimer stated.

The basic course curriculum contains a total of 81 hours of instruction. presented in 27 three-hour sessions, over a 13½-week period, and features practical application in all major areas of individual income tax preparation, including Federal and State returns.

The Advanced Tax course consists of 20, three-hour sessions (2 classes weekly) over a 10-week period and provides in-depth coverage of individual, partnership, fiduciary, corporate, and other complex tax situations. The instructors for both the basic and advanced courses are all experienced Block personnel.

Environment note

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — The Food Protection and Toxicology Center at the University of California, Davis, has been granted $1,035,000 to study the environmental effects of DDT's chemical relatives. Douglas Morrow's 'Poisonous' Film Script Made MGM Richer cinema updated

by Marjory Adams

Hollywood, in its days of elegance and bonanza prosperity, had nothing more exciting and awe inspiring than a command interview with Louis B. Mayer.

That long, long office seemed a couple of miles to traverse before you reached the great desk at the end of it where Mayer, who looked much too small for the fact that he represented God to most of the film industry usually left the visitor shaken and floundering.

But that is not what happened when handsome young New York lawyer Douglas Morrow answered the summons to a Mayer confrontation.

Winner of a B.A. and two law degrees from Columbia University, Morrow was in Hollywood as assistant counsel to a law firm engaged in a film case. Morrow admitted to Mayer he was more interested in pictures than in his law career.

"I'll sign you up," Mayer promised. "You can be an actor until you find out just what you want to do most."

The offer held no charms for Morrow, although a thousand young men would have hit the peak of ecstasy with such an opportunity.

Mayer was not so generously inclined the next time he talked to the gifted young man from New York. This time Doug was begging M-G-M to produce the film story he had finished and in which he had such confidence.

"The story was about baseball and the hero is handicapped," scored M-G-M's czar, but in kindly fashion. "Don't you know yet that in motion pictures a baseball story or a story about physical infirmity is rated box-office poison? This story hasn't a chance."

"He wasn't the only producer who told me the same thing," says Morrow, who is still on the spectacularly handsome side.

But eventually MG-M did make the story into a film. "The Stratton Story" with Jimmy Stewart as the star made M-G-M a much richer company as it was the top grossing picture of the year. "I received an Academy Award as the writer of this 'poisonous' film," laughed Morrow.

Although he is conservative in dress—crisp shirt, the most unostentatious plaid suit to be seen in Boston this year, black tie and black socks, Morrow has a dynamic energy which fills a room. No winder Mr. Mayer was finally persuaded to make "The Stratton Story."

Now, Morrow has done it again—that is, he has written another film about a sports figure who has physical disabilities. His first story was about Monte Stratton, baseball player who lost his leg in a hunting accident and then fought his way to major league stardom.

The new film, "Maurie" is about two basketball players, one of whom became totally incapacitated and the other who beat every obstacle to raise the million dollars to bring his friend back to an active life and out of his motionless human shell.

Like "The Stratton Story," it's all true.

When Maurice Stokes was so seriously injured following a game that doctors declared there was no hope for his recovery, his associate with the Cincinnati Royals, Jack Twyman, made up his mind that he would try to perform a miracle.

"Big Mo" was so seriously hurt that he could move no part of his body except his eyelids. A lighted match placed closer and closer to his lips brought no reaction from the paralyzed man—it was torture to his friends to see him in this fearful situation.

Doctors said it would cost $100,000 a year to make even the beginning on the long, involved operations that would be necessary over a period of ten years. Maurice Stokes was black—his friend Twyman was white. Both men proved to be heroes and racial relations have never been considered by either of them.

Maurice suffered pain with clenched teeth but unfailing courage while Jack Twyman, at enormous cost and personal sacrifice, obtained legal custody of his former associate and took over the herculean task of raising money, and yet more money, each year.

Morrow produced his own script. He believes that Bernie Casey, the actor playing the role of the black giant Maurie gives the best performance seen on the screen in years.

Casey is a former All-American football player and an ex-professional football champion. In addition, he is both a poet and one of the best of the new contemporary painters.

"This 6-feet-4-inch actor is wonderfully intelligent," said Morrow. "His eyes are like subtitles. Through most of the movie he can't talk. But he speaks better with his eyes than 90 percent of the actors now on the screen speak with their voices."

Regarding Jack Twyman in real life, Morrow says, "He is a stud of a man with the soul of an angel."

This role is played by Bo Svenson, and it is his first appearance in the movies although he is well known on TV and around Miami where he first tried out show business. Stephanie Edwards, as Carole Twyman, is also making her film debut. On the other hand, Bill Walker, as Maurice's father, is playing his 100th cinema characterization.

I asked Morrow if he had ever played basketball. Although he was on the highly prestigious crew at Columbia, and toured for most of his undergraduate years with Columbia's Glee Club, he was not a basketball enthusiast. For that matter, of the one hour and 50 minutes the picture runs, less than a minute and a half are devoted to actual basketball playing.

"And even that is in montage," says Morrow. Margot Morrow was at Barnard while Doug was studying across Broadway at Columbia College and Law School. "But I spent most of my free time at Barnard," he says.

His wife now heads her own advertising agency in Hollywood. Doug was pleased, on coming to Boston, to see billboards representing his wife's products. This is one marriage which Hollywood hasn't broken up. And Doug remains the "good lookin' feller" which Mayer pronounced him to be when offering him a job.

Cinema Review: Badge 373

"BADGE 373" — Produced for a special and increasingly larger audience, "Badge 373" related the adventure of Eddie Egan, the New York policeman who furnished the plot for "The French Connection."

The story is fiction for the most part, as was "The French Connection," and Robert Duvall is cast the tough cop named Eddie Ryan. The real Eddie Egan, somewhat mature and portly, takes the part of Eddie Ryan's superior in the police force.

For what producer-director Howard W. Koch wanted to accomplish, he has hit the bull's eye. This is tough, bloody, profane, and filled with the viler kind of epithets heard on street corners and among youngsters who try to ape criminal types.

It is frequently offensive to older film-goers, but Paramount didn't release this film for their pleasure. "Badge 373" gives all the spectacular blood-letting of a 19th century production of "Hamlet" with all the dirty language and unrestrained racial hatreds of the 20th century. It is what the younger generation could call hot stuff.

And if it is action you want, the picture has it for close to two hours without a let-up. A lot of people die violently.

The action includes a most unbelievable chase of a bus piloted by Rayan and chased by a gang of murderous Puerto Rican hoodlums, which ends with a beating up of Ryan and a couple of destroyed cars. Why the police didn't interfere long before the conclusion is something I couldn't fathom.

Extremely effective are some of the New York scenes, and there are exciting action shots involving near collisions and one attempted hit-and-run killing. I was impressed with quality of the lighting background scenes of the New York waterfront. It set the mood.

But the final scramble and chase when Ryan vows to avenge his friend and his sweetheart by killing "Sweet William" personally, is pure old-style hokum.

Burke-Wargin Wedding

At a candlelight ceremony on Friday evening, July 27, Janet Romaine Burke, daughter of Mrs. Margaret M. Burke, Newtonville, and Mr. William J. Burke, Jr., became the bride of Robert Steven Wargin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Wargin of West Newton. Rev. Leroy E. Owens officiated at the 6:30 ceremony at which time the Papal Blessing was bestowed in the Franciscan Nuns Chapel at Mt. Alvernia, Newton. The reception followed the ceremony in the Faculty Dining Room, Boston College.

Escorted by her uncle, Richard W. Brosnahan of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., the bride wore a gown of imported organza, trimmed with Belgium lace on English net. From her lace Juliet cap fell a Cathedral length silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis.

Maid of honor for her sister, Mrs. Robert L. Burke was gowned in mauve organza with matching garden hat and carried a basket of mixed flowers with English ivy.

Identically gowned in rainbow colors of mint green, pale blue and yellow were Andrea Shields Burke, sister of the bride, Kathy E. Wargin, sister of the groom, Lee Ann McGonagle, Newton Centre and Patrice Brosnahan, Framingham, cousins of the bride, and Christina A. Burke, Newton, and Jeraldine Jarvis, Wellesley, classmates of the bride.

Kathy Brosnahan, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., wearing pink organza was flower girl for her cousin.

Best man for his brother was Mark W. Wargin. Michael P. Wargin, Marc Simon, Jerome Beatrice, Edward Reilly, all of Newton, ushered with Charles S. Crupi of Washington, D. C., and Robert Brosnahan of Framingham.

The bride is a recent graduate of Newton Jr. College and the groom attended Colorado State University, he is presently serving in the U. S. Marine Corps in Jacksonville, N. C., where they will be making their home after honeymooning in the Bahamas.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

Sometimes I get too involved in conservation battles and suspect I'm neglecting the kids. They start doing strange things.

Yesterday was one of those days.

Like the fabled sea serpents that used to swim the seas to scare the residents of New England, frightening plans keep surfacing to dredge harbors, fill salt marshes, and build various types of installations which would produce various types of pollution.

As the weather report says, "from Eastport to Block Island" we can expect storms along the coast as conservationists clash with developers.

My particular worry recently has been a plan to bring oil tankers into a special very lovely harbor, lined with sandy beaches and until now relatively clean.

So I've been finding out all I could about the plan, writing up information, phoning people, reading reports on oil — in fact, if the metaphor were not so repulsive, I'd say I'd been totally immersed in oil pollution.

While I was on the telephone yesterday discussing how destructive oil spills are to marine life even after the visible evidence is cleaned up, I noticed that Scott, my seven-year-old son, was busy drawing a picture. When I got off the phone, I came over to dutifully admire it.

"I'm making a pollution picture," he announced.

Most of the ocean was black . . . oil, what else? A boat was producing choking exhaust. On land two tall buildings belched smoke. Between them were several fume-producing cars and numerous small blobs.

"Beautiful, Scott," I said. "Just a beautiful ugly picture."

I went back to the phone and typewriter, and that evening I went to a meeting on oil while my husband, Larry, baby-sat. When I returned, Randy, my ten-year-old, was still up. (Daddies are fun baby-sitters.)

Randy announced he would fix us a midnight snack (his term for any food after 9:30 p.m.), and while Larry and I talked, he got out the rest of his leftover birthday cake and a bottle of milk.

"I picked up some terrible statistics tonight," I told Larry. "About 7,500 oil spills occur in United States waters each year. In 1971, 140 tanker collisions and hard groundings were reported to the Coast Guard. Most spills take place in harbors, and most minor spills happen while the oil is being transferred from ship to shore. Small, chronic spills can kill the seashore life just as dead as one big spill would. And you just can't have oil tankers in a harbor without some oil spills."

While I talked on and on and on, Randy filled my glass with milk, and filled and filled and filled.

"Hey! That's too high!" I protested as I suddenly noticed the milk arching up above the glass. I carefully kitty-sipped it down.

"You were supposed to pull it over like a great big tanker and have an oil spill," Randy said.

"I see," I said, thinking maybe I'd overdone the oil spill talk.

"Mommy, you're a MH-WTIT," Randy said.

"A what?"

"MHWTIT," he repeated. "Mommies Hoo Want To Improve Things."

Anybody want to join the club?

Education: Cracks In Ivory Towers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ivory tower of higher education is showing cracks—and that's good. The people in the ivory tower are breaking out of isolation—going from the world of theory to the world of reality. On the urban affairs front.

This is the report from the 200 institutions responding to a questionnaire of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU). Eighty-one per cent viewed urban involvement as a major or important function.

This is surprising since only 60 per cent of the institutions are in a metropolitan area. This indicates that even non-urban colleges and universities regard urban problems as an important educational objective.

During the last academic year, 38 of the responding institutions offered degree programs in urban studies. These ranged from the baccalaureate to the doctorate level. In the academic year before that only 10 schools had urban studies degrees.

In addition, more than half of the institutions offer courses in urban studies. Urban centers are operated at 48 institutions.

The survey also showed a breaking down of the barrier between reality and urban theory, demonstrated by increased interaction between the campus and the community.

While several years ago a student internship was described as innovative, during the 1972-73 academic year almost half of the institutions offered internships for credit in community and city agencies.

While the most reported community programs deal with criminal justice, environmental problems and drug abuse, existing programs also involve legal services and welfare rights, day care facilities, job safety, ethnic education, manpower training and transportation systems.

The range of population reached by the programs is enormous: from inner-city children being tested for lead poisoning, to the design of low-income housing for the elderly.

The elderly, classified by some sociologists as the "forgotten Americans," will be the focus of a great deal of future attention by college students.

The Newest Star Market

Will open on Spring Street, West Roxbury, August 28th at 10 a.m. and will be linked with a OSCO. The West Roxbury location will be Star Market's 57th location and the 197th for OSCO.

57th Star Market Opens August 28

A new concept in retailing will be introduced on Tuesday, August 28, at 75 Spring Street, West Roxbury, when the "twin supermarkets" of Star, with its many specialty food shops-in-one, and Osco, a non-foods store, combine under a single roof as a one-stop shopping center.

This will be the 57th ultra modern supermarket for Star, widely known in Greater Boston and the 197th for Osco, a national chain.

A brief ribbon cutting ceremony is planned for 10 a.m., just prior to the opening of the doors for shoppers. Leading city officials and prominent community figures will take part.

Convenient store hours will be from 8 a.m. to midnight for Star Market, and 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. for Osco. Matthew S. Leonard and Dennis Thelen, will serve as managers of Star and Osco. There will be unusually good parking areas for all shoppers.

The Star Market Co., now engaged in the largest expansion in its history, is recognized in New England for its outstanding variety of quality foods, with "specialists" in every department serving customers.

In addition, such consumer benefits as Unit Pricing, Open Freshness Dating, Meat Cut Designation, in-store Meat Sanitation and the Electronic Check-Out system for greater accuracy and speed will be offered.

The interior decorations feature a candy-striped self-service ice cream parlor, complete with Tiffany lamps, presenting an impressive contrast to the ultra-modern designer decor of the rest of the store.

Osco will offer an almost endless selection of non-food items, including cosmetics, electrical appliances, housewares, cameras, sporting goods and automotive supplies.

Valuable door prizes will be given away, including color TV sets, stereos and 10-speed bicycles, during the first few weeks of the stores' operation. A Pancake Breakfast is planned for Tuesday, September 18, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon to which the public is cordially invited.

Film on Gloucester Fishermen at Aquarium

The story of men who made their living from the sea, the ships they sailed, and the families they left behind is the subject of a new film being shown at the New England Aquarium through September 5th.

"The Gloucestermen" is the account of the 300 years when the fishing industry flourished in and around Cape Ann, and of the more than 10,000 men who lost their lives while wrenching their valuable treasure from a reluctant sea.

Told in ballad, film, and by personal recollection of local residents, the 30-minute film is a nostalgic look at the years between 1623 and 1927 when men daily risked their lives for the halibut and cod which made Gloucester a thriving, prosperous community.

Scenes from modern Gloucester, effectively woven together with old photographs, film, and interviews - set to a background of music - presents a loving look at the men of Gloucester.

Through special arrangement with WGBH-TV, producers of "The Gloucestermen," the film commemorating the fishing industry will be shown Monday through Friday at 2:30 p.m. free of charge to Aquarium visitors.

The Aquarium is located on Central Wharf in Boston. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sunday, and holidays.

Office for Children Funds 33 Area Programs

Thirty-three local agencies providing services for children and teenagers recently signed contracts totaling $154,466 with the state Office for Children. The contracts, through which the Office purchases services with state and federal-state matching money, are for a three-month period ending September 30.

The funded programs will serve 749 youngsters from Boston, Brookline, Revere, Chelsea and Winthrop. Each program is to be evaluated by committees of five Boston area Councils for Children and by the Office for Children interdepartmental regional team. The agencies receiving funds operate a wide range of programs for children and teenagers with special needs.

A number of the funded programs involve day care and supportive services for neighborhood children with special needs, including mental and physical handicaps.

The agencies are the Boston Mental Health Foundation, Inc. in Mattapan; the Lena Park Community Development Corporation in Dorchester; the Dorchester Child Development Center; Little Folks Community Day Care in East Boston; and the John F. Kennedy Family Service Center, Inc. in Charlestown.

Other agencies offering neighborhood day care programs and supportive services for children are the West-Rox-Park Association in Hyde Park; Children's World Day Care Centers, Inc.; the Boston Children's Services Association, Inc.; Action for Boston Community Development, Inc.; and the South Cove YMCA.

Offering community programs which include protective services and family counseling are the Roxbury Comprehensive Community Health Center, Inc.; Students of The United Leagues, Inc. (S.O.U.L.) in Roxbury; the South End Neighborhood Action Program; the Roxbury Multi-Service Center in Dorchester; Open Harbor, Inc.; Little Folks Community Day Care in East Boston; DARE, Inc. in Jamaica Plain which sponsors Hillside Outreach; the New England Home for Little Wanderers; and Federated Dorchester Neighborhood Houses, Inc. in Dorchester.

Office for Children funding allows diagnostic testing and therapeutic services such as physical therapy, speech therapy, and medical services to be provided to community children by the Douglas A. Thom Clinic for Children, Inc.; the Greater Boston Association For Retarded Citizens, Inc.; and the New England Medical Center Hospital.

The Women's Improvement League, Inc. in Dorchester offers area teenagers a variety of counseling services in career planning and school and home adjustment. The Massachusetts Mental Health Center Research Corporation in Boston provides diagnostic services and refers children to other appropriate programs when necessary.

A number of other agencies provide services available to children from all over Boston, Brookline, Revere, Chelsea and Winthrop, through Office for Children funding.

The New Perspective School in Brookline provides supportive services and foster care placement for young people between the ages of 12 and 18. Ten teenagers are receiving services under an Office for Children contract.

The Fisherman Foundation sponsors Project Fishermen for Boston children of all ages in need of protective services. The Project staff serves as legal advocates, and provides evaluation and counseling for children and their families. The Office for Children contract allows ten children to benefit from the services.

Children aged 11 to 17 with troubled home situations are provided with emergency housing, medical treatment and counseling by the Catholic Charitable Bureau of the Archdiocese of Boston. Fifteen children are receiving services under an Office for Children contract.

Crittenton Hastings House in Brighton provides medical care, counseling in family planning, pre-natal homemaking and child care classes, and recreational activities for children and families. Twenty-five children are participating in the program through Office for Children funds.

Emotionally disturbed children aged two to eight and their families receive services from the Language and Cognitive Development Center in Boston. The program includes cognitive and developmental training, individual counseling for families, group sessions for mothers, speech and language therapy, and psychiatric evaluations. An Office for Children contract allows five children to benefit from the services.

The Boston Mental Health Foundation in Mattapan provides children from troubled families with foster care and care in group residences. Office for Children funds allow counseling services for the families and children to be provided, as well as coordination of family and health services to ensure continuity of care. The Office for Children is funding the care of 20 children.

The Family Service Association of Greater Boston offers homemaker services, home management counseling, and medical referrals for children and their families. The Office for Children contract provides services for six children.

The Office for Children is a state agency designed to coordinate and monitor the development of children's services in Massachusetts. The Office is facilitating the establishment of five Councils for Children in the region comprising Boston, Brookline, Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop.

The Councils, which are in varying states of organization, are open to anyone interested in improving children's services in their community. Each Council will elect a decision-making board of which at least half the members will be consumers who have no financial interest in providing children's services.

When completely established, the Councils will approve programs funded by the Office for Children, and will be responsible for reviewing state budgets related to children, evaluating and monitoring programs in their areas, developing information and referral services, and making recommendations on needs and priorities regarding children's services.

These recommendations will form the basis of the policies and priorities adopted by the Office for Children.

Drinan Addresses Issues

Congressman Drinan in an address before the Waltham Kiwanis Club, discussed some of the important matters before the 93rd Congress.

Issues as diversified as mass transit, campaign financing, and individuals' rights to privacy, were discussed.

The Congressman said, "Democracy is the most difficult of all forms of government. The problems will continue to persist until every citizen makes it his own responsibility to keep abreast of the important issues of the day and to make his feelings known to his representatives."

"The views of constituents do make a difference," he said, "it is when citizens fail to exercise their responsibilities, that government can become the agent of a few special interest groups. When people speak out their collective voices are heard and it is then that change is indeed possible."

"For years," Drinan said, "we went about a policy of building huge highways connecting our principal cities only to realize that this highway system, which was the greatest public works endeavor in the history of mankind, has virtually made our cities undesirable places in which to live. Now at last as a result of citizens' demands we are having some success in efforts to make highway funds available for the development of mass transit systems."

"On Aug. 3," he said, "the House of Representatives completed action on a conference report on the Federal Highway Act of 1973. This bill contained a compromise provision for funding public mass transit, which would allow up to two hundred million dollars a year in highway trust funds to be used for the purchase of buses, and ultimately for the purchase of rail stock, and construction of rail transit facilities."

Congressman Drinan indicated that while the bill is not an overwhelming victory for mass transit it does represent a positive and important step forward for realistic transportation policies.

Drinan said the present public mood is also responsible for some of the proposals now before the Congress for a sweeping overhaul of campaign financing procedures. This is one area, the Congressman said, in which public action or inaction will be the determining factor.

"There are several good bills before the Congress including the Udall Bill, which I co-sponsored, and which provide for meaningful campaign financing reform. These proposals, however, will not be successful unless there is public demand for appropriate reform," Drinan said.

The Udall Bill, would make candidates completely responsible for expenditures over $100 and also sets strict limits on the size of contributions by any person or committee to any candidate or political committee. No contributions would be received without the authorization of the candidate.

The bill would provide for increased public financing of campaigns by providing government matching funds for small donations. Presidential, Senate and House candidates would be given free television time, much of which would have to be used for live appearances. This bill also sets tighter limitations on overhaul campaign expenditures in all federal elections.

"Unless we have meaningful campaign reform," the Congressman said, "it will become increasingly difficult for citizens without means to be elected to responsible positions in their government."

The Congressman also discussed recent Congressional actions on the Alaskan Pipeline, and other issues including trade reform measures and legislation he has sponsored, which would outlaw wiretapping and other means of electronic surveillance.

A question and answer period followed the Congressman's remarks.

I will continue to serve the finest quality beef. I will accept no substitutes. If at times some beef items on my menu are not available, you will understand.

In the meantime I am expanding my menu with other items: lamb, fresh fish, lobsters, etc.

You will also find the number of items on my salad bar are expanding too, while my cheese bar continues to offer many varieties of fine cheese.

I repeat: If at times some of my beef items are not available you know it is because I do not compromise and buy less than choice or prime beef.

Carmen Proposes City Health Program

"Newton should seek more comprehensive community health service programs in cooperation with Newton—Wellesley Hospital," according to mayoral candidate Bill Carmen.

Carmen is a member of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee of the Newton based Health Planning Council for Greater Boston, and is past president of the Newton Mental Health Association.

"The Newton Wellesley Hospital has excellent facilities," Carmen said, "and the hospital staff is anxious to implement programs that would benefit all Newton citizens. It is my belief that city officials should begin to work more closely with hospital officials to develop a comprehensive community health program for the people of Newton."

Carmen stated he favors the expansion of some programs, and the initiation of new services.

"There is a continuing need for services like lead-based paint studies in young children, and school-hospital cooperative programs that anticipate and treat the health problems of school age children," Carmen said.

"Many of our senior citizens would welcome attention to their special needs. We should investigate the demand for an energetic 'meals on wheels' program in the city. Ambulatory or 'mobile' care programs would provide a great service for senior citizens as well as residents of all ages," continued the mayoralty candidate.

"And all of Newton would benefit from the continuation and expansion of screening programs for such common problems as hypertension, glaucoma, diabetes, cholesterol, and nutritional deficiencies," he added.

Carmen says he thinks "coordination between Newton-Wellesley Hospital and the City of Newton would be improved with more regular participation of city representatives in relevant hospital affairs."

"I am confident," he concluded, "that with careful planning Newton residents could soon enjoy a wide range of useful health services."

Mayor Asks EPA For Some Answers

Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann posed several questions to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in the wake of its hearings on transportation control in Boston.

"While the basic concept of a reduction in automobile trips to the core of the metropolitan area is desirable, there are several questions which should be resolved prior to the institution of the proposed strategy," the mayor told the EPA.

Will improved and increased mass transit be provided, he asked.

"The provision of such transit would appear necessary in conjunction with any strategy to discourage or regulate the use of passenger vehicles," he commented.

He also asked the EPA to provide some information on provisions for transportation

"This consideration is especially relevant to a community such as Newton," the mayor said," which is located in part within and in part outside of Rt. 128."

Candidate White Proposes New Transportation System For City

Ward 7 aldermanic candidate Mark White has proposed "Dial-A-Ride" bus service as a way to meet Newton's transportation needs.

White says the new service should be initiated in Oak Hill as soon as possible as a demonstration project financed by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1970.

"When I announced my candidacy for alderman," White said, "I discussed Newton's transportation crisis. I am now ready to propose a first step towards solving this problem."

White explained that the "Dial-A-Ride" service combines the convenience of private automobiles with the economy of public transportation. He said the service is now in use in several cities throughout the United States.

"In Haddonfield, N.J., I personally had the unique opportunity to observe a "Dial-A-Ride" system in operation," stated White.

"An individual who wishes to go to any point within Haddonfield phones his request to a control center which dispatches the nearest mini-bus to his house. Waiting time is rarely more than 12 minutes. Once on his way, there are at most only a few stops before a passenger reaches his destination. A rider can even arrange for a regular daily ride," according to White.

According to White, one of the most important financial benefits of "Dial-A-Ride" will be a decrease in a person's daily cost of commuting to Boston. He says local "Dial-A-Ride" service will cost slightly more than conventional public transportation, but less than present taxi fares.

"The first step of implementing "Dial-A-Ride" in Newton," White said, "should be a demonstration project to serve the Oak Hill area, and Parker and Center Streets to Newton Corner.

"I believe Oak Hill would be the best demonstration area for this system because the MBTA bus route serving it does not enter other municipalities, the area is very dependent on the use of private automobiles, and the residents of Oak Hill do not have easy access to express public transit routes into Boston," continued White.

White says an attractive public transportation system is a necessity in Newton because of growing traffic congestion.

"According to the area-wide TOPICS plan for Newton, traffic congestion is already severe in Newton Corner, Newton Centre, Auburndale, and along Beacon Street. The new Chestnut Hill Mall will add to this problem. To quote TOPICS, 'New development will considerably augment the current problems along Route 9, perhaps beyond tolerable limits,'" White stated.

"Recently the far ranging effects of over-dependence on the automobile were brought home to the residents of Chestnut Street when proposed widening of their street threatened to destroy sidewalk trees as well as increase traffic volume on a street heavily frequented by children. The residents of Newton should realize that this project is not unique. Similar widening projects have been proposed in other areas, including Commonwealth avenue," he continued.

"Heavy reliance on the automobile means heavy personal expenses as well as great cost to the society at large," White observed. "According to the U.S. Department of Transportation, it cost at least 13.6c per mile to operate a car in metropolitan areas before the recent rise in the price of gasoline.

"The Environmental Protection Agency has stated that heavy air pollution in the Boston area will require a limitation of automobile usage within Route 128. Newton must be prepared with an alternative to private automobiles before these restrictions take effect."

"The current MBTA bus service in Newton is underused due to the infrequency of service, inflexibility of routes, lack of sheltered and comfortable waiting stations, poor scheduling, and outmoded and ill maintained buses. A totally new concept is needed, not superficial improvements on a hopelessly inadequate system." White concluded.

Weeks Junior High Enrollment Date Set

Students, new to the area serviced by Weeks Junior High School, may register at the school for fall enrollment during the week of Aug. 26.

Counselors will be ayailable at the school to assist new students on Wednesday, Aug. 29, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.; Thursday, Aug. 30, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.; and Friday, Aug. 31, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Students are asked to call 244-4740 or 4742 for an appointment. They are also asked to bring a birth certificate, transfer card, health record and transcript from previous schools. Parents are also asked to accompany their children to sht school.

Protect Property

Police Chief William F. Quinn announced recently that people priority on Operation Identificationon Operation Identification engraving tools.

The chief stated, "Locally, dormitory thefts were reduced after Operation Identification was introduced to resident students, as a result it is our hope Newton's young people will mark their valuables before leaving for school and take with them the Operation Identification stickers that warn thieves of the markings that assist law enforcement officials in returning stolen goods.

"In addition," the chief continued, "anyone entering a dormitory situation should remember, that although the old school feeling may exist, desire to 'take' may be stronger, and everyone should take minimum precautions to protect their valuables. Call 244-1212 to reserve an engraver.

State Bans 'Net Listing' Practice

Sen. John Olver (D-Amherst) and Richard H. Hallett, of Framingham, president of the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards (MAREB), today called to the attention of consumers the passage of new legislation which prohibits real estate brokers from accepting so-called "Net listings."

The bill (S. 490) sponsored by Olver and supported by MAREB is now Chapter 330 of the Acts of 1973. It expressly prohibits real estate brokers from accepting a net listing, which is an agreement to sell real estate for a stated price and allow the broker to keep as a commission any amount of money received for the sale of said real estate in excess of the stated amount.

Hallett said this now makes illegal the highly questionable and unethical practice of agreeing to secure for the seller a fixed amount for the sale of real estate

Berry Raps Mayor And School Board

Mayoral candidate Elliott Berry announced his unqualified support for Newton Junior College and pledged to do "whatever necessary to insure that the city provide the funds to keep it operating at its present level."

Berry made his remarks after a meeting with Newton Junior College President Charles W. Dudley, recently.

The candidate assailed the Newton School Committee for "totally abdicating its responsibility as board of trustees of the college by doing absolutely nothing to aid college officials in finding alternative funding for its survival."

"The college, one of the oldest municipal colleges in New England, is facing extinction thanks to a resolution passed by the School Committee last spring which calls for an end to all municipal funding for the college by 1975," Berry explained.

"With the current policy of the state regional community college board opposing the entry of any new schools into the state system, the realization of the School Committee's resolution would spell an end to the college which serves 450 full-time students, 70 percent of whom are frm Newton," Berry stated in making his announcement.

"It would be a tragedy," he continued, "if this facility were withdrawn from the community. The percentage of students who make good on this opportunity to turn their lives around is astounding."

Berry also praised the college for providing important services to the community and an inexpensive, quality education for Newton residents.

"This is but another example of the Mann administration's total lack of regard for the future of Newton's less affluent and prestigious community," charged Berry.

He commended college officials for having exerted the most "energetic and creative efforts" to obtain state funding in an attempt to relieve the city of at least part of the burden of the $500,000 budget.

At the same time he chided both Mayor Theodore D. Mann and the Newton School Committee for its failure "to lift a finger to save this most effective and needed educational facility."

Berry also scoffed at suggestions that the college raise the price of tuition to ease its financial crisis.

"That would change the nature of the school entirely," he noted, "from a public school serving predominately working men and women into another private school for the rich."

Adult Bicyclists Beware

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department announced recently that he is concerned over the habits and attitudes of older bicyclists.

"Complaints have been received that many adults on bicycles are riding on sidewalks, riding without lights at night, riding on the left, the wrong side of the street, and on each case reflects on the adult rider's ability to conform.

"The best rule to follow is that a bicycle adheres to the same rules as the automobile. Ride on the right side, close to the curb, observe all traffic regulations, stop signs (indicate dangerous flow of traffic), red lights and pedestrian lights, signal turns, observe traffic to the rear, be cautious of parked cars, pedestrians, etc. And when in groups, be sure to ride single file," Quinn said.

The Chief continued, "There seems to be an antagonism existing between adult cyclists and the car drivers, and with the new found interest in bicycling, many assume both roles.

"In addition, many cyclists adhere to the feeling that 'no law for cycling is a good law,' or 'these rules of the road do not apply to good bicyclists.' With this as a state of mind, cyclists all over the country are being injured, maimed, or killed."

"There is a movement," stated the Chief, "To register and supervise bicycles along the line of the regulations and laws that pertain to the automobile. At present, there are many bills in the General Court to that effect, and in legislative halls across the nation. This will come to pass, unless cyclists start to police themselves."

"In the early history of the automobile, auto clubs (the present AAA) promulgated rules to improve traffic safety. There is no reason why good cyclists could not advise other cyclists to ride on the right side of the road, make proper stops at signals, use lights at night, and generally improve the fun, safety, recreational and transportation value of good cycling. It is worth the effort when you think of the alternative: more laws, periodic inspection, licensing fees, etc."

"We have had reports of bicycles being stolen, particularly the 10-speed models, and when we find or recover these bicycles, in the majority of the cases, they either do not have security chains, or the chain and lock was not used. Carelessness in leaving bicycles unattended, or unsecured, leads to many thefts. We hope in the fall to add bike racks in business areas where bycycles may be locked in securely. Until that time, cyclists should give some thought to security. Again a moment of thought and effort is better than the alternative—loss," concluded Chief Quinn.

Worried about your car's paint job? Keep a careful eye on the leading edges of your hood and fenders. Here is where your car's finish takes the worst beating. Grit of all kinds can really blast a finish away especially at today's high speeds. Be on the lookout for paint chips along these surfaces, and when you spot them, touch them up immediately to prevent corrosion. A good past wax will keep these edges protected if you renew it often. Now is the time to put your car in shape for fall and winter!

Let NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 supply you with the parts to put your car in shape. We carry one of the most complete stocks of parts in the entire Newton area featuring the United Delco line. BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Fri. 8-7, Sat. 8-5.

Fosters Donate Brandeis Lab

A $700,000 gift toward construction of a laboratory animal research and teaching facility has been made to Brandeis University by Dr. and Mrs. Henry L. Foster of Newton Centre.

It is hoped construction of the facility, to be known as the Henry and Lois Foster Biomedical Research Laboratories, will commence in 1974.

In announcing the gift, Brandeis University President Marver H. Bernstein said that the proposed facility will be used for teaching biochemistry, biology and psychology, at the graduate and undergraduate levels, as well as serving the University's newest science resource, the Rosenstiel Basic Medical Sciences Research Center.

Dr. Foster, a member of the Brandeis Board of Fellows, is an internationally-known authority in the field of laboratory animal medicine and the specialized breeding of defined laboratory animals for research. He is founder and president of the Charles River Breeding Laboratories, the world's largest producer of laboratory animals, headquartered in Wilmington, with companies throughout the U.S., France, England, Italy, Canada and Japan.

Dr. Harlyn O. Halvorson, director of the Rosenstiel Basic Medical Sciences Research Center, described the new Laboratories as "essential for us at Rosenstiel and for other departments, too. We cannot, for example, build a research program in the important area of immunobiology without such a highly specialized facility for laboratory animal research."

He stressed that the facility would be "one of the finest of its type in the country, with the highly-controlled, disease-free environment so critical to successful biomedical research."

Dr. Halvorson emphasized that the new Brandeis facility will meet and exceed federal regulations prescribing types of personnel to operate the program.

Commenting on the gift, Brandeis President Bernstein said that Dr. Foster has "an enormous amount of professional expertise that has been extremely valuable to Brandeis in planning this facility. Thus we have benefited from a successful and enlightened executive contributing both his generosity and his knowledge to the research arm of a major university."

Dr. Foster earned his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree at Middlesex Veterinary College in 1946 on the campus which two years later became the site of Brandeis University. He is a diplomat in the American College of Laboratory Animal Medicine; has been a guest lecturer and taken part in scientific symposia in his field; has published a wide variety of professional material; and is associated with numerous other professional societies and groups devoted to national health and research programs.

In civic life, Dr. Foster is a past president of the Rotary Club of Wilmington; is a vice president and director of the Century Bank and Trust Co. in Somerville; and is a corporator of Reading Savings Bank.

He is married to the former Lois Bronstein of Brookline. Their three sons are James, 22, a sophomore at Suffolk Law School; John, 19, a dean's list student entering his junior year at Brandeis; and Neal, 16, a junior at Beaver Country Day School.

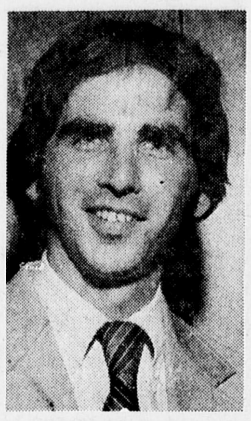
Doric Dames Perservere

Despite heat wave, vacations at the shore, and children at home for the summerl Doric Dames continue to function as State House tour guides and to attract new volunteers.

Their latest schedule included two orientations and training sessions for new guides at Doric Hall, the State House.

Assisting the Dames this summer have been a talented group of 35 Junior Guides recruited from schools in the Greater Boston area. In appreciation for their help, the Dames have arranged a luncheon for them at Parker House on Friday, August 23, following their receipt of citations fo their work from Governor Sargent. In charge of the Junior group is Mrs. Dominic Mele of Roslindale. Assisting from Newton is Mrs. Ivan R. Samuels.

Many of the Dames who are working on the luncheon will be hustling back from their tour of the Henry Francis Dupont Winterthur Museum. The tour will take place on Aug. 21 and 22. Charles A. Pearce of Hingham who is accepting reservations for the tour has also worked actively on the Junior Program.



KENNETH BAGLEY

GEORGE GOVERMAN

City Solicitor Names Two New Assistants

Kenneth Bagley and George Goverman have been appointed assistnat city solicitors in Newton's Law Department.

Their appointment brings the department, headed by City Solicitor Howard Levine, up to its full complement of four assistant city solicitors.

Bagley, 26, is a graduate of Boston College and Suffolk University Law School. He worked in the Law Department as an undergraduate law intern while attending law school.

Bagley lives at 75 Aspen Ave., Auburndale.

Goverman, 29, received a B.A. from Harvard University, with a major in physics, and an M.A. in teaching from Johns Hopkins University, and was graduated from Harvard University Law School.

Previously Goverman was associated with the law firm of Zalkind and Silverglate, Boston. He lives in CAmbridge.

Levine said of the two new staff members, "They are both extraordinarily competent and dedicated. They've already proved to me what an asset they're going to be to the city."

"For example," Levine said, "in four weeks we've wiped out a great deal of the backlog of work in the department. I'm delighted that they're here."

Captain Henry L. Cassani, USN, commanding officer at NAS South Weymouth, said extra police details are being assigned to direct the traffic flow to and from the base for the four-hour air program each day featuring world famed parachutists, stunt flyers and other spectacular acts.

The air show on each day will begin at 1 p.m. and will continue to approximately 5 p.m., featuring the famed Red Devils Precision Acrobatic Team, world champions in 1972 and the "Flying Pierces," a husband-wife team that specializes in wing-walking at high altitudes. Waban Chiefs Have 19-1 Record In International League; Playoffs Start

Some people say that major league baseball plays too long a season, (in fact, a lot of people do) but for an amateur baseball league, the Newton International League must take the cake. Right about this point in the summer people start wondering if that season will ever end.

Well, last week it did, sort of. At least the regular season is past. Now, bring on the playoffs.

The Waban Chiefs blanked Totem Pole, 4-0, nipped Carson Post, 5-3, and beat Oak Hill, 6-2 to continue in the style they have become accustomed to and annex the league pennant with a 19-1 mark.

Robbie Alevizos pitched a phenomenal game against Totem Pole, permitting just one hit and striking out 14 men.

John Garabedian was tough on the Waban batters, too, but the Chiefs made the most of three walks and singles by Alevizos and Steve DiBenedetto to clinch the win.

Phil Small survived six walks to pitch a two-hitter, and his opportunistic teammates took advantage of five walks to best Carson Post.

Waban got some offensive action against Oak Hill when Tom Moore, two hits, and Lenny Kreiser, two RBI's, showed some spark. DiBenedetto hurled a no-hitter for five innings and settled for a two-hitter with seven whiffs.

The Boys' Club played excellently in the final week to clinch second place. A 13-2 trouncing of the Highlands AA and a no-hit 4-0 decision over Our Lady's enabled Boys' Club to pass St. Bernard's and finish at 14-5-1.

Steve Cononico drilled a single, triple, and a home run and accounted for five runs batted in in the rout of the Highlands. Greg Pappas cracked a homer and a total of four players besides Cononico hit safely twice.

Pappas' magic arm was responsible for the no-hitter in the last game of the season. Gary Hascunda smashed three hits in support of him.

St. Bernard's completed its season on a sour note. The Highlands scored a 5-4 upset to knock St. B's down a knot in the standings. The Highlands performed the trick on just four hits with John Amicangoli's suicide squeeze providing the gamewinner.

Totem Pole whipped Upper Falls twice in the last two nights of play to squeeze into fourth place and gain a playoff berth against Waban.

Dom Russo's two-hitter with seven strikeouts and a clutch single by Matt Berry gave the Braves the first game, 5-2.

Tom Carey limited the Lions to just one hit the next night, albeit a two-run triple by Steve McElroy, Bob Garabedian came through with a run-scoring single in the last inning to hand the Braves a 3-2 win in the final game.

Upper Falls was also involved in a real slugfest with the Elks. The Lions scored eight runs in the first inning, but had to struggle to pull out a 12-11 win. There were just 11 hits in the strange game.

The Elks also split two games with Our Lady's. The Red Sox won, 4-1, and lost, 8-2.

In the victory, Ron Kosmo hurled a three hitter to practically eliminate the Lancers from playoff consideration. Totem Pole's wins in the last two days did the rest.

Our Lady's won the other game easily. Dave Bracken fired a two-hitter, and drove in two runs and got plenty of support from a 10-hit attack.

Post 440 also split. 440 smashed the Oak Hill Cubs, 11-0, on a mere seven hits, including two by Larry McGrath, but Gary Sementelli provided most of the show with a superb one-hitter.

Carson Post edged 440, 9-8 in the other game, surviving a last-inning scare and Steve Sera's three-run homer and two other hits.

The playoffs begin this week with Waban facing Totem Pole and the Boys' Club meeting St. Bernard's.

Hebner: From Third To Home

By Ken Burns

Richard J. Hebner is a ball player whose chances of getting into the Hall of Fame 1 day are a bit slimmer than his talents. Meaning, although he has the tools to make it (and some veteran sages of the game have said he will), entry will still be dependent upon the procedural inadequacies as regulated by the Hall's veteran's committee.

Still, it would be nice if he did enter. Particularly because he is one player who will have had a devoted following of fans who have admired him since they met him. And there are many, many of those.

My six-year-old nephew is one such individual.

Scott Jacques was barely five when Rich took a moment to meet him at Veterans Stadium in Philly last season. Although a bit too young to know roster names or to place faces, Scott was nonetheless impressed and tickled by meeting the personable 3rd baseman from Norwood. (Scott lived on the South Shore in Braintree until age four).

I had brought Scott and his father out to the stadium early so that, if nothing else, they could at least see Richie close up during practice. Dan, my brother-in-law had a Polaroid camera in tow also.

Richie was with Luke Walker in the dugout and so I tried to wait until Rich was off to himself for a moment (otherwise, I felt I'd be insulting Luke to not ask him to meet Scott for a second). But since no such separate moment developed, I finally asked Rich if he'd mind meeting "my little nephew from Boston". RJH perked up when I mentioned where the youngster was from. "He's from Boston!! Whereiszee? Where is he?"

I led him over to the third base side railing where he picked up Scott, planted his tyke-size feet down onto the artificial turf and considerately posed for a snapshot.

Scott played Mr. Coy N' Bashful throughout the episode as if he had to kiss and make up after an argument with a girl cousin. But later and during the game he was quite specifically aware of where Richie was: on the field, in the batting order, on the basepaths. . As a resident of suburban Philadelphia, he was supposed to have rooted for the Phils, as he had in the two or three games he'd been to before.

Not that fateful day. On that day he cheered for the Pirates. It was a close game until Richie Hebner helped break things open with a homer in the seventh. Hid dad and I noticed Scott to be a wee bit ecstatic over that clout. We encouraged him to believe that Richie had hit it for him, mostly because it was a beautiful opportunity to heighten his love of the game, as well as favoritism for one certain Norwoodite.

This story is but one of hundreds. Untold hundreds due to the time Rich takes to be one-on-one for a minute with that many youngsters. They each have their own particular fondness for RJH for their own particular reasons. Whether he's met them at a park, in a hospital, on the street, no matter - they'll be lifetime residents of his cheering section. From here to . . . .Cooperstown?

Upper Falls Advances To National Division Finals

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

The Newton National Division was starting to resemble the major leagues for a while. It was just one of those things where the long season was getting topped by the longer playoff season.

Pennant-winning Upper Falls was game, but that didn't aid much in the Panthers' survival. After splitting two games and tying one with fourth-place Newton Centre it seemed the fourth game would finally decide the best-of-three series.

Nope. Another tie. Upper Falls scored one run in the bottom of the sixth inning to knot Centre, 1-1 and force a fifth game.

Paul Ciccone blasted three hits, including a triple, and southpaw Mark Fogel allowed only one hit and fanned 10 batters, but it took a double by Jon Rosenberg, scoring Dave Capelucci, to save the Panthers again.

A ground ball hit by Joe Astone after an error, gave Centre its only run in the fourth inning.

Finally, after a weekend of rest, it all came to an end, and the semi-final series went to the underdog. Centre surprised the Falls, 3-2 to advance to a finals match-up with St. Bernard's.

Larry White cuffed Jim Kavanaugh for three hits and Kevin Moore scattered five hits to best the Panthers' ace.

Keith Glasser cracked two more hits for the winners as they scored one run in the fourth inning and two more in the sixth.

Upper Falls got its two runs in the sixth and threatened for more, but Kavanaugh bunted into a double play.

St. Bernard's showed it had done more than just sit around the get fat while Centre slugged it out with Upper Falls. St. Bernard's waited for nearly a week after knocking off the third-place Boys' Club in two straight games.

St. Bernard's looked well-rested, but fit as it took a one-game lead in the final series, 4-2.

Jim McCarthy, Jim Blake, and Jim Dumel took turns creaming Centre pitcher John Carey to the tune of two hits each and Blake and Dumel combined on the St. Bernard's mound for a good-enough effort. Blake picked up the win.

Two runs in the fourth inning and two more in the sixth.

Upper Falls got its two runs in the sixth and threatened for more, but Kavanaugh bunted into a double play.

St. Bernard's showed it had done more than just sit around and get fat while Centre slugged it out with Upper Falls. St. Bernard's waited for nearly a week after knocking off the third-place Boys' Club in two straight games.

Two runs in the fourth inning with the winners' on top, 2-1, provided the difference.

The second game of best-of-five series went the other way as Kevin Moore registered his second victory of the week, a two-hit, 1-0 shutout.

John Connolly, the only player in the game to get two hits, stroked an RBI single in the first inning for the game's only run.

'Newton Day' At Aquarium

Monday, Aug. 20, is "Newton Day" at the New England Aquarium.

This special day is set aside in recognition of the important contribution Newton's citizens have made to the building of the Aquarium. Newton Aldermen are invited as guests to visit the Aquarium on Newton Day.

As a special token of the Aquarium's appreciation, any Newton youngster interested in starting his own aquarium can get a big boost if he visits the Aquarium on the 20th. If a youngster identifies himself as a Newton resident, he will get a live guppy as a gift, plus instructions for setting up and maintaining his own aquarium and special tips on caring for his new fish.

According to the Aquarium's Curator, Lou Garibaldi, guppies are excellent fish for the young, would-be aquarist. In addition to being hardy, they are easy to care for and under proper conditions, multiply rapidly.

In addition to the instruction sheet, a hotline to the New England Aquarium will be established so that if a youngster has a question concerning getting started with his own aquarium or caring for his guppy, he can get expert information immediately by calling 742-8830.

The Aquarium is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends and holidays. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children 5 through 14, and under 5 are admitted free.

Student Spends Year In Madrid

Miss Cecelia Loscocco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Joseph Loscocco, 28 Crosby Rd., Chestnut Hill, will study this year at the Madrid center of the Institute of European Studies.

Miss Loscocco is a junior, majoring in Spanish at Boston College.

At each of the six Institute centers in Austria, England, France, Germany, and Spain, American college undergraduates have the opportunity of studying at a European university with European professors.

Institute students attend university courses — supplemented by the Institute's own classes and tutorials — taught by European faculty in their native languages.

The central objective of the Institute's programs is to strengthen the student's educational experience by exposing him to a different intellectual tradition and to integrate this experience, through a transfer of academic credits, with his American college program of studies.

The Institute of European Studies, one of the largest American foreign study programs, regularly draws students from over 400 colleges and universities across the country. Since its founding in Vienna in 1950, the Chicago-based Institute has provided more than 6,000 students the opportunity of studying in a regular academic program in Europe.

The total enrollment for 1973-74 is 650, with most students participating in the full-year programs. The Institute also has summer language programs in Madrid, Paris, and Freiburg.

Additional information on the Institute's various programs is available upon request. Contact the Director of Admissions, 875 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Tennis Clinic Helps Local Girls Compete

The Windsor Club of Waban hosted 13 girls in a tennis clinic sponsored by the New England Lawn Tenis Association on Aug. 8, 9, and 10.

The clinic, a new feature, is an expanding junior program and was devoted primarily to those girls who did not participate in national events, but whose records in New England warranted special recognition.

The five-hour per day schedule called for both match play and drill work, with supervision and coaching provided by Tabor Browder, Ruth Jeffrey and Guiliana Groat.

The program is aimed at closing the gap between New England players and those from other states where climate allows year-round play.

Clinics such as these provide an opportunity for intense practice and also bring players together in non-competitive situations, promoting a sense of unity and working with, rather than against each other.

DESIRES ATTENTION

Q. I was born on July 11, 1962 at 7:19 a.m. in Norwich, Conn. and I would like to know a little about myself. I have one brother and two sisters and would like to know what I could learn about myself to get along better with them. S.M.B.

A. Your chart indicates a magnetic personality, considerable pride and a tendency to view matters dramatically.

Part of your problem is likely to be your desire to attract attention, not only occasionally but wherever and whenever you can. In trying to do so you are apt to resort to various means.

Try giving your sisters and brothers an opportunity to "shine" once in a while. Above all avoid giving others the impression that you are a "show off".

You are a very sensitive young lady and would try to separate your feelings from your ability to see things and condistions as they are, logically. Your emotions are apt to interfere with your reasoning ability.

In love and pleasure you are apt to be quite independent, not likely to be influenced by the opinions of others. You have your own ideas about human relationships.

When you get older you are likely to fall in love at first sight but bear in mind first impressions are not necessarily right and may lead to some very disturbing experiences.

On the whole your judgment in matters relating to your affections are not the best and you may attract some one who is unreliable and who would take advantage of you. Don't be gullible or too trusting. Respect conventions and traditions and you should eventually make a fine marriage.

T-Day Taggers Tow Ticketers

Virginia Payette says:

It's almost impossible to find anything funny about air pollution. But, once again, again, "Fun City" has crashed through.

In the past few years New York has been getting tough with chimneys that shoot pollutants among its skyscrapers and turn the air into unhealthy brown goo.

And, strangely enough, they've almost pulled it off. There are days now when a body can walk its streets without going into a choking spasm.

People are even discovering, much to their astonishment, that Manhattan isn't really a city of crybabies, after all. With the improved air, eyes have stopped streaming. (There's still plenty to weep over, but you can't blame it on smog.)

And so, flushed with success, the City Fathers finally decided to crack down on the biggest offender of all: they 840,000 automobiles that clog the streets daily. (They're 10 years late on this, but for New York that's about par.)

The first target was motorists who double and triple park (some even use the handiest sidewalk), individuals who park in front of fire hydrants and driveways, and those who pay no attention to overtime limits or "no parking" zones.

Get those jokers off the streets, the City Fathers figured, and traffic would begin to move across town for the first time in years.

(The way things are now, New Yorkers can reach their destinations faster on foot than by automobile, cab or bus. Whether they get through the exhaust fumes alive is just one more challenge that makes Fun City so exciting.

Out went the order to the police: be tough, ruthless, even. Don't be scared off by a medical or diplomatic plate. Clear the midtown streets at all costs—even if you have to haul away illegally parked vehicles.

"It was an elite force: 20 of New York's "finest." They had instructions to issue 100 summonses each on "T (for ticket Day," and another 2,000 the day after that. Then their superiors would decide whether the goal had been "realistic."

Well, you can imagine. Right off the bat the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association screamed about the "quota system. And the total for "T-Day?" Only 300 tickets.

Several officers came back after giving out only 15 summonses. (Any tourist can spot more violations than that just walking about his hotel block.) After a little pep talk with their bosses, the cops moved faster for a couple of weeks. So did traffic.

Then the secret of their reluctant ticket-writing figures came out: along with doctors, diplomats, the press and delivery trucks, one of the worst parking offenders in town was the police themselves.

And you can picture their reaction—after a hard day chasing muggers—upon finding their personal automobile had been ticketed. Cops whose cars had been towed away were even more furious. Not only did they have to pay a parking fine, they were stuck with a $50 towing charge.

They went crying to higher-ups, who had, back in the good old days, voided all their parking tickets. No luck. The towing charge would be overlooked—this once—but from now on, orders are that police have to obey parking regulations just like anybody else.

That's where the situation stands now. But cynics among us look for a "slow down" any day now. And it won't have anything to do with the traffic flow.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Push a button and an eerie light glows within. The strange black box — not much bigger than a bread box — hums like something from the soundtrack of "Startrek." "Hmmmmmmmm" go the molecules of your lamb chop. Is it turning into a Martian? No, it's simply cooking from the inside out.

Such is the wonder of cooking with a microwave oven!

Microwave energy can zap food hot in seconds instead of minutes, or minutes instead of hours. Close to 1 million microwave ovens are in use, including a new one in Mrs. Nixon's $50,000 White House kitchen. By 1976, according to estimates, one out of four ranges will be microwave-equipped.

What's the big appeal? Speed of course. It's the ultimate appliance for today's short-order heater-upper of prepackaged convenience food.

Despite the emphasis on don't-do-it-yourself cooking, the microwave does have special appeal to the nutrition-wise, weight-wary cook who avoids fattening convenience foods.

Here are some diet-wise tricks I've developed with my microwave oven, a countertop portable.

+ Scramble eggs right on the breakfast plate, no fat added. Simply fork scramble and cook two minutes. Lean breakfast ham can be microwave-heated on the same plate, no frying!

+Quick-steam low-calorie lobster in its shell.

+Cook fresh vegetables with no water at all. For crunchy asparagus, lay the spears on a paper plate and microwave-heat only until warmed through. Wash, plastic-wrap and heat corn on the cob. "Boil" potatoes in their own skin, retaining vitamins. No water needed.

+Pop popcorn right in its own serving dish with no oil at all. Cover it first!

+Freeze your own fresh vegetables in season. Use your microwave oven to "blanch" (quick-steam) washed and sliced vegetables before freezing. The heat kills enzymes that cause deterioration.

+Microwave energy cooks from the inside out so it's very efficient at melting the fat trapped in meat, without evaporation of moisture. "De-fat" franks or sausages by slitting them open and cooking them on layers of paper towel. Bacon, too!

+The microwave makes it easy for a dieter to serve herself a single meal: meat and vegetables heated on a plate is easier than a sandwich!

+Fish fillets can be poached in a small amount of wine, without losing their shape or inner moisture.

+Soups, sauces and stews can be made ahead and refrigerated so fat will rise to the surface and harden. At dinnertime lift off fat and reheat in microwave.

+Make your own frozen diet dinners! Cook extras of favorite low-calorie meals and assemble the ingredients on serving plates. Wrap and freeze for reheating later.

+Baked apple or other low-calorie fruit desserts can be prepared in less than five minutes.

I Get Letters

I get some interesting letters. How about this one from somebody who signs himself: "Eugene Changey, Maple Heights, Ohio?"

"Dear Mr. Mockridge:

"As Almighty God, I greet you. These past 15 years My Heart has known contentment in these letters which I have dictated through my Son, Personally, to you.

"We have sent more than 3,000 columnists, editors and publishers all over the world only when I was a child and then I perceived the wrongdoing of my ways.

"Today, everywhere I go there are people puffing smoke in my face and in my eyes and on the bus. It is worst on the bus. I don't mind it too much if they are smoking in the street because I can walk to the other side. But in the bus you can't go to the other side because they smoke there, too.

'Please write about this and tell them they are killing us and

Our letters. I would have been almost a physical impossibility for My Son to write personal letters, individually, to each columnist, editor and publisher. Hence, We send these form letters which are Personal indeed.

"Each and every letter, dictated by Me, your LIVING GOD, has a living, loving message to its intended, graceful personage.

"Those who believe in Me shall be rewarded in Heaven—after their long sojourn on earth has ended. No need to say a word to those who disbelieve They will try to find solace, peace, and contentment in hell, but—alas!—to no avail!

"But love is for the living who will not relinquish their self-esteemed right to love Me, their Loving Creator.

"I am not alive to be put in some dusty, musty old Bible. I am alive to fill contentment in every living, blessed heart, here, on earth.

"My Loving Son will blow you a kiss as My Loving Voice trails in the distance. Never will My Holy Name be written on paper. My humble Son will sign this Blessed Letter so that Faith and Hope will accomplish Virtue.

"Prayerfully yours, Eugene Charcey.

"P.S. — Please publish this Blessed Letter in your Gracious Column."

OKAY, Eugene. And keep those letters coming in.

And now, let's look at this one:

"Dear Sir, I understand that you gave up smoking quite a few years ago. Congratulations. You probably are the only sane person in this whole crazy country.

"Except for me, maybe. I gave up smoking when I was a child. I never smoked, really; themselves, too. The damn fools. And it costs them! That's what makes it the most crazy! They are paying to KILL themselves! PAYING for it! Isn't that crazy!

"Thank God you gave up smoking! I love your column!"

The letter, from Schenectady, is signed: "No Chimney No More!"

I sort of like this letter from a lady in Bangor, Me:

"Dear Friend Mockridge, I hope you will agree with me. I don't know. I guess that not many people would. But my problem is this:

"I wrote to Dear Abby and asked her what to do about a woman I know who always puts a quarter onto the plate in church on Sunday and, as God is my witness, she takes a dollar bill OUT!

"Now, I know the usher sees this, but he never says anything. He never stops her! Well, I wrote to Dear Abby about this, but she never answered my letter. I wondered what I should do and I was going to tell the police. But I didn't want to get involved.

"And so I decided as the Good Book says: Do unto others like you would do unto yourself. And so now I put a quarter in the plate and take out a dollar. Nobody ever says anything, and I guess that they know I'm getting even. And I think, after all these years, that it's all right.

"Do you think it's all right? I hope so because I'm going to keep doing it. I liked your column about the woman who stole the milk bottles to get the deposits. I think she is right. Let me know what you think."

Well, what I think is—everybody should keep writing!

Don't Give Up The Bed(room)

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: You have been quoted as saying it is wise for young married couples to decide never to give up their own bedroom to guests. I have always felt you should make your guests as comfortable as possible. Could you please explain your reasoning behind your stand in this matter? — Mrs. E. M., Staten Island, N. Y."

If you have read any anthropological material concerning territorial imperatives among all species of animals and birds, you will realize that some of this possessive feeling concerning one's own territory is present in humans.

In the marriage relatioship, what more personal territory can there be than a couple's bedroom? In giving up that bedroom to a guest, it is unlikely that each one will have the identical feeling of generosity toward the guest.

It is usually the husband, the territory-holding male, who strongly objects to getting out of his bedroom even if he doesn't express his feelings strongly or perhaps at all.

A couple's bedroom should remain firmly theirs. A mother who puts her husband out of the marital bed to take in a sick child, for example, makes a mistake.

If she feels the child needs a night nurse, she would be better off going to the child's room. The man who has been forced to give up his bed to Aunt Hilda undoubtely experiences a certain fury at having to knock on the door in the morning to get his forgotten socks or his watch.

Once you give up your bed or your bedroom for one guest, however important, it can become the expected thing that you give it up for any guest.

Most young couples I know with limited quarters say to people who want to stay the night "We can offer you the sofa—or bring your sleeping bag." They don't make any attempt to give their own bedroom to the guests or make any excuses for retaining it. I think it is a healthy attitude. Post cards, please.

FIXING BLAME

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I wish you would write about the people who always have to find a scapegoat when something happens: 'If you hadn't done that, this wouldn't have happened. It's all your fault!' This always seems hostile to me. There should be some way for people to avoid causing so much distress to others.—M. S., Staten Island, N. Y."

One mark of a mature person is that he does not try to fix blame. It was Harry Truman who said "The buck stops here." It takes strength to be able to say "It happened. Perhaps it was my fault. Let's see if anything can be done about it."

Sometimes nothing can be done, but the mere acceptance that what is done is done helps. The Bible says "Agree with thine adversary quickly." If you are responsible for something that has happened—or even if you aren't—it is useful to stay calm rather than hysterically trying to fix the blame on somebody else.

Often the best solution is a quiet "I did it and I'm sorry." There is really not much answer to that. And how much more comfortable the world wold be if people stopped trying to fix the blame in minor social and business matters.

Nixon's Isolation

By Marquis Childs

Preparing his answer to the Watergate charges President Nixon is even more isolated, if that is possible, than in the recent past. As a high-ranking Republican with at least limited access puts it, "President Nixon is conferring with President Nixon and almost no one else."

When and how he will respond perhaps at this stage even the President himself cannot say. Since the first phase of the Watergate hearings continued beyond the August 3 recess of Congress, he could conceivably put off his response until some time in September.

Those with some slight access to the White House believe the President—given his resourceful sense of timing—will speak out when Congress is away. He may choose a limited form of press conference with representatives of the wire services and three television commentators. The guess, however, is that he will go all out in a hard-charging television spectacular.

Indications are that opinion is beginning to turn against the Watergate committee, with the press accused of overplaying the scandals to "get Nixon." Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey reports that 60 percent of his mail takes this line and others on Capitol Hill report a similar shift from anti to pro Nixon. The public opinion polls, however, continue to show an increase in the President's disapproval rating.

Against this background the President can don the martyr's robe and make a highly emotional appeal for sympathy. This would accord with the 10-year cycle of Nixon crises that have marked his rise and fall and rise again.

The greatest test came in 1952 when newspapers exposed the fact that, as Senator, he accepted a private fund from wealthy California businessmen to supplement his Senate salary.

He had been nominated as the running mate with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. With the furor over the secret fund blowing up in blacker and blacker headlines, powerful figures in the Republican party, including Thomas E. Dewey, twice previously the standard-bearer, urged that he be dropped.

Nixon's political career seemed about to end in disgrace, with no word from Eisenhower.

Then, as now, Nixon isolated himself from all but two or three intimate associates. One was William P. Rogers, who became Attorney General in the Eisenhower Administration and is presently Secretary of State. With only ominous silence from Eisenhower, Nixon got television time to make his famous Checkers speech.

In a highly emotional performance the Vice-Presidential candidate defended his right to accept the gift of a spaniel named Checkers and virtuously estolled his wife for her "good cloth coat." This was a sideswipe at the charge of mink-coat giveaways in the Truman Administration.

The performance drew a half-million letters and telegrams, virtually all favorable. Thoughtful observers were appalled at what they considered the demagoguery of the speech. Walter Lippmann wrote that he felt as though he had heard a resort to lynch law.

But it turned the tide with Eisenhower. Nixon went from California to West Virginia where Ike was campaigning. In a private meeting Eisenhower embraced him and called him "my boy." Nixon wept.

Ten years later there was another emotional outburst with a sad ending. Defeated for Governor of California by Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, Nixon insisted on facing the assembled press and denouncing them with the conclusion, "You won't have Richard Nixon to kick around any more." Standing beside him, Mrs. Nixon could hardly restrain her tears.

The script for a televised spectacular on Watergate writes itself. He will be surrounded by his devoted family, conspicuously his patient wife who has seen him through those other emotional traumas.

Every stop will be pulled out by a master of crowd appeal—innuendo, sympathy for a beleaguered President who has done no wrong. If this is the format, it will be no answer to Watergate but it could very well bring a wave of public support, as happened in the Checkers spectacular.

The President, according to reports from the White House, expects to spend most of August in San Clemente. The brooding figure on the Pacific shore will be contemplating a future in which there is no thought whatsoever of retreat. Out of the emotional tension, the deep half-subconscious drive, he means to bring a new victory.

Scholarships Available For Career Minded Women

Newton College is again offering a limited number of scholarships for women who wish to participate in the college's Career Program, it was reported this week by Mrs. Margaret Dever, director of continuing studies.

The unique Career Program, initiated last year in collaboration with the Newton Public Schools, incorporates internships in the Newton schools along with course work and seminars. College credit is awarded for successful completion of the courses. There are no college prerequisities necessary for enrollment.

Those interested and qualified may take the courses as part of a degree program, for college credit, or to give academic support to their volunteer work.

The internships, which are designed to meet the interests of the continuing education students, include six hours per week of work in the schools with hours arranged. The program also includes 10 to 12 weekly seminars of one and one-half hours each conducted by personnel in the Newton schools and members of the Newton College faculty. The seminars cover a broad range of topics involving the organization, administration and operation of the public school system.

The highly successful Career Program was launched last year by Newton College in an effort to help meet some of the needs of the public schools and to assist area women who seek further educational opportunities.

"We feel that this program provides a constructive way for the college to offer further educational opportunities to interested women. It also provides a means for the college to utilize its physical and human resources in aiding the community," commented Dr. James J. Whalen, president of Newton College.

Aaron Fink, superintendent of the Newton public schools noted that "Newton is fortunate in having a wealth of people who could, particularly with the additional skills they might gain from a program such as this, offer much to the students in our schools. Since we are faced with the constantly rising cost of professional services, the schools should and are seeking creative means to avail themselves of the potential that abounds in this community. We are particularly interested in having more adults working with young people. Further, this provides a good opportunity for a close working relationship with a fine local college that is breaking new ground in the field of teacher training."

Further information about the Career Program and about the available scholarships may be obtained by calling or writing to Mrs. Margaret Dever, Center for Continuing Studies, Newton College, 885 Centre St., Newton Centre. Tel. 332-6700 Ext. 285.

Rotary-Kiwanis Plan First Annual Outing

The First Annual Rotary-Kiwanis Softball, Cook-Out, Singing and Fun Outing will be held on Thursday, Aug. 30, at the Newton YMCA's Camp Chickami in Wayland.

Outing planners have asked members and their guests of the male variety to arrive between 5 and 5:30 p.m., or earlier if swimming is desired.

The planners also guarantee that the outing will continue until "exhaustion" and hinted at the presence of resuscitators in case they are needed.

The cook-out will begin at 6:30 p.m., rain or shine, and the menu calls for a meal of steak, salad, corn, pie, beer and soft drinks.

After the cook-out there will be a sing along with an accompanying banjo and other musical instruments.

The price for the outing is $4 per person and reservations must be made prior to Aug. 24. "No reservations, no steak," warned one committee member.

Camp Chickami is located on the left side of Route 20, heading towards Wayland, between the Arrowhead Nurseries and the Wayland House (the old Ten Acres). Guests have been asked to park along the entrance road, walk down the hill and join the fun.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

"Ping . ping . ping" the musical sound coming from kitchens at this time of year indicates that wise homemakers are taking advantage of available fresh vegetables and fruits by doing some preserving.

With food prices escalating every day, it's almost an urgency to become preserve-proud. Don't be timid about tackling the job. "Putting up" things at home is easier than you think — you'll be amazed at the ease of preserving and swell with pride when you serve your homemade preserves.

Unlike our grandmothers who had to cook sugar-fruit mixtures for hours on end to the jelling point, we now have simplified no-cook or "freezer" jellies and jams which retain their bright color and taste fresh due to the fact that the fruits have never been subjected to heat.

The short boil method of preparing jams and jellies work best when small batches of fruit are cooked at a time. This caution can save time and precious ingredients. Use a large, flat-bottomed pot or preserving kettle (4 to 8 quarts) to allow boiling sugar and fruit mixture to expand. A boiling over accident can be wasteful as well as painful.

You can buy the "ping" producing vacuum-seal type containers in half-pint, pint and quart sizes, or you can save jars all year long. Choose fairly small containers, not more than a pint in capacity and make sure the containers have tight-fitting lids.

Use containers that are meant for food, those with smooth sides such as plastic containers (freezer containers and little tubs from margarine and frozen whipped topping). All must be sturdy enough to withstand freezer temperatures and a dip in boiling water or the very hot rinse cycle in a dishwasher.

It is essential to make sure the jars you use are perfectly clean before you fill them with jams or jellies or other preserves.

Remember to fill jars with hot jam one-half inch from the top and cover immediately with one-eighth inch layer of hot paraffin. Puncture any bubbles which may cause an air leak. Cool glasses without moving; cover with lids, label and store in a cool, dry place.

Making your own preserves can also be considered doing your Christmas shopping because a jar of homemade jam, jelly or relish is a perfect gift any time of the year.

STRAWBERRY LIME FREEZER JAM

1¾ cups prepared fruit (about 1 quart fully ripe strawberries
½ teaspoon grated lime peel
4 cups (1¾ pounds) sugar
2 tablespoons lime juice (2 limes)
½ bottle (3 ounces) liquid fruit pectin

Thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1 quart of strawberries. Measure 1¾ cups into a large bowl or pan; add lime peel. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit. Mix lime juice and fruit pectin in a small bowl; stir into fruit and continue stirring about 3 minutes—a few sugar crystals will remain. Ladle quickly into clean sterilized jars; cover at once with tight lids and allow to stand at room temperature until set (may take up to 24 hours). Store in freezer. If jam is to be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in the refrigerator.

EASY TO MAKE CORN RELISH

8 to 12 large ears of corn (to measure 8 cups kernel corn)
3 cups finely chopped celery
3 cups chopped onion
1 quart vinegar
2 cups sugar
3 tablespoons salt
¼ cup mustard seeds
2 teaspoons turmeric
1 teaspoon celery seeds
½ teaspoon black pepper
4 green peppers, seeded and chopped
1 can (4 oz.) pimiento, chopped

With a sharp knife, cut kernels from ears of corn which have been husked and rinsed. Turn corn, celery, and onion into a large kettle. Add vinegar, sugar, salt, and seasonings. Heat to boiling; lower heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Add green pepper and pimiento; simmer for 5 minutes longer. Turn into 6 hot sterilized pint jars. Seal at once. Makes 6 pints.

PICKLED WATERMELON RIND

2 pounds watermelon rind
Salt water
2 cups sugar
1 cup white vinegar
1 cup water
1 tablespoon broken stick cinnamon
1½ teaspoons whole cloves
½ lemon, thinly sliced
5 halved maraschino cherries (optional)

Trim dark green and pink parts from watermelon rind; cut into one-inch cubes. Soak overnight in salt water (one-fourth cup coarse-medium salt to one quart of water). Drain; rinse and cover with cold water. Cook until just tender. Drain. Combine sugar, vinegar and water. Add cinnamon and cloves tied together in a cheesecloth bag. Simmer for 10 minutes. Remove spice bag and add watermelon rind and thinly sliced lemon. Add cherries if desired and simmer until rind is clear. Seal boiling hot in hot, sterilized jars to one-half inch from top. Makes 2 pints.

CUCUMBER PICKLE

10 cups peeled, diced cucumber
1½ cups coarsely chopped onion
2 tablespoons coarse pickling salt
2 cups water
½ cup flour
½ cup dry mustard
1 teaspoon turmeric
2 teaspoons salt
2 cups brown sugar, packed
3 cups white vinegar
1 tablespoon celery seed

Combine cucumber, onion and pickling salt in large bowl. Let stand for 1 hour. Drain very well. Put into large kettle. Add water, cover and simmer 10 to 15 minutes or until vegetables are just tender. Drain, saving 1 cup of the cooking water. Mix flour, mustard, turmeric, 2 teaspoons salt and brown sugar thoroughly. Add ½ cup of the cooking water gradually, blending until smooth. Heat vinegar, celery seed and remaining ½ cup of water to boiling in large kettle. Stir in flour mixture gradually. Bring to boil over moderate heat, stirring constantly. Turn down heat and cook and stir for 5 minutes. Add vegetables and bring back to a boil, stirring constantly. Ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 6 pints.

BLUEBERRY JAM

4½ cups prepared fruit (about 3 pints ripe cultivated blueberries)
2 tablespoons lemon juice (1 lemon)
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle liquid fruit pectin

First, prepare the fruit: Crush thoroughly about 1½ quarts fully rip blueberries. Measure 4½ cups into a very large saucepan. Squeeze the juice from 1 medium sized lemon and measure 2 tablespoons into saucepan with blueberries. Then make the jam. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin, skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into prepared hot sterilized glasses; cover jam at once with ⅛ inch hot paraffin. Makes 12 medium glasses.

FRESH PEACH JELLY

3½ pounds fresh peaches
½ cup water
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
7½ cups sugar
1 bottle (6 oz.) liquid fruit pectin

Pit peaches. Crush thoroughly. Add water. Heat to boiling point and simmer, covered for 5 minutes. Place a large square of cheesecloth, several layers thick, in colander. Pour peach mixture into cheesecloth. Bring corners together and press tightly to extract liquid. You should have about 3½ cups. Place juice in large saucepan. Mix in lemon juice and sugar. Heat to boiling point, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim off foam. Pour quickly into prepared glasses or jars. Seal at once. Makes about 2 quarts. Note: Rinse clean, sterilized jars with boiling water before filling.

Traditional, Casually Elegant Is Fall Message

It's almost time for you to shake the sand from your shoes and start thinking about autumn.

Clothing manufacturers have been sensitive to soaring grocery prices and have attempted to take a realistic approach in the pricing of fall fashions. However, it hasn't been easy because fabrics, wages, transportation — all areas of the clothing industry have suffered price hikes which must inevitably be passed on to the customer.

One money-saving method is a careful, well-planned, well-thought-through clothes shopping spree. Make every purchase count . . . leave nothing to chance.

Most fashions are meant to play more than one part in the wearing game and while individual items will appear to "belong" in all probability the colors and styles will blend rather than match.

Street clothes will be quiet — restrained. The layered look, which was supposed to be dead, appears again more tempting and desirable than ever. Rich velvets, flannels, velvets and tweeds will combine with slithery satins and jerseys. Fur trimmings such as oversize collars will add interest (as well as dollars) to daytime fashions.

The star of fall fashions is the sweater. A must for almost every wardrobe will be the longer cardigan sweater below the hips or full length. A deep shawl-collared sweater coat is nifty as well as expensive little cashmere sweater dresses.

Designer Ralph Lauren's fall collection is a presentation of fluidity and ease of line reminiscent of the 30's up-dated with a snap and dash that is unmistakable 70's.

As he sees it, the "Lauren" woman this season epitomizes the chic sophistication of Garbo, Dietrich and the Duchess of Windsor . . . self-confident, self-assured.

"I see the return of the coat costume as an important wardrobe addition this season, and have tried to give my customer the same couture-like fit and detail that made them the mainstay of a by-gone elegant era." Lauren offers two versions, two dynamic looks. The wrap coat with tucked, patch pocket detail, and the D-B back-belted "Vanderbilt" model. Both with their own matching A-line skirt.

Another Lauren first, the wrap jacket, self-belted and tied low on the waist, slightly bloused to highlight the easy roll of the collar. Hip length so it can be worn with both skirts and pants. An easy to wear versatile addition to any wardrobe.

Don't anticipate going off your diet completely although the majority of shaping will be loose, there will still be some fit to warrant counting calories.

The blouson tops, some loose, some bubble-shaped are again favored by designers. Lightweight shirty wool dresses that are fitted, tenty, or carefully wrapped will highlight afternoon activities.

The return of the topper, free-swinging and casual is another fashion recalled by popular demand. Some incorporate the new Joan Crawford silhouette with squared-off padded shoulders. Worn with slim-legged pants or narrow skirts the look is new and exciting.

Coat fabrics are especially important this fall — thick, fuzzy, brushed wools, giant vibrant plaids, sensible meltons, mohairs and a return of the classic camel hair coat.

No fear — you won't have to give the pants you love back to the man of the house. Pants still have their place and for the layered look with shirts, blazers, sweater jackets, pants are important.

Soft fuller cuffed legs as well as pencil slim styling share the limelight — when the proportions are correct the combination "works." Case in point — the topper and the pencil-slim trousers; the fitted jacket or sweater and soft fuller cuffed legs.

There is a definite emphasis on dresses and suits this fall. For many the dress is new and exciting although the current dress styles — the wrap dress, tent, chemise, blouson are styles most women recall wearing years ago.

Designers maintain these styles are new because of their elongated proportions. The top of the dress is now large and loose, skirts are straight and longer.

The beloved shirtdress has been put aside . . . perhaps because of an overabundance of this classic which popped up in nearly every morning to evening fashion.

A JACQUARD SWEATER set in brown and cream by Kasper worn with a cream shirt and brown and cream Donegal tweed skirt.

Don't look back sadly at a fading summer — rather anticipate a fall rich in the colors of an impressionist painter — smoky grays, warm earth tones, rich raisin brown and ruddy red-orange hues.

This fall color and simplicity of design will bring a lift to the spirit. The mood of clothing is subtle, elegant, simplistic and easy to wear . . . as one designer said, summing up the fall scene, "It's not layers of patterns that play against one another . . . but a harmony of colors and a blending of sweaters, jackets, skirts and pants in a simple, uncluttered manner."

A lovely hand decorated recipe arrived from Bernice M. Barnes, Barnes Creek, East Greenwich, Rhode Island. Our thanks for her original recipe:

SCRAMBLED EGG SALAD

Two scrambled eggs (or more) combined with one pound can of mixed vegetables. Mix together with Hellmann's Mayonnaise, season to taste, serve just as is, or cold.

Question: Would you please give me a recipe for Grapenut Pudding. I have looked everywhere and cannot seem to locate one. Thank you. — Ruth Toplyn, W. Roxbury

Answer: Look no more, here is your pudding with the added zest of lemon:

LEMON GRAPENUT PUDDING

¼ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons flour
¾ cup milk
One-third cup grape-nuts
Grated rind and juice of ½ medium lemon
Cream

Cream butter (or margarine) and blend with sugar. Add well beaten egg yolks, flour, milk and grape-nuts; mix well and stir in lemon rind and juice. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in lightly but thoroughly. Turn into a four cup greased casserole and bake in 325 degree oven until pudding is a golden brown, about 40-45 minutes. Serve warm with cream. Serves 5.

Question: I wonder if you would please print some good spaghetti and macaroni recipes that feature some, but not too much, meat. I am really in a quandary when I go shopping and find food prices out of bounds for a family of six. Thanks! — Mrs. K. E., Roslindale

Answer: Can't help but agree with you — rising food costs make food shopping a difficult and painful procedure. Following are so-called "budget" dishes:

SPAGHETTI SPECIAL CASSEROLE

1 pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons shortening
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 can condensed tomato soup
1 can water
1 garlic clove, minced (optional)
½ cup shredded sharp process cheese
½ pound spaghetti, cooked and drained
½ cup additional shredded sharp process cheese

Lightly brown ground beef, onion, green pepper in the shortening. Stir occasionally. Add 1 can each of tomato soup, mushroom soup, water and garlic. Heat slowly. Blend in ½ cup cheese and cooked spaghetti. Put in 3-quart casserole. Top with remaining cheese and bake at 350 degrees. This dish can be cooked and frozen or prepared up to the baking step and refrigerated. Serves 6.

FRANK-A-RONI DINNER

1 pkg. (7 oz.) elbow macaroni
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
8 frankfurters
1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain. In a small skillet melt butter; saute onion until tender. Stir in salt and garlic powder. Cut 7 frankfurters into ½-inch pieces, reserving 1 for garnish. In a large bowl combine macaroni, onion mixture, frankfurters, cottage cheese and sour cream, tossing lightly until well mixed. Turn into 2-quart casserole. Cut reserved frankfurter crosswise into thin slices; arrange in circle on top of casserole. Sprinkle Cheddar cheese inside ring of frankfurter slices and bake in 350 degree oven 30 minutes. Serves 6.

MACKEREL NOODLE BAKE

1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
1 can (16 oz.) peas, drained
1 can (15 oz.) mackerel
1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
1 pkg. (8 oz.) med. noodles, cooked, drained
2 oz. (½ cup) shredded American cheese

Cook celery and onion in 2 tablespoons water, covered, till tender, 5 to 7 minutes. Combine with next 4 ingredients, ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Turn into a 2-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Top with cheese; bake for 5 minutes. Serves 6-8.

Question: It's been a long time since I've made the Italian dish, Osso Buco, usually made with veal shank. I hope to be able to make the dish soon. Thank you. — Mrs. G., West Roxbury Answer: Wait no longer — here it is . . . the dish is usually served with rice and so we are including a flavorful rice dish, Risotto alla Marinara. Enjoy!

OSSO BUCO

3 pounds veal shank or knuckles, cut in 2-inch pieces
One-third cup unsifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons oil
1 can (8 oz.) stewed tomatoes
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup dry white wine
½ cup chopped onions
1 teaspoon crushed rosemary leaves
½ teaspoon rubbed sage
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon slivered lemon peel
Chopped parsley

Remove as much fat as possible from veal. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dust veal with flour mixture. Set aside remaining flour mixture. Heat oil in Dutch oven. Add meat; brown on all sides. Stir in tomatoes, chicken broth, wine, onions, rosemary, sage and garlic. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat to low. Cover and cook for about 2 hours. During the last 10 minutes of cooking, add lemon peel. Remove veal to a heated serving dish. Skim fat off broth mixture. Gradually blend ½ cup broth mixture into reserved flour mixture. Pour into remaining broth mixture. Turn heat to high and reduce liquid, about 7 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour over meat. Garnish with chopped parsley. Serves 6.

RISOTTO ALLA MARINARA

3 tablespoons oil
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup uncooked rice
1 can (2 oz.) anchovies, drained and minced
1 teaspoon powdered sage
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
3 cups water
½ cup white (dry) wine
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Grated Parmesan cheese

Heat oil in 2-quart saucepan; add onions and saute until tender. Add rice and brown until golden, stirring frequently. Add sage, salt, pepper, tomato sauce, water, wine and lemon juice. Blend well. Cover and cook over low heat for 30 minutes, or until rice is tender. Stir occasionally. Mix in parsley. Serves 8.

Nature's Ways

By Wayne Hanley
(Mass. Audobon Society)

A flash of yellow reflected by the tea-colored water of Okefenokee is a common clue to the nearby presence of a prothonotary warbler.

Although prothonotary warblers scatter as far north and west as Michigan each summer, anyone who wants assurance of seeing one of these strikingly beautiful birds should choose a Georgia swamp for the hunt. In okefenokee, the old, Suwanee canal provides excellent hunting. Here the birds work through shrubs overhanging the water. One can see them from five to 10 feet away. The small birds appear fearless.

The remarkable thing to most persons is the brilliant yellow-orange of the head, neck and breast of the prothonotary. No other warbler bears such a brilliant pattern. Compared to the prothonotary, the yellow warbler appears murky.

For a warbler, the prothonotary is unusual in building its nests in tree holes. Often it uses an abandoned woodpecker hole. The various species of warblers nest almost anywhere from a depression in the ground to the treetops, but hole-nesting is a prothonotary trait shared only with Lucy's warbler of the Far West.

The famed Dr. William Brewster, who was an authority on the prothonotary warbler in the Ohio Valley a century ago, noted the close association of the prothonotary with water. He wrote: "So marked was this preference, that the song of the male heard from the woods indicated to us as surely the proximity of some river, pond, or flooded swamp, as did the croaking of frogs or peeping of hylas."

Along the Suwanee canal in Okefenokee, one finds prothonotary warblers roaming through the shrubs that grow from the old spoil banks. One quite often finds a prothonotary searching for insects among shrub limbs that project over the water. In those locations, the bird seems unconcerned by human observers who are boating along the canal. It works among low limbs three to 10 feet above the water, well above the reach of an alligator. It is out among the thin, fragile limbs, quite safe from any mammal predator that might try to approach it from the bank. In fact, it seems safe from any attack except by air and the tangle of shrub limbs gives it a good chance of dodging an aerial pursuer.

The prothonotary years ago was known as the golden swamp warbler, a name somewhat more descriptive in our non-theological age. To the persons who first gave the bird its present name, however, the prothonotary was very descriptive. The French creoles in Louisiana called the warbler by that name because its colors reminded them of the Prothonotaries Apostolic of the Catholic Church, whose title of "first scribe" entitled them, among other duties, to sign papal bulls.

Marvin DeVoe Earns Certificate At Auto Industry Education Center

MIDLAND, Mich. — One of the most unusual educational programs in the nation, designed by an industry and a business-oriented college to develop careers for its people, has completed its first summer seminar at the new million-dollar NADA Automotive Marketing Education Center in Midland, Mich.

The National Automobile Dealers Association program was developed by the franchised dealer organization, working with Northwood Institute over the past eight years. The first CAM Summer Seminar to study at the new NADA Center included 29 students, who were graduated in mid-July (20).

These students, from many parts of the United States and from several foreign countries, earned their CAM (Certified Automotive Merchandiser) Certificates which are awarded by the NADA upon completion of the concentrated five-weeks course. Among the students was Marvin J. DeVoe, 40 Montclair Avenue, Roslindale, Mass. He was accompanied by his wife, Martine, on the trip. DeVoe was invited by the Northwood staff to sit on the NADA CAM Certification Board of review which awarded certificates and pins to the students who passed its oral examination.

DeVoe is employed as sales representative at DeVoe Chrysler Plymouth, 17 Eastern Avenue, Dedham, Mass. His father, George Matthew DeVoe, Sr., is president of the dealership.

An unusual feature of the program is its accelerated automotive marketing training, presented by men experienced in the field who are also skilled in educational techniques.

"The accelerated training meets the needs of employed men and women who can arrange but a limited time away from their jobs," Professor Philip O. Johnson, director of Automotive Education Programs for Northwood Institute and a former training director for Ford Motor Company, reports.

"This is also an opportunity during the summer for young people on summer vacations from other colleges, or students from any part of the world for that matter, to get an intensely concentrated program of study over a five-week period during which they live on the Northwood campus.

"Subjects are scheduled on the modular plan, with each week devoted to one subject that can be completed in that week," Professor Johnson explains. "Students could enroll for the entire program or any part of it. Those who complete all five weeks appear before a board of National Automobile Dealers Association members for an oral examination and their CAM certification approval."

Subjects included "Dealership Organizing and Management," Dealership Business Management," "Service Management Merchandising," "Wholesaling and Retailing Parts," "Merchandising Cars and Trucks" and "Corporate Policy and Ethics."

Assistant Professor David I. Wangberg, on the staff of Northwood's School of Automotive Merchandising, who directed the Seventh Cam Summer Seminar in Midland during June and July, emphasizes that the successful dealer in the future "must have a well-balanced team.

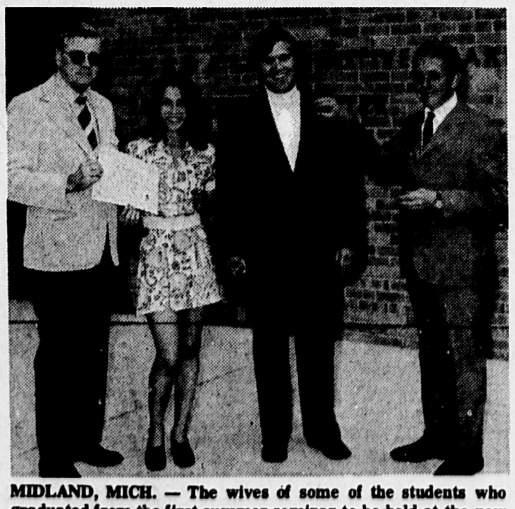
"The dealer of the future is going to be different from the dealer of the past and of today, because he is going to have to be well-rounded in all phases of the business and not just in the selling areas," Professor Wangberg maintains.

Assistant Professor John G. (Buck) Miller and Associate Professor Lawrence (Larry) R. Winters were instructors on the CAM Summer Seminar staff, each with considerable experience in automotive marketing and in conducting such courses.

The National Automotive Dealers Association, which represents some 20,000 automotive dealers across the United States, dedicated the NADA Automotive Marketing Education Center on May 18 this year. This event was the culmination of a program that began in 1966 when the NADA provided a grant of $150,000 to establish the Certified Automotive Merchandiser Program, the preparation of a Library of automotive educational textbooks and provided the ground work for the entire automotive educational program which has developed on Northwood Institute campuses at West Baden, Ind.; Cedar Hill, Tex.; and Midland, Mich.

A national Committee of dealers, under the direction of the NADA Dealer Personnel Education Committee, was formed in 1969 following the NADA National Convention in Houston in February to raise the funds among the auto dealers to build the National Education Center at Northwood.

Northwood Institute is a private, independent, co-educational, business-oriented two-year and four-year college with campuses in Monterey, Calif.; West Baden, near French Lick, Ind.; Cedar Hill, near Dallas-Fort Worth, Tex.; and Midland, Mich. The college has also developed extension centers in Quito, Ecuador, and formerly in Lima, Peru. Its California campus is The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, which became associated with Northwood Institute in February (1973).



MIDLAND, MICH. — The wives of some of the students who graduated from the first summer seminar to be held at the new million-dollar NADA Automotive Marketing Education Center on the Northwood Institute campus in Midland, Michigan, were on hand to help them receive their certificates. From the left, Assistant Professor John G. (Buck) Miller, of the instructional staff of Northwood Institute, hands the certificate of Marvin J. DeVoe, Roslindale, Mass., to his wife, Martine, while Glen Herriman, of Glen Herriman Volkswagen, Inc., Lansing, Michigan, a member of the Certification Board, pins the CAM pin on his lapel.

Repertory Theatre in Final Weeks

The Harvard Summer School Repertory Theater will continue its season of three plays through August 25. The season, which opened on July 9, operates on a 7-week performance schedule, and will continue its repertoire for another three weeks.

"Lady Windermere's Fan" by Oscar Wilde will be given eight more performances - the last two at 5 and 9 p.m. on August 25. "Long Day's Journey Into Night" by Eugene O'Neill has only five performances remaining, with a final curtain on August 22 and "Dear Antoine," in its American premiere, will continue through August 24, for a total of six more performances.

Now that their days are free of rehearsals, several members of this summer's acting company have begun work on various other projects. Seven of the actors will begin shooting for a new film - to be shot here, in Boston - during the week of August 13. The film, which deals with the first shot fired in the American Revolution, includes Lexington and Concord, Mass., among its other locations.

The absence of long and grueling rehearsals has also meant that the company's six Equity actors can concentrate on the curriculum they teach to the Harvard Summer School Theater Workshop.

The Loeb's flurry of summer activity will terminate on August 25 when the theatre will become dark until the Special Presentations Series opens in late September.

Gets rights

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Paramount Pictures has acquired the worldwide distribution rights to "Here, There Be Dragons," produced by Gregory Peck.

Premiere

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Vienna State Opera's plans for 1973-74 call for an Oct. 7 premiere of a new production of Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde", conducted by Carlos Kleiber, directed by August Everding and designed by GuentherSchneider-Siemssen according to the Austrian Press and Information Service.

Men's Wear

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you're tall and slim you're all set. But if your waistline is beginning to bulge you'd better get back on that reducing diet and start exercising. Bill Blass' fall clothing line is out and everything about it says tall and slim.

Blass began emphasizing the use of fine British woven fabrics back when most of the clothing industry was doing handstands over knits. And he ended up with some mildly spectacular men's wear for town and country that made plaids a household word, if they weren't already.

This fall Blass has once more turned to the British Isles for fabrics —Scottish tweeds and plaids, superfine British worsteds—but he has designed the fabrics to give them the Blass Look, in plaids and stripes that have flair but manage to stop short of any hint of John Dillinger.

The past hint of "Westchester Gangster" in his very loud plaid suits has given way this year to, in one case, a very dressy Scottish plaid cheviot that is more reminiscent of the late Duke of Windsor back when he was the Prince of Wales.

Blass has used a lot of windowpane plaid in his various presentations and this year it is back in another business suit. This time he had redesigned it so the plaid is woven over a houndstooth check in Scottish tweed. It is shown with a repp bow tie and a brushed cotton shirt, plus a V neck slipover sweater.

Another suit, in a bold brown and white check, has a newer line but nothing radical. The shoulder of the jacket is a bit wider, the lapel has a slightly higher notch and the trousers are straight cut and somewhat wider to produce an athletic look, which, of course, is slim and tall. The brown and white check was tamed down by a beige Oxford button down shirt, a beige tweed necktie and a beige silk pocketsquare.

It is in sports wear that Blass really lets himself go, starting with a weekend suit of pinwale corduroy. This one also has somewhat wider shoulders, is nipped in distinctly at the waist and has deep side vents and wider, straight-hanging trousers. He teams it up with a cotton tartan buttondown shirt and a glen plaid silk square instead of a necktie.

One of his credoes is that if a jacket has stripes they should be stripes that can be seen and that if it is plaid it should be a plaid that can be seen—at some distance. In one beige and blue sportsjacket, for example, he simply doubled the size of the plaid.

Blass also likes to combine pattern and he shows a bold plaid Scottish tweed jacket with bold Saxony slacks. The shirt is buttondown corduroy, the tie is a very wide velvet four-in-hand and there is a silk pocketsquare. All in shades of brown and tan and blue.

He used a background of Scottish donegal tweed for one sports jacket that is really striped — herringbone stripes more than an inch wide and an inch and a half apart. It is shown with a shetland V-neck pullover and with Saxony twill slacks.

Colors? Yes. One outfit was predominantly green, yellow and beige in a huge plaid jacket worn with a beige pullover vest and beige cavalry twill slacks. And for another outfit he combined velvet and corduroy. The jacket was in classic glen plaid, but in velvet. He used corduroy for a vest and solid velvet for the trousers.

Distributor business

NEW YORK (UPI) — An electronics company official says sales of the electronics distributor industry are expected to reach $2 billion a year by 1977, compared with $1.3 billion at present.

B. Duke Glenn, Jr., president of Arrow Electronics, Inc., said that in addition to its growth the industry is undergoing a fundamental structural change with many marginal, undercapitalized companies leaving the field or being acquired. He said the larger distributors are gaining an increasing share of the market and by 1977 the 10 largest may account for more than half the industry's volume, compared with about 38 per cent at present.

Dancing Every Saturday At Norwood Elks

Once again the Norwood Elks are doing a big Saturday night dance business. The dance is open to stags and couples. Music is furnished by Jack Harris' Orchestra from 8:30 p.m. to midnight.

Each week there is a door prize given to the lucky ticket holder. There are plenty of tables for you or your party to relax, have a drink, or listen to music when you are not dancing. Incidently, the dance floor is excellent, and the music just the way you want it. The orchestra will also entertain requests and play everything from "Glen Miller to Bachrach".

The Elks is a fraternal organization and most of the proceeds go toward their many charities, so for a night of dancing and listening pleasure, the entertainment committee invite you to attend the Saturday night dances, meet friends, dance and have a good time.

The Elks are planning a gala New Years Eve Celebration which will be announced at a later date.

Household Hints

Don't overload your freezer, or it will slow down the rate of freezing and foods may lose quality and spoil. Usually, two or three pounds of food for each cubic foot of the freezer will freeze within 24 hours.

If the power to your freezer goes off, keep it closed. Food will stay frozen for two days, even in the summer. If the freezer is off longer than that, move food to a storage locker.

Wouldn't a nice strawberry shortcake taste good in January? Freeze some garden variety berries now and you can enjoy that treat when Jack Frost's knocking on the windowpaine.

Enjoy fruits and vegetables from your garden throughout the fall and winter by freezing them now. It's a simple way to preserve foods, according to Ethel Diedrichsen, Extension food and nutrition specialist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Fruits and vegetables, if properly frozen, will keep a year without losing quality. Most vegetables that need to be cooked will freeze well. But cucumbers, lettuce, radishes and tomatoes lose their crispness when frozen and become limp.

The next meeting of the Chestnut Hill Rotary on Aug. 10 will be addressed by Senator Jack Backman.

Redistricting Hits Hardest Here

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of The Graphic Staff

When redistricting was signed into law this week, Newton State Senator Irving Fishman was in a "state of disbelief."

Governor Francis Sargent's signature guaranteed a solid black senatorial district with a plan that puts Newton and Brookline in the same senatorial district and could put Fishman up against Brookline State Senator Jack Backman in the November, 1974 elections.

Fishman commented Tuesday: "I've been in a state of disbelief all week."

Asked if he felt placing the two liberals against each other was a partisan move, Fishman said it was and added: "This redistricting plan is designed to elect at least three more Republicans."

Backman, in a statement released Wednesday indicated he was upset with the final outcome of redistricting.

Also sacrificed in the final plan was Senator John Quinlan of Norwood's district.

Newton's senator was also asked about facing Backman in an election and about a rumor that he may be in line for a judgeship.

"I can't give any credence to that rumor," Fishman replied.

He also said it would be "unfortunate" if he and Backman had to run against each other for the new district seat.

He said people he has talked to in Newton about the plan "feel bad that this has happened" and maintained that the move, made by Gov. Sargent was a partisan one and not an ethnic one.

Sen. Fishman was also asked if he felt people were assuming that if the two liberal Democrats faced each other, Backman would win.

"I don't think that's a valid assumption," he responded. "Newton is twice the size of Brookline and in a combined district, Newton would dominate and that would give me an advantage."

"The press," Fishman went on to say, "has classified us both as liberals, but I think there is a definite difference in our style and approach."

"Liberal," he added, "is a very broad category."

Fishman was also asked, political party considerations aside, are Newton and Brookline more similar than Newton and Watertown and would they make a better district?

"The governor argued that Newton and Brookline have more interests in common," he said. "But common interests can be looked at from many different viewpoints."

"Brookline is a more transient community. More people are renters in Brookline," he said. "Newton has a more permanent element to it."

"From that point of view, the communities are quite different."

"As far as ethnic considerations go, and I think they have to be considered," he added, "Newton-Watertown was not a Jewish district, but I suspect Newton-Brookline would be more heavily Jewish."

Fishman, during the past week, has also been critical of the fact the State Legislature was given the task of drawing new districts for itself and has maintained that the task should be given to some other, more "impartial" group.

"The legislature is the least competent of any body to do redistricting," he said. "There is just too much conflict of interest."

"The divisiveness that has grown over the past few months has proved to be devastating and will more than likely impair good legislation for some time to come," he said.

He said that the matter became too much a personal scrap among state senators and created a great deal of personal animosity that will take time to overcome.

The senator was also asked, as the result of this bout with redistricting, if he would sponsor any legislation or make any move toward having future redistricting done by an outside group.

He said that Quinlan has been working on an election reform package and should perhaps be asked to include this in his list of reforms.

"This is one that should be at the top of the list," Fishman stated.

Backman, since the plan became known last week, has been more vocal in opposition than Newton's senator.

He tried Tuesday to force a roll call on the bill when it was again on the Senate floor but failed in four successive attempts. He was unable to get the required number of senators to join with him in seeking the roll call, the only form of voting that is recorded by name.

Eight senators are needed to compel a roll call and only four joined the Brookline liberal. Fishman was one of them.

Sargent signed the bill into law at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday without any comment.

The other four members of Newton's Democratic legislative slate, originally supporters of this third redistricting plan before amendments affected Fishman, also came out against the plan after the amendments were made public.

The four state representatives, Peter F. Harrington, Paul H. Guzzi, Lois Pines and David Mofenson, also labeled the plan "partisan" on the part of the governor.

Pines described it as a "political maneuver to get Republican seats in the Senate." She also tried unsuccessfully to have the plan sent back to the Redistricting Committee in the House last week. The vote was 173-40 against recommitting it.

Harrington described it as a plan to secure Republican State Senator David Locke's seat in Wellesley. He also pointed out that the plan made room for a "new Republican seat" in Bristol County.

Taking another approach, Rep. Mofenson said he felt the plan gave Boston "too much Senate power."

Mofenson explained that Boston is entitled to about 4.5 state senators and could have six or seven under the revision.

Guzzi described it as "clearly a political accomodation."

Newton's representatives had been strong supporters of redistricting for a black senatorial district until the final plan.

Originally, this third redistricting plan, guaranteeing a black seat but jeopardizing

Investigation Of DiCarlo Continues

The city Law Department is still investigating the connection of Mario DiCarlo with the various firms recently involved in work at the Newton Redevelopment Authority site in Newton Lower Falls.

DiCarlo, a member of the authority, is subject to charges of conflict of interest, a criminal charge, if it is proved that he received money as a result of work done by any firm on authority property.

So far, no time and place have been offered by DiCarlo, however, and Rosenberg said the city may have to prefer charges in order to obtain power of subpoena.

Rosenberg also plans to examine records of Metropolitan House Movers, Inc., the prime contractor for moving the DAR Baury House, which subcontracted to a Newton firm, T. J. Regan, excavators.

Assistant City Solicitor Jason Rosenberg said this week that DiCarlo has indicated that he would allow examination of the firms' papers and stock books to determine DiCarlo's financial interest in the companies.

Regan's wife is related to DiCarlo, as are members of DiCarlo Bros. Contractors, D&D Excavators, Ace Rental, and Walnut Trucking, two or more of which, depending on whose account is accepted, supplied equipment or did work at the site.

DiCarlo has maintained complete silence publicly on the matter.

Privately he has claimed that he did not know that trucks belonging to his firm or firms were being used to do work for the Newton Redevelopment Authority, according to a City Hall source.

Mayor Theodore Mann ordered the investigation of possible conflict of interest immediately upon learning of the presence of DiCarlo trucks at the NRA property two weeks ago.

Mann has been greatly concerned about the public image of the authority. When the authority voted for a plan for redevelopment of the property that was unacceptable to the entire community, he sided openly with the community at a hearing before the Department of Community Affairs, the state funding agency for the project.

Courts To Decide Regal Residency

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The decision of the Newton Election Commission to allow the candidacy of Herbert Regal for school committeeman from Ward 6 has been appealed by his opponent for the post, Robert Cohen.

Cohen this week obtained a writ of certiorari from Middlesex Superior Court ordering the Election Commission to show cause why it should not rule the Regal candidacy invalid.

The case will be heard Sept. 5.

Cohen last week filed a challenge of Regal's candidacy with the Election Commission on the grounds that Regal is not "physically a resident of Ward 6."

Testimony at the Election Commission hearing revealed that under terms of a separation agreement drawn up in June, 1973, between Regal and his wife preliminary to a divorce, Regal has given permission for his wife and three children to live at his house at 155 Homer St. until Oct. 1, 1974, while his youngest child finishes at Newton North High School.

Regal is living temporarily at 125 Lexington St., Ward 4, while maintaining his legal and voting address at the Homer St. address.

Cohen based his case on his interpretation of the new city charter, which states that one committeeman shall be elected "from each of the eight wards of the city."

"From," according to Cohen, denotes residence in the ward.

"Residence," and "from," are key words, Cohen said.

Cohen also said that in his opinion Regal's nomination papers were invalid.

Cohen's request to use recorded tapes from Charter Commission meetings and opinions from five Charter Commission members whom he had asked to attend the hearing was denied by the Election Commission.

Cohen wanted testimony from the members of the Charter Commission, he said, "because I feel the intent of the charter was to have a school committeeman live in the ward he is representing."

(Members of the School Committee are elected at large by the entire city, although one runs from each ward.)

Much of the argument centered around Regal's contention that while he is temporarily living in Ward 4, his legal and voting address is at 155 Homer St.

Regal also said that he receives nearly all mail at Homer St. and keeps much of his clothing and other personal belongings there.

Regal's lawyer, William Wolf, former alderman from Ward 2, cited a 1932 case in which a resident of a town was illegally removed from the voting rolls because he lived there only three months of every summer.

The resident claimed his summer residence as his "domicile of origin," and the court ruled that a voter retains his domicile of origin until he voluntarily surrenders it.

Home For Retarded Faces Neighborhood Opposition

A plan to house eight mentally retarded adults in Newton Corner met neighborhood opposition at an aldermanic Land Use Committee public hearing this week.

Another set of neighbors appeared to oppose plans for townhouse construction at 1185 Boylston St.

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Residences for the Retarded, presenting a string of experts in the field to state its case, explained to four of eight committee members present how the home would be run and who would be living in it.

Current plans call for eight residents, and six of the group have Newton origins. All six have spent the majority of their lives institutionalized.

Residents will range in age from 18-40 and would be "moderately to slightly" retarded.

The committee is seeking permission to convert what is now a nursing home at 14 Newtonville Ave. into the residence for the retarded.

Those living in the house, it was explained at the hearing, would work five days a week at the Chalres River Workshop in Needham, and lead what would amount to a "normal" life.

The committee was told that houseparents would be living on the premises and would be in charge of the residents. It is anticipated that the first occupants, already selected and at Wrentham, would be three males and three females in their thirties.

"We are anxious to persuade the neighborhood that we can be good neighbors," the committee's attorney, Frederick Fisher, told aldermen.

"We are not talking about severly retarded people," he went on to say. "We are talking about people who have the hope and potential of becoming productive citizens and who might otherwise spend the rest of their lives in institutions."

All speakers emphasized the point that the residents were "in no way dangerous" and described them as "pleasant" and "docile."

Neighborhood concern seemed to center on the need for a nursing home and the traffic problem that the residence might create.

John O'Connor Jr. of 8 Newtonville Ave., said the neighbors felt there would be "an increase in traffic."

He also said that he was concerned about his four children and had heard of plans to fence in the house. He presented a petition in opposition form the neighbors.

Community Relations Commission member Carleton Merrill, another area resident, said it was his view that neighbors were not as concerned about the use of the property as their were about "increased use" in the neighborhood. He pointed out that the area already contains two nursing homes, "a commune" and a shoping area.

Land Use Committee Chairman Ald. Alan S. Barkin assured neighbors and members of the home committee that the matter would be thoroughly discussed.

"I forsee a lot of discussion before this matter is resolved one way or another," he said.

He also questioned the plan to allow members of both sexes to live in the house, mentioning that Newton's Freeport, a temporary home for young people, had a petition before the Board of Aldermen to allow it to go coed.

Committee spokesmen explained that the building was a three-story structure and men and women would be housed on separate floors.

Howard Will Run In Ward 2

Douglas J. Howard, 97 Farwell St., Newtonville, has announced his candidacy for Alderman-at-Large from Ward 2 in the November city-wide election.

"The year 1972-73 saw the business community tighten its belt and embark upon extensive plans for consolidation. Cities and towns must follow suit" he said.

"Budgeted expenditures and city agencies must be carefully reviewed and re-reviewed and consolidated if necessary.

"Inflation has affected all of us. As a result, the demands for cost-of-living increases in wages and services will occur. Newton must be prepared to meet this challenge. It is important that we maintain the superior services performed by city workers as well as by the fire and police departments," he added.

"Existing plans for elaborate construction and renovation should be carefully scrutinized. These steps are necessary to save citizens of Newton from being taxed right out of their homes," he said.

Howard cautioned the taxpayers of Newton that next year's tax rate does not mean property taxes will decrease over the next four of five years. On the contrary, he said, taxes will increase unless the people support measures of consolidation.

A life-long resident of Newton, Howard has been active in many community and civic organizations. He was chairman of the Mass Bay United Fund, small business, in Newton.

As a member of the Newton Junior Chamber of Commerce (Jaycees), he served as chairman for the Distinguished Service Awards and as chairman of the Governmental Affairs Committee. Howard served as Building Fund Committee member for the Newton Y.M.C.A. and is an honorary member of the Community Building Fund Committee, Nonantum American Legion Post No. 440. As a member of the Governmental Affairs Committee, he initiated the formation of a study committee in the Massachusetts Legislature for the purpose of evaluating the voting methods of Newton.

As a former consultant in the Data Processing industry. Howard said he looks forward to the opportunity of providing systems expertise to City Hall in conjunction with future moves for consolidation.

Howard is presently employed by the Singer Company, Business Machines Division. His activities include marketing and management responsibilities in the company's Advanced Systems Division, which is presently the leader in electronic point-of-sale terminals in the retail

Collection Of Garbage Complaints Heard During Committee Review

Complaints about the garbage pickup in Newton, ranging from "skipped" to "pail overflowing" and "skipped three weeks, called several times," were aired at a recent aldermanic Public Works Committee meeting.

Richard Dudman, director of Public Works, said that the number of complaints has dropped since the new contractor first took over and that "half of the complaints are from people who want two pickups a week."

The new contract provides only one pickup a week. Formerly there were supposed to be two.

Alderman Peter Harrington commented that people are getting two pickups a week, one by the garbage contractor and one when they put their excess or uncollected garbage into their rubbish.

Chairman Joseph McDonnell, leafing through the complaints logged in the Street Department, noted a preponderance of "Skipped" entries, many for two and three weeks.

McDonnell said, "I dispute that one in 100 are asking for a second pickup in the week."

Dudman explained he feels that regardless of the terms in which the complaints are couched, at least half are from people who do not understand that there is only one pickup a week or from people who have been skipped in the past and are calling ahead of time to be sure their garbage will be picked up.

There has been no public notification of changes in pickup schedule, Dudman said, and many people have called when the garbage is not collected on their former regular day.

McDonnell also disputed that complaints have been decreasing, pointing out that as recently as Aug. 14 there were 57 complaints received.

Dudman explained that Monday and Tuesday are the heaviest complaint days, probably because of weekend cookouts resulting in bulkier garbage.

Fisher told the committee he calculates that he is collecting from 55 percent of the houses in the city, plus the businesses. He said, "You go to houses and find nothing in the cans. I assume half of them are on vacation and half of them are have disposals."

Fisher said the number of complaints is decreasing, and "it is to my advantage to bring it down."

"As soon as Fisher has control of the situation," Dudman said, stickers will be put on garbage receptacles to inform residents of their pickup days, with a phone number to call with complaints.

Dudman earlier had said he expected a transition period of about eight weeks for the new contractor to get his routes set up.

McDonnell asked Dudman not to "wait until the system becomes good and then perfect it" but to take ads in the paper this week explaining the problem and saying that a sticker will be issued in early September.

The second week in October was given Dudman as the due date for a complete accounting of number of houses collected and the number of complaints.

Seek Footbridge Over Route 9

There have been three vehicular deaths in less than three years along the short stretch of Route 9 west of Elliot Street in Newton Highlands.

The three tragedies, all involving elderly persons, coupled with several nonfatal accidents, prompted Mayor Theodore Mann to request the state last April to consider the construction of a footbridge across the busy highway.

The state Department of Public Works expects to receive results of a feasibility study on the project by the end of this month from Tibbetts-Abbett-McCarthy-Stratton, consulting engineers. (TAMS).

Rocco Mancini of TAMS said this week that the report will indicate that a bridge can be built over Route 9 near the MBTA bridge.

One end would land near the Eliot MBTA station and the other end on private land, which would require landtaking involving only "a sliver of land."

Steps leading up from the sidewalk along Route 9 would be designed for use by the elderly, with steps less steep than ordinarily and a landing halfway up.

Mancini said that in the course of the study TAMS had asked persons crossing in the area whether they would use a footbridge. The response was generally yes.

Both Mancini and Newton Planning Director Charles Thomas said that the fatality and accident rate would seem to justify building the bridge.

The city will request either state or federal funding of the project, if approved by the state DPW.

Thomas hopes to be able to obtain unused funds from the federally funded, state-administered TOPICS program for improvement of traffic operations.

Mancini said that a decision from the state DPW should come in "a matter of weeks" after the TAMS report is received.

Sons Of Italy Convene

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Order of the Sons of Italy is hosting the 33rd Biennial Convention of the Supreme Lodge at the Howard Johnson Motor Hotel in Boston this week.

Wednesday, a day of business meetings, ended in an old fashioned New England Clambake at the Newton Sons of Italy Lodge.

Committee members who have been working to plan the event for the past year include Dominic Boffo of Newton Highlands and Ambrose Cedrone of Newton.

Public Use Of Private Golf Clubs Explored

The Aldermanic City Planning Committee agreed this week to ask the four private golf clubs in the city whether they would be willing to open their courses to the public on specific days during the week or at specific hours.

The clubs to be queried are Woodland Golf Club in Lower Falls, the Chestnut Hill Country Club, the Charles River Country Club in Newton Centre, and the Brae Burn Country Club in West Newton.

The other golf club in Newton, Albermarle, is a privately owned public course open to everyone.

According to the concept discussed at the committee meeting, the clubs would charge greens fees for public use.

As an incentive, the committee suggested that some tax abatement be given the clubs participating in the program.

Pecks Lecture To Foreign Dentists

The Congress was sponsored jointly by the American Association of Orthodontists and the European Orthodontic Society. It covered all areas of orthodontic research, practice and education.

The Drs. Peck lectured on a new technique they have developed for straightening lower front teeth.

Solid Waste Committee Appointments Approved

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

The aldermanic Public Works Committee last week approved Newton's five appointments to the Newton-Waltham regional solid-waste disposal district committee, bringing the committee closer to being an official body.

The Newton-Waltham regional district was formed officially last month under a $112,000 grant from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency to study the feasibility of a joint solution to the disposal of solid waste.

The district committee must complete its study by the end of this year and submit a report by Jan. 31, 1974. The mayors of both cities must submit the recommendations of the report to each legislature body by Feb. 28.

A decision must be made by the two city governments by May 1 about whether to continue into an operational district together or to try to solve the problem of disposal alone.

The main obstacle to approval of the Newton half of the committee — the appointment of Street Department foreman James Tatten—was removed when Mayor Theodore Mann, through his aide, James Salter, communicated to the Public Works Committee his willingness to withdraw Tatten's name and substitute that of Daniel MacLaren, one of three names submitted by the workers' union.

MacLaren is a meter reader for the Water Department and is Local 800's steward.

Louis Rufo, president of Local 800, had criticized the mayor's appointment of Tatten, proposing that a member of the city's labor force should be appointed to represent the men in the two-city negotiations.

Rufo said, "I have 500 employees to account for and find out where they can go if the incinator is sold and some other kind of collection is undertaken."

"That's why I think labor should have a foot in the door and know what is going on," Rufo explained.

The Newton-Waltham disposal district committee consists of five members from Waltham, 5 from Newton. The Waltham contingent includes three city councillors, the assistant city solicitor, and the director of Public Works.

Newton's members are Alderman David Jackson, Mrs. Mary Adelstein, and Dr. Melvin First (all members of the preliminary planning board), Director of Public Works Richard Dudman, and MacLaren.

The appointments cannot be confirmed until the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen Sept. 4. Until then, the disposal district committee cannot take any binding action.

Waltham's members were approved by the Waltham City Council over two weeks ago.

At a meeting of the Newton-Waltham district committee last week, attended by four of Waltham's five members, Jackson, Dudman, Executive Director Philip Pattison, and Dennis Huebner of the EPA, the district committee tentatively approved Pattison's budget request and agreed that Dudman, Pattison, and Edward Delaney, Public Works director for Waltham, would define the course of investigation.

Dudman said that it appeared that incineration appeared to be "out of it unless we look at entrepreneurs." One entrepreneur might be Resource Systems, Inc., which will begin construction of a privately owned incinerator system for Wellesley within a month.

When completed, the Resource Systems incinerator, a small, quiet-burning, oil-fired unit that consumes pollutants, will take care of Wellesley's refuse at a cost of $10.65 per ton on a five-year contract basis.

The three-man subcommittee will submit its recommendation for Pattison's investigation early next month.

Lasell Decides To Use Maple Street Site

Lasell Junior College in Auburndale has decided to proceed with a new student union building on its Maple Street site, over continuing protests from the neighborhood.

The action of the school may bring to the fore a question that has been troubling many private citizens and municipal officials: How far can private educational institutional go in building programs and acquisition of real estate for school use?

Educational institutions are exempt from real estate taxes. They are exempt from zoning regulations. Residents of areas in which these schools are expanding feel they are destroying the character of their neighborhoods.

Residents of the Lasell area have opposed the Maple Street location for the student union since they learned of building plans in the spring. Their objections are based mainly on the increase in traffic and noise that they expect to result from the presence of the new building.

The student union will contain a competition-size swimming pool and facilities for holding dances and other social events.

Total cost is estimated at around $1.3 million, principal plus interest.

Lasell has applied for a grant to the Department of Housing and Urban Development that would pay up to $25,000 per year of the interest charges for the life of the mortgage.

The building has been estimated by the college to cost $750,000 for construction.

James Pollack, dean of academic affairs, said this week that the college will seek private financing if the HUD grant is not approved.

Lasell first applied to HUD over a year ago. In early spring of 1973, a group of neighbors opposed to the building filed an objection with HUD, which in turn was responded to by Lasell in July.

In accordance with a HUD system of response and counterresponse, HUD submitted the Lasell response to the neighborhood group and is awaiting the group's reply.

Hopes of the neighbors that the city could exert some control over the building plans of the college have received both negative and positive response.

At a recent meeting of the Lasell Community Relations Committee (composed of members of the Auburndale Community Association and the college administration), John Simmons of the Planning Department relayed an opinion from the city solicitor that the student union is exempt from parking requirements as well as zoning regulations.

But at a meeting last week of the aldermanic Franchises and Licenses Committee, at which a petition was heard from the college for increased underground storage of fuel oil, several of the aldermen expressed concern about the new building and moved to hold the item until they are given more information.

The Franchises and Licenses Committee increasingly has been using its licensing powers to ensure compliance with city ordinances and to effect changes not covered by law.

The F&L Committee also requested that the college inform the Board of Aldermen about its long-range building plans.

Dean Pollock said this week that a meeting will be held by the Lasell Community Relations Committee will meet Aug. 29 to discuss long-range plans.

Ballot Positions For Preliminary Set In Drawing

Ballot positions for Newton's preliminary election were drawn last week from a traditional goldfish bowl in an Election Commission ceremony.

There will be four contests in the Oct. 9 preliminary elections.

Both the preliminary election and the drawing of ballot positions by lot were mandated by the new city charter adopted in 1971.

First spot in the horizontal placement for names of mayoral candidates went to incumbent Mayor Theodore Mann, with second to William Carmen and third to Elliott Berry.

In the contest for alderman at large from Ward 7, Mark White will be first, incumbent Jason Sacks second, followed by Alice Wilson, Dominic Taglienti, and Melvin Norris in that order.

For ward alderman from Ward 3 the order will be: Paul Daley, Robert Keefe, incumbent Richard Bullwinkle, and Cynthia Lacey.

In Ward 4 the order of placement will be Alvin Huberman, Leonard Frisoli, and incumbent Richard McGrath.

A recent study commissioned by Attorney General Robert Quinn has reportedly shown that first position has been an advantage under most conditions in most primary races.

Quinn ordered the study in response to a suit by Paul E. Tsongas and S. Lester Ralph, running for Middlesex County Commissioner and Paul G. Counihan, seeking the position of treasurer.

The three candidates last year challenged the 1938 law giving incumbents top spot on state ballots, arguing that the law gave incumbents an unfair and unconstitutional advantage over other candidates.

Candidate Concerned About Rental Tenants

Aldermanic candidate Henri D. Pelletier has expressed concern over the "feudal landlord-tenant relationship which exists in Newton."

"There are plenty of reasons to light a fire under the dormant health and building departments in City Hall in addition to the need for rent control," the Ward 7 candidate stated.

"Newton may be known as the Garden City to some, but it is a garden of weeds to the many who are compelled to inhabit the substandard housing which blights our fair city," he said.

"People are under the illusion that the problems effecting large cities in Massachusetts do not concern Newton," the candidate said. "However, Newton is among the five largest cities in the state and is growing daily."

Pelletier said that, if elected, he will take "vigorous and forthright action to rectify the housing, health, building code and zoning problems and violations facing Newton today."

New District

Voters in Newton found themselves moved around the political checkerboard this week in swift, last minute action that carried them into a new state senatorial district with their Brookline neighbors.

Isn't it amazing. For many months now the state senate has been in the process of reorganization and despite predictions and prophecies that the rejuggling would probably not touch this district, all of a sudden the plan was finalized.

And what happened here?

Newton and Brookline are merged and it would appear their incumbent senators — Fishman and Backman — will eventually face a showdown contest that would eliminate one or the other.

If you hear someone say they knew this would be the ultimate accomodation, you can question their veracity. Senator Fishman admits the merger is a surprise. And in an unsuccessful, last ditch fight to block this plan, Senator Backman certainly did not appear ready for the action that could swipe his seat. The Newton-Brookline merger whipped through the legislature despite his cries for help.

After all the plans and proposals that have come up for action in the past weeks, one can't help but wonder who was best served by the redistricting. And the very fact that we wonder, that all the legislative manuevering centered on the people who hold office and not those who sent them there, puts it in bad light.

Redistricting certainly was needed. But it is almost absurd to think that the most competent people to handle the putting together of new districts was the legislators themselves.

Whose interests were really at the heart of the planning?

Travel Ban

The proposed federal plan on limiting automobile travel into Boston has been cancelled. Despite the uproar — and probably partly because of it — the plan never got out of the garage after it was unveiled.

The men and women from around here who go into the heart of Boston on a daily basis are faced with almost unbelievable travel obstacles. And the Environmental Protection Agency certainly was not going to make the trip easier by announcing in June that Boston bound automobile trips would be cut from five to four a week.

One can't help but wonder how much that agency spent in researching and publicizing a plan that just about defied interpretation and explanation. There was talk of stickers of various colors so that incoming cars would be staggered, of geographical limitations near the Route 128 circumference and surcharges for downtown Boston parking.

The plan died aborning for two reasons: it could not be comprehended either inside or outside the agency and it offered no practical alternative.

So, you were told, you don't use your car one day a week. What then do you do? There is no transporation — existing or planned — that can carry an increased flow of people into the capital city. Don't suggest the MBTA or the railroad or even the few boat lines that come in from the sea on a regular run. They can hardly do the job now. Never mind taking on thousands of more business people and shoppers who want to take advantage of the Hub.

The local branch of the EPA is headed by John A. S. McGlennon of Concord. His head must be spinning as he commutes — like so many of us — between his suburban residence and his Boston office. McGlennon is supposed to come up with THE PLAN that will work and cut air pollution in Boston by September 1.

That's the deadline when the Boston agency of the EPA has to submit a workable proposal to the head office in Washington.

The alternative plan for Boston will directly affect this community.

Residence For Retarded Needs Special Deliberation

By CYNTHIA BLACK

If there is one experience most of us have in common, it must be the one mildly retarded kid we all grew up with in our respective neighborhoods.

In my childhood neighborhood, it was the girl on the corner. I passed her when I went to school; I passed her when I came home. She was always wearing a dress, brown oxfords, and a smile. We said hello, we all said a few words, and that was that.

Completely Black

At some point, I think all children must have evolved out of the stage of ridiculing their "different" acquaintances, and the one big kid playing with several little ones became a common sight.

When I visit a friend of mine in Watertown, I often meet a young man of about 15 on the way in the door.

"Gee," he always says to me and to every other female visitor, "you look just beautiful today."

I have to smile; it is, after all, a nice thing to hear.

This week, official discussions began on a plan to have several mildly retarded people, shut up all their lives, come home to live in Newton. We can safely assume, I'm sure, the discussions will go on several months before a decision is made.

Naturally, too, we expect our city officials to carefully examine all aspects of the plan and make a decision in the best interests of all concerned.

But in deliberations, I think special attention should be paid to the interests of prospective residents above other considerations. If this is indeed a commendable program, if it is a step in the right direction, then I think Newton should be among the first to open the gates of the Garden City and lend a helping hand.

I keep thinking to myself, I would not like to spend 20 or more years in my life in an institution. If there was an alternative and I were in this position, I would hope someone would give me a helping hand. Wouldn't you?.

I would not like to feel useless; I would not enjoy existing as opposed to living. I would like to think I was doing something.

The residence for the retarded will have houseparents, the committee has reported, and the people in it will be assisted along each step toward moving back into society.

The house they have selected, on Newtonville Avenue in Newton Corner, is now used as a nursing home. Converting it, therefore, does not really have the same impact as converting a private residence. In fact, it would seem that the use would actually be scaled down, a changeover from 18 patients and staff to eight people and houseparents.

Will more people visit eight than 18? Will there really be more traffic?

Finally, does a fear of retarded people linger in Newton?

I got the impression at this week's hearing that the experts testifying in favor of the establishment were trying to make a point that these people are not to be feared. Is this an overriding concern? Did you fear those childhood friends?

Several of these "community residences" have already been established in the Commonwealth and many more are planned. A spokesman from the State Department of Mental Health says that it is estimated 50 per cent of those now institutionalized for retardation could function usefully in this type of sheltered setting.

It seems logical that if our institutionalized population were cut in half, both segments would benefit.

One man who spoke at Monday's hearing, spoke in opposition, commented that there does not seem to be general local public support for this project.

Is there?

If you've been reading about this community residence program here in The Graphic and you are in favor but haven't said anything, perhaps now is the time to tell someone.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

New York Times Columnist Urges Amnesty For Nixon

Whether President Nixon has told the truth about his involvement in the Watergate mess is a question which is still muddied in an entanglement of contradictions by witnesses who have testified before the Ervin Committee.

But it seems clear that Mr. Nixon did not tell the truth about Cambodia. The record is that he was assuring the people of the United States that he was respecting the neutrality of Cambodia when actually American bombs were raining down on portions of that nation.

It also seems that this country has been going to pot while President Nixon has barricaded himself behind a wall of silence at Camp David, San Clemente and other remote spots and Japanese visitors have inspected the shipyards the Nixon administration is closing down.

Thus, it is of more than ordinary interest when top New York Times columnist James Reston suggests amnesty for President Nixon, the draft-dodgers from the Vietnam War still hiding out in Canada or Sweden and the truth-dodgers in the White House.

News stories in the Washington Post, which was largely responsible for exposing the Watergate scandal, have reported that President Nixon is not only deeply worried and upset by the Watergate crisis but has considered resigning, as his daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, declared and the White House denied, and — most important of all — may still resign.

That disclosure coupled with the revelation of the investigation into allegations that Vice President Spiro Agnew accepted kickbacks and payoffs, has precipitated questions as to the kind of President House Speaker Carl Albert would be in the event that future developments are such that both Nixon and Agnew should resign from the offices they now hold.

The answer is that no one, not even the reporters on Washington's Capitol Hill, really know what kind of President Albert would be or what he would do in the White House.

Neither is there any known evidence that Congressman Albert is or is not qualified to serve as President of the United States.

So perhaps there is some merit to Reston's suggestion that President Nixon be granted amnesty and be invited to come out of hiding and start doing the job the people reelected him to perform.

One trouble with forgiving President Nixon, as Reston points out, is that he won't forgive the draft-dodgers and the draft-dodgers won't forgive him.

Actually, the Watergate scandal never will be settled in clearcut, unmistakable fashion. No matter how long the Ervin Committee holds hearings or how many grand juries Archibald Cox convenes, there will always be doubts in the minds of many people as to who were the liars, the crooks and the idealists in the Watergate scandal.

There is little question that there was something wrong with the way the war in Indo China was directed and the way the last Presidential election was conducted. But both are now over and a matter of history.

The more one considers it, the more sensible it would seem to grant amnesty to President Nixon and the draft-dodgers and concentrate on trying to get the United States back on some kind of even course.

No one will be helped if Richard M. Nixon becomes a "crippled" President unable to run the federal government of the United States.

Move For Mandatory Death Penalty Mostly Tough Talk

Although Massachusetts is generally regarded as the most liberal state in the nation, a hard-line "law-and-order" sentiment appears to be developing on Beacon Hill.

Despite the fact that no murderer, however heinous his crime, has died in the electric chair in this state since Robert F. Bradford was Governor a quarter of a century ago, a number of influential law-makers predict that the toughest capital punishment law in the United States will be placed on the Massachusetts statute books.

While supporters of the move press for a new law which would make the death penalty mandatory in all first-degree murder cases, legal experts say there is some doubt whether such a law would be constitutional.

It's also unlikely the Supreme Court would allow the State Legislature to wipe out the right of a Governor and Executive Council to commute a death sentence to life imprisonment.

As long as that power remains vested in the Governor and Council, no murderer is likely to walk the last faltering steps to the electric chair in the Walpole State Prison.

Paul A. Dever, Foster Furcolo and Endicott Peabody, the last three Democratic Governors, simply could not bring themselves to allow the life of another human being to be snuffed out when they had it within their power to recommend commutation of the death sentence.

Governors Christian A. Herter and John A. Volpe both insisted they would permit the death penalty to be invoked under certain circumstances, but those circumstances never arose under them or under Governor Francis W. Sargent.

Despite the present agitation at the State House, we doubt that Massachusetts ever again will see a barbaric electrocution in which a man is put to death by sending powerful bolts of electricity through his body.

Murderer Who Had Brush With Electric Chair Now Complains

John Kerrigan surfaced the other day as president of the National Prisoner's Reform Association, chief negotiator for the inmates at the Walpole State Prison and an outspoken critic of conditions at that embattled institution.

This is not John E. Kerrigan, the gentlemanly member of the Boston City Council; nor is it John J. Kerrigan, the hard-line opponent of busing on the Boston School Committee.

The John Kerrigan who recently blasted correction officers and the administration at Walpole State Prison where he apparently is a guest of some distinction is rather fortunate to be alive and able to give voice to criticism of the broken sinks and toilets.

"They created the situation," Kerrigan declared in reference to the officials running the Walpole State Prison. "They'll throw a crumb at us, a furlough, a visit, and in return they want complete submission to all their rules and regulations. Their way is to do nothing until we kow-tow."

That rather arrogant statement came from a man who was convicted of murdering a Cambridge police officer, was sentenced to die in the electric chair and spent 10 long, cruel years on Death Row. He is alive today because Massachusetts Governors and Executive Councillors are reluctant to allow anyone to be put to death for any crime.

A deputy superintendent at the prison, who participated in negotiations with Kerrigan, described the latter as "a very intelligent, articulate guy" and added that Kerrigan had taught him to play chess while the cop-killer was residing on Death Row.

We assume that Kerrigan was referring to some other Walpole inmate and not himself when he charged that the prison officials "throw a crumb at us" (such as a vacation away from the prison). We believe most law-enforcement officials would take a rather dim view of giving him a furlough.

From where we sit it seems a bit ironical that John Kerrigan, of all people, murderer of a police officer, who had a closer brush with the electric chair and came nearer to taking that last faltering walk than anyone else in Massachusetts in the last quarter of a century, who was spared from death only because other men shrank from ending a human life, complains in a newspaper interview that Walpole State Prison officials are demanding full submission to their rules and regulations.

It's unfortunate that temperatures in the top tiers of the eight windowless maximum security cellblocks reached 100 degrees at the height of the recent heat wave, but, as one police officer observed, it beats the penalty John Kerrigan was supposed to pay for killing a cop. Incidentally, some of the cell plumbing mentioned by negotiator Kerrigan was out of order because the inmates smashed it. Prison officials couldn't get it fixed promptly enough to satisfy Kerrigan and other inmates.

The law-abiding people of Massachusetts would have been spared a little expense if the prisoners hadn't smashed the plumbing in the first place.

Quinn And Dukakis Coy About Their Gubernatorial Ambitions

Attorney General Robert Quinn and former Brookline State Representative Michael Dukakis, opponents in a marathon fight for the Democratic nomination for Governor, showed up a few nights ago at a clambake held by the Marblehead Democratic Town Committee.

However, both were so coy about their political intentions they wouldn't even say why they were there. To hear them tell it, it was a nice night; they were out for a bit of fresh air, and they happened to drop in at the Democratic clambake in Marblehead.

Quinn, of course, was responsible for the repeal of the law requiring that pre-primary political State Conventions be held in Massachusetts, and he did so because Dukakis would not agree to abide by the decision of a Democratic State Convention next year.

When Governor Sargent is questioned about his future political plans, he replies that he intends to stand for reelection next year and that he will make an announcement of his candidacy for reelection at an appropriate time in the future.

The reason for that windy kind of answer is that Sarge makes a point that he is not yet officially a candidate for reelection. That supposedly precludes the danger that somebody might demand equal time with Sarge on TV and thus offset the publicity advantage he holds by being Governor.

Presumably, that also is why Quinn will not come right out and admit he's a candidate for Governor. As Attorney General, a certain amount of favorable publicity accrues to him in the ordinary course of events.

But why Dukakis, who holds no public office, whose main claim to fame is that he was defeated for the Lieutenant Governorship in 1970, would be reluctant to admit that he is seeking the Governorship when the question was put directly to him, is a mystery.

Newton Teachers Begin Race Study

On Monday, Aug. 20, 50 teachers from ten schools in Newton involved with the METCO Program will begin a Summer Institute on Race.

Mrs. Katherine Jones, METCO coordinator, made arrangements for this program in response to high interest from the teachers.

The institute, funded under the Emergency School Aid Act's Inter-District Transfer Project is being offered to teachers, specialists and staff members who are directly involved with the METCO Program in Newton and who are from schools that have a 4.7 percent minority representation of faculty and students.

The schools include: Cabot, Countryside, Davis, Hamilton, Oak Hill, Pierce, Underwood, Ward and Williams—all elementary schools—and Meadowbrook, Warren, Weeks—all junior high schools. More than three times as many applications were received for the places available.

Donald Polk, the institute director and human relations consultant at Wellesley College has carefully constructed a program of six-hour, daily sessions designed to bring about a consciousness on the part of participants of the needs of all students with special emphasis on the black student. These sessions will run for a total of eight days with parents, students and staff participating on the fifth and sixth days.

The goal of the institute is to channel concerns, desires and interests of all persons directly associated with Newton schools through positive courses of action," Polk stated.

Task oriented workshops are designed to give the participant a basis from which he can effect positive change in his attitudes as they affect his perceptions of the Newton-METCO student," he continued.

"It is hoped that experiences shared by the participants, either personally or vicariously, during the Summer Institute on Race will provide a viable vehicle for future work throughout the school year," concluded Polk.

Today In Education

Accountability In Education

Accountability in education is an attractive concept that has caught the imagination of the public and, more especially, School Committee members and school administrators. Before buying this idea as the panacea for education's ills, there is urgent need to examine how it is being packaged and what the pitfalls are.

Accountability today offers the carrot of improved education while the real motivation behind the vogue in many instances is primarily saving money and keeping educators and students in line, according to James W. Becker of the National Education Association (NEA). Many state legislatures and state education agencies have acquired such a compulsion to push accountability that the situation "has reached crisis proportions in at least 30 states and is spreading fast to all 50," he asserts.

"Such laws," says Becker, who heads NEA's Instruction and Professional Development program, "are often ill-conceived and unevenly enforced, and their effects in the classrooms of several states point to a developing crisis of national proportions – a crisis that involves not only members of the teaching profession but the very foundations of our public school system."

More specifically, state legislatures are taking deliberate steps to decree performance, testing, and achievement levels for students, removing from teachers, other educators, and local school district officials the right to tailor programs to fit the needs of their particular student bodies.

Educators acknowlege that there is a good case for greater accountability -- that is, responsibility – in education. Both taxpayers aand students should get their money's worth.

But the notion that accountability statutes recently enacted or now under legislative deliberation can improve education "is in almost all cases pure fantasy," says Becker. "Were we able to define the issue of accountability, to define it so that the improvement of the quality of education were its chief goal," he notes, "the professional and academic communities would eagerly join the public in enthusiastic support of accountability legislation."

Much of the political debate over accountability symbolizes unspoken commitments to coercion, control, and budget slashing. "Accountability has become a political shibboleth, a code word that communicates coercion and control under the mask of concerned and responsible leadership," asserts Becker.

A significant part of the present problem is failure to realize or acknowledge that teacher performance and student achievement are only two of many factors that determine the quality of schooling. Using a business-industrial model of accountability, proponents are taking an oversimplistic approach to a complex undertaking.

At present, teachers generally have little say about what goes on in education. They still haven't been entrusted with adequate authority and decision-making power to do their tasks professionally. The position of the 1.3 million-member NEA (and its Massachusetts affiliate, the Massachusetts Teachers Association) is stated as follows:

"The Association believes that educators can be accountable only to the degree that they share responsibility in educational decision-making and to the degree that other parties who share this responsibility–legislators, other government officials, school boards, parents, students, and taxpayers — are also held accountable."

Ma Bell's Puppetry

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Thanks to the Department of Puppets for Utilities, Ma Bell should show a profit of $113.5 million instead of a mere $47.5 million for 1973.

The DPU held public hearings in several cities in order to allow "the people" a chance to be heard, but, as usual, it was just so much ear wash.

My personal contribution to those hearings was a two-page listing of problems I have had — and still have — over the past two years.

Any private concern dispensing such third rate service wouldn't last long enough for its first rent check to clear the bank, but in public service obviously incompetence is rewarded.

My advice to the smart people is to turn in your telephone and invest the savings in New England Telephone common stock. In the present situation, one is better if owning a piece of the Bell than subscribing to its sevice.

Seventh Reason

Editor, Newton Graphic:

It should be noted that in your article entitled, "Pines Sponsors Divorce Reform," which appeared in the Graphic on Aug. 2, you omitted one of the grounds for divorce in Massachusetts.

A wife or husband can be granted a divorce if their spouse has been sentenced to confinement for life or for five years in a federal or state prison. Along with the other grounds mentioned in the article, this is the seventh and final ground available to a person in the Commonwealth today.

One More Word On Impeachment

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Your fine editorial impartiality in publishing my letter on Congressman Drinan's impeachment effort deserves appreciation in a time when impartiality seems in short supplv.

The printing, however, unfortunately, dropped out a passage which was crucial to my argument about the President's apparently having lost control over the armed forces at the time of the Cambodian invasion.

What I wrote was: "Or consider something more serious: Keyes Beech, the seasoned foreign correspondent reported shortly after the Cambodian invasion in 1970 that 'field officers' had assured him Cambodia would have been invaded, even if the President had not given to order to do so."

If this report is true, it deserves careful inquiry in the Senate because the report suggest that a national administrative decision was made not by the civilian branch of government but by the military.

Surely, this is a serious violation of the principles behind the American political system. It seems to me one of the "high crimes or misdemeanors" for which the President could be impeached under the Constitutional provisions for the people's control over the executive.

Dear Chief Perkins:

Unhappily, we hade to make use of the Fire Department today and I want you to know that they did an excellent job.

Committee Deliberates MBTA Petition

By DANIEL BARKIN

The Street Traffic Committee of the Newton Board of Aldermen conditionally approved the temporary parking restrictions and proposed bus stops requested in a MBTA petition between the Newton Highlands and Riverside stations, in its Aug. 16 meeting. The committee also demanded that specific stipulations be met by the MBTA in conjunction with the committee's approval. The MBTA embarks upon Phase I of its reconstruction program for the Highland Branch September 8

Ald. David Jackson offered 11 stipulations in a motion prior to the committee's action on the MBTA petition.

These included the MBTA publicizing the three-month program substituting temporary bus service for the disrupted Green Line service between the Riverside and Newton Highlands stops through the use of the mass media. Other conditions cited in the motion called upon the MBTA to install posters at all Green Line surface and subsurface stations, to provide at MBTA expense, police protection at school crossings on the bus route during afternoon sports hours, and to furnish boarding and disembarking counts, at approximate monthly intervals, at all stops and termini.

The motion eliminated two proposed bus stops on Lincoln st., cited as dangerous and unnecessary, in response to a petition from Joan Saklad, a resident of the Hyde School area and candidate for alderman-at-large in Ward 6. An emergency preamble was added to the motion, allowing the MBTA petition to take effect 24 hours following the mayor's signature, instead of the standard 20 day waiting period.

Alderman Jackson spearheaded the effort directed at Mrs. Mila Dixon, representing the MBTA in her capacity as special assistant to the director of planning and construction.

Jackson sharply criticized the MBTA for its apparent lack of concern for Newton Residents dependent upon the MBTA for transportation.

Charging irresponsibility on the MBTA's part, Jackson contended that general public confusion would inevitably result from the MBTA's lack of foresight in publicizing, well in advance, the Phase I reconstruction program and its effect upon commutors.

Supporting Jackson's charges was Donald Levitan, Newton director of Inter-Governmental Relations, who pointed out to the committee that he first learned of the MBTA's Sept 8 Phase I commencement date from the news media, not from the MBTA. Also taken by surprise was Planning Director Charles Thomas, who, upon receiving the news from Levitan on July 20, scheduled a meeting with MBTA representatives, and Captain Mascia of the Newton Police Department. The MBTA furnished a bus for the July 23 meeting, and the three representatives from Newton attempted to appraise the route's effect on traffic and parking conditions.

On July 30, the proposed temporary parking restrictions and bus stops were approved by the Traffic Commission, with Planning Director Thomas the lone abstension. Thomas explained that he had not been given adequate time to study the proposals. The MBTA petition then went before the Street Traffic Committee, for the first time, at the committee's July 26 meeting. The MBTA was not in attendance at that meeting, requiring a two-week moratorium on their petition until the next committee meeting.

At the Street Traffic Committee meeting Aug. 16, it was brought out that Police Chief William Quinn might have made the committee's approval of the petition a mere formality, by virtue of the fact that he had already approved the MBTA petition for the bus stops and parking restrictions on August 13 in a letter to E. P. Collins, Supt. of Surface Lines, three days before the committee met.

This fact sparked considerable debate among the aldermen as to whether or not Chief Quinn possessed final approval of the petition, independent of the committee's decision.

Further investigation did not resolve this question, because the relevant statute offered itself to interpretations supportive to both the Chief of Police and the Street Traffic Committee. A confrontation was avoided by the Committee's approval of the MBTA petition.

Contacted after the meeting, Planning Director Thomas commented that the MBTA should have submitted its petition for the parking restrictions in April, and were "cutting it thin" by waiting until the middle of August with a looming target date for Phase I reconstruction of Sept. 8.

Lynda Bird And Top Stardom Both Eluded George Hamilton

cinema updated

by Marjory Adams

George Hamilton never did attain that White House wedding predicted for him when he was the favored suitor of Lynda Bird Johnson. He also never reached the top stardom in his Hollywood career.

The handsome six-footer, who was born August 12, 1939 in Memphis, Tennessee, and who has been having a very colorful life ever since, admits to many downs but he has had just about the same amount of ups, so it all evens out nicely.

His romance with Lynda Johnson is best remembered by the gold watch, suitably inscribed, from the late President Johnson himself. The near stardom came its closest when Hamilton produced his own film, "Evil Knievel." He starred in the picture while Knievel himself did the stunts.

Now George is taking secondary place to Burt Reynolds in "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing" but it is a role which allows him to wear picturesque Western garb and flourish expensive rifles.

Hamilton as a Westerner is certainly an unexpected sight for his admirers.

Back in his earlier days of acting he wore the most sophisticated and up-to-the-moment apparel of any actor in the cast in any picture in which he appeared.

In real life he outshone Hollywood's most publicized stars. That's the way he wanted it. They still tell stories about his lavishness. When he signed his first contract--Vincenti Minnelli saw signs of greatness in the future--George purchased a Rolls-Royce which had been made for the King of England but was rejected by royalty as being too ostentatious.

Then there was the great home in Beverly Hills, once occupied by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford before they erected Pickfair. George presided over a series of parties at which his beautiful mother, Anne Hamilton Spaulding, acted as hostess while his two brothers helped entertain more fashionable young ladies of society and the studios.

George has always had the manners of a demonaire Beau Brummel, and he admits to learning them at 25 private schools where he studied during the travels of his mother. There was one time that George lived in Boston, at 28 Chestnut street, and later at 49 Brimmer street, when the former Mrs. Hamilton was married to Bostonian Carleton Hunt. That was when George was 10 or 11.

Hamilton has cut down on some of his former extravagances since he married blonde actressmodel Alaina Collins, but he lives in some degree of elegance in Palm Springs. However, the famous old parties are now just memories.

In many ways it is a relief to get out of a 38 room home and into a smaller place where denim pants do not look out of place on the master of the house. However Hamilton still keeps up his gourmet tastes in the dining room.

Reynolds and Hamilton knew each other when they were young and lived at Palm Beach. They also made a previous film together, "Angel Baby."

Regarding his present role, George says, "They really wanted a player who could give the role of the unsympathetic Crocker several levels of characterization. It seemed to me to be the multi-dimensional role I keep looking for. I am tired of shallow leading men. Character parts with some meat on them appeal to me these days. My life style has changed and so are my aims in picture parts."

The maturing actor once more has his eyes on producing a picture dealing with sports, such as "Evil Knievel" and there may come a time when he gives up acting for the business side of the cinema.

Cinema Review: Blume In Love

BLUME IN LOVE has amusing scenes in plenty, but so many flashbacks which include many scenes in St. Mark's Square in Venice (and some in Venice, California) that the audience is mystified in regard to the action. There are so many pictures these days which defy any effort to categorize them as good, bad, indifferent, promising or even average, that it is not surprising to find one more.

Indicative of how far permissiveness has gone in the current motion picture mode is the rape scene of the film in which a drunken and amorous Blume (George Segal) attacks his ex-wife and impregnates her, all in the name of romantic love.

The lady in the scene is the wife who has divorced Blume for his infidelity and has settled down with the kooky Elmo (Kris Kristofferson) for a life of sin and ballad-singing.

The picture is touted as a comedy-drama, but attention should also be paid to the songs by Kristofferson.

Then there's buxom Shelly Winters who gives a recognizable portrayal of a deserted wife who wants something to be done fast about a husband who can't resist airline hostesses. While Miss Winters is on the screen very briefly the picture comes alive.

Susan Anspach plays the reluctant wife and she hasn't much to offer in the way of bringing delight to the story. Paul Mazaursky wrote, produced and directed the film and the result indicates that he needed help, such as he got when he and Larry Tucker were partners.

Pet Care Corner

How to be Happy with A Mouse in the House . . . or a hamster, guinea pig or gerbil!

Little pets — mice, hamsters, gerbils, and guinea pigs — are excellent companions for little people. Children find them educational, entertaining and unthreatening. Adults like living with them too, since they do not eat large quantities of food or require much housing space.

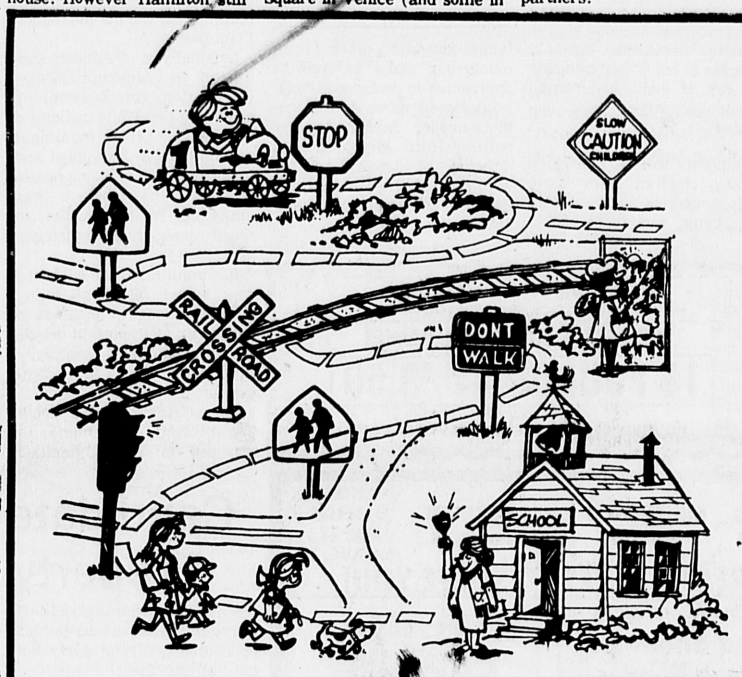
Because they are small and fragile, these animals should be handled gently. If treated with loving care early in life, they will develop trust and never become frightened, or bite when held. They will, in fact, thrive on companionship.

Though similar in size and appearance, the four animals have different personalities and habits. The gerbil, which looks like a hamster but has elongated back legs and a long hairy tail, is most active during the day. Hamsters and mice, on the other hand, prefer to sleep all day and play by night.

The guinea pig is a friendly docile animal. He will greet his owners with squeals and grunts and particularly enjoys being taken out of his cage, and allowed to roam around the room on his own. For hamsters, though, this kind of freedom could be disastrous. The hamster is very fast and can squeeze through the smallest openings. If he is taken out of his cage, he should be kept in an enclosed area where he will be safe because once he gets away, a hamster is almost impossible to find. Gerbils should never be carried high off the ground because they love to jump and could hurt themselves.

All of these animals can produce a large number of offspring in a very short period of time if allowed to breed. While one pet is easy and fun to care for, large families take additional time and as a result may be neglected. For this reason — and to avoid adding to the problems of the pet population explosion — you should not allow your pets to breed.

When you bring one of these small animals into your home, make it a point to become aware of his individual needs: (1) be sure he has a balanced diet; (2) always have fresh water available for him; (3) provide him with a comfortable home in a warm place; and (4) take him to a veterinarian when he becomes ill.



We'll help get the kids back to school. Safely.

Aug. 20 - Sept. 1

At the South Shore Plaza getting ready for school isn't only a matter of getting some of those good new fall fashions.

It's a matter of making sure your kids get to school.

That's why the South Shore Plaza is hosting Safety City. Two weeks from Monday, August 20th, through Saturday, September 1st.

It's a miniature city where children can see and learn in all kinds of safety situations. At 10:00 A.M., 12:00 noon, 2:00 and 4:00 P.M. everyday there'll be a safety officer from the South Shore Safety Officers League teaching pedestrian, bike, and auto safety.

There'll be exhibits sponsored by public and private safety groups.

And that's not all that's going on at the South Shore Plaza. During the same two weeks there's the famous PAINT-A-PANEL contest. Local high school and college talent will be competing for cash scholarships by painting 4 X 8 foot panels. (This year's theme, naturally, is safety.)

And on Monday, August 20th, the Boston Children's Theater will perform "Land of the Jesters" and "Pinocchio" at 11:00 A.M. and at 2:00 P.M.

And on Tuesday, August 21st, Peter Marshall of Hollywood Squares and South Shore Music Circus will make a guest appearance at Safety City at 2:00 P.M.

It's all here. Everything your whole family will need for fall. All the fall's latest fashions. All kinds of fun and entertainment. And most important of all: A safety education for your children.

Bring the whole family. South Shore Plaza — on the Safest Route Back to School.

Mofenson Explains Stand On Lettuce-Grape Boycott

Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), sponsor of 1971 legislation which grants visitation rights to migrant workers and one of several Massachusetts Legislators who recently filed a resolution in the Massachusetts House affirming support of the boycott of non-UFW iceberg lettuce and grapes explained last week the reason for his stand.

Rep. Mofenson said, "For decades, lettuce and grape workers in California have accepted backbreaking jobs at below-poverty wages. They have had to contend with corporate owners whose principal concern was, and still is, their control over a cheap, but productive labor force. Over the years, the bulk of this work force has remained illiterate, improverished, and Mexican-American."

Rep. Mofenson went on to explain, "In the 1960's, Cesar Chavez took up the workers' cause, promising them the bare trappings of a meaningful existence: DIGNITY, FOOD TO EAT, AND AN EDUCATION FOR THEIR CHILDREN. Through the exhaustive efforts of Chavez and others, the workers were unionized under the banner of the United Farmworkers (UFW), now a part of the AFL-CIO."

"A long and bitter struggle for recognition ensued," continued Mofenson. "During this period," he said, "the UFW used the only mechanism availabe to them in order to exert pressure on the growers, a worldwide boycott against California table grapes. After five years of disregard for the workers' plight, the growers finally agreed to recognize and sign contracts with the UFWU."

"Very few people." Rep. Mofenson maintains, "Dispute the claim that the Teamsters do not represent a majority or even a substantial number of field workers. In a ruling concerning one group of growers the California State Supreme Court ruled that when the growers signed their contracts with the Teamsters they were aware that they did not represent the workers."

"In surveys conducted by respected civic and labor leaders, the workers have favored the UFW over the Teamsters ten to one. Most of these leaders have come to the conclusion that it would be a great injustice to the workers if the growers make agreements with the Teamsters against the will of the workers," he continued.

Rep. Mofenson cited the words of ten New England Clergymen who have recently returned from a fact-finding tour in California:

"Our experiences have confirmed that the balance of justice leans in favor of Cesar Chavez and his dispossessed United Farm Workers. United in unbreakable bonds of community with God, we recognize that our actions in Massachusetts affect for good or ill, the well-being of our brothers and sisters in California. Therefore, we join with the 25 Roman Catholic Biships of New England in advocating a boycott of all table grapes and iceberg lettuce which does not bear the symbol of the United Farm Workers AFL-CIO, the Black Aztec Eagle."

Nursery School Has Openings

The nursery school at Brandeis University in Waltham has announced that a few openings are still available for September in the afternoon classes which meet from 1 p.m. to 3:45 p.m., five days a week, for children from three to five years of age.

According to the announcement, the school program will focus on meeting the individual needs of the children, permitting each to progress at his or her own rate by way of individual, small group and large group activities.

Emphasis will be placed on helping children gain basic skills, a working understanding of concepts, facility in use of language and other communication skills as well as approaches to problem solving.

Interested parents may obtain further information by calling Ruth Misch, school director, at 332-9384, or by writing to the school, care of Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass.

Youth, Recreation Commissions To Discuss Lighting Parking Lots

A proposal for "lighted youth recreation areas," returned by the Board of Aldermen last month to the aldermanic Public Works Committee, has been handed over to the Youth Commission and the Recreation Commission.

Originally a resolution submitted by Alderman Peter Harrington for aldermanic candidate Lee White calling for designating five municipal parking lots to be lighted and made available to young people at night, the measure was amended in committee to specify only five "municipal areas."

Recommittal by the full board was based on what many members thought was failure to include many important details of operation and especially input from the Youth Commission.

Rev. Charles Coyle, Youth Commission chairman, in response to PW Committee discussion last week, said, "This is far more encompassing than what Lee White wanted. You are talking about many kinds of recreation areas — kids under 16 will not want the same as kids over 16. No blanket recreation program will suit everybody."

Paul Burke of the Recreation Commission commented, "I'd like to have input from the kids. We haven't been able to nail down what they want."

Most of those present agreed that some young people will want lights, some will want no lights. Beyond that point, there was little agreement.

The Youth Commission and the Recreation Commission will get together and try to clarify some of the details and report back to the Public Works Committee with concrete suggestions.

Candidate Opposes Property Tax Cut

Mayoral candidate Elliott Berry this week announced his opposition to the property tax cut "at this time."

"There are far too many pressing social needs for many sectors of this community which cry out for more funding," Berry said. "While the property tax is downright oppressive, it is the only major source of income available to the city to meet these needs."

He cited the need for establishing neighborhood health clinics with fee schedules based on the patient's ability to pay and which would include abortion facilities.

The candidate also listed buildings and food for 24-hour, community run child care centers, land for low income housing, municipally owned cable television, and "desperately needed financial assistance" for Newton Junior College as top priorities for the money which would be available if a tax cut were not put into effect.

"The only real relief for the small property owner is the total abolition of the property tax," the candidate said, "and its replacement with a graduated income tax and-or corporate profits tax."

Heritage Plantation Performance Set

Although the "Redcoats" will be in battle dress no hostile fire from 200-year-old muskets will be heard at Heritage Plantation in Sandwich on August 25 and 26. Instead, the men of the historically recreated British 10th Regiment of Foot will present military drill formations, live volley musket firing and bayonet charges as once did their original counterparts two centuries ago.

The Americans of the Revolutionary War will be represented by The Nathan Hale Ancient Fifes and Drums, dressed in the uniforms of the 19th Connecticut Regiment of Foot. These military musicians will be dressed in brown coats with white linings and facings. They will be accompanied by a color guard of Knowlton's Connecticut Ranges.

Each unit will perform separately. The Nathan Hale Ancient Fifes & Drums and Knowlton's Connecticut Rangers will parade and skirmish against the enemy from 1:00 to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, and the British 10th Regiment of Foot from 2:30 to 4:00 p.m. the same days.

Visitors to Heritage will see a blacksmith repairing firearms and forging metal, a pewterer pouring hot metal into molds, and candles being made. The smell of food will be in the air as cooks demonstrate how soldiers' meals are made in the field.

Organized in 1965, the Nathan Hale Ancient Fifes and Drums from Coventry, Conn., honor the memory of Captain Nathan Hale of the 19th Connecticut Regiment of Foot who was hung as a spy by the British in 1776. These Connecticut Yankees have participated in parades and pageants throughout the Northeast and performed in Ireland in 1971.

The British 10th Regiment of Foot is from Chelmsord, Mass. Their purpose is to re-create the British soldier of 1775 as he was when stationed in Boston. The 10th consists of the Light Infantry Company and the Grenadier Company, also two company drummers. From 1767 to 1778 they served on this continent. The Light Infantry Company of the 10th was the first British unit on Lexington Green, and they fought in most of the major battles of the Revolutionary War.

These colorfully dressed and militarily disciplined American and British troops will perform on the parade ground where the Military Museum is located at Heritage Plantation. Built of squared, hand-hewn logs, the building is similar to George Washington's 1873 headquarters at New Windsor, N. Y.

Open daily from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., admission to Heritage Plantation is $2.00 for adults, 75 cents for children 12 years and under. The military events are included in the admission. Heritage Plantation is located about a mile off Route 6A in Sandwich.

Dedham Man Manager Of West Roxbury Star Market

Matthew S. Leonard of Dedham, who financed his Boston College education as a part time cashier in Star Market, has been named Store Manager of the 57th Star Market which will open in West Roxbury on Tuesday morning, August 28, at 10 a.m.

The new Star Market, located at Spring street and Baker street in West Roxbury, will introduce an entirely new concept in retailing. Its many specialty food shops-in-one will be combined with Osco, a non-foods store, under a single roof as a one-stop shopping center. It will be Star's 57th ultra modern store and Osco's 197th.

In his post as Star manager, Leonard will bring a rich background in virtually every facet of retailing acquired during his many years with the firm that is recognized through most of New England as the quality food market. His career covers assignments as grocery department manager, assistant store manager, and store manager. Among the latter were the managerial posts in Chestnut Hill and Malden Star markets.

A native Bostonian, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frances C. Leonard of 298 South street, Jamaica Plain. He attended St. Thomas Aquinas and Roxbury Latin before enrolling at Boston College. He and his wife, Grace, have two children enrolled in the Riverdale School in Dedham.

Leonard said he looked forward with enthusiasm and pride to his new assignment "confident that I shall be able to serve Star customers along the highest standards possible."

Open Education Offered By School For Creative Learning

Open education is becoming acknowledged as a desirable alternative method of educating some of the children in this, as well as surrounding communities. Individual classrooms, and in some instances, whole schools have instituted more informal methods over the past few years.

However, despite the increasing availability of this type of education there are not enough spaces available in open classrooms for all those children who might learn more productively and creatively in an informal atmosphere.

For parents who are frustrated in their efforts to procure for their children a continuously open educational experience in the primary grades, an alternative to their public schools, is available. The School for Creative Learning, an independent, non-profit school, located in Sharon, is expanding its enrollment as it enters its second year of operation. Not only has the school offered excellent education to the children, but throughout the past year it has served as resource center for public school administrators and educators wishing to study and implement informal methods in their own school systems.

Your child can enjoy the highest quality in education now, The School For Creative Learning offers him a natural, warm, informal environment in which his individuality is cherished, in which he can develop his intellectual and creative potential to the fullest.

If you as a parent are interested in learning more about this fine school you are cordially invited to discover, through slides and material, all that open education is meant to, and should be. Meetings will be held on Wednesday, August 29th, 8 p.m. at the United Church of Walpole, Common St., Walpole, and on Thursday, August 30th, 8 p.m. at the Canton Public Library Washington St., Canton. Mofenson Favors Tax Relief Bill

State Representative David J. Mofenson has announced his support for so-called "circuit breaker" legislation to provide for fair and equitable property tax relief for Massachusetts citizens.

The bill, the Newton legislator said, would ease the burden of the property tax by granting relief to taxpayers who pay more than 8 percent of their total income in property taxes. Rebates or credits would be granted a taxpayer paying in excess of that 8 percent ceiling, Mofenson said.

"The legislation would assure that the neediest taxpayers would receive the greatest relief," he observed.

Massachusetts currently grants abatements to the elderly, but they are paid at the local level.

The circuit breaker program would be administered by the state and funded entirely out of state money, Mofenson said.

Will The Armory Close?

By LEN BATEMAN
Of The Graphic Staff

If a report soon to be filed by its Special Commission on Military Affairs is approved by the state legislature, the West Newton Armory may go the way of the Charlestown Navy Yard and the Boston Army Base.

The commission was set up by the legislature in 1971, and has spent the last two years, at a cost of $100,000, evaluating the impact of the federal government's all volunteer army on the state militia.

The principal recommendation of the 350 Page report calls for the shutdown of 30 of the state's 72 National Guard armories and regionalization of the remaining.

The West Newton Armory is among those slated to be closed after a five to six year phase-out process.

The report represents the first attempt ever in Massachusetts to tamper with the local community-based character of the militia.

That character was first stamped on the state's military organization back in colonial times when the men of each township within the Massachusetts Bay Colony were responsible for the defense of their own community against Indian attack.

It was probably most noticeable during the colony's response to British stubborness when the men from each town marched together towards the Concord bridge and "the shot heard round the world."

Even as late as World War I, men from Massachusetts sailed to France with their hometown buddies when armories in the state were activated as individual units under the guideon of the famed Yankee Division.

In addition to calling for regionalization of the state's military organization, the report also recommended establishment of an incentive program for recruits. The state is presently 2,000 men short of its 17,000 troop quota.

The incentive plan would include provisions for higher pay scales, earlier retirement, a $200 enlistment bonus with an additional $600 tax exemption. National guardsmen will also be allowed free parking at state parks if the complete report is accepted by the legislature.

The report did not contain any estimate of monies to be realized by the state from sale of the 30 armories, nor the cost of the incentive program.

The state's annual military budget now amounts to $5 million annually and the federal government contributes approximately $41 million per year for training and equipment.

Built in 1910, the West Newton Armory now houses Company B of the First Battalion, 101st Infantry of the 26th or Yankee Division. Company B of the 114 Medical Battalion is also a tenant of the building, having arrived last year.

Newton's militia was previously known as the Claflin Guards and was composed, as in colonial times, by men from the city's various villages.

The Newton Free Public Library is in possession of a photograph of the Claflin Guards serving together in Boston after the Great Fire of 1872.

According to Sen. Roger L. Bernashe (D-Chicopee), chairman of the special commission, the closing of the armory at 1137 Washington St., West Newton, and 29 others throughout the state, will save $640,000 a year in operating costs.

In addition to the phaseouts, the report also calls for the construction of three new regional armories in Salem, Medford and Reading as well as acquisition of Otis Air Force Base on Cape Cod and Hanscom Field in Bedford, both of which are to be abandoned by the federal government in the near future.

Peabody, Mason-Rice Camps Hold End Of Season Festivities

The Peabody Day Camp for Special Children put on a Variety Show as a finale to its season last week.

Acts included such events as a marching band, where most of the instruments were made by campers; and a musical act from "Mary Poppins." Campers particularly enjoyed this, as a small group had seen the movie during the second week of camp.

In addition, campers acted in lion and clown shows. An acrobatic act, a strong man and a balloon man all helped to make the affair festive. Inside the recreation room was an art exhibit displaying campers' paintings, collages and puppets.

James E. Murphy, senior recreation supervisor and Robert E. Doherty, recreation supervisor from the Newton Recreation Department were present to distribute awards to volunteers - Joyce Caplan, Adele Kaplan, Ali Levine and Betsy Casper. An invited guest was John B. Penney, Newton Recreation Commissioner.

Staff members William Bell, Gilah Bell, Remi Coyle, Linda Schiller, Janet Kaufman and Ann Hennessey were all on hand for the festivities.

The Mason-Rice Day Camp for Special Children held a parents day for the closing of the camp season last week.

Highlight of the day was the presentation of "Peter Pan" by the campers. The camp is sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department for special class children. Doherty of the Recreation Department supervised the staff; Diane Rubinoff, director; Susan Kaitz, Randall Holton, Madeline Sullivan, recreation leaders - as well as the following volunteers: Barbara Piselli, Marypat Sullivan, Margaret O'Meara and Marion Lent. Penney attended the closing day activities.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

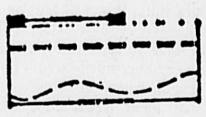
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Questions On Boating

By PA1 DANNY O'SHEA
USCG

Dozens of questions have been asked of Coast Guard Boating Safety Officers. They reflect not only a lack of boating safety education, but also a mass eagerness to learn.

Here are representative questions and brief answers. Most, however, are answered in free Coast Guard pamphlets which are available to the public.

Q — What are the causes of boat fires and how can I fireproof my boat?

A — Adequate ventilation is the key to thwarting virtually all boat fires. Federal regulations and common sense should be your guides.

Gasoline vapors settle in low areas of the boat. Adequate ventilation cowls and ducts should provide circulation of fresh air to the lowest points in the bilges that may collect fumes. Frequently check gas lines, fittings and pumps for leaks. Use the nose test for vapors in the bilges. Here are two tips to remember when fueling: ground the nozzle to the boat to prevent sparks when fuel is being passed; do not overfill tanks.

Gas expands when transferred from cool underground tanks to warm boat tanks. This could cause spillage. Wait at least five minutes before cranking the engine over. Better yet, fill trailered boats before you launch to allow vapors to disperse. Open the engine and fuel compartment enclosures for faster ventilation.

Q — Do horns or whistles need Coast Guard approval?

A — Only Personal Flotation Devices (PFDs-life saving devices), fire extinguishers and backfire flame arrestors currently need Coast Guard approval. Boats 16 feet to less than 26 feet must carry a whistle or horn audible for one-half mile. Boats 26 feet or over must carry a whistle or horn audible for one mile. Boats 40 feet or over must have a power-operated horn or whistle.

All boats, regardless of size, are required to sound a whistle or horn in such situations as passing or in low visibility, even if not required by law to carry one at all times.

Q — How much can my boat safely hold?

A — As of October 31, 1972, manufacturers were required by law to affix capacity plates on all monohulled boats less than 20 feet in length. This regulation, however, excludes sailboats, canoes, kayaks and inflatables.

On outboards, the plate must contain the maximum horsepower, weight capacity and persons the boat can safely hold under normal conditions. Plates on inboards only display the boat's maximum weight and persons capacity.

Before that date, many manufacturers attached capacity plates to their boats. In the absence of a plate, use this formula: multiply the boat's length in feet, times the maximum width in feet and divide by 15. This will give the average small boat owner the maximum number of people he can safely put aboard. Keep this weight low and evenly distributed.

Q — What should I carry as emergency equipment?

A — The kind of boat and its use dictate the type and amount of items. The Coast Guard pamphlet, "Emergency Repairs Afloat," lists, among other items, a complete first aid kit, basic tools and spare parts.

Distress equipment should include smoke and light flares, personal flotation devices and possibly a radio telephone.

If you have questions about boating or water safety, or would like to receive a specific Coast Guard pamphlet, contact the Boating Safety Division, 1st Coast Guard District, 150 Causeway street, Boston, MA. 02114, or the nearest Coast Guard station.

UNSURE?

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nine of every 10 Chicagoans questioned in a survey feel that inflation and other economic ills directly are affecting the financing of college educations.

The quarterly survey by Continental Bank samples the attitudes of 500 Chicago-area families about their personal finances, business conditions, and how they manage their money. The survey report shows record low levels of consumer confidence about personal finances, current business conditions, and the future.

For Autumn Kasper for Joan Leslie designed the wool crepe, long, slinky slip-dress edged in rhinestones.

Hemlines Inching Downward In Fall

Oh dear me.

They're at it again.

Just when everyone thought that FASHION had swallowed a common-sense pill and been cured of its midi-fever, the current trend of hemlines (seen in Rome and Paris this spring) features longers skirts.

Before you become totally despondent, please be assured that designers insist the new length is definitely not a rehash of the 1969 disaster, the midcalf drop.

If you've stubbornly refused to discard your midis of '69 and '70, hold onto them, and that goes for those long tweed, woven and tartan skirts.

Fashions By Ruth Lenson

This time no fashion designer or newspaper editor is dictating the hemline rules. There are no cutesy-pie words conjured up to lure the unwilling buyer—longer skirts will simply be called the "big skirt."

Designer Ralph Lauren's fall sportswear includes the big, bulkier sweaters in authentic shaker wool knits. Cabled or flat in a color spectrum of rich fall hues; these are shown in two new lengths, bloused to the waist or wrapped to a three-quarter length.

These he uses over his brushed wool shirts in happy, plaids and a handsome colorful mid-calf length riding skirt. Riding pants are also evident with the same fabrication of corduroy or cavalry twill as the skirt, as well as foxhead horn buttons and belt loops to display the collection of belts in natural tan bridal leather.

Buyers for large department stores are cautioning their sales people not to lose a customer because of the longer skirt, rather to suggest that the longer look will be only one of many ways to dress this fall and winter.

The greatest midi success was with the junior market. This customer chose the long skirt as an alternative to pants. She loved the midi and wore it interchangeably with the mini because both were unorthodox lengths never worn before (in her memory)—they had a "costumy" flavor. Some psychologists feel that young girls purposely turn toward a style they're fairly sure mom wouldn't care to wear.

When questioned about fickle fall fashions, designer Kasper, for Joan Leslie commented, "Changing fashion? A lot of it has to do with controlled silhouettes—never structured, always supple.

"There's a slimness and a sleekness to the clothes that are completely contemporary . . . yet with a definite sense of elegance and glamour. You could say that control is the key.

"With the eye focusing on top width," he continued, "there's a necessity for balance through a slightly longer, leaner skirt."

Following is Kasper's view of fall fashions:

THE DRESS

Destined for great things this fall, strategically engaged in matching line with softness to achieve a romantic sensuousness that reflects itself specifically in: The outer shirt and tunic . . . The Oval top . . . long and over the derriere . . . The "Big Top" shirt . . . The Double Agent—a super shirt dress . . . The Skinny wrap.

THE SUIT

Superbly simple, with the focus on the supple tailoring and impact details. Such as: The quilted jacket suit, the fur-trimmed jacket suit, the sweater suit, the restaurant suit, the duster jacket suit.

Winning Sandwich Recipes For You

What's a sandwich? Just a slab of meat between two slices of bread or a layer of peanut butter and jelly on bread? Not at all, as we found out when responses to our Sandwich Contest came rolling in.

Our thanks to all you enthusiastic sandwich makers who took time to share your inventive ideas. We've never had a more difficult contest to judge and we wish we could have made winners of everyone of you.

A special mention to the children, ages seven through eleven, of the Dedham Community Association summer activities who sent in their interesting entries. Young Keith Anderson sent in not only a sandwich suggestion but along with it a prescription . . . here it is: Bologna, cheese, lettuce, tomato, pickles, peppers, onions AND 2 packages of Alka Seltzer.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR SANDWICH CONTEST WINNERS! They are: Mrs. Ruth Simpson, Dedham, for VEAL POUCHES; Mrs. Lomar Robertson, Needham, for TUNA-PLUS SANDWICH; Melissa Choroszy, Newtonville, for TURKEY SPECIAL DELUXE and Pauline McGee, Westwood, for her SLOPPY JOE (OR SLOPPY ABDULLAH, IF YOU PREFER) IN A POCKET.

Our gratitude to the following people and their companies for their donation of Sandwich Contest prizes: Georgette Nickerson, Sahara Baking Co., a case of Mideast "pouch-like bread;" Irving Kesner, Kasanof Baking Company, a case of assorted bread and rolls; George Ward, Ward Baking Company, a case of assorted Ward products; Murray Lender, Lender's Bagel Bakery, a case of assorted bagels.

Here are the winning entries:

Mrs. Lomar Robertson's
TUNA-PLUS SANDWICH

(The plus is chopped egg and a slice of American or Swiss cheese.)

Tuna Mixture:

1 can drained tuna
1 large dill pickle, finely chopped
1 rib celery, finely chopped
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup chopped stuffed green olives
2 finely chopped hard-cooked eggs
¼ to one-third cup mayonnaise — enough to moisten
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Pepper
Garlic powder

Mix all ingredients, except cheese, thoroughly. Be sure to butter one slice of bread. Spread tuna mixture on that slice so that bread does not get soaked and soggy. Slap a slice of cheese on the other slice of bread and put together. (Really hearty! Can use thick or thin sliced bread.)

Mrs. Ruth Simpson's
VEAL POUCHES

2 pkgs. of 4 frozen cubed veal steaks
1 green pepper (sliced)
1 small can chopped mushrooms, drained
1 can (12 oz.) V-8 juice
Salt - pepper - oregano
Syrian bread

Brown frozen veal steaks (in a small amount of shortening). Put browned steaks in a 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan; overlap if necessary. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and oregano. Cover with strips of green pepper and drained mushroom pieces. Pour V-8 juice over all. Cover pan tightly with aluminum foil. Bake in 350 degree oven for 1 hour. Wrap Syrian bread in foil and warm in oven. Tear bread into desired size. Put veal steak and sauce into bread "pouch." Eat and enjoy. Great!

Melisa Choroszy's
TURKEY SPECIAL DELUXE

Take 2 slices dark pumpernickel and spread with Russian dressing on one slice. Top with:

Lettuce leaf
Tomato slices
Cucumber slices
Strips of bacon
Swiss cheese

Top the Swiss cheese with lettuce leaf and spread cranberry sauce on top of lettuce. Top with turkey slices and then the second slice of bread.

Pauline M. McGee's
SLOPPY JOE
(OR SLOPPY ABDULLAH, IF YOU PREFER) IN A POCKET

Brown together:

2 pounds regular hamburg
2 onions, chopped
2 green peppers, chopped

Pour off fat. Add:

1 can (12 oz.) tomato paste
1 can water
¾ teaspoon oregano, or to taste
Garlic salt and pepper to taste
¾ teaspoon oregano, or to taste

Cook over medium-low heat for 15 to 20 minutes, stirring often. Add more water, if necessary. Meanwhile, in a 200 degree oven, warm Syrian bread. Cut bread circle in half and spoon meat mixture into pocket. Sloppy and delicious! Six generous servings.

Variations: Double onions and peppers and substitute hot pepper seasoning for oregano and you have DYNAMITES IN A POCKET. Great with a salad and a mug of beer!

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

ONE OF THE CHIEF CONCERNS of today's homemakers is providing the most nutritious and tasty food possible when food prices escalate beyond all reason.

Even women who have never had to count pennies are complaining bitterly. Unfortunately, at present there is no apparent solution to our troubled economy and so greater concentration is necessary for finding ways to get the most for your food dollar.

Women bent on beating the high cost of food are turning to dried beans, peas and lentils as well as rice as meat alternates. Bean foods are rich in vitamins, especially thiamine, and also contain worthwhile amounts of calcium. Rich in iron, a cup of cooked beans contains about half a day's need for the nutrient. Be sure to include in your bean dish some animal source of protein, meat, poultry, fish or cheese, to strengthen its protein content.

The dried legumes are easy to use. Split peas and lentils require no preparation and are ready to use on top of the stove, boiled or pressure cooked dishes, or in oven dishes. If you're using beans and whole peas, however, soaking is necessary. Be sure to use the soaking water for cooking to get the full value of vitamins and minerals.

Here's a helpful hint to cut down on soaking time. Start soaking them by boiling the water for two minutes. Remove from heat and soak for one hour. They'll then be ready to cook. To avoid having beans or whole peas break during cooking, boil them gently and stir very little.

Canned tuna, salmon and mackerel have always been favorites to budget alert homemakers. Their reasonable price plus the fact that they are complete protein foods make them a valuable aid to the harried homemaker.

Become a penny-pincher by combining pasta with your main dishes and use noodles when reheating leftovers. (Sauteing a chopped onion and green pepper in margarine or oil — adding leftover meat or chicken, seasonings and cooked narrow noodles provides an excellent second meal.) Beginning cooks as well as old-timers will find these dishes easy to prepare.

BUDGET SAVING HINTS: Whole chicken is cheaper than a cut-up one (be sure you have the proper knives for the cutting-up procedure, a good investment). . . in buying cereals, hot ones cost far less per serving than the ready-to-eat sugar-coated ones (compare prices next time you shop) . . regular enriched rice is far cheaper than packaged rice mixes . . . regular noodles and spaghetti are cheaper than those that are fancy-shaped but with the same favor . . . one egg or one ounce of cheese equals the protein in one ounce of meat, fish or poultry. . . egg shell color means nothing; buy what's cheaper . . . evaporated milk is less expensive than milk and is equally nourishing for creamy puddings, topping for cereals or diluted for use in baking . . . beef, lamb and pork liver are much cheaper than calf liver, and pork liver contains more iron than calf liver.

LIMA BEAN LOAF

2 cups cooked lima beans, drained
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon cubed cheese
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup bread crumbs
Crumbs for garnish
2 cups tomato soup

Mash beans; add onion, cheese, salt, melted butter, 1 cup bread crumbs; mix well. Form into a loaf. Place in a greased baking dish. Cover top with more crumbs. Pour tomato soup around loaf. Bake in a 300 degree oven until crumbs' are lightly browned, about 25 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

CHILI CON CARNE

2 tablespoons bacon drippings
One-third cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, sliced
½ pound ground beef
2½ cups cooked dry kidney or pinto beans
One-third cup minced green pepper
2 to 2½ cups cooked or canned tomatoes
1 bay leaf, crushed
2 teaspoons sugar
2½ teaspoons chili powder
Salt and pepper

Brown onion and garlic in drippings. Add meat and cook slowly a few minutes, stirring occasionally. Add remaining ingredients, season, simmer until meat is tender and flavors are blended, about 30 minutes. Serves 4.

EGGS AND RICE COUNTRY SKILLET

8 eggs, beaten
¼ cup milk
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
2 cups cooked rice
1 can (6½ ounces tuna, flaked, drained
½ cup chopped green onions
1 fresh tomato, diced
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Dash tabasco

Combine eggs and milk; pour into large skillet containing heater margarine. Cook as you would scrambled eggs. When half cooked, add rice, tuna, onions, tomato and seasonings. Continue to cook until done (do not overcook). Serve immediately. Serves 6.

FISH STICKS ITALIAN

2 pkgs. (9 oz.) frozen fish sticks
1 cup chili sauce
½ to 1 teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon chili powder
½ pound mozzarella cheese, sliced

Arrange fish sticks in bottom of greased broiler pan. Broil for 4 minutes, turn and broil 2 minutes. Mix chili sauce, oregano and chili powder. Spread over fish sticks and top with cheese. Broil until cheese is melted and lightly browned. Makes 6 servings.

SALMON CAKES

1 tablespoon minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons margarine
2 cups salmon (1 lb. can)
2 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon steak sauce
2 cups soft bread crumbs

Saute pepper and onion in margarine until lightly golden. Add to salmon in large bowl. Add beaten eggs, steak sauce and bread crumbs. Mix well. Spoon into greased muffin pans and bake in preheated oven for 30 minutes.

CHEESE AND MACARONI BAKE

1 pkg. (7 oz.) elbow macaroni
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions; rinse, drain and set aside. In a saucepan melt margarine; blend in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually add milk; cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Remove from heat, add cheese and stir until cheese melts. Combine cheese sauce with macaroni; turn into casserole. Bake for 40-45 minutes or until top is golden.

VARIATIONS: CHEESE AND MACARONI TUNA: To Cheese and Macaroni recipe add 1 can 7 oz., tuna (do not drain), ¼ cup chopped green pepper and 2 tablespoons chopped pimento.

CHEESE AND MACARONI WITH GROUND BEEF: In a skillet brown 1 pound beef; add ½ cup chopped onion, ½ cup catsup and ½ teaspoon salt; simmer for 5 minutes. Pour one-half the cheese and macaroni mixture into casserole. Cover with ground beef mixture and top with remaining cheese and macaroni.

Lamb Loaf Sandwiches, an easy economical meal.

THRIFTY LAMB LOAF SANDWICH

3 pounds ground lamb
1¼ cup bread crumbs
1 cup onions, chopped
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 eggs
¾ cup bottled chutney sauce
1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons curry powder
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup catsup
Sliced radishes, thin sliced green onion, chopped tomatoes.

Crumble the lamb into a large bowl. To lamb add the bread crumbs, chopped onion, tomato sauce, eggs, ¼ cup chutney sauce, garlic, curry powder, salt and pepper. Mix together until all ingredients are thoroughly combined. Pack lamb mixture into a large loaf pan and bake at 325 degrees for 1½ hours or until thoroughly cooked. Cool the lamb loaf before preparing the sandwiches. For sandwiches, combine remaining ½ cup chutney sauce and catsup. Spread each slice of bread with about 1 teaspoon of the catsup mixture. Slice meat loaf into 16 to 20 thin slices. Place a slice of meat on a slice of bread. Over the meat sprinkle desired amount of radishes, green onions and tomatoes; top with second slice of bread and serve.

'Condominiums' Now A Household Word

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Condominium. Not so long ago it was something you looked up in the dictionary: "individual ownership of a unit in a multi-unit structure; a unit so owned."

Today, it's a household word. What's more, an increasing number of households are condominiums.

New condominium units offered for sale this year are expected to account for more than 50 per cent of the total number of new dwellings, perhaps as high as 58 per cent. As recently as 1970, condominiums accounted for only 11 per cent of new home sales.

The condominium boom mirrors important changes in the composition of American society. The groups most attracted to condominiums, younger buyers and senior citizens, now comprise 55 per cent of our population.

Unlike some housing trends of the past, condominiums did not emerge quietly, slowly gaining popularity. "Instead," says Robert W. Gaber, president of Conco Mortgage Co., San Francisco, "an explosion of demand reached, almost overnight, boom proportions."

Would-be owners are rushing to buy condominiums in all forms: townhouses and cluster homes; apartments—both the garden-type low-rise and high-rises.

On principle, the concept has much to commend it. In many ways it gives the condominium owner the equivalent of single family home ownership. He can tailor the financing, to a degree, to his own needs; has an equity interest which figures to give him a measure of inflation protection and gets the tax advantages of private home ownership—tax and interest deductions, deferment of tax on gain on sale within code limits, and long-term capital gain treatment if tax deferment is not available. Normally, he is the absolute owner. And, if he wants, he can rent and take depreciation deductions like any other landlord.

Checklist

From the Institute for Business Planning, New York City publisher of financial and real estate planning information, comes a checklist of some of the key items the potential buyer of a condominium should be aware of:

—Lease of land. In many cases, the developer will retain ownership of the land and recreational facilities. He may thus collect rent for both from the condominium owners for longer periods, such as 99 years or possibly more. The rent may be way out of line.

—Maintenance Costs. The estimate given prospective purchasers may be very low. The developer may be able to defer costs while he's around. When he leaves, the actual costs show up.

—Renting. Possibility for renting a unit often is used as an inducement to purchase. Glowing rent estimates are made. They neglect to take account of the actual market, rental commissions, screening fees, the IRS limitations on tax deductions, the fix-up expenses and other factors. Taken into account, all these things might require a rent far larger than the market would support.

—Construction. The heating and cooling systems may be inadequate. The plumbing may not live up to expectations. Sound-proofing may be thin. Room sizes may be smaller than the sale floor plans showed. The same may be true of parking spaces.

—Voting Control. The developer often will keep voting control of the management board of the project until all units are sold. This control serves the legitimate purpose of assuring proper operation and maintenance while the units are being sold. The danger is if there's no time limit on the developer's control and he finds it difficult to sell the units, he may be able to lower prices or start renting. That, of course, is not good for the unit owners. To guard against it, the developer's control should be limited, especially the time element, which should be no more than two years at the outside.

—Control of Utilities. In some projects, the developers will continue to control gas and electricity, water and sewers, and other utilities. This is to be avoided as unit owners are exposed to the risk of uncontrolled rates and poor performance without effective remedy.

—Growth of Project. Sometimes the developer plans to add more to the project in some undefined way. He might build so many additional units that planned recreational facilities may prove inadequate. Also the comfort and value of the original units may be adversely affected by the sheer increase in size and number of units available.

—Management contract. Special attention should be paid to any management contract a developer may retain. Such a contract may, for example, give him an exclusive on the sale or lease of units by the condominium owners at standard commission rates or permit insurance deals and the placing of repair and maintenance contracts and orders for work with affiliated or related outfits. These management contracts usually are put together before any units have been sold. There's no bargaining or negotiation. And they could tie down the unit owners for years.

Condominium is a good way of life for increasing numbers of families but, as with any other major purchase, it's "Caveat Emptor," let the buyer beware—and be informed!

DON'T BE FLEECED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumers are fleeced of over $500 million a year through mail frauds, according to Janet Wilson, extension consumer education specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Consumers who become victims of correspondence school frauds are people with little education desperately trying to improve their economic opportunities. She said fraudulent schools will accept anyone willing to sign a contract. Once it is signed, the victim has little chance to get out of it. Consumers can protect themselves by investigating before they sign any contracts. Check with employers in the particular industry involved to determine the value of a particular course. Miss Wilson also advised the consumer: be suspicious of mail order schemes that demand money for information about good pay for easy part-time work in your home. Some are direct frauds.

BLOOMINGDALE'S OPENS IN CHESTNUT HILL MALL.

Bloomingdale's Blossoms

The new Chestnut Hill Mall blossomed into reality this week with the official opening of Bloomingdale's on Monday morning complete with a unique opening day ceremony and a throng of smartly dressed shoppers.

Just before the doors opened at 9:30 a.m. an antique silver key was presented to Newton Mayor Theodore Mann by Lawrence Lachman, Chairman of the Board of Bloomingdale's, a division of Federated Department stores, and Marvin S. Traub, president of the store.

"It's so beautiful," said Mrs. Barbara Greene of Newton, one of the first of many shoppers to view the interior of modern two story home furnishing center.

A unique concept in retailing, the Bloomingdale's Home Furnishings store in Chestnut Hill, brings to the Boston community a new dimension in the world of living environments and their components. Bloomingdale's has long enjoyed a reputation for creativity in the home furnishings world. The store has created a new concept in contemporary design. . .a new world of ideas. Ideas about space, colour, texture and light...ideas about rooms and how to make them come alive. Bloomingdale's Interior Design service, staffed by a group of experts, headed by Richard Ryan, will bring its expertise to the Boston scene.

The store, first to open in the new Chestnut Hill Mall, is located at 175 Boylston Street at Hammond Pond Parkway. It encompasses over 80,000 square feet on two levels.

Contemporary in feeling, the beige and white store has a mansard roof. Hand-made ceramic tiles form a sculptured abstraction softened by natural plantings. Architect's Collaborative worked in conjunction with Booomingdale's Consultant Architect, Ralston W. Newsam, A.I.A.

What will be found in this new Home Furnishings store? An extraordinary assemblage of furniture and home furnishings from every corner of the world.

On the first floor, in a setting of natural wood beams and terra cotta floors, includes Au Gourmet - an international collection of accessories for the creative cook. It has a direct entrance from the mall and will house a grouping of baskets, terra cotta pieces, wine serving accoutrements, and every manner of contemporary designs in living.

Also on that first level will be found two of the Bloomingdale hallmarks - first, the famous Breadbasket, filled with baked breads like the French bread flown in fresh from Paris and over sixty varieties of breads made specially for Bloomingdale's and delivered daily.

On the second floor, will be found the internationally famed Bloomingdale Designer Rooms which have been created around well known Boston figures. These are delineated in a separate release (attached). The Interior Design service, headed by Richard Ryan, will make its home here, ready for advice and consultation without charge, for the Boston community.

South Shore Plaza Plans Pre-Schooler Safety Course

Pre-school children may attend safety classes in a specially constructed miniature "safety city" at the South Shore Plaza now through Sept. 1.

The "pint-size" city will include small buildings, streets, traffic signals, roads signs and small vehicles.

These simulate the conditions and situations that the children, four to six years old, would or might encounter when they start going to school, according to Greg Horton, promotion director for the Plaza.

Instruction will include: rules on crossing a street with and without signals; the danger of talking to strangers; how a policeman can help a child in trouble; what a child should do if left alone or lost, and some dangerous places to avoid, such as construction projects, storm drains and old refrigerators.

Uniformed law enforcement officers are expected to be among the instructors and registration of children for classes will be invited through newspaper ads, Horton said.

The advertisements will explain the program and a registration coupon will be included which must be completed and returned to the South Shore Plaza.

A card will then be mailed to each registrant giving the day and time at which the child is to be brought to the center for a class.

Each class will last 30 minutes and to hold the children's interest, a professional clown will pantomime the dangers a small child might encounter.

Volunteer help is needed and solicited - a local group to paint the miniature city, Girl Scouts to help keep the children under control, police officers to volunteer their time, etc.

At the end of each class the children will be given a Safety City Diploma. Parents will be able to watch the proceedings from one end of the miniature city.

"If one child is saved through what he or she learned here the whole program will have been worthwhile," Horton said.

'Circuit Of The 70's' Topic Of Seminar

Cramer Electronics of Newton, international distributor of electronic components to industry, has announced the presentation of two technical seminars dealing with the RCA COS-MOS digital circuit, dubbed "The Circuit of the '70's."

The seminars, held in conjunction with RCA personnel, are scheduled September 6 at the Marriott Motel in Newton, and at the Villa Capri in Wallingford, Connecticut September 7.

According to Nils Attemann, Cramer vice president of Semiconductor Marketing, the technical seminars are planned in response to increasing customer demand for more detailed design and application information.

"The RCA COS-MOS Circuit has already shown great sales acceptance because of its design flexibility, compatibility, low power consumption and stable operation over a wide range of temperature and voltage. Yet, customers have not yet realized the number of application possibilities," Attemann said.

"Attendees will learn more ways to take advantage of the outstanding features of this 'super circuit'," he added.

All technical personnel in New England with an interest in digital circuits are invited to attend one of the first-of-a-kind seminars. Two well-known authorities in the field of circuit design, K. Karstad and Irving Daroff, will be co-chairmen of the events.

Karstad, a senior engineer with RCA, has a MSEE degree from Norway's Technical University, Trondheim. His early background includes Sonar experience as Chief Engineer of the Sonar Section in the Royal Norwegian Navy's Materials Command.

With the RCA Corporation since 1952, a principal part of Karstad's efforts have been as member of the Technical Staff at RCA Laboratories in Princeton, N.J., where he conducted research in circuits and systems. At RCA's West Coast Electronic Product Division, he advanced his research into the design and development of microwaves for ECM applications.

For the last 12 years, Karstad has been engaged in computer oriented research. This included memory devices, instrumentation and measurements on magnetic films, piezoelectricity, and generation and propagation of ultrasound.

Since 1964, he has been active in research, design and application in the COS-MOS field. During this period at the laboratories, his activity involved the design and application of COS-MOS in computer peripheral equipment and studies directed towards MSI-LSI implementation of COS-MOS circuits. While at RCA's Computer System Division, he served as project engineer on performance and cost-effectiveness studies for COS-MOS in computer systems. Presently, he is with the Solid State Division in the COS-MOS System Analysis and Application group where he is responsible for surveying and evaluating the COS-MOS standard product line.

Karstad has one patent, is author and coauthor of several papers, and is recipient of an RCA Laboratories Award for Outstanding Achievement in 1966. He is a senior member of IEEE and Member of Sigma Xi.

Irving Daroff graduated from Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa., in 1952. Following graduation, he joined RCA and pursued the fields of Mobile Communications, broadcast TV, Industrial Development and Laser Applications.

Daroff entered the computer field in 1962 where he worked in the Magnetic Main Frame Memories and later in IC Scratch Pads and Memory Products. These same memories were used in RCA Spectra and Military Digital Communications Systems. In 1972 Daroff joined Solid State Division to work in COS-MOS Systems Applications. He since has been responsible for preparation of technical proposals for custom MSI-LSI circuits.

Persons wishing to make reservations for either of the two seminars of more information may call Attemann's office, 969-7700.

Cramer Electronics, with 37 stocking and service facilities located throughout the world, is listed on the American Stock Exchange.

'POSSUMS IN MASSACHUSETTS? - Robert Stanhope, right, director of the Blue Hills Trailside Museum, shows Dr. Allan Greenberg, director of the Curry College Division of Continuing Education, an opossum, which will be one of the subjects studied in a course Stanhope will teach this fall at the college on New England wild animals.

Blue Hills Trailside Museum Has Answers About Wild Life

What is the most dangerous animal in Massachusetts? How many bears are left in the Bay State? Whatever happened to the river otter which once was so abundant in these parts?

The answers to these questions might surprise you.

Robert Stanhope, director of the Blue Hills Trailside Museum and lecturer at Curry College in Milton, says the most dangerous animal in the Commonwealth is the snapping turtle. Why? Because of his vicious bite and his aggressiveness.

As to the number of bears still left in Massachusetts, Stanhope says there are about half a dozen, all located in the Western part of the State.

The river otter is a dying species here because water traffic and pollution have forced him to move elsewhere.

Stanhope, who will be given a two-credit evening course on the "Natural History of Indigenous Animals" this fall at Curry College, believes that Bay Staters should know more about the animals native to Massachusetts - their life styles and their interaction with human society.

Borrowing a phrase from the Massachusetts Audubon Society, Stanhope says, "We should all be 'environmentally-literate' citizens." Pointing out that our lack of concern about the environment has resulted in the loss of many animal species in this area, he says that the deer, bear, and wolves, which once inhabited the Blue Hills, are now gone.

The Blue Hills Trailside Museum has some 75 species of live wild animals on display, including copperheads and timber rattlesnakes, the only types of poisonous snakes found in this area.

Among the Blue Hills collection is an animal once thought to be native only to the South - the opossum. According to Stanhope, this strange looking furry creature with a tail like a sawed-off buggy whip has followed the garbage trail into Massachusetts. Like the raccoon and the skunk, the 'possum thrives on garbage and has been feasting upon New England food waste in ever-increasing numbers in recent years.

Most of the animals at Trailside were brought in to the Museum by residents of the South Shore area. "We have gained a reputation for being the place to bring wild animals," says Stanhope. "We are also the only ones who are checking out reports of poisonous snakes in the area."

Stanhope's course at Curry College will be conducted both at the College and at Trailside, where students will actually have a chance to view and work with the animals being discussed.

The Trailside director said the general goal of his course, which opens on Tuesday, Sept. 11, "is to impart an increased love and respect for the variety of animal life we live with.

Morgan Memorial Goodwill Takes Over Day Care Center

The Morgan Memorial Goodwill Centers have added a Day Care Center to its programs of opportunities and service to people in need. The Center is located in Castle Square housing project at the intersection of Arlington, Tremont and Herald streets, Boston.

Morgan Memorial was asked to assume operation of the Center by the Department of Public Welfare, when a private health research group sponsoring the day care center since 1969 withdrew from the project.

There are some 100 children between the ages of one month and five years at the center. The day care staff consists of a director, social worker, educational coordinator, 15 teachers, five head teachers, cook, two janitors, a part-time secretary and a part-time nurse.

The Center is open Monday through Friday. Breakfast and lunch are served to the children daily. Besides taking care of the children of working parents, the Morgan Memorial Day Center is also a training facility for college students doing field work.

This is not the first time that Morgan Memorial has run a day care center. In fact, Goodwill operated a center for 70 years, until it was discontinued eight years ago when urban renewal claimed the Goodwill Nursery building in the South End.

The history of Morgan Memorial's involvement with day care goes back to 1895. Edgar Helms, the founder of Morgan Memorial used the pews of old Morgan Chapel as cribs for the children of working parents. This was Helms' first project—he started the Day Nursery before he founded Goodwill Industries.

Other Morgan Memorial Goodwill Centers are: Goodwill Industries in Boston, Lynn and Worcester; The Goodwill Inn School for Boys in Dorchester; Goodwill Housing, and the Goodwill Fresh Air Camps.

Art Collections Hitting The Road

NEW YORK (UPI) — University art collections, among the nation's richest, mostly are immobile—accessible only on home campuses.

But there's a break with tradition on the horizon. Eleven Midwestern university art collections are hitting the road—so to speak. Teamed up, they will figure in an exhibition opening in New York Oct. 4 at the Wildenstein and Co. Gallery. That's the first stop for this unusual roadshow.

The exhibit title: "Paintings from Midwestern University Collections: 17th to 20th Centuries." Seventy-six paintings are in the collection organized and sponsored by the Committee on Institutional Cooperation. That's a consortium of 11 Midwestern universities.

After the New York show closes the paintings will "tour" the participating universities, through April, 1975.

The member universities include: the University of Chicago, University of Michigan, Michigan State University, University of Minnesota, Northwestern University, Ohio State University, and University of Wisconsin. Purdue University will not be able to participate, contrary to original plans.

A fire destroyed the school's exhibition facilities.

The paintings on tour exhibit partially is sponsored by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

The educational consortium behind this unusual show was founded in 1958. It was established to improve the quality and efficiency of higher education through the pooling of certain resources of member institutions.

Other cooperative ventures have included the traveling scholar program and the study of bio-meteorology—the effect of weather on living organisms.

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Our thanks to Mrs. T. M. N., who writes, "We were invited to a cookout last week and because of rain it was a "cookin". Our hostess served a meat loaf baked in the oven–it was so delicious I asked for the recipe and have since prepared it myself. Hope your readers will enjoy it!" (I'm sure we all will!)

BARBECUED MEAT LOAF
¼ cup molasses
¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ cup vinegar
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 eggs
3 cups soft bread crumbs
1 medium onion, finely chopped
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon thyme
3 pounds ground beef

Combine molasses, mustard and vinegar in a 1-cup measure. Add ½ cup of the mixture to tomato sauce and eggs in large mixing bowl; beat until blended. Mix in bread crumbs, onion, parsley, salt and thyme. Add ground beef; mix well. Form into loaf in shallow baking pan. Brush with part of the remaining molasses mixture. Bake in a 350 degree oven 1-½ hours, brushing occasionally with remaining molasses mixture. Serve with Creole Sauce below. Bakes 12 servings.

CREOLE SAUCE

Heat 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes with small onion, sliced and ¼ cup diced green pepper, ⅛ teaspoon basil, ⅛ teaspoon tarragon, ¼ teaspoon Tabasco, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce in a saucepan. Blend together 2 tablespoons cornstarch, one-third cup water. Add to tomato mixture, stirring constantly. Cook, stirring until mixture is thickened and clear. Serve with meat loaf. Makes 2 cups.

Question: I am looking for a recipe that was rather popular some years ago–it featured a graham cracker crumb shell and had a very nice cheese filling with a sour cream topping. If you have this recipe I would greatly appreciate it. — G.H., West Roxbury

Answer: A light and lovely dessert any time of year, here it is:

FRENCH CHEESECAKE TORTE
1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
⅓ cup melted margarine
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sugar
Topping (below)
10-12 strawberries for garnish

Mix graham cracker crumbs, melted margarine and 2 tablespoons sugar with a fork. Pat into a lightly buttered 9-inch pie plate. Completely cover the bottom and sides but do not put crumbs around the upper edge of the plate. Bake for 5 minutes at 350 degrees.

Mix cream cheese, eggs, vanilla and ½ cup sugar with a beater. Pour into cooled graham cracker shell and bake at 350 degrees 25 minutes or until knife cut into the center comes out clean. Cool at room temperature. Spoon topping over cake. Bake for 5 minutes in preheated 400 degree oven. Refrigerate 4 hours before garnishing with whole or sliced strawberries.

TOPPING
4 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sour cream
Combine all ingredients.

Question: Has anybody come up with a pizza sandwich – in other words a snack that doesn't need the usual pizza dough which I cannot make and really won't even have the time to bother to try. It just seems to me that a sandwich could have the same flavoring and topping yet not involve pizza dough. Thanks. — Mrs. B., Brookline

Answer: To some the crisp pizza dough is more important than the filling–however, you're right a pizza sandwich does make sense. Here's one that should ring the bell for you!

SALAMI PIZZA SANDWICHES
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
2 tablespoons crushed oregano
¾ teaspoon garlic salt
20 slices white bread
2 pkgs. (8 oz. ea.) all meat salami
10 slices Mozzarella cheese
Margarine

Combine tomato paste, oregano and garlic salt; spread mixture on all bread slices. To make sandwich, top 10 bread slices each with one slice meat, one slice cheese and another slice meat. Top with remaining 10 slices of bread. Melt margarine in skillet and with heat turned to low, fry until sandwiches are brown on both sides. (These sandwiches can be toasted in a toaster oven.)

Question: You once gave me a recipe for pickled cucumber slices and I would appreciate your printing it once again. Thanks. — Mrs. E. Linde, Newtonville

Answer: Easy to prepare and a zesty side dish when serving poultry or meat:

EASY WILTED CUCUMBERS
2 large cucumbers
1 large onion
½ cup white vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup water
2 tablespoons sugar

Pare and slice cucumbers thin. Slice onion thin and separate into rings. Place both vegetables in a covered bowl. Bring remaining ingredients to a boil; pour over vegetables and refrigerate at least 3 hours before serving.

Question: I'm always on the lookout for easy dessert recipes. If you have a recipe that could be prepared while we're on a camping trip, so much the better. Many thanks. — Mrs. W., Dedham

Answer: Here's a dessert that calls for just a few easy-to-pack ingredients. A sweet and spicy sauce, featuring a mixture of dried or fresh fruit, simmers nicely atop a camp stove as well as the more traditional range. When hot, top with dumplings made by combining an easy-to-use packet of Hungry Jack Complete Pancake Mix and water. A mouth-watering treat!

SAUCY FRUIT DUMPLINGS
Fruit Sauce
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2½ cups water
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
1 to 1½ cups dried fruit such as prunes, apricots, raisins or a combination, or 2 cups fresh fruit
Dumplings
1 packet Hungry Jack Complete Pancake Mix one third cup water

Combine sugar and cinnamon in kettle or heavy fry pan, add water, margarine and fruit and simmer about 5 minutes. Combine dumpling ingredients. Drop dumplings by scant tablespoons (8 small) on top. Cook, uncovered for 10 minutes; turn and cook for an additional 10 minutes. Serve warm with cream, milk or vanilla ice cream. Makes 6-8 servings.

HELPFUL HINTS: MOLASSES QUICKIE BAKED BEANS are great for buffet suppers, and they fill your kitchen with rich, old-fashioned aroma. For 8 servings, blend together ¼ cup molasses, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons vinegar, and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Empty 2 1-lb. cans baked beans into a 1½ quart casserole; combine with molasses mixture and 1 small onion, sliced; bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes.

Top Women Golfers Compete At Oakley

Several localites will be among the more than 70 top women golf champions representing clubs throughout Massachusetts competing in the 76th Annual Tournament of Women Golf Champions at the Oakley Country Club in Watertown on Tuesday, Aug. 28.

The tournament, sponsored by Commonwealth Bank and Trust Co., is considered to be one of the outstanding ladies' events in the state.

The tournament is open to all 1973 club champions in the state. However, if a club has not determined the 1973 champion, the 1972 champion is eligible.

The tournament consists of 18 holes of stroke play. A trophy will be awarded to the winner, and a permanent replica will go to her club. The winner will also receive a $100 gift certificate, and certificates of $75, $50, $35 and $25 will be awarded to the next four runners-up.

A buffet will precede the presentation of prizes by Phil David Fine and James R. White, board chairman and president, respectively, of Commonwealth Bank and Trust Co. The local residents are: Mrs. Philip Dine, 565 Dudley Rd., Newton Centre; Mrs. George Gibson, 230 Windsor Rd., Waban; Ms. Pam Gordon, 33 Lyman Rd., Chestnut Hill.

National Champions

International League

Before the International Division playoffs began, last week there was the formality of getting rid of one more regular season game.

If umpire's mercy hadn't intervened, though, it might still be going on. But after eight innings and three hours, common sense prevailed and the game between Oak Hill and Upper Falls ended at 14-14.

Larry Brownstein crashed three hits for Oak Hill, but the real achievement was scored by Upper Falls, which managed its runs on just six hits.

Then the real fun began.

Waban, the runaway pennant-winner, surprised no-one by sweeping past Totem Pole in two straight games to move into the finals. For a while it looked like third-place St. Bernard's might pull an upset and knock off second-place Boys' Club, but the Clubbies bounced back to win two straight after an opening loss.

Waban, which had little trouble running all over the league during the season took two straight from the fourth-place Braves, but had to struggle to do it. The Chiefs won, 3-2, and 5-4.

A two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth by Phil Small carried the Chiefs to the first win. Small also accounted for one more of the winners' four hits.

Another plus was the mound work of Steve DiBenedetto, who twirled a three-hitter and chalked up 14 strikeouts.

Waban started things off with a two-run first inning in the second game and never fell behind, but Totem Pole kept threatening right up to the final out.

Robbie Alevizos wasn't as overpowering as usual, but still pitched a complete game for the win, though Doug Jessup's two solid hits kept him on his toes.

DiBenedetto cracked two doubles for Alevizos' chief offensive support.

Jack Garabedian and Bobby Vona combined to toss a no-hitter at the Boys' Club in the first game of their semi-final series.

Garabedian, working with a 4-0 lead, lasted until the fourth inning when he left for Vona. Vona started firing and set down seven Boys' Club batters on strikes in three innings to preserve Garabedian's shutout and no-hitter.

Jerry Murphy's two hits sparked St. B's.

Evidently, the Clubbies studied the style book because Mike Smith came back in the second game to fashion his own no-hitter and even things up, 6-0.

Smith did have troubles with control, walking six, but was never in danger of losing the game. Steve Cononico and Tom McCarthy each provided clutch triples for the big blasts.

St. Bernard's started the third game like it wanted the series, notching two runs in the first inning, but that was it as Steve Cononico emerged from the depths of the bullpen to slam the door.

Cononcio, who had pitched and pitched ineffectively in only two games this season, was superb. He yielded one hit after coming in with two out in the first and fanned eight men as his teammates got their bats limbered up. Boys' Club took the decisive game, 6-2.

Two bunts by Smith also figured prominently in the win.

The final series begins this week between Waban and the Boys' Club, surprisingly enough, the first and second place teams. (Lewis Freedman)

Young U.S. Team In 50th Wightman Cup Matches

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. — The United States will be relying on its youngest team ever when it squares off against Great Britain in the 50th Anniversary Wightman Cup tennis matches next weekend, August 24-26, at the Longwood Cricket Club here.

The U.S. will be seeking its fifth consecutive victory in the annual best-of-seven-match team series between leading women players of the two countries. Overall the Americans hold a 37-7 advantage in the traditional rivalry, which began in 1923 and has been renewed every year except during World War II.

Cup donor Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, 86, of nearby Newton, Mass. will be on hand for the golden anniversary celebration. Among the guests taking part in special festivities will be 13 former Wightman Cup captains, nine American and four British.

Chris and Jeanne Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the first sisters ever named to the U.S. Wightman Cup team, highlight the current five-girl American contingent, whose members average only 19 years of age.

Jeanne, 15, is the youngest player in the history of the prestigious competition. Sister Chris, now 18 and one of the top-ranked women pros in the world, was the previous holder of that distinction, having made her debut in 1971 at the age of 16.

Completing the American team are 17-year-old Marita Redondo of National City, Calif.; Linda Tuero, 22, of New Orleans; and Patti Hogan, 23, of LaJolla, Calif. The non-playing U.S. captain is Edythe Ann McGoldrick of Wellesley, Mass.

The challenging British squad is also one of the most youthful of all time. Joining 28-year-old Virginia Wade, the playing captain, are four newcomers to Wightman Cup competition: Glynis Coles, 19; Veronica Burton and Lesley Charles, both 21 and Lindsey Beaven, 23.

Miss Wade, a veteran of eight previous Wightman campaigns, was the heroine of Britain's last triumph, in 1968 at Wimbledon, England.

Chris Evert and Misses Hogan and Tuero were on the U.S. team which scored a 5-2 upset in last year's matches at Wimbledon. Mrs. McGoldrick was captain of that squad.

The Wightman Cup is played in the U.S. on odd years and in England on even years. The 50th anniversary edition was awarded to Longwood because it is the home club of Mrs. Wightman, who won 44 U.S. national titles in a distinguished playing career, competed on five U.S. teams after donating the trophy for international competion, and captained the U.S. squad 13 times.

The period August 22-26 has been proclaimed Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman Week by Mayor Kevin H. White of Boston, one of several dignitaries serving on the honorary committee for the event. Mayor White will preside at a midweek reception at Boston City Hall honoring Mrs. Wightman.

The Honorable Theodore D. Mann, Mayor of the City of Newton, and Mrs. Mann are also members of the honorary committee.

Both the American and British teams will be headquartered at the Marriott Hotel in Newton during their stay.

The opening two singles matches are scheduled for Friday evening (August 24), starting at 7:30. This session will mark the first night play in Wightman Cup history.

One singles and one doubles match are scheduled for Saturday afternoon, beginning at 2 p.m. Two singles and one doubles match will conclude the series on Sunday afternoon, with play starting at 1 p.m.

Wightman Cup At Longwood

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

CHESTNUT HILL—They're playing tennis at Longwood again this week, or maybe it's still, but either way the flavor of the 50th annual Wightman Cup Championships and the regular US Pro Open Championships is very different.

Right off the bat spectators will notice a major difference - the Pro Open is all male, the Wightman all female.

What the Wightman Cup is, is a yearly matchup of five of the United States' best female tennis players against the same from Great Britain.

The tradition began in 1923 when one Hazel Wightman now known as the Grand Old Dame of Tennis, and a long-time Newton resident, donated an International Challenge Cup, ostensibly for multi-national play. It never worked out that way and soon the Cup was rechristened with Mrs. Wightman's name.

The United States traditionally mashes its foreign opponents into the synthetic grass or clay turf, whichever they happen to be playing on at the time. And this round should be no different since the English contain few household names on their roster.

Among the visitors, only playing captain Virginia Wade carries a name familiar enough to be feared. She'll be playing number one ahead of some young teammates. Joining the elderly (28) Ms. Wade will be Glynis Coles, Lindsey Beaven, Lesley Charles and Veronica Burton.

People populating the host squad have more famous monickers. Chris Evert, a veteran of the team at age 18, is the number one player.

Joining Chris are Patti Hogan, Linda Tuero, Marita Redondo, who at 17 would be, in any ordinary year the youngest player in the competition, but rates only second because of the presence of Jeanne Evert, Chris' younger and the youngest person to ever be selected for Wightman Cup play. She also captures the distinction from big sister.

The tournament opens tomorrow night at 7:30 and play continues through the weekend. Starting time Saturday is 2 p.m., and the matches go off at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

The draw for first round opponents is tonight, and will determine if the players in the top slots, Wade and Evert meet in the opening round or the closing round. Hopefully, it will be in the first because by the time they meet on Sunday it could be anticlimactic.

Agent To Play In Tournament

Nelson M. Silk, an independent insurance agent from West Newton, has been added to the list of 150 amateurs, professionals and celebrities who will compete in the prestigious $50,000 Minute Man Classic Golf Tournament, Aug. 27-29, at Nashawtuc Country Club.

Announcement of the addition of Silk, from the Homer T. Brown Insurance Agency, 1423 Beacon St., Brookline, was made by T. Eric Blomfelt and J. Gordon "Buck" MacKinnon, co-directors of the tournament which is sponsored by the Concord-based Minute Man Companies.

"Selection to play in the Minute Man Classic," Blomfelt and MacKinnon said, "is the highest tribute we can pay to one of our agents, especially in light of the increased popularity the tournament has enjoyed during the past four years."

Silk is a member of the Massachusetts Insurance Agents Association. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois and lives at 58 Randlett Rd., West Newton.

St. Bernards Win National Title

A four-run fifth inning outburst, coupled with steady pitching from southpaw Jim Blake, enabled St. Bernard's to sweep past Newton Centre, 5-2, and capture the National Division championship, last week.

St. Bernard's, which finished second in the regular campaign behind Upper Falls, ousted the Boy's Club in the first round of the playoffs and then topped Newton Centre, 3-1 in the best-of-seven final series.

Blake permitted Centre just six hits while striking out nine batters and walking two.

Blake, Jim McCarthy and Brian Pendergast stroked key hits in the four-run rally which clinched the game. Blake also slammed a home run in the sixth frame and McCarthy contributed a second hit as well.

St. Bernard's final record was 16-6-1. Newton Centre was 12-10-4 with much more playoff action.

Tennis Winners

Winners of this year's playground tennis tourney sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department include: Front Row, left to right: Midget Champion, Jeff Small; Midget Runner-up, Stewart Sussman; Mark Fleming, Squirt Runner-up. Second Row, left to right: Leon Geller, Tennis Instructor; Sue Armstrong, Squirt Runner-up; Lisa Cherrin, Midget Champion; Heide Blau, Midget Runner-up; Jeanne Boudreau, Tennis Instructor. Missing when picture was taken, Judy Koffman, Squirt Champion; David Kelliher, Squirt Champion.

All Fired Up? Oakland Best At Dousing Flames

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — What does it take for a city to have the best fire prevention program in the United States?

A lot of community involvement and "a little more expertise," says Oakland Fire Marshal Ed Heaney.

The National Fire Protection Association has rated Oakland's the best fire prevention program in the United States during 1972 but Heaney says the story "really goes back more than 10 years."

"That's when we really started going into the schools and talking to the kids," he said.

The Oakland Fire Department, Heaney said, had one of the first, if not the first, home fire safety film.

"We made it in 1958 with our own firemen. Now we use a film by Disney but I still like the one with the professional firefighters."

The 660-member department was cited by the association for conducting checks of 14,300 homes last year and 24,000 inspections of institutional, industrial and commercial facilities.

The Oakland Fire Department, the fire marshal said, is unusual in using regular firemen as fire inspectors.

"We inspect each commercial building at least once a year, some even once a month if they are considered dangerous."

Representatives from several fire departments have expressed interest in the training program that allows the men to serve also as inspectors.

"We often have them show up here to check on the program," Heaney said.

14-Man Staff

Heaney said he only has 14 men on his staff and without the checks by ordinary firemen it would be impossible to do an adequate job.

Oakland has good reason to push for a top fire prevention program.

In 1970 more than 30 homes in the Oakland hills were destroyed by a fast moving forest fire and today there's an equally dangerous situation in that area.

Thousands of dead eucalyptus trees, killed by record winter weather in December, could break out in flames and form what authorities have dubbed "a lethal firestorm."

Heaney says his men so far have supervised the cutting of 4,000 trees in the hill area.

"It's an extremely dangerous situation," Heaney said.

Following the 1970 blaze, he said, the department undertook "one of the most ambitious projects of any urban fire department in the nation" in the Oakland hills.

Heaney said the department had owners clear a 30-foot green belt area around the homes in the hill areas.

"The project was going just great when this tree thing hit us."

Fire prevention is taught in the city's elementary and junior high schools and the department conducts classes and demonstrations to train hospital and nursing home staffs.

One of the biggest problems, as it is in most big cities, is the number of false alarms.

"We get 3,000 false alarms each year," Heaney said.

In an effort to cut down on the number, the department has had a program since 1969 that sends special men into the schools to lecture on the dangers of false alarms and vandalism.

Battalion Chief Sam Golden said the program is conducted each year and a drop in false alarms is always noted after the project ends.

9th Grader's Math Book Is Sexist

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI) — The following is reprinted with permission from the Superintendent's Bulletin, Montgomery County Public Schools, Rockville, Md.

A ninth grader, Ms. Ann MacArthur, analyzed her math book and found it sexist.

In a memo to her principal, Nathan P. Pearson, she recommended that the book (Modern Algebra: Structure and Method, Book 1, Houghton-Mifflin, 1962) be replaced "before it causes any more mind pollution."

Her premise is based on a detailed analysis of the word problems in her ninth grade algebra book, which she maintains promote a sexist indoctrination.

Some of her findings:

—On pages 58 to 60, problems dealing with money all have men or boys as subjects. The only problems with women as subjects deal with weight or hair color.

—On pages 94 to 95, males are always challening or earning, while the only problem mentioning a female has her being twice as old as Bob.

—The male subjects have such roles as merchant or football player; the female roles are always housewife or club member.

—On page 132 a woman is mentioned in only one problem where she is losing a game to a man.

—Only one problem, on pages 180 to 182, deals with a woman as a subject. She is a "Mrs." Asbury.

Blouse Making

"It gets more discriminating and discouraging as you go along," the student said. "Throughout the entire book not one set of word problems has more females as subjects than males. The only roles suitable for females in the book are like Amy on page 54 who is making a blouse and Emma on page 55 who is X years old."

She said that when money is the subject of a word problem, men get to deal with large sums for investment purposes, or to make major purchases, while women seem to deal only with small (before phase 4) sums necessary to buy a pound of butter or a dozen eggs.

She found men do more interesting things in the algebra book. When men are mentioned in a problem, she says they are painting a barn or building a road or setting up a train. There are two cyclists and one canoeist whose names aren't mentioned. But she says "we still have to find out 'his' speed, not hers."

On the other hand, females in the math problems always seem to be in the home, or figuring out improbable and unpractical age problems, such as Janet being 4-5 as old as Phil, or the daughter who is half as old as her brother.

"I have always heard that boys are better at math and science but girls are better at English and languages, and have wondered why and how this could be true," the student concluded in her memo.

"Now I think I know."

She blamed the books.

Massachusetts Selectmen Converge On Hyannis Oct. 5-8

Despite the fact that their convention will take place in the resort town of Hyannis, Selectmen from all over Massachusetts will have their minds more on the multitude of problems facing their towns than they will on golf, fishing or swimming.

The annual convention of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association, scheduled for Oct. 5 through Oct. 8 (over the Columbus Day weekend) this year will bring together Selectmen from small towns in the western part of the state and officials from major metropolitan centers that are towns only in name. As always, old friends will be meeting, greetings exchanged, reminiscences shared. But the questions that will be raised this year among this "select" group of men and women, are possibly more serious in terms of their roles as leaders of their towns than those ever raised before. This year, town officials are very conscious of the increasing pressures toward regionalization of governmental services and of the added activity of the state Legislature which affects local affairs. The convention will give this hetrogeneous group of local officials a chance to record their joint feelings about current governmental trends affecting their towns.

In addition, the traditional Selectmen's Town Meeting will allow members to put forward for their colleagues' examination, proposals for legislation that they feel will be beneficial to all towns in the state. This very special Annual State-Wide Town Meeting is held at each year's convention, with warrant articles submitted by the Selectmen themselves. If an article is approved, it is forwarded as proposed legislation to the State House with the full support of the Selectmen's Association.

Also to be considered by the Selectmen in convention is the future orientation of their organization itself, which is now in a transitional stage and which has been moving toward adoption of a more active role, as a responsive tool to implement needs of the municipalities in Massachusetts.

There may be some lingering holiday-makers in Hyannis this October, soaking up the late Autumn sun, browsing among the shops and trying out their strokes on the golf course. Chances are, though, that they won't be Selectmen. The state's Selectmen have a serious job to do at their convention and golf courses and ocean waves will be just a background.

Planning Council Creates Bicentennial Committee

A bicentennial committee has been established by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council to help guide the involvement and activities of the Council and its 101 communities during the upcoming bicentennial celebration.

Council President John J. McCarthy named Dr. Gerald Bush, Boston's director of commerce and manpower, as chairman of the new committee. Dr. Bush will direct the 16-member committee in its efforts to advise and assist the council and member cities and towns in determining specific guidance and data the MAPC will provide in bicentennial planning and implementation programs.

Dr. Bush in 1971 wrote the feasibility study for Philadelphia's Bicentennial Exposition and has consulted with the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

The 16 members of the Bicentennial Committee, chaired by Dr. Bush are: Mrs. Genevra Cushman, vice-chairman, Concord; Nathan Bates, Cohasset; Mrs. Lois W. Brown, Lexington; Bruce Campbell, commissioner, Mass. Dept. of Public Works; Fredrick A. Centanni, commissioner, Dept. of Commerce and Development; John H. Channel 5 Emphatic In Its Utterances On Local Programming

By PETER E. GLUCKLER

Back in the days of the great fight for the right to broadcast, there was talk about whether Channel 5 devoted enough air time to local and public service programming.

WHDH was the broadcaster and was being challenged by Boston Broadcasters, now WCVB. Channel 5 was a CBS affiliate. It's now ABC's Boston outlet as a result of WCVB's victory.

This year Chennel 5 will be loaded with 51 hours of locally-produced material each week. It's part of WCVB's Boston Revolution promotion.

It will air six home-grown shows a week in prime time access hours from 7-8 p.m. It's boasting about a staff of 300 for the station, the largest news staff of any non-network-owned facility in the country, and its own public opinion survey unit.

When station executives unveiled the season's grand strategy at a press conference at Anthony's Pier 4, only one discordant note was struck.

From the ranks of a dozen reporters who had spent the evening nibbling on stuffed mushrooms and sipping cocktails came this question:

"How come your editorials are so dull?"

Sitting before the press were three key station executives:

Robert Bennett, vice president and general manager—operations; Peter Twaddle, program manager; most important, WCVB President Leo L. Beranek, Phd., Harvard, physics, acoustical engineering specialist, M.I.T. professor and co-founder of Bolt, Beranek and Newman of Cambridge, an engineering firm.

Beranek, a soft-spoken intellectual, stared in a moment of mellow shock. What rude fellow had mouthed this vitriol?

"Well, what do you mean?" asked Beranek.

The reporter fumbled for words.

"I just mean your editorials aren't very interesting," he said.

"I guess we'll have to do something about that," replied Beranek coldly.

The outcome will be something to watch for this season.

In the meantime, highlights of the local programming include:

GOOD MORNING (Mondays-Fridays, 9-10:30 a.m.) is a major undertaking by WCVB-TV to bring back live television in a diversified format. (Scheduled to start Sept. 24. Details to be announced.)

YOU, ME AND JOE (Fridays, 7:30-8 p.m.) is hosted by Joseph Day, former editor and moderator of WGBH-TV's (Channel 2) "The Reporters." As host, Day will observe and telecast the reactions of people to provocative and timely issues—in such settings as a backyard, a front porch, a small neighborhood park, a garage.

YOUR PLACE AND MINE (Sundays, 12:30-1 p.m.) is the initial product of WCVB-TV's newly-created Department of Women's Issues and Development. The program, written and produced by and for women, combines film, drama, news, and discussion so that "women can see their limitations and potentials."

COLLEGE TRANSMISSIONS (Mondays, 1:30-2 a.m.) showcases the finest creative film and drama talent at six leading colleges and universities in the area, Boston University, Brandeis University, Emerson College, Harvard University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the University of Massachusetts (Amherst). Students write, film, produce, and direct the shows.

An extra half-hour has been added to the weekday EYEOPENER NEWS show (6-7 a.m.), and a new half-hour evening news program has been scheduled for 10:30 p.m., Sundays, in place of the current 15-minute local news. Roger Goodrich will anchor EYEOPENER NEWS and John Henning the SUNDAY LATE NEWS.

The 30 new specials — more than WCVB-TV produced last year — will premiere Tuesday night, Aug. 28, at 8:30 with JACK LEMMON AT THE HASTY PUDDING.

Other specials include a series of medical documentary-dramas, a series of after-school science programs for children, a monthly adult science series, and programs on the New England fishing industry, American Indians in New England, horse racing, and Black Music.

Channel 5 will continue its SPECIAL PROJECTS series, examining "Middle Age" next. Also, other specials, reflecting viewer interest, will be added to the schedule.

Several continuing shows produced by WCVB-TV have undergone format changes.

FIVE AT LARGE (Sundays, 7-7:30 p.m.), a weekly journal of New England people, places, and events, will add a new monthly feature on science and technology and their effect on our lives. OPPORTUNITY LINE (Saturdays, 7-7:30 a.m.) will be a half-hour show featuring not only job referrals but also helpful advice for the unemployed.

NEW ENGLAND CONSUMER (Saturdays, 6:30-7 a.m.) also moves to a new half-hour and will emphasize consumer rights.

OUTLOOK: NEW ENGLAND (Sundays, 1:30-2 p.m.) will add a new feature — a monthly focus on a Boston neighborhood.

LOOKING AHEAD (Sundays, 8-8:30 a.m.), a program for older persons, this season will serve more as an advocacy vehicle for the elderly and pre-retirement groups.

French Dentists Learn American Techniques

A group of 35 French dentists recently spent two weeks at the Boston University School of Graduate Dentistry attending lectures and working in the clinics alongside American graduate dental students.

They participated in a special program organized by Dr. Herbert Schilder, Lorna Rd., Newton Centre, professor and chairman of the department of endodontics and assistant dean for continuing education as part of that division. The idea for the program was conceptualized by Dr. Jean-Paul Davidas in Paris, France, after he had spent three days here last year.

This program is unique in that it is the first course that permits foreign dentists to do practical clinical work. Previously the school had received groups of Italian orthodontists and French general dentists, but for lecture courses only.

The latest group of French dentists, which included three women, spent 10 full days plus Saturday mornings learning about American dentistry. They were mainly concerned with prosthetics, periodontics and endodontics although there were also lectures in restorative dentistry, orthodontics and implantology.

According to the visitors, dentistry in France is much different than that of the United States. After high school dentists attend a university for five years, after which they are qualified dentists. In the United States most dentists attend college as well as a three-four year dental school.

They also do not have dental specialties as we have here. Dr. Davidas, who teaches dentistry in France, explained that, "In France we practice everything, there are no specialties. There is a great need for specialists in France today."

While here they learned procedures in various specialities, and also were exposed to root canal treatment, which according to Dr. Davidas was new to them.

He also praised the School of Graduate Dentistry. "This is the finest school I've been to in the States. The teaching staff is very keen and they have a great deal of material to teach foreign dentists."

This program for dentists from other countries will be expanded in the future. The current group will be followed by visits of Japanese dentists in October and three additional French groups during the academic year.

According to Dr. Schilder, "Large numbers of individual foreign dentists have always registered for our continuing education courses, but we are now receiving requests from groups with special needs in continuing dental education from foreign countries. It is our intent to increase our course offerings for these groups, who have been attracted to the Boston University School of Graduate Dentistry because of our experience in this field."

In the past, lectures have also been sent from Boston University to foreign countries to speak at dental schools and dental societies. This will continue to be a part of the program in the future.

Dr. Henry M. Goldman, dean of the school, welcomed the foreign dentists. He later said, "We are very pleased to receive these French dentists who came to Boston to learn first hand of the research and techniques for which our faculty is renowned throughout the world."

While attending school the dentists received 27 hours of lecture, six hours of seminars and 11 clinic sessions where they worked with the American graduate dental students.

Not all of these dentists spoke English, but French graduate students attending the School of Graduate Dentistry acted as translators and assisted at all lectures and in the clinics.

Extracurricular events were planned for the dentists as well.

They were welcomed to the school with a cocktail party, and attended the School of Graduate Dentistry annual picnic and a special party at the University Pub. They were also invited to the recent "roof-raising" ceremonies for the four story addition to the School of Graduate Dentistry that will house the new pre-doctoral program.

Walker is a 1968 graduate of Newton South High School and received his bachelor's degree in civil engineering from Northeastern in June.

Police Chief Issues Anti-Burglary Guide

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn recently restated his concern over the number of thefts committed in the city by burglars entering houses through unlocked doors and windows.

According to Chief Quinn, "Newton is considered affluent and has been therefore a target city for thieves over the years."

"Many of our citizens have also been careless, leaving their homes unattended, doors unlocked and windows open while they are away," continued the Chief.

"Many homes are therefore open invitation to thieves," he added and he warned homeowners that some sneak thieves enter homes through unlocked front doors while owners are relaxing in back yards or working in their garages.

"We have prepared brochures," added Chief Quinn, "to assist homeowners in securing their property and engraving tools to help prevent theft of items such as TV sets, radios, bicycles, etc."

Chief Quinn noted that in neighborhoods which have participated in Operation Identification, household burglaries have been reduced substantially.

"In addition," stated the Newton Chief of Police, "our partnership in Operation Crime Check has also been marked with success."

"Through the efforts of many fine citizens informing the police of suspicious persons or happenings, we have arrested a great number of burglars," Quinn said.

"Labor Day is about two weeks away," warned Chief Quinn, "and I hope our vacationing citizens will double check their security by informing trusted neighbors of their intentions, cancelling their deliveries, arranging to have their lawns cut and double checking their locks."

"I also hope those remaining at home will take a greater interest in security and call 244-1212 to report suspicious persons or activities," stated Quinn.

"We have the capability of checking suspicions," continued Chief Quinn.

"You are helping us, your neighbor, and your community and not bothering us in the least," he added.

"Together," concluded Chief Quinn, "we can make a community that is unhealthy for thieves."

Brochures for homeowners together with engraving tools are available at the police station in West Newton.

Scott Photo Exhibition At Lenards

An exhibition of photos by Walter H. Scott is currently being held at Lenards, 1240 Boylston St., Chestnut Hill.

Scott, trained at the San Francisco Art Institute and a graduate of the New York Institute of Photography, has exhibited widely in the United States and abroad. He is also well represented in public and private collections.

A fifth generation San Franciscan, Scott began life in a touring marionette theater, the Scott Marionettes. Son of architect Walter Goss Scott and sculptress Lee Hilton, he spent 12 years as a television and theater designer in Wisconsin and California. He migrated to the Berkshires in 1964, bought an old rectory in Stockbridge and added a large studio specializing in industrial commissions.

The exhibition opened Monday (Aug. 20) and will continue through Sept. 1.

TRAVEL TRAILS by Julian Roberts

Acapulco (the Miami Beach of Mexico) is not just the flash and glitter tourists usually hear about . . . Sure it's the "Flee-from-the-winter" retreat having ultra-expensive resorts with private beaches, clubs, and tennis courts, but it's more! . . . The Sierra Madre del Sur mountains which crowd the coastline add another dimension . . . They give Acapulco's coast its deep coves, and granite cliffs . . . Divers are seen plunging 125 feet to the seas . . . And partly because of the exchange rate advantage (12½ pesos to the dollar), you usually can find a comfortable beach-front hotel for $18 to $24 a day (double) . . . Unfortunately your impression of Mexico too often depends on why you're there . . .

Shortly afterward, Mann replaced Robert Davidson, an NRA member whose term had expired, with Mrs. Margaret Smith, whose appointment was speedily confirmed by the Board of Aldermen.

The NRA has not met officially since Mrs. Smith was appointed.

At its next regularly scheduled meeting Sept. 6, the authority will have to determine how to obtain agreement on a building plan from the community and the city administration.

Edmund Mangini of DCA said flatly at the hearing that the DCA would not approve the plan previously voted on by the NRA.

two Republican seats, including Locke's in Wellesley, had their support.

A letter to the governor, dated August 10, and signed by Guzzi, Pines, Mofenson and Harrington, commended the governor for vetoing the first redistricting proposal, a veto they upheld on the floor of the house.

It urged approval of the third plan, as originally proposed, "because we share your commitment to equitable treatment for Boston's black community."

"Admittedly, there are parts of that plan that all of us would like to change," the letter went on, "But no two of us would change it in exactly the same way and that is the central point at issue here.

"Redistricting inevitably involves some dissatisfaction. There is no human — or superhuman — method available completely to satisfy everyone involved in such a process."

"As Democrats," the letter concluded, "we put our commitment to racial justice ahead of partisan considerations to sustain your veto. We hope you will do the same now by signing this bill."

The legislators earlier this year went a few rounds with the House redistricting plan that was described locally, in its original form in Newton, as "obvious gerrymandering."

Auburndale residents, whose community was divided among three of Newton's four legislators, led a successful fight to have the plan modified and restore its community identify.

Developer William L. Berger's plan to construct two seven-unit townhouses and one eight-unit townhouse was also heard and opposed by residents in a public hearing.

Neighbors seemed particularly upset by the fact the developer's attorney referred to their opposition as "poppycock."

Dwight Young of 1174 Boylston St., told the committee that despite the attorney's reference, he thought the neighbors interests "should be taken seriously."

He said one concern was increased traffic on Route 9.

"I don't think the petitioner has considered that a driver has about three seconds of visibility to make a decision there before a car going 50-60 m.p.h. will reach him," he commented.

Stating that his home was directly across the street from the proposed project, Young said that looking directly at it was like "looking at a motel."

"It's my observation that the first areas to be downgraded are those with what we now call townhouses and what we used to call 'row houses' in Philadelphia," he said.

The Newton Planning Department has recommended the number of units in the development be reduced.

Land Use Committee hearings were also held on a petition for a lodging house license for 399 Newtonville Ave., and four units of townhouses at 46 Floral St.

The committee will hold a regular meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 29 to discuss all proposals on its agenda.

The funeral of Newton Police Patrolman John W. Murphy was held Saturday (Aug. 18) with a concelebrated mass in Corpus Christi Church.

The patrolman, a veteran of almost 20 years on the police force and president of the union, died suddenly Tuesday (Aug. 14) while vacationing on Cape Cod. He lived at 18 Rider Terr. in Auburndale.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary E. Murphy; three sons, John W. Jr. of Harwich, Lawrence J. and Richard A. of Newton; two daughters, Jeanne and Maureen of Newton; two brothers, Gerard of Santa Barbara, Calif., and Thomas J. of Newton; and a sister, Mrs. Anne Bayides of Norwood.

Patrolman Murphy was a World War II veteran and a member of American Legion Post No. 440.

Rev. William J. Hamilton, S.J. officiated at the mass and was assisted by Rev. Angelo P Loscocco of St. Luke's Church in Waverly. Msgr. John J. McManmon, pastor of Our Lady's Church was seated in the sanctuary.

Pall bearers, all members of the Newton Police Department, were: Lt. William H. Dowling, Sgt. Arthur M. Rooney, Patrolmen Robert J. Wargin, John C. McGaughey, Ralph H. Rich and Martin W Daley.

Services were attended by Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Police Chief William F. Quinn, Justice Franklin N. Flaschner and Aldermen Michael Lipof and Richard J. McGrath.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Election Commissioner Eugene Hirshberg asked Cohen whether he had any reason to challenge Regal's registration as a voter in Ward 6. Cohen replied "no."

The Election Commission's decision turned on the point of Regal's legal voting address.

If 155 Homer St. is Regal's legal voting address, the Election Commission reasoned, then he cannot be denied the opportunity to run for the Ward 6 School Committee post.

Regal is seeking his third term on the School Committee. He and Cohen are the only candidates for the Ward 6 position.

Backman Says Walpole Needs Humanization

State Senator Jack Backman (D-Brookline) was the speaker at the recent meeting of the Chestnut Hill Rotary Club held at Valle's Steak House, Route 9, in Chestnut Hill.

He spoké of conditions at Walpole State Prison and said that, since 70 percent of the prison population would be released in two or three years, it is important to try to return "human beings" as our neighbors on the outside.

President Marvin Cantor presided at the meeting and announced joint plans for a meeting with the West Roxbury Rotary Club at Amaru's in Dedham on Sept. 25.

District Governor James Williams will visit the Chestnut Hill Rotary Club on Aug. 24.

Campus Note

Nancy St. John Marvin, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Justus Fennel of 15 Larkspur road, Waban, was a participant in the 1973 Connecticut College of American Dance festival this summer.

environment as well as other key data processing markets.

He attended Newton public schools and received a Bachelor of Science degree from Suffolk University. He also graduated from Newton Junior College, whre he was instrumental in bringing about the formal accreditation of the college. Howard also attended the University of Colorado, Boston University and Boston State College, where he studied state and local government and municipal seminars.

In announcing his candidacy, Howard said he feels that in addition to the need for bringing a business-like approach to municipal government, attention must be given to our senior citizens who are living on a fixed income which comprise approximately 20 per cent of the population of Newton.

Currently, Howard is also supporting plans now under way for regionalized ecological improvements.

Service Notes

Marine air reservists Sgt. Richard B. Rubin, Sgt. Donald A. Tobin, and Cpt. James G. Stokes, all of Newton, are undergoing two weeks of active duty training at the Naval Air Station, Fallon, Nev.

The local men are assigned to Marine Attack Squadron 322, an element of the all-reserve Fourth Marine Aircraft Wing.

The squadron, composed of men throughout New England, normally is headquartered at the Naval Air Station, South Weymouth, Mass. The entire unit was airlifted to Reno, then transported the 80-plus miles to the desert installation where the squadron's attack aircraft are being used for intensive bombing, strafing and similar tactical training.

New Books

Baby Boy, by Jess Gregg. (Putnam, $6.95)

Baby Boy's humor revolves around some improbable subjects-prison and crime, illiteracy and the shabbiness of human conduct.

No matter, it is a funny book in a kind of creepy way. Baby Boy Clabbern is certainly an individual, whether he is being pushed around on a Florida road gang or bumbling through a burglary.

Poor Baby Boy can't do much right. He is even paroled from prison against his will. On his eventual return to jail, te and a buddy plot an escape that brings him closer to accepting the world's reality. But not quite.

At one point, he listens to a fellow prisoner's tall tale about a run-in with a blonde and a Cadillac. A guy gets to thinking about something like that, he muses, "wishing about it and pretty soon, it's amost like it happened." He recalls someone telling him: "The things that keep a guy living while he's under the gun are the things that happen in his head. It's the only life he's got here that they can't regulate."

To Baby Boy, life is like a television show that he can't switch off. Such attitudes have the makings of comedy. An amusing, highly diverting book.

Piaget in the Classroom, by Milton Schwegel and Jane Raph.

(Basic Books, $8.95)

This book of practical application of Piaget theory is written mainly for educators and it assumes a prior knowledge of Piaget ideas on childhood development. However, it is easy enough to read and understand (which Piaget himself is not) for interested nonprofessionals who want to learn more.

Casablanca, by Howard Koch. (Overlook Press, $7.95)

Oaky, it's not art, but a reading of the screenplay of this famous film of World War II reveals what a finely wrought story, laden with colorful characters, was created in the old Hollywood escape machine. The trials of movie-making for money-making are graphically recounted.

The bbloody Field, by Edith Pargeter.

(Viking, $7.95)

Henry IV rules uneasily in this historical novel. The young Prince of Wales must choose between his family and friends. The book is slow starting but builds suspensefully toward a climax when the Prince must make his choice in the conflict between his friend and teacher, the Earl of Northumberland, and the king.

Men's Look Returns To Masculine

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men's shirts and ties will be a lot more gentlemanly this fall, very classic, and this will be due in large part to Bert Pulitzer who dropped out of the Fashion Institute of Technology but became a master designer anyway.

Pulitzer, 32, president of the Bert Pulitzer Co., is one of the style leaders in the shirt and tie field, and when he puts his stamp of approval on a new fashion or trend a lot of other shirt and necktie manufacturers look carefully to see what he has done.

"Shirts are going very classic, and this has always been the basis of our entire business," he said. "There are both extremes in color—from white to dark. And there are solids, checks and plaids, and collars are smaller. There are some button downs.

"Ties are a little narrower, down to four inches, which is a quarter of an inch off from Spring. It doesn't sound like a big difference but it is, especially in the knot area which is getting smaller (to fit the smaller collars).

"Ties are back to things we know best—foulards, repps, clubs. The classics. It is a more balanced season. There may be a bit of the Great Gatsby influence but the big stores are down on extremes—they want an elegant, stable look with natural progressions in styles.

"The boutique look and the Gatsby look are fine as far as they go but they don't build toward the sound kind of business we are working for today. Good taste doesn't have to be driven by an outside force like Gatsby."

Pulitzer was born in Long Beach, N.Y., on the outskirts of New York City, and brought up in a neckwear atmosphere—his father was head of the old Pulitzer Tie Company. Young Pulitzer bought the business from his father in 1968 and formed his own firm.

His Start

It seemed only natural that he should start out by attending the Fashion Institute of Technology (FIT) before striking out on his own. FIT is financed by the fashion industry, both men's and women's, and turns out good young designers by the hundreds for a voracious industry.

But he had married in 1961, was anxious to get into business, and "was a little too impatient for FIT."

"I started analyzing dollars and how much I could make in the four years it would take to attend. I was pretty mercenary in those days—I wonder what I would do now? I get pros and cons on both, but I am not unhappy with the result."

That might be the understatement of the week. His own company thrived and he made a fortune. He made another when he sold it in 1969 to the conglomerate known as Consolidated Foods, which also bought up Gant of New Haven.

His reputation was so high Consolidated sent him over to Gant to "straighten things out."

"They needed more of a fashion lift and direction in their approach," he said. "All we did was put it into groups, ranges that stores could handle, not a shirt here and a shirt there. They needed strengthening of their merchandising and they wanted to go more into sports wear."

Pulitzer's childhood at Long Beach was on the ocean and he spent his spare time sailing and deep sea fishing. The love of both sports persists—but it is strictly fresh water now. He has been looking at property in the Watkins Glen area, and thinks he has found the ideal place.

"Our three children love to fish, too—Elisa 11 (Cancer), Douglas 8 (Pisces) and Steven 6 (Capricorn). Yes, I am greatly interested in astrology, too, but not to the 'don't cross the street today' type of thing."

Stand Watie, a leader of the Cherokee Nation in Oklahoma (then Indian Territory), was the last Confederate general to surrender at the end of the Civil War.

The average work week is shortest in Utah, 38.5 hours, longest in South Dakota, 44.6; the national average is 39.8.

Enthusiasm

JoAnne Kwarta, another Newton teacher, relates a language development lesson to a discussion with spellbound students Rhonad McDonald, Kim Marcy, Debra Porter, Joan Dow, Sharon MacLean and Kelly Green. The discussion was about one of their field trips.

Rehearsing

Summer Programs Expand On The Basics

Education should begin at the beginning.

With this in mind, more than 200 children, ranging in age from five to eleven, attended one or more of the summer programs held at Newton's Ralph Waldo Emerson School during July and August.

The five programs - Early Childhood Opportunity (ECHO), Enrichment Reading Laboratory, Instrumental Music, Math Tutorial and Reading Tutorial - were part of the summer educational offerings of the Newton Public Schools and Title 1.

The Early Childhood Opportunity (ECHO) Title 1 program provided children at the pre-kindergarten, kindergarten and first grade levels with individual help and encouragement within a multi-age educational framework that allowed them to assume responsibility, as capable, for pursuing their needs as well as their interests.

The "ordered" or "guided" freedom of each classroom environment encouraged children to integrate the school's offerings into their own interests and energies as related to their own abilities and desires. The central core of each classroom was LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT - in all conceivable manner, shape and form - for the more than fifty children, ages 4-7, who attended this six-week summer program. ECHO Program trips included tours of Howard Johnson's at the Gateway Center, Newton's Big Buy Food Store, Needham's McDonald's Store, the Newton Police Department, the Elliot Street Fire Department, Brookline's Lars Anderson Park, Owen's Turkey Farm in Needham, Elm Brook Farm in Concord and the M.D.C. Stoneham Zoo, as well as visits to the Jordan Marsh Circus and the Swan Boats on the Boston Public Garden.

The MDC Traveling Zoo visited the school as did an installer from New England Telephone. Special programs were also offered at the school by noted TV personality, puppeteer, and ventriloquisi Susan Linn and Dan DeWolfe, Newton Public School science specialist, brought many of his animals to visit and be part of the program, too.

More than 30 children, grades 2-6, met in small groups on a daily, scheduled basis as part of a four-week enrichment reading program. These children made use of the school's reading laboratory machines and equipment to enhance their already well-developed reading skills and attitudes.

Title 1 also offered a six week math tutorial program for 24 children who met in small groups, on a daily, scheduled basis, to receive reinforcement and extra help in mathematics.

An active four-week instrumental music program found more than 50 children meeting daily for flute, clarinet, recorder, violin or brass lessons, as well as daily school orchestra practice. The summer school orchestra played special concerts for the elderly at neighboring Stone Institute as well as concerts for the Chestnut Hill School in Newton, the Creative Arts Program held at the Pierce School and the children and parents of their own school.

This orchestral group has also been selected to play at the Newton Public Schools system-wide faculty orientation to be held at Newton South High School on Wednesday, Sept. 5.

More than 50 children received tutoring in reading on a two to one or one to one pupil-teacher ratio as part of a Boston State College Remedial Reading Practicum conducted at this school for five weeks.

These children worked with 29 teachers from the Greater Boston area who are enrolled in advanced degree programs at B.S.C. The children in this program were 1-6 graders from the Emerson, Franklin, Hyde and Underwood Schools in Newton.

Hague Receives Award

A. Bartlett Hague of Newton has been named one of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) outstanding employees.

Hague is the Environmental Studies Coordinator in the Water Branch of EPA. He received a certificate of award from John A.S. McGlennon, regional EPA administrator.

Green Eggs?

Kenny MacLean (left) and Michael O'Rourke (right) of Newton not only read Dr. Seuss' book, "Green Eggs and Ham," but also had the opportunity to whip up their own batch as part of the Title One program.

Capra Film Showing At Library

Can you name the 1938 film that won the Academy Award as Best Picture of the Year and Best Director as well?

That's right . . . It was "You Can't Take It With You," directed by Frank Capra, which can be seen Thursday evening, August 23, at 7:15 p.m. in Chaffin Hall at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre street, Newton Corner.

Based on the Pulitzer Prize winning play by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, this vintage comedy stars James Stewart, Jean Arthur, Spring Byington and Lionel Barrymore.

James Stewart, who plays the son of a socially prominent family, wants to marry the daughter of a family of eccentrics who choose to live their lives on the basis of their unconventional impulses.

"You Can't Take It With You" is the last in the Newton Free Library's free summer film series which included screenings of "The Third Man" and "Bringing Up Baby."

The NFL's '73-'74 Wednesday noon and Thursday evening film series resume in September with the screening of "Citizen Kane," Thursday, September 27, at 7 p.m. Annotated film listings with dates will be available at all Newton libraries in the fall. Pick up a copy of the NFL Bulletin, check the newspapers and listen to radio station WNTN for news of all library activities.

Ballet Centre Sets 'Nutcracker' Tryouts

The Metropolitan Civic Ballet Center, Inc., will have a showing of "Great World of Dance" films on Friday, Sept. 7, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Free and open to the public, the films will be screened at 417 Lexington St., at tthe corner of Commonwealth Avenue, in Auburndale.

The center will also conduct auditions for the "Nutcracker Suite" for 15 to 20 performances, from Sept. 6 to Sept. 15 during regular class periods. For more information call 969-2135.

Sliding Towards School

The younger set lines up for the last days of summer vacation at Cabot Playground. Student enrollment in Newton's public schools is projected to reach 16,580 during the coming academic year. (Photo by Tony Lupo, Jr.)

It's Back To . . . . . .

Newton's elementary and secondary school students will wend their way back to their classrooms next week as the annual post-Labor Day exodus empties playgrounds, beaches and street corners.

Depending on grade and school, students will have different reporting dates, but the majority will have been assigned their seat by Friday, Sept. 7.

All elementary grade pupils will report to their respective schools on Thursday, Sept. 6, as will all seventh graders and high school sophomores.

The new North High School will open its doors for the first time on Thursday as sophomores return for a full day of classes. Juniors and seniors will join them the following day for a full schedule.

The city accepted the new building as substantially complete on Aug. 28, and the football team has actually been utilizing the school's athletic facilities for the past few days.

The last load of equipment was moved in on Aug. 24, and although construction has postponed some unpacking, school officials guarantee returning students the building will be ready by the opening day of school.

Still left to be done by the contractor before final payment is made for the building include installation of auditorium seating, the electrical connection of shop equipment, installation of more physical education equipment and the boxing in of fire proof beams.

In regard to the latter construction chore, a recent study of the possibility of airborne asbestos found "little or no contamination could be detected at the time of analysis," according to John G. Athans, M.D., Commissioner of Health for the City of Newton.

The contractor has been authorized to box in selected fire beams sprayed with the offending asbestos and Dr. Athans reports that if all boxing is completed by next summer "the possibility of future health problems will be eliminated."

Old Building One has been completely razed and preparation of the area for a temporary parking lot is in process and should be ready by the end of September. Demolition of Building Two was initiated on Aug. 9.

Demolition of Building Three is dependent upon the completion of a new switchboard and related facilities for the school department, and the student mall is expected to be available for use by the end of October.

Sophomores at Newton South High School will officially begin the 1973-1974 academic year on Thursday, Sept. 6, for a full day of classes.

They will be joined by all upperclassman the following day for another full day. The school cafeteria will be open both days as will the dining facilities at the new North High School.

Warren Junior High School will officially open on Thursday, Sept. 6. Seventh grade pupils should report at 9 a.m. and they will be dismissed at noon.

Sessions for the eighth and ninth grades will begin at 1 p.m. on Sept. 6 and end at 2:30 p.m. Bus service will be available and the cafeteria will not be open on this first day of school at Warren Junior High.

Orientation for seventh grade students at Day Junior High School will be held on Thursday, Sept. 6 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Eighth graders will report on Friday, Sept. 7, at 9 a.m. Ninth graders will report on Friday, Sept. 7, at 12:30 p.m.

The first full day of school with open cafeteria for all students at Day Junior High will be Monday, Sept. 10, beginning at 8:15 a.m.

Seventh grade students, only, will report to Bigelow Junior High School on Thursday, Sept. 6 at 8:25 a.m. This will be a full day of school for the seventh graders, and the school principal, R. V. Frost, reports the cafeteria will be open.

Pupils in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades will report to Bigelow on Friday, Sept. 7, at 8:25 a.m. This will also be a full day and the cafeteria will be open. Bus service will be provided.

Seventh grade pupils at Meadowbrook Junior High School are asked to report at 8:20 a.m., Thursday, Sept. 6, for an orientation session scheduled to last until 11:10 a.m. There will be no cafeteria service.

Eighth and ninth grade students, only, will report the following day, Friday, Sept. 7. Gamma and sigma students will report at 8:20 a.m. and leave at 10:45 a.m.

Alpha and beta students will report at 11:15 a.m. and they will be dismissed at 1:40 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 10. There will be no cafeteria service.

The first full day of school for all students at Meadowbrook will be Tuesday, Sept. 11. Cafeteria service will be provided.

Weeks Junior High School will officially open for seventh graders only on Thursday, Sept. 6, at 8:10 a.m. with dismissal at 12:30 p.m. There will be no cafeteria service.

Eighth graders are asked to report to Weeks Junior High on Friday, Sept. 7, at 8:10 a.m. Dismissal will be at 12:30 p.m. with no cafeteria service.

The first full day of school for all Weeks' students will be on Monday, Sept. 10. Cafeteria service will begin at that time.

Beginning Sept. 10, lunches will be served to students in the 10 pilot elementary schools also served last year, and indications are that the remaining elementary schools in the system will be receiving the lunches by Nov. 1.

The school department has hired personnel to make the required number of sandwiches each day in the kitchens of both Newton North and Newton South High Schools. The sandwiches will then be transferred to the individual school served by each kitchen in taxis.

VOL. 103 NO. 35 | NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1973 | PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Time Ran Out, Says White

The city has been asked to seek an injunction against further construction of a luxury condominium complex at Chestnut Hill by a 24-year-old law school student.

Mark White of 81 Brackett Road, an aldermanic candidate, is the key figure in a move to have the city seek an injunction against construction of The Towers. As of Wednesday White's inquiry was being passed through various city departments, with no one yet arriving at a final determination of the issue.

White, who has devoted much time to researching the question, said Tuesday that the permissive use granted for the property has expired, since more than five years has elapsed since it was granted. According to White, "no extentions have been sought or awarded."

White wrote early this week to Public Buildings Commissioner Emil Larson asking that the city "seek this injunction within a reasonable period of time so as to avoid the trouble of my taking you to court on this issue."

Larson, who has been at his new job only two weeks, said Wednesday that he has referred the matter to the city's Law Department and will begin digging back through records of his department to familiarize himself with the situation.

A check with the City Clerk's office revealed that no extension of the permissive use had been asked for or granted, but extensions of the original building permit, issued on June 27, 1966, have been issued 14 times.

No answer was available in any of the appropriate departments at City Hall on Wednesday about why so many extensions of the building permit were granted or why they were necessary.

Whether the extension of the building permit constitutes in fact an extension of the permissive use is one of the questions under study by the Law Department.

A source close to DiCarlo, who was unavailable for comment, said Tuesday that construction has been going on "for some time" at the site, and therefore the developers have complied with the time period allowed in the permissive use.

White disputed this claim, saying that DiCarlo "had been pushing dirt around with a bulldozer from time to time" for years to make it appear that site work had begun.

White said he has several legal opinions that the minimal work done by DiCarlo during 1966-71 would not constitute starting construction. Some opinions say that foundation work is necessary, White said.

The definition of starting construction will also have to be determined by the Law Department.

The plan for the Towers has been controversial since the rezoning of the land in 1959, when many observers felt that the Residence F district was being created specifically for Mario DiCarlo, then owner of the land.

Residence F was designed for apartment houses and apartment hotels, and carries no restrictions on building height.

The Towers property is the only land zoned Residence F in the city.

Jason Sacks, Ward 7 alderman and selling agent for the condominiums, was quoted this week in the Phoenix as saying, "Had this property not been rezoned 15 years ago, by no stretch of the imagination could it be rezoned today . . . because of the growing concern over open spaces."

If an injunction is sought and obtained against further construction at the Towers site on the grounds that the permissive use has expired, DiCarlo and Albert Goodman, builders of the project and partners in the corporation, would have to appear before the aldermanic Land Use Committee for another permissive use.

A vote of 16 aldermen would be required for approval.

Mayoral Campaigns

Who Is Giving And How Much?

A citizens' group that is monitoring the Newton mayoral campaign by agreement with all candidates, Common Cause, commented on Wednesday on the financial disclosures of the three candidates.

Carole Cohen, program director, noted the reports show that incumbent Theodore Mann has "a lot more money available to him than does William Carmen, who appears to be financing his own campaign to a large extent."

"This proves," Ms. Cohen said, "that challengers had an impossible job unless they have money of their own."

Ms. Cohen pointed out that the statement submitted by Carmen showed an expenditure of $3420.84, while contributions totaled $834.94, with a loan of $2000 from Carmen and his wife.

According to Carmen's last statement there would have been cash on hand in the amount of $1.45.

Ms. Cohen said there is no indication of how the overage of $584.45 was paid.

Both candidates submitted statements without contributors' street adresses. Ms. Cohen said the agreement had been to submit names of contributors on the official forms used for postelection disclosures.

Carmen's expenditures statement contained several items described only as "contract." Ms. Cohen said that the purpose of the expense - salary, rent, or whatever - should be listed explicitly.

Carmen received his $834.94 in the last reporting period from 44 contributors, while Mann received $5090 from 66 contributors.

No candidate has spent any money on newspaper advertising.

Common Cause monitoring of elections is a part of their program to improve the legislation governing election expenditures. All candidates last month agreed to the monitoring, with Carmen and Mann agreeing to limit their expenditure to the amount spent by Mann in the last campaign, $38,186.

The three candidates agreed also not to spend for billboard, radio, or television advertising.

Candidates will submit their disclosure statements to Common Cause monthly. Common Cause will examine the names of contributors, looking especially for those whose contributions might influence the governing of the city.

In the following statements, all addresses are Newton, unless specifically listed.

How About A Comfy Commune?

Group living is coming to Newton in a big way.

In this week's Real Paper, there are four ads for communes in Newton, and five more looking for "roommates."

Nobody knows how many group houses already exist here.

A recently enacted state law, sponsored by Rep. Peter Harrington of Newton, forbids more than four unrelated persons from occupying an unlicensed housing unit.

In Newton, a similar law applying to five or more unreleated persons was seldom used because of lack of knowledge of violations.

To comply with the law, the owner or lessee of a house occupied by more than four unrelated persons must come before the Board of aldermen to request a lodging house license.

Such a license can be issued only for buildings in private-residence and Residence D districts.

In single-residence districts, which comprise most of the city, permissive use may be granted by the board for "an association of persons living together in a common dwelling."

The Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen does not grant either lodginghouse licenses or permissive use lightly. The owner of the house for which the license or permission is being sought must comply with health department and fire department regulations, and must provide off-street parking for the dwellings.

"An association of persons" is generally construed to mean a group formed for a specific purpose, such as religious, educational, or the like.

Harrington feels that a group of people sharing a house for economic reasons would not qualify. "They should be under a lodginghouse license," he said.

"Furthermore," Harrington said, "the lodginghouse provision is a protection for the occupants."

Harrington's bill was aimed at stopping the practice common in Newton and elsewhere or renting single and two-family houses to a large group of students at high individual rents.

Eliot K. Cohen Seeks Fourth Term

Eliot K. Cohen, president of the Newton Board of Aldermen, has announced his candidacy for a fourth term as Alderman-at-Large from Ward 8 of the City of Newton.

In seeking re-election, President Cohen cites his six years of service, dedication and accomplishment as a member of the Board. Elected President of the Board of Aldermen on Jan. 1, 1972, Alderman Cohen, as administrator of the Board, has acted as a liaison between the executive and legislative branches of city government.

"My primary function during the past two years has been to keep the legislative process moving and attempting to

5th Term Sought By Jason Sacks

Jason Sacks, 50 Dolphin Rd., Newton Centre, has announced his candidacy for re-election as Alderman-at-Large in Ward 7.

Sacks is completing his fourth term on the Board of Aldermen and sees "further need for continuing experience on the Board in the coming years."

"I have had the pleasure and rewarding experience of working in the past with such men as Judge Franklin Flaschner on the Land Use Committee when we finalized plans for both the Marriott and the Gateway Center," stated Sacks.

"I have also worked with former Alderman Bill Glovsky on Legislation and Rules when Nick Nardone, who announced this week that he is a candidate for Alderman-at-Large in Ward 4, was born and educated in Boston, and has lived in Newton for the past 23 years.

"Being the father of two adult children and a homeowner, I believe I can help bring back some of the common sense approach to city government," explained Nardone as he made his candidacy official.

While canvassing the city for signatures to his nomination papers, Nardone said he encountered many questions asked by concerned citizens. He has decided to use these questions with his answers as a

Alvin Mandell Seeks Reelection

Alvin Mandell, incumbent Ward 8 school committman, has announced he is seeking re-election for a fourth term.

According to his announcement, Mandell's original candidacy occurred at a time of widespread community dissatisfaction with the innovative program at Meadowbrook Junior High School and the lack of a hot lunch program in Newton.

"I was elected," stated Mandell, "on a platform which included advocacy of improved budgeting procedures, evaluation of experimental programs and a free choice to the students and their parents as to participation in such

Recreation Notes

Champions Emerge From Summer League Action

This is championship time for the many teams involved in leagues sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department.

In the Newton Twilight League, the International Division Champs for 1973 are the Waban Chiefs, with the Newton Boys' Club the runner-up team.

The Newton Elks Team won the championship of the City Softball League's "B" Division.

Newton's entry in the girls' Suburban Basketball League won the league with a 21 and 1 season record. The Garden City girls edged out Milton in a two out of three series. Newton won the first game, 36 to 32 with Milton coming back to knot the series at 1 and 1 with a 43 to 42 win. Newton won the championship by taking the third and final game, 53 to 42.

In the Newton Recreation Department's Playground Softball League, the Auburndale Playground team defeated the Carr Playground team 14 to 7 to take the championship in the final at Auburndale.

Recreation Supervisor, William J. Barry, reports that the Newton Recreation Department's Tag Football League will begin season play on Monday, Sept. 17 at the Albermarle Playground. Game times are 7:30 and 8:30 p.m.

Barry asks all managers from last year to contacy him at the Recreation Dept. office, 969-3171, as soon as possible. Last year there were eight teams in the league and Barry indicates that this season the league may be extended to twelve teams.

This League is for men beyond high school age. Each team has seven men. Barry says the calibre of play in this league is tops because the players take the game very seriously.

The Mini-bike Track on Winchester Street, Newton Highlands, is now closed, and will reopen for the fall season on Saturday, Sept. 8th. It will then continue until Thanksgiving.

Each Saturday, the track, maintained by the Recreation Department, attracts from 65 to 70 riders between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., while the facility is in operation.

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle announces that the Girls' Street Hockey Program will begin league play the week of Sept. 17. The games will be played at Cabot Park. Game times are 6:30, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m.

There will be two divisions, one for girls 12 to 15, and the other for girls 16 years of age and over.

Girls interested in playing in the league this year should contact Fran Towle at the Recreation Office, 969-3171.

Women interested in joining the doubles tennis ladder should contact the Recreation Department for the Ladder Chairman's telephone number. Play will start on Sept. 10 on courts throughout the city. All matches should be coordinated through the Ladder Chairman.

In the City Midget Baseball Championship held recently, the team from Auburndale defeated Newton Centre, 19 to 4.

Paul Lechairo pitched well for the winners and Jim McHale and Matty Frazier provided the hitting.

The Junior Division was won by Burr, who defeated Albemarle by a score of 7 to 2. John DiPetro was the pitching and hitting star of that game.

The 11 team Suburban Swim Team League held its championship meet at the Gath Memorial Pool at the Albermarle Playground recently.

This was the final meet of the summer for the league teams who have been holding meets of a dual basis since July.

The all day affair included 40 events for swimmers from 7 to 18 years of age. The top six swimmers in each event were awarded medals and also points for their teams bid for the championship trophy.

Katz Withdraws

Alan Katz of 19 Old Winchester St., Newton Highlands, has just been appointed assistant regional attorney for the National Labor Relations Board, assigned to Region 29 in Brooklyn, New York.

Katz, a 22 year resident of Newton, is presently counsel to the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission.

He graduated with membership in the National Honor Society from Newton High School in 1961 and received his B.A. degree from Tufts University and his law degree from New York University Law School.

Due to this new appointment Katz will be out of the Newton area on frequent occasions. He is, therefore, also formally announcing his withdrawal as a candidate from Ward 8 as alderman-at-large.

Katz thanked all those people who gave either time, effort, financial or moral support to his candidacy and extends his best wishes to the remaining candidates in the field.

County Board Warns Local Tax Assessors

The Middlesex County Commissioners are letting it be known that assessors of cities and towns in the county should not use county assessments as an excuse for locally rising tax rates.

Chairman of the Commissioners S. Lester Ralph of Somerville and County Commissioner John Danehy of Cambridge say they are chagrined that such, apparently, is the case. The Commissioners noted that residents of Arlington had been informed recently by their Board of Assessors that their tax rate had increased this year because of what was called increased charges in state and country costs.

Commissioner Ralph pointed out that, like every city and town in Middlesex County this year, the tax assessment to Arlington had decreased over last year's. The decrease is approximately $71,000.

According to Commissioner Danehy, the principal reason for the decrease was the tireless effort made by the Commissioners in trimming the various departmental requests submitted to them.

The commissioners went on to explain that the Board of Assessors in Arlington was either honestly confused or, Regretfully, Deliberately trying to mis-lead the taxpayers of Arlington.

In any event, Commissioner Ralph, along with Commissioner Danehy, has asked the Chairman of the Board of Assessors Paul Cantrell to appear before them in September to discuss and clarify the situation.

Commissioner Ralph said in conclusion, "It is ironic that with the lowering of the county budget for the first time in years, we should have to endure the criticism of county tax assessments being responsible for a city or town's rising tax rate. The assertion borders on the ludicrous".

Commissioner Danehy was quick to add, "The commissioners have spent hundreds of man-hours in attempting to lower this year's county budget over last year's. We have done so. The least we expect in return from city and town officials in recognition of that fact. Let us place the blame for a town's tax increase where it rightfully belongs, — not at the doorstep of the county."

Candidates' Night Set

The Newton Coalition for New Politics (an affiliate of CPPAX) will hold two aldermanic candidates' nights.

The first candidates' night will take place on, Wednesday, Sept. 5, and is for candidates that are either unopposed this November or face a preliminary election this fall.

The second candidates' night will be on the following Wednesday which is Sept. 12, and is for all contested aldermanic races which do not have a preliminary.

Both candidates' nights will be held at the Auburndale Congregational Church located at 92 Woodland Rd. in Auburndale. The public is invited to come and the starting time for each event will be 7:30 p.m.

Incinerator Worker Bill Awaits Sargent Signature

A special act giving Newton's incinerator employees full benefits for retirement due to job-related disability has been passed by the state legislature and is awaiting the signature of Gov. Francis Sargent.

The act, the first of its kind for municipal employees other than firefighters and policemen, states that any impairment of health caused by a disease of the lungs or respiratory tract which results in total disability or death of a full-time incinerator employees shall be presumed to have been caused by the inhalation of harmful fumes and gases at the incinerator.

The bill was at first strongly opposed by the state's union firefighters, who threatened to strike statewide if the disability benefit were extended to incinerator employees. Their resistance was overcome in great part by Newton legislators, who convinced the firefighters that none of their benefits would be lost.

The subject of full benefits for lung-related disability was first broached in March of this year, by Louis Rufo, President of Local 800, the municipal workers' union.

Rufo said the benefit had been promised the union during contract negotiations last year.

The incinerator workers staged a one-day work stoppage in protest of the delay.

Funeral Services Held For Cadet O'Halloran

Funeral services were held on Wednesday, Aug. 29, for Richard M. O'Halloran Jr., 20, of 15 Ohio Ave., Newton Upper Falls, who died early Monday morning in a head on collision on Beacon Street near Waban Square.

O'Halloran had served as a police cadet for the Newton Police Department for the past year. He was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident shortly after the collision.

Upon learning of O'Halloran's death, Police Chief William F. Quinn stated, "I have heard more good about this fine young man since his death, than about some police officers who have died after many years on the force."

"O'Halloran," stated Chief Quinn, "has worked in several bureaus, both on the night and day shift, and has always been an exemplary cadet, well liked by all his fellow workers."

"I personally took note of this man and watched with great satisfaction as he carried out his duties in the police department," Chief Quinn said after visiting with Cadet O'Halloran's family.

Cadet O'Halloran leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. O'Halloran, a brother, Phillip, four sisters, Patricia, Maureen, Sheryl-Ann and Mary-Ann.

He is also survived by his grandparents, Mrs. Helen Goodale of West Newton and Robert O'Halloran of Needham.

According to the police report of the accident, O'Halloran was headed southwest on Beacon Street when his vehicle swerved into the opposite lane, just west of the Waban Square Bridge, and struck a vehicle operated by Alfred White, 25, of Somerville.

White was reported in fair condition at Newton-Wellesley Hospital after the accident.

A passenger in the White vehicle, Marjorie Hoar, 21, of 1129 Beacon St., Newton, was reported in poor condition at the same hospital with a broken arm, broken thigh, broken pelvis and multiple bruises.

Funeral services for Cadet O'Halloran were held at 8:15 a.m. from the Cate and Pratt Funeral Home, 1251 Washington St., West Newton, followed by a Funeral Mass in Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church at 9 a.m.

Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Needham.

Smoking Ban Closer

Racing through its agenda of 25 items this week in less than two hours, the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee dealt definitively with only a few measures.

Ald.-Rep. Lois Pines' proposed ordinance to ban smoking in supermarkets and grocery stores, except in areas designated by the owner, was passed unanimously by the committee.

An amendment to city ordinances that would require a public hearing when any trees or shrubs are threatened by street widening was also approved unanimously.

The aldermanic Finance Committee will return its former meeting nights, the Thursday after every meeting of the full Board of Aldermen, according to an amendment to board orders proposed by ald. Louis Egelson and approved by the Legislation and Rules committee.

These items will be voted on by the full board at its next meeting, Sept. 4.

Held were some twenty items, including a resolution about the Vietnam ceasefire proposed early this year "to give praise to those who labored to find the key to this new era of peace, honor, and hope."

Ald. Jason Sacks suggested, "Let's hold this until we see what happens with Watergate."

Admiration

Irving Usen, left, of Ledges Rd., Newton, Honorary Trustee for Life of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged, was highly enthusiastic about the newly-opened 250-bed addition to the geriatric institution in Roslindale. With him is Milton Berger of Brookline, Honorary President of the Center which will be dedicated Sept. 23.

The City Speaks

Long on sports and recreation, short on cultural events were this week's Newton Community Notes, the city's new recorded telephone service telling local residents what's doing.

By calling 244-5550, residents can hear about Crystal Lake and Gath Pool hours, playground activities, and registration for the girls' street hockey team.

They will also hear that the Board of Aldermen will meet next week, where to call for welfare and other social services, and how to register for Selective Service.

Newton Community Notes tapes are changed every Monday morning and should be in operation by 10:30 a.m. to report upcoming library, cultural, recreational and civic events, items of interest to senior citizens, and the like.

Bank Nets High Honors

The 1972 New England Bank Stock Annual Report just issued by John J. Ryan & Co. Inc., Investment Bankers, Newark, N. J. rates City Bank and Trust Company of Boston as the 14th largest in Massachusetts out of 125 commercial banks and bank holding companies, having moved up from 18th largest a year ago, and the 39th largest in the entire New England area, as against 44th largest a year ago.

The report also shows that of the 50 largest banks in New England, City Bank ranks first in three important categories — Highest Return on Average Net Earning Assets (2.02 percent); Highest Profit Margin (25.5 percent); Highest Return on Average Shareholders Equity (16.3 percent).

For the current price of 35 cents, elementary students can purchase a sandwich each day along with a tray containing fruit, salad, a utensil and dessert. The price of milk is also included in the purchase price. The Stop and Shop supermarket chain will provide the trays and their contents.

Parents will have an opportunity to sign their children up for the school year, and information concerning the entire lunch program is being mailed by the school department's food services division to the home of each child.

The Newton School Department will issue bus passes to all junior and senior high school students free of charge provided they live two or more miles from their respective schools.

Those students who live within the two mile limit will be required to pay a fee of approximately $15 per two month period if they desire transportation to school.

Brochures containing transportation information, including fees and schedules, are available in the offices of each of the junior and senior high schools in the city.

City May Purchase Armory

If the West Newton armory is to be closed down, as has been suggested in a report under study by the state legislature, Mayor Theodore Mann has requested that the city be allowed to purchase it at a "nominal price" for municipal use.

The mayor said Tuesday that he had made the request of Gov. Francis Sargent in May, and has received an indication from the governor that the city probably will be able to acquire the building.

Mann has asked the trustees of the Newton Free Library to investigate the feasibility of using the armory as the new main library.

Recreation Commissioner John Penney has also been consulted about the possibility of converting the 64-year-old fortresslike building into a youth recreation center.

Both of these suggestions have also been put forth by School Committeeman Alvin Mandell and Ward 6 aldermanic candidate Joan Saklad.

Planning Director Charles Thomas will be involved in any decision made on the use of the armory.

The building contains 32,640 square feet of floor space and has an underground garage.

The armory is one of 30 recommended for closing over a five- to six-year phaseout period. The remaining armories would be made regional facilities.

The library trustees meet next on Sept. 7.

Senior Citizens Off To Concord

The Newton Council for the Aging is sponsoring a special bus trip to Concord, Mass. for senior residents on Tuesday, Sept. 11.

This trip will include guided tours of Ralph Waldo Emerson's house, North Bridge, and the Old Manse. All participants are asked to bring their own lunches. The cost of this trip will be $1.00 to be paid on arrival in Concord.

The bus will leave Newton around 11 a.m. and will return by 4 p.m. This trip is limited to 40 people. Transportation will be provided, and thos wishing to make reservations should call the Department of Human Resources at Newton City Hall. The phone number is 244-4700, ext. 266.

Voter Registration Closes Sept. 19

Voter registration will close at 10 p.m. Sept. 19 for the preliminary election to be held Oct. 9, according to the Newton Election Commission.

Persons previously unregistered (or wishing to change their party registration) may register every day between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. at the commission offices in City Hall.

New voters must be 18 years old on or before Oct. 9 in order to be registered for the preliminary election.

Police Protection?

If the fictional friends of Eddie Coyle were planning another heist in the greater Boston area it would seem that they would have to conclude that West Roxbury is just about the least police protected area in the surrounding suburbs.

Where else, one can conclude after hearing how few officers are on the night shift, is so much private property protected by so few?

A Boston Councilor says that the 10 square mile police division that includes West Roxbury has been covered by only nine police officers during the high crime hours from midnight on. Division 5 is the police district that covers West Roxbury. It also takes in Roslindale, Hyde Park, part of Mattapan and Readville.

Nine men for all that?

Thousands of homes and businesses would seem easy targets for those in the serious business of crime. And there is no fiction of break-ins and robberies and vandalism in Division 5. It is a real statistic that residents are well aware of.

But nine policemen for all that?

So far Police Commissioner diGrazia has not confirmed the nine man figure. And you could hardly expect him or any other police commander to tell exactly how many officers are on patrol at what time. There would be no surer way of increasing the reality of crime than blueprinting police plans, weakness as well as strength.

There is no way Newton's Police Chief Quinn is going to spell out exactly how many men he has on a certain shift covering the 18 square miles of that city.

And no one could fault the Chiefs in Norwood, or Dedham or other towns if they keep their shift sizes a guarded secret.

So it is that the reluctance of Commissioner diGrazia to spell out the exact size and location of a force is understandable. Specifics can sometimes do more harm than they do good.

And this no doubt is the dilemma that the top man in the Boston force has to contend with when the public is told that their neighborhoods are under staffed. DiGrazia is the first to say more officers should be out on patrol. And working within the confines of budget — the city's, not his — diGrazia has been doing everything possible to increase protection for every division.

Vehicle For Life

A bill in the Massachusetts House which could save thousands of lives, according to its sponsors, was given approval this week by that legislative body. The bill will set new standards for equipping and staffing all ambulances effective in 1976. It will replace old statutes which regulate only sanitation, and require just 26 hours of training for attendants. The new legislation will require the licensing of ambulance service and vehicles by classification of care provided, establish upgraded training requirements (80 hours), and form an Emergency Medical Care Advisory Board to guide the Department of Public Health in administering the law. And finally, provide for cost-sharing and regional coordination of emergency medical services.

The bill's sponsors, including a Milford Representative who claims 8,000 persons died of heart attacks last year in the state, 2000 of who could have been saved if adequate ambulance regulations had been in effect, are happy that the bill passed the house on a voice vote Monday. It is now before the Senate.

The House's action has to be hailed as a long overdue step in the right direction.

Rep. Lois Pines of Newton, at another hearing on the bill, came up with an even more stark statistic. She was quoted as saying that national Department of Public Health officials have stated that almost 45,000 people per year are killed or permanently injured nationally by poorly trained ambulance personnel. Rep. Pines has also been quoted as saying that 75 per cent of all heart attack deaths could be prevented if the time lapse between the attack and proper treatment could be halved.

Dr. William R. MacAusland, of Dedham, a member of the Dedham Ambulance Study Committee, and a recognized leader in attempts at upgrading and improving emergency medical treatment also appeared at a number of the hearings, in addition to a television talk-show presented on one of the Boston television stations.

The statistics presented could go on and on, and we realize statistics can be presented to solidly back up either side of any question, but in this case, the life and death aspect of the situation demands that action be taken. And action has been taken. Now it is up to the Senate.

We hope they follow the lead of the House in recognizing that you can't cut costs when it comes to saving lives. The bill will be expensive for both private and municipal authorities but it will be a true lifesaver, and that is what it is all about.

Sacks-

we restructured committees on the Board of Aldermen and I have had the pleasure of serving with others such as Warren Sutherland, our own expert on municipal finance," he continued.

"From my first term on the Board when I served on Public Works, Street Traffic, and Land Use Committees, then Finance and Legislation and Rules, as well as chairman of the Kenrick Fund Committee, I am glad to say my attendance record has always been in the top 10 percent of the Board at both regular and committee meetings," Sacks added.

"The next two years will be crucial in equalizing our tax structure, a measure I have supported from the first time the idea of revaluation was brought up. I was also one of the very few to vote for every site on the N.C.D.F. hearings and have been a constant supporter of every public housing subsidy and construction effort to come before the board," Sacks concluded.

Sacks is a former president of the Ward School P.T.A., vice president of the Bigelow Junior High P.T.A. and president of the Temple Mishkan Tefila P.T.A. and forum groups.

In addition Sacks has been active in many civic and business groups in Newton.

He has been in business for the past 21 years in Newton Centre and has served as president of the Newton Centre Business Association and on the Board of Directors of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Sacks is a graduate of the University of Michigan and has lived in Newton for the past 22 years. He is married to the former Betty Sherter of Newton and they have three sons; Robert, a graduate of the University of Michigan and a law student; and William and Michael, both students at the University of Michigan.

Putting It All Together

By CYNTHIA BLACK

We frequently get inquiries here as to how to submit news releases to the Newton Graphic and what our deadlines are.

Since most groups, clubs and organizations shift into a low gear for the summer and pick up speed right after Labor Day, we thought this would be a good time to explain our system of news releases and the paper.

To begin, we have a general deadline and another, separate deadline for news releases sent to the society editor.

The general news deadline for the Graphic is Monday. If you want to submit a story for Thursday's paper, we accept your releases until 5 p.m. on Monday of the week of publication. To clear up any confusion, this does not mean a release can be mailed to us postmarked Monday with the intention of seeing it appear in Thursday's paper.

Completely Black

There's a very good reason for this. The mail is not always strictly reliable and I can assure you releases mailed on Monday sometimes do not arrive here until Wednesday or Thursday.

While you are reading your Newton Graphic on Thursday, we are already busy working on the following Thursday's paper. The earlier you send your stories, the better chance they have of getting into the paper.

People who wish to submit pictures or stories with pictures should have them at our office by the Saturday preceding publication.

During peak news periods, we may receive as many as 50 news pictures per week. Because of space limitations we cannot use them all.

We try to select pictures on the basis of news value, variety and quality and we try to treat everyone fairly. We may not be able to use all pictures sent to us by your group or club, but we will use some. And we are glad to get them!

Rules of thumb that might help you in arranging for a club picture include these: limit the number of people in the picture to a maximum of four or five; have the people doing something in the picture.

An early deadline has been established for social news because the mechanical deadline at this end for the society editor is earlier than for the news department.

Social news must arrive by Wednesday of the week preceding publication.

We also welcome your letters for the Opinion Page, one page in the Graphic that grows more successful every week. The Opinion Page is designed to be an open forum, a place for readers to say what they have to say and comment on subjects they want to comment on, no matter what they are. It is open to everyone and we hope you will make use of it.

One final note, we are trying to give Newton the newspaper it wants and we invite your comments on this subject too, either for print or just for our benefit.

If you have an idea for a story, know someone we might like to interview, or are aware of a situation publicity could help to correct, we would be happy to hear from you and to work with you.

The Newton Graphic is Newton's newspaper. It is designed to be about things happening in Newton and to tell you what your Newton friends and neighbors are doing.

Our address is Post Office Box 102, Newtonville, and the phone number is 329-5000.

Flower Power Five

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am writing you in regard to the efforts and achievement of six ten-year-old girls from Newton who last spring successfully held a carnival to raise monies for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

These youngsters organized themselves in a group which they called "Flower Power Five Plus One," and late in May set up make-up booths, pitch a penny, guess how many peanuts in the jar, ring-toss, basketball toss, and many more activities. Without any outside assistance or guidance these children baked, popped popcorn, organized themselves and with much enthusiasm were successful in raising $20 for the organization.

I have sent the money with a letter including the girl's names and addresses to the Boston Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association and requested that they write a short note of thanks to these youngsters who made such good use of their time, and were rewarded by the response of others in raising money for this most worthy cause.

The girls are all presently entering the sixth grade at the Ward School, and I feel they would be thrilled seeing their names in print in your newspaper. I also feel that they very definitely deserve some commendation for their achievement.

The youngster's names are: Joanna Werman, Melanie Ente, Sara Bradley, Laurie Rogoff, Donna Moore, and Cheryl Cohen.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Wants Retarded Residence

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Although I am unfamiliar with the Newton Corner area in question, I feel I must speak out on the home for the retarded being planned there. I have no proven justification in arguing with those who purport that traffic problems will increase in the area, yet I feel that the underlying basis for opposition to the project lies in a general public which has not been educated regarding the retarded.

The state of Massachusetts no longer recognizes the label "retarded" for educational purposes. Public schools must now integrate all retarded students into the regular class structure and, at the same time, provide special services to each disabled individual as necessary. Are we to discontinue this integration at the end of person's school years? Obviously, the law does not intend for this, but ultimately it will occur if the majority of attitudes are not altered.

It is mandatory to realize that the well-being of the retarded is inextricably linked with the well-being of society. If society does not permit him to have a self-concept which contributes to this well-being, then the retarded individual will always be looked down upon.

The retarded cannot take their proper place in the community by themselves. They require assistance which can be obtained only if the majority of people realize their usefulness and are willing to accept them.

Only when society is convinced that the retarded can function productively when his environment is modified in relationship to his disability, will the retarded person be able to have a positive motivation for his activities. A positive attitude toward the retarded must be developed before the public will accept them.

People Helping People-The Answer

Editor, Newton Graphic:

What I write, and my opinions have not developed quickly, it has taken 23 years of careful watching, learning, listening and struggling to gain enough courage to speak out.

I'll tell you from the start that this program (community residence for retarded) belongs in this city, and those who oppose it will end up the handicapped members of our society. Given half a chance these people, about whom we are deliberating, could teach us all about life and good living.

I am a teacher and have had the happy experience of teaching the trainable class in special education. There is nothing to fear, but that is not my real purpose in writing.

I have lived in Newton for almost 35 years and have had the benefit of a similar experience. Right here, too! A total of 23 years ago last June, I came home after six years in an institution — The New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children.

Oh no! I wasn't mentally handicapped. I had only a physical ailment which required six years of cure and treatment with casts and braces, crutches and wheelchairs. I was sent home cured with no restrictions and told to do anything I wanted.

Had my childhood been unhappy? No! If anything, I've come to learn that it had been richer than that experienced by most kids. Every organization and department in the city had seen to that.

I had six years of ball games, ball player friends, circuses, rodeos, shows, movies and gifts. I thought everybody knew Ted Williams, Johnny Pesky, Jack Dempsey and Big Brother Bob Emery.

I had an education too — in one room, with all grades together with the same loving teacher for six years.

We all had the same things, but few that I knew then have been able to succeed or survive in society. Why? The whole key to any success lies with people. Normal Healthy People.

Perhaps if I try to describe what it is like, some will be more tolerant.

My family, close friends, and neighbors were great. We had never lost touch, for I had received more mail while institutionalized than other kids and it was read aloud for all each day.

They helped with delight as I began again to relearn all the things which I had forgotten and which everyone else took for granted.

The telephone, money, silverware, uncooked meat — thanks Lt. Bobby King — flowers, birds, animals, water, the ocean, babies, cows, and people, people, people!

All of these things were easy to re-learn; the tough part was people. The staring, hurrying, yelling, pushing people who were so quick to cut anyone down. I quickly learned not to ask questions out loud, but to find out all answers on my own privately.

After three full months I entered Warren Jr. High with all other seventh-graders. My folks refused to allow them to place me in the special class. I was tested for placement. That first year was rough, but I made it, thanks to Miss Green and Miss Cleveland who never let on to the kids. And special thanks to a kind music teacher who took his lunch hour each day to give me lessons on a real silver flute.

The point is that I couldn't shine in gym class, but people helped me develop skills so I could contribute and be a part of other important activities. I even got to march with them in every city parade. Nobody knew — they had needed a flute player.

Who knows what those loving people might contribute to us if given a chance. They'll never really grow in an institution — that only happens when one becomes a contributing member or is asked to take part.

A few comments on the handicapped. A person with a faulty part quickly learns to call upon other working parts to accomplish his needs. They are very independent people. The handicapped neither want nor need pity. They quickly gain an ability to spot a phony. Most handicapped are gifted, loving, sincere, people. I would like to be the first to welcome our new residents. If the neighbors want to move, let them. I'll move in. I have so much to learn and they have so much to offer.

I have survived the hazards of the "institution" because my family and friends had the courage to stand by their necessary decisions and they have the unending love and faith I sometimes needed.

Those who know me and have watched me grow privately laugh, for I am forever trying to make up for that six years by asking too many questions and getting too enthused over things that are new, different or a challenge.

Name withheld by request.

Racism Rampant

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Five years ago when I first moved into Newton, it was necessary for me to receive assistance from the Newton Fair Housing Committee because of the racism with which I was confronted. My present landlord, at that time, had refused to take my deposit.

Today, five years later, the situation has not improved. For the past three months, I have been attempting to rent another apartment, always checking the availability of the apartment before going to see it. I have been shown the premises but refused the opportunity to leave a deposit. White friends have followed me to the same apartment and have had no difficulty either in leaving a deposit or in renting the apartment.

After talking to many Newton Blacks, some of whom rent apartments here, I have discovered that most of them have suffered the same indignities and dehumanizing experiences. I have come to the conclusion that it is almost impossible to rent an apartment in Newton, Massachusetts, in 1973 if one is Black, regardless of his sex, marital status, or socio-economic background. In 1973 I find the City of Newton, Massachusetts, more racist in its rental patterns than that of my southern hometown, which was totally segregated 15 years ago.

Newtonites are very effectively keeping BLACKS from renting. This city exhibits the covert racism of the north which is subtle and insidious. Southern states have progressed in race relations as relates to housing, while the north has remained at a standstill.

To the white liberals of Newton, I would like to say that this is the sort of situation which Black folks are referring to when they say instead of coming into Roxbury to "do your thing," begin in your own community.

Safety First

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am writing this open letter particularly to those many people who came to an educational meeting on May 15, 1973, to discuss safety, traffic, and daily living with the lights at Washington Street and Commonwealth Avenue.

At that time we stated the problems, gave examples, and offered our laymen plans of solution. Although you are now returning from vacations to find no changes, may I reassure you that three distinct plans for change are before our city officials who are tuned-in to our concerns.

Please have patience. The process seems slow, but good things are happening.

Thank you! Ed Weist, Richard Dudman, Mayor Mann, Aldermen Jackson, Jefferson, Lipof and Pines. Your interest and caring to listen has been most encouraging.

As safety chairman for this area, I appeal to parents to please be responsible for the children who must cross (this intersection) when our fine police lady is not present.

Nardone Announces Candidacy-

format in making his formal announcement for a seat on the Newton Board of Aldermen.

The first question asked of Nardone was, "What would you do about the high property tax in the city?"

"This is the number one question asked of every candidate," stated Nardone, "and I think that any elected official has to recognize this fact and scrutinize any appropriations that come before him and say, 'Is this really necessary and what will it do to the tax rate?' "

"If elected," said Nardone, "I intend to address myself to these issues."

The second question most frequently asked, according to Nardone, was, "What does the new tax assessment in the city mean to the average taxpayer?"

"I think that the tax situation in the city has become archaic over the years with part of the taxpayers paying 30 percent, and some paying 60 or 70 percent," answered Nardone.

"In another year or two," he continued, "when we go to 100 percent evaluation, and if done fairly and honestly, it will be long overdue."

"When the assessors go through the city, many things should be taken into consideration and if these facts are all fairly weighed we will be far better off," he explained.

"If you as a taxpayer feel you were taken advantage of, file for an abatement!" Nardone offered as one solution.

The next questions answered by Nardone pertain to the public school system in Newton.

"What has happened to the school situation in the city and why does the school committee continue to spend money like it is going out of style?"

"The children of Newton should get the best education available, but this doesn't mean the more money you spend the better the education," Nardone cautioned.

"This has been the criteria over the years but was disproved in a state-wide study recently. Small towns that we hardly hear of did far better than Newton in the state average. This is a fact!" exclaimed the candidate.

Nardone also addresses himself to the problem of parking at the New North High School.

"Is the city seriously considering a multi-level garage for parking at the new school?" asked several of the people encountered by the aldermanic candidate.

"I certainly hope not," he answered. "I believe the city is obligated to educate the children and not build multi-level garages for them at the taxpayers' expense," he said.

Nardone is treasurer of the Holy Name Society for the Newton District; past president of St. Bernard's Society; post commander, Post 48, Newton; VFW Post 722; on the executive committee of United Commercial Traveller, a member of the Elks Lodge 1327 in Newton, and a member of the Knights of Columbus in Newton.

Suggest Armory Takeover

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Mayor Theodore D. Mann and a copy forwarded to the Newton Graphic):

Dear Mayor Mann:

In last week's paper, we read an article regarding the possibility that the West Newton Armory on Washington Street will close. This Armory is included on a list of thirty armories recommended for closing if the State Legislature acts upon a report prepared by a Special Commission on Military Affairs, set up in 1971 by the Legislature.

We would like to suggest that the City of Newton explore the possibility of acquiring the Armory from the state for the purpose of putting it to good use for the benefit of our City. Since it is a fairly good-sized building, it could be used for a Youth Center or a central library. Other uses might also suggest themselves once the City has acquired the property.

The need for a Youth Center or a main Public Library has been apparent in the City for many years. This appears to be a very valuable property for city use.

If there is anything further that we can do to aid you, please do not hesitate to contact us.

The response was excellent and I cannot be more thankful to the entire police force.

Decries Lost Innocence

Editor: Newton Graphic:

One used to think that there was a period of time-somewhere between birth and the age of consent-there existed a time of sweet innocence. It was inborn, and hadn't had a chance to become corrupted as yet.

Sadly for some, this is not true. In view of the "Soap Box Buggery" this writer wonders, "Is all lost?"

Newton School Department Issues Test Score Results

Explanation

To provide test data in a form more familiar to the lay public, Director of Research and Planning for the Newton Schools, Dr. Vincent Silluzio, has made available the attached scores from the 1970 Massachusetts tests of basic skills of fourth graders.

"Two notes of caution," added Dr. Silluzio:

If the "average" student in grade 4.4, the grade level at which the tests were given, obtains a grade equivalent score of 5.6 in reading, it means only that on this test of reading the number of items answered correctly is equal to the average number of items answered correctly by all students in the national sample in the sixth month of grade 5.

It does not mean that the student has mastered all of the reading skills taught in Newton up to the sixth month of grade 5.

Because of error inherent in all tests, scores should be viewed not as single numbers but as a range of numbers. Thus, the average score for grade level 4.4 would be more realistically interpreted as lying anywhere between grade level 4.2 and 4.6.

This approximate range of 0.4 of a grade level can be applied to all scores in the table.

Anyone who wishes additional information can get in touch with Dr. Silluzio, Newton Public Schools, 265 Watertown Street, Newton 02158. Telephone: 969-9810, ext. 368.

Service Note

Cadet Wayne G. Gallant, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Gallant, 183 Waltham St., West Newton, received practical work in Military leadership at the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps Advanced Summer Camp at Ft. Bragg, N.C., from June 23 to Aug. 3.

Cadet Gallant, a student at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, was one of some 7,200 students who attended Army ROTC Training at five installations in the U.S.

The ROTC Advanced Camp provides an opportunity for cadets to develop and demonstrate leadership capabilities in a field training environment. The instruction supplements theories and concepts which cadets learned in the classroom on campus.

Cadets normally attend the training between their junior and senior years. This enables them to better comprehend their final year of classroom work and to function as cadet leaders on campus.

Waltham Firm Wins Government Contract

LFE Corporation announced today that it has received a contract from the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Reclamation, for the design and installation of a multi-site computer control system to manage power distribution in the upper Missouri River region of the United States. The contract, which will run over a four year period, has an expected value of $4.7 million.

LFE Corporation, headquartered in Waltham, is a major producer of control systems and equipment for the industrial and municipal markets. LFE also provides maintenance and consulting engineering services.

CADET CARL T. JOSEPHSON, 21, son of Dr. and Mrs. Elliot H. Josephson, 45 Fair Oaks Ave., Newton, received practical work in military leadership at the Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps Advanced Summer Camp at Ft. Riley, Kan., this summer. Cadet Josephson, a student at Ripon (Wis.) College, was one of some 7,200 students who attended Army ROTC Training at five installations in the U. S.

Guzzi Sponsors House Medical Legislation

Representative Paul H. Guzzi of Newton urged members of the Ways and Means Committee last week to send House Bill 3736 to the House floor with their approval. The bill was reported favorably by the Social Welfare Committee and sent to Ways and Means for funding consideration.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Guzzi, would establish a 12-member Commission on Medical Examiners and the office of Chief Medical Examiner. It is an outgrowth of an executive order issued in the mid-60's by then-Governor John A. Volpe.

The order provided for the study of the medical investigation of Massachusetts deaths. The study group suggested, but never offered, any legislation to implement charges consistent with their findings.

Under this bill the Chief Medical examiner would be appointed by the Governor and would in turn appoint a Deputy and 144 district and associate medical examiners. The Office of the Chief Medical Examiner would be located in the new University of Mass. Medical School in Worcester.

The Chief Medical Examiner will have authority to review and systematize the operation of the states' medical examiners. The office would delineate standards and practices of examiners, establish districts, collect information and compile annual statistical reports on the examiner's investigations and autopsies.

A laboratory of forensic sciences would also be established and would permit the medical examiners system to be independent of the law enforcement system. This is critical to a careful and thorough study of the cause of death without placing concern on the potentially criminal death.

Rep. Guzzi indicated that "this bill will create a system where there has been none, and ultimate responsibility will be vested in the office of Chief Medical Examiner to investigate and analyze deaths in this state."

He went on to say that "the data would prove invaluable especially in the non-criminal areas for the study of death and its causes including automobile, drugs, and suicide. This would enable doctors and the general public to more fully understand and deal with this phenomenon."

The bill is strongly supported by Dr. Gilbert Friedell, acting head of the Department of Pathology at the University of Mass. Medical School.

MBTA Reminds Parents Of Child Safety Factor

In connection with the inauguration on Sept. 8 of a substitute bus service for streetcar service between Riverside and Newton Highlands Stations on the Green Line's Highlands Branch, the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) today appealed to Newton parents to stress to their children the importance of obeying safety rules at all times.

The appeal for the parents' help and cooperation during reconstruction of the Riverside-to-Newton Highlands section was made by Forrest I. Neal, Jr., presiding officer of the Board of Directors, in 5,000 safety flyers delivered to the Newton School Department.

In the safety flyers, also containing a letter to parents and a map showing the substitute bus service route, Neal pointed out that buses will be operating over certain Newton streets where a bus is an unfamiliar sight.

"Because buses will be traveling on Beacon Street, passing the Angier School, and on Woodward Street, near the Hyde School on Lincoln Street," Neal said, "the MBTA urgently requests all of you parents to stress over and over again to your children, irrespective of age, how important it is for them to observe safety rules at all times - to STOP, LOOK and LISTEN before crossing the streets; to obey traffic signals, and to follow directions given by your policemen and policewomen."

Neal also asked parents to warn their children to stay away from the streetcar right-of-way between Riverside and Newton Highlands because heavy equipment will be working along this three-mile stretch, rebuilding the roadbed and installing new track.

"The MBTA," he concluded, "will greatly appreciate your help and cooperation - for your children's safety and for your peace of mind."

Fish Leads Insurance Association

C. Robinson Fish III, CLU, a resident of Wában and agent for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, recently became President of the Million Dollar Round Table (MDRT), one of the world's most prestigious insurance associations.

Fish, a noted civic leader, is also known for his involvement in the international Medic Alert system–a program whereby a person's hidden medical problems or allergy is identified on a bracelet or necklace. Through the Boston Life Underwriters Association, he was instrumental in the broad acceptance of Medic Alert in this area and remains active on the program's international board and as Nominating Committee chairman.

The MDRT is an independent, international association of nearly 10,000 top life insurance salesmen, representing over 30 nations and territories and more than 400 life insurance companies. Membership is granted on a yearly basis only, and stringent production requirements include million dollar-plus production, as well as high personal and professional standards. Less than two percent of all life agents meet these requirements each year.

A member of this elite group for 18 consecutive years, Fish is the Round Table's 48th President. His one-year term of office will culminate in Miami, Fla. next June where he will preside over the 1974 MDRT Annual Meeting.

Fish foresees a year of continued efforts on the part of the MDRT to better the capabilities of its members to serve the public. "Without any question, the greatest single Round Table goal is to become an even greater instrument for enhancing the professionalism and expertise of its members, so that they can better serve their individual clients throughout the world. Anything that complements this objective will be pursued diligently."

He places a high priority on

client service and insists that the ultimate test of a life underwriter's competence is the level of consumer satisfaction.

"Instead of worrying about the critics of our distribution system, let's concentrate on doing an even better job of understanding and fulfilling the consumer's needs. If we do this, we will have to apologize to no one."

A native of Greenville, RI, Fish graduated from Brown University in 1943 with a degree in engineering. He entered the life insurance profession in 1946, following three years of service in the U.S. Navy on Destroyer 441 in the Pacific Theatre.

Choosing the life insurance profession because of its potentials for fulfilling his financial, self-motivational and humanitarian needs, Fish has built a highly successful corporate planning business in Boston, C. Robinson Fish III and Associates. He has been a consistent multi-million dollar producer and among his company's top agents group for most of his 27 years in insurance sales.

A CLU since 1949, he has served as a past board member of the Boston CLU chapter, past board member and president of the Boston Life Underwriters Association, and vice chairman of the NALU Public Service Committee. He also has served on the Executive Committee of Northwestern Mutual's Special Agents Association.

After qualifying for the MDRT in 1956, Fish served on a variety of Round Table committees leading toward his selection to the Executive Committee in 1970. He has attended 12 MDRT Annual Meetings, addressing his colleagues at both the 1965 and 1969 sessions.

British Firm Purchases GRI Computer Stock

GRI Computer Corporation of Newton has announced consumation on Aug. 14, of an agreement with Eastern International Investment Trust, Limited, headquartered in London, England, under the terms of which the British company has purchased 250,000 shares of the common stock of GRI for a total price of $437,500, or $1.75 per share.

Eastern now owns 11.1 per cent of the GRI shares outstanding. Pursuant to the agreement Mr. H.J.C. Berens, a Director of Eastern, will become a Director of GRI.

In making the announcement, Robert L. Horowitz, president of GRI, also pointed out that Eastern is the majority stockholder of one of GRI's foreign customers and has a continuing interest in GRI in that capacity.

GRI Computer Corporation also announced its year end results for fiscal 1973. Sales for the year were $1,289,000 compared to $1,217,000 for the previous year.

Operations for the year resulted in a net loss of $1,040,000, or $ .52 per share, which included $206,000 ($.10 per share) for discontinued operations, as compared to a net loss of $195,000, or $ .10 per share, for fiscal 1972.

Principal reasons given for the loss were: the operations of the company's microcircuit manufacturing facility in Largo, Fla. which was discontinued in March, 1973; additional costs related to the introduction of the company's new GRI-99 minicomputer; development of the Focus IV real time multi-purpose business data processing system; and expansion of production force and inventories to enable increased production output for fiscal 1974.

The company, during this period, also experienced a change in management with the resignation of Samuel Ochlis as president and chief executive officer on Nov. 30, 1972 and the succession to this office by Robert L. Horowitz on Jan. 2, 1973.

Earnings for the quarter were $61,000 ($ .03 per share), after a provision of $66,000 for costs associated with the continued development of the new Focus IV business system. This compares to a loss of $111,000 ($ .06 per share) for the first quarter of last year.

Firm orders of over $1,000,000 in hand as of Aug. 1, are to be delivered by Dec. 31, thus assuring the current rate of production as a minimum for the balance of the calendar year.

GRI Computer Corporation is a publicly owned company traded in the OTC securities market.

Household Hints

Worth every penny of its 45 cents price tag—a basic cookbook from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It's called "Family Fare" and is available for that price from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.D. 20402.

Dried or powdered milk can be used instead of liquid milk. It can be stored and it is a source of high quality protein.

Fish is a good protein source, although its prices too are going up as demand is increased because of using it as a meat substitute.

Dried beans, peas and peanut butter are relatively inexpensive sources of protein. Nuts are also, but have lots of fat and are not inexpensive.

Try substituting fortified noodles, macaroni or spaghetti for meats. But the protein in pasta is not as high in quality as that of meat and milk protein, says Ethel Diedrichsen, of the University of Nebraska Extension Service.

The great protein search is on as familiar sources—meat, milk and eggs—continue to increase in price. But there are ways to supply this vital nutrient without spending an arm and a leg at the market.

Fish is easy and quick to prepare; it should not be overcooked. One easy way with a fillet is to pan fry very quickly in a smidgen of vegetable oil then lavish on fresh lemon juice. Or, brush a whole fillet with the oil, top with lemon or lime, and thin onion slices. Wrap tightly in foil and bake at medium heat for no more than 20 minutes.

If a fruit jar top is hard to unscrew and you don't have a modern opener around, try putting a wide rubber band on the cap to get a good grip.

If you double a recipe, do not double the amount of seasonings until you have taste tested.

For full flavor, cook dried fruits in the same water in which they were soaked.

WHO'S IN HOT WATER THIS WEEK? THAT'S WHAT THIS YOUNGSTER'S ASKING.

Inventions By Women Increasing Steadily

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women are beginning to take the term "mother of invention" literally —and finding that it pays.

So says Larence Peska, president of Lawrence Peska Associates, who makes a business of turning "better mousetraps" into marketable items.

"About 15 per cent of patents applied for in the United States are from women," he said. "Just a few years ago, it was only five per cent, and the number is steadily increasing."

He gave two examples. One was Margaret Rudkin, who developed a rough textured bread from flour ground in a kitchen coffee mill—the basis for the $7 million a year Pepperidge Farm business.

And there's Mrs. Richard Rodgers, wife of the composer, who has thought up many gadgets for fun and profit, the best known among them the bathroom "Jonny Mop."

"It is not unusual for women to want to do routine jobs more easily," Peska said. "What is changing is the fact that so many women are carrying their innovative ideas forward, thinking of them in terms of products for the marketplace. Many ideas come straight from the kitchen or cleaning closet."

Marketable

Peska advised would-be women Edisons that there are six areas of invention that are highly marketable these days. They are:

—New games for adults or children.

— Worksavers for the homemaker.

—Hand tool innovations and do-it-yourself items.

—Recreational and hobby devices.

— Protection devices for home, car and individuals.

— Car improvements and safety devices.

Not surprisingly, Peska said, women inventors have been most successful in the areas of household worksavers, games and do-it-yourself items, as well as products relating to beauty care and food.

Lead Poison Screening Begins Soon In Ward 5

Why a lead screening program in Newton and Wellesley? The forthcoming Newton-Wellesley Hospital "Quarterly" has a full review of the lead problem, explaining that lead poisoning is a very clear threat to children in any older community, where home interiors still bear coats of lead-based paint.

The hospital's Department of Pediatrics, in cooperation with the Retired Senior Volunteer Program and the Newton Department of Public Health, is launching a comprehensive community effort to find and treat children who have already ingested excess lead, and to track down and remove the paint hazards that are responsible.

The main concern of all involved in the program is to insure that akk children age one to six in the area are screened by the simple fingerprick lead detection test when it is offered in their neighborhood. The first screening sessions are scheduled for late September.

Volunteers are already preparing to get in touch with all families shown by city census to have children under six and set up appointments. The goal is to screen all 8,600 children in Newton and Wellesley, beginning in Ward 5 of Newton. The Newton screening alone is estimated to require at least a year to complete.

The principal source of lead poisoning in children is lead paint, since young children explore by chewing and by putting things in their mouths. Lead paints have been banned for indoor use since 1950, but 80 to 90 percent of all homes built before then will still have old lead paint where youngsters can get at it. In Newton, 78 percent of all homes were built prior to 1950; in Wellesley, 67 percent.

Lead paint on a windowsill or baseboard—or anywhere in the home accessible to toddlers—is a source of danger. Not even a new coat of lead-free paint in an old house can solve the problem because a child who chews on a stair post or swallows a piece of chipping paint will probably ingest old layers along with the top surface. A paint chip the size of a mere pencil thickness, if it has a 10 percent lead content, exceeds the allowable daily intake, and builds up in the body.

Danger areas in addition to interior paint surfaces are lead-painted furniture and equipment still in use (an old clothes rack for example) and exterior paints within reach of children. Though the danger of lead paint has been understood for years, its exterior use has not been banned until January, 1973. Almost any painted home exterior in Newton and Wellesley is thus a potential lead hazard.

The threat of lead poisoning is an insidious one, because of possible slip-ups in parental attention that can allow a bite or chew of leaded materials in a short visit outside the home, for instance. It is the general presence of risk that people involved in the screening program emphasize as the reason all children should be screened.

Lead accumulation in a child's body, if undected and untreated, can bring about behavior and learning problems, and lead to paralysis, convulsions, or even death.

Early symptoms are vague and non-specific—loss of appetite and energy, fussiness and irritability. These can sometimes move quickly into very serious states of lethargy and then semi-consciousness. Even when treatment arrests oncoming semi-consciousness, there is a 30 percent likelihood of permanent brain damage.

If lead poisoning is treated early enough, however, no permanent damage need follow: early enough means before any symptoms develop. The key is to identify children with lead in their bodies at the earliest point, and this is the aim of the Newton-Wellesley screening program.

Treatment must be accompanied by preventive deleading of the child's physical environment, and this, along with screening, diagnosis and treatment programs is a concern of the Massachusetts Lead Paint Poisoning Prevention and Control Act of 1971. The Act has established a Childhood Lead Poisoning Division, directed by Dr. Robert Klein of Newton; it also provides for free testing of blood samples by a state laboratory, which will process the Newton-Wellesley screening samples.

Overall direction of the Newton-Wellesley screening program comes from Dr. John M. Cohen, chief of pediatrics at the hospital, and Mrs. Irene Lamb, the Child Care Service's pediatric nurse practitioner.

Further information on lead poisoning and on the screening program may be obtained from Mrs. Lamb at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Outpatient Department, 244-2800, Ext. 380, on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Dr. Smith Heads For Sight Effort

The appointment of Dr. F. Dow Smith of Newton, vice president of Itek Corporation, as chairman of the Business and Professional Division of the ForSight Foundation was announced recently.

Dr. Smith, a graduate of the University of Rochester Institute of Optics where he earned his Ph.D., is president-elect of Optical Society of America. He served as chairman of the United States Committee of the International Commission for Optics.

In his new campaign role, Dr. Smith will direct twenty-five teams of business and professional leaders in soliciting funds for support of the Vision Rehabilitation Clinic at Boston University Medical Center. The clinic is the only facility in New England promoting comprehensive services to children and adults with severe visual handicaps.

Virtually all of the clinic patients have been classified as "legally blind," with eye conditions that do not respond to conventional treatment. The clinic teams utilize more than 100 different scientific aids to help the patients use their remaining sight. One device, a closed circuit magnified television set, was developed at the clinic.

Founded in 1969 as a part-time service operating one-half day per week, the Vision Rehabilitation Clinic now maintains a full five day per week schedule and serves 600 new patients annually. Funds raised by the ForSight Foundation campaign will be applied toward research, patient services and the development of new mechanical and electronic visual aids, such as the closed circuit television system. It is estimated that 12,000 patients in Massachusetts could benefit from Vision Rehabilitation Clinic Services.

Dr. Smith is former chairman of the Physics Department at Boston University and was director of the University's Physical Research Laboratory. He is a Fellow of the American Association Academy of Optometry.

At Itek Corporation headquarters in Lexington, he is responsible for the company's development of precision optics for application to aerospace photography.

Goal of the ForSight Foundation for the next fiscal year is $75,000.

What's New

By United Press International

How can a woman get the job she wants? If she becomes pregnant, must she quit? Such questions and others are among those answered in the newest almanac, the Illustrated Women's Almanac (Armitage Press Inc.). The publication is being brought out in regional editions. The publisher says they are aimed at women living in Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Louis areas. The publisher also says the Almanac is useful to anyone adopting a child. Selecting a daycare center, using credit, volunteering for community work, going back to work. Editor Nancy Morrison Torrey of Cambridge, Mass., says the Almanac aims to provide a guide for city women to organizations, services, advice and ideas in their immediate neighborhoods, and in the wider world of society.

A new ladies electric shaver has a slimline contour silhouette and is designed to fit comfortably in a woman's hand, says the manufacturer. It has two separate shaving head attachments —one with extra-sharp blades for close leg shaving and another with a smaller head specially contoured for sensitive underarm areas. The colors: lavender or pink with attractive floral motif. The shaver also has a built-in shaving light to illuminate fine, difficult-to-see hair.

Enjoy Labor Day Weekend, But Some Precautions Necessary

Labor Day — last holiday of the summer season and the busiest at resorts and parks — may be the last holiday for hundreds of Americans who neglect safety precautions, warns the Insurance Information Institute.

As families take off for the beaches, lakes and mountains of New England, overcrowded roads increase the chances of an auto accident and unattended homes increase the opportunities for burglars.

Last Labor Day weekend, 602 persons died as a result of auto accidents, 11 in Massachusetts, according to the National Safety Council. During the first six months of this year, the Council says, 509 persons have been killed in Massachusetts traffic accidents.

One and a half million residences were burglarized last year, the Institute reports, many on holiday weekends when families were "out of town." Ironically, the occupants assisted the burglar in about 20 percent of the cases—simply by leaving a door unlocked.

The Institute advises that you can reduce the chances of becoming a traffic statistic or a burglary victim by following a few common sense rules:

—Don't attempt to drive too far in three days, and remember—death rates are highest at night. For night trips, take someone along to help drive and keep you awake.

—Speed and alcohol are the most frequent causes of highway death and injury. Don't drink before driving and observe speed limits.

—Lock unattended cars and store personal property out of sight. More than 800,000 motor vehicles were stolen in 1972; a majority were unlocked.

—A dark house or apartment attracts burglars. Leave a light or two aglow if you're going to be away overnight.

—Uncollected newspapers and mail also tip off burglars. Before leaving, ask a neighbor or apartment manager to watch the premises and remove newspapers and mail.

Traffic accident statistics for the first six months of 1973 indicate that their will be more auto deaths and injuries this year than ever before.

"Traffic records show the causes of accidents, and the time and conditions under which they occur—but only people can prevent accidents," said the Institute.

The warning signs are clear. "Don't let summer's last holiday be your last holiday—ever."

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

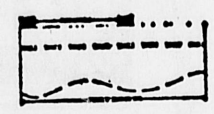
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

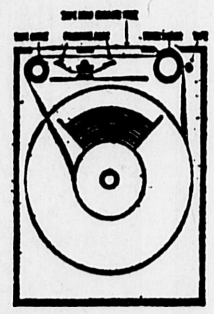
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England..It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

SWEATER GIRL—Lightning stripes trace a lively pattern on this all-American wool boucle sweater by Liz Claiborne of Youth Guild.

The Year Of The Sweater

The message for fall is clear. . . sweaters have come into their own. It's definitely the year of the sweater.

Always an important fashion accessory, this season sweaters have extended their influence into everything from daytime V-neck pullovers to long pull-to-the-floor gowns that will be worn on cool autumn evenings.

Back yard gossip sweaters, the kind that Mom would pull off the door hook as she ran out to rescue sheets whipping in the breeze, are the types of sweaters appearing in haughty Parisian boutiques. Bulky tweedy-knit wrap-around sweaters with big fist-deep pockets and softly rolled collars.

Worn with these sweaters, circular full skirts or knife-edged pleated skirts. Some midi-calf skirt lengths are shown, but their acceptance has been less than enthusiastic. Women prefer the younger looking mid-knee hemline.

Anne Klein & Co. and Youth Guild are winners of the 1973 Woolknit Design Awards for top creativity in women's wool knitwear. Miss Klein was honored for her inspirational role in introducting sweaters of great elegance to sophisticated sportswear at the designer level.

Separates have always been the hallmark of a Klein collection–she is famous for her insistence that the purchase of "good" separates enables women to add new parts to a wardrobe from season to season, year to year, for day or night.

It's unlikely that women will have any difficulty putting together the new sweater look. For example, an over-the-hip white wrapped sweater decorated in vivid blue and red Aztec pattern, is worn with a bright red shirt, print scarf and blue tweedy skinny pants. This sweater can also slip on over a dress for a new casual look.

An argyle sweater, just like the one junior used to wear, is worn with a deeply pleated skirt and matching shirt. Or, a white bulky fisherman's knit cardigan is worn with a black hooded jersey blouse and black and white tweed pants.

The fanciest sweaters may be the new three-quarter length sweater coats which wrap snugly around the body and dramatically muffle the neck and shoulders in a huge fur collar. Calvin Klein does it with a fur-trimmed tweed sweater jacket, the brown and white wool tweed sweater jacket with sable-dyed fox collar and cuffs is worn over a brown suede wrap-skirt and white stock-tie blouse.

Sweater dressing can also mean the sweater suit–the dress with its own sweater. While the fashion is most attractive, the life of the sweater is limited to its dress partner. Matching sweaters, minus the dress fabric, have the versatility to go with other things.

Sweaters mated with dresses offer sweaters trimmed with the material of the dress most often found in borders, pockets or decorative appliques. Savvy home sewers are purposely trimming bought sweaters with leftover dress fabric and coming up with the very newest in today's costume look.

The revivial of the sweater is attributed to the popularity of Fitzgerald's "Great Gatsby." The elongation of the sweater smacks of the 1920's right down to the flip of a skirt and the scarf around the neck. But designers flavor the style with nostalgia strengthened with the look of today.

For example–the cardigan sweater jacket that reaches to the knee and ties gently somewhere around the waist, above a modest knee length straight skirt. The long pullover sweater cardigan for evening, so narrow to the floor that the bottom buttons must be left open to allow for walking comfort. And, speaking of evening, the gray-knitted pullover worn over a white satin shirt, a pink satin rose at the waistline.

The knitted suit is one of the best daytime looks. The jacket is long and lean with no buttons. Nothing but black braid that outlines the softly rolled collar. The skirt is

Don't Have Your Hair Done, Have It Fed

By CYNTHIA BLACK

The "natural" bandwagon is burgeoning and the hairstyling industry has now added its "two cents worth" in protein.

"Nature" can cure a cold help arthritis, offer a terrific breakfast, and now, can help people to have thicker, nicer, healthier and even better dyed hair.

Not only that, but the routine, under the new system, cuts alot of time and bother out of various hair treatments and boasts of being done with entirely safe, non-toxic, all-natural ingredients.

The new processes are being used exclusively in this area at Sal Rizzo's salon in the Waban area of Newton. Women who go into the veteran hairdresser's establishment now start their beauty treatment with a "sunshine drink" of protein ingredients.

Everything is done with protein and variations of combinations of protein for different types of results.

The theory behind this latest in hairdressing trends relies on a basic distinction, putting something into the hair as opposed to putting something onto the hair.

Rizzo explained that in order to help hair, treatments must be directed to the core central being and improvements must be made at that location.

Hair is made out of protein, the theory goes, and any restructuring must be done through adding whatever it lacks in the protein spectrum.

Sal Rizzo

People who have spent years coping with fine hair, Rizzo says, can undergo treatments to thicken hair, a process done by adding layers to each individual hair. Dry hair can be brought back into condition and oily hair can become "normal."

There is even help for damaged hair.

In addition, other protein surprises include the unheard of ability to bleach hair in 19 minutes (as opposed to the usual time in excess of one hour) and to color hair in nine minutes.

In essence, Rizzo says, whatever has to be done to hair to put it in good condition can be done with protein.

Rizzo, who has attended several seminars and courses in this new field, maintains that he is a complete convert. He says he enjoys being in a position to "actually do some good" and to be able to use products he believes are legitimate and safe.

Adding little shock value for dubious customers, he will even demonstrate the safety of his shampoo by drinking it. (see photo).

One unusual aspect of this new treatment is that shampoo is applied to the hair while it is still dry. A second application, while the hair is wet, is left to dry and eventually the hair is rinsed and is clean. Meanshile, all that protein have seeped into the scalp.

The whole approach is different too.

It consists, in addition to a sip of sunshine, to an analysis that costs about $8, done to determine exactly what the hair's deficiencies are and the prescribed number of treatments to get in back into shape. Costs range in estimates from $30 to $50 over a period of time.

Once hair returns to good condition, it goes on a maintenance program which amounts to nothing more than the usual trip to the beauty salon.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

Are you finding food shopping an ordeal these days? You're not alone. We're all concerned about the rising cost of food and trips to the super market can be angry frustrating experiences.

We are told every day that we, the homemakers, are the most important people in today's food market. It's still a matter of supply and demand, and if we refuse to buy the more expensive foods, economists say that prices will have to go down.

So...this means you'll have to be more creative, plan more carefully, learn to say no when children beg for foods such as soda pop, potato chips, etc. Weekend food specials are more important now than ever. Consult your newspaper food advertisements; make out menus for three or four days and don't be negative or apologetic about serving leftovers.

Roll up your sleeves and bake bread! Though the price of flour has shot up, it is still less expensive to bake than to buy–and think of the delightful rewards other than cash outlay. After teaching breadbaking for four years, I can assure you that baking your own bread is the most enjoyable of all forms of baking. Each time you remove a loaf of hot crusty bread from the oven, it's as though you are witnessing a small miracle. Try it–you'll love it!

Physicians and nutritionists maintain that rising food prices will help improve American eating habits. Shoppers will buy less beef and eggs and more chicken, fish, vegetables, dried beans and rice. Margarine instead of butter will be used; nonfat dried milk and evaporated skimmed milk for cooking. It's also recommended that you make your own fortified skimmed milk by adding nonfat dried milk to the liquid skimmed variety instead of paying a few cents more per quart for the dairy fortified product.

Following are some DO'S AND DON'TS for eating better for less: Do not buy on impulse. It's a good idea to do your marketing with a friend; you'll both be stabilizing influences for each other, monitoring a possible slip of dropping a luxury item into the grocery cart.

DO read the labels and look for weight and contents—DON'T be misled by outside packaging. DO buy only what you need in quantity (and planned leftovers); buy in quantity only when you have safe, adequate storage space. DO buy for value, not for premium offers, contest entry blanks or trading stamps. Try to avoid new heavy promotional advertising when the budget is taxed.

Convenience foods are most often the most expensive items in shopping though admittedly a necessity for some working mothers. Try planning some cooking time over the weekend when your preparation of casseroles and other dishes eliminates this budget-breaker, convenience foods.

Do compare cost and number of servings for frozen, fresh and canned foods. A 10 oz. package of frozen vegetables equals a 16-ounce can. If you like both products, buy the cheaper.

Following are penny pinching recipes that are delicious and nutritious.

TOMATO-CHEESE BATTER BREAD

2 cups unsifted all purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 to 2 teaspoons caraway seeds, if desired
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1 can (10 oz.)tomato soup
½ cup cheez whiz
2 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup water
1 egg

Generously grease a 1½ or 2-quart round casserole or two 8x4-inch loaf pans. Combine flour, sugar, salt, caraway seeds and active dry yeast in a large mixer bowl. Heat in saucepan the baking soda, tomato soup, cheez whiz, margarine and water until warm. Add 1 egg and WARM (not hot) liquid to flour mixture and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed. By hand, stir in another 1 to 1¼ cups flour to form a stiff batter. Cover batter; let rise in a warm place until light and doubled in size; 45 to 60 minutes. Stir batter vigorously about 35 strokes; pour into greased pan. Cover and let rise in warm place until batter rises almost to top of plan, 30-45 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes until deep golden brown and loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Remove immediately; cool. Brush with margarine and sprinkle with coarse salt if desired. Makes 1 loaf in round casserole; or 2 8x4-inch loaves.

FISH FILLETS IN SOUR CREAM

1 pound fresh or frozen (thawed) fish fillets
Salt, pepper, margarine, melted
2 tablespoons finely chopped dill pickle
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon basil leaves
1 cup dairy sour cream
Paprika

Dry fish thoroughly with absorbent toweling; salt and pepper to taste. Place in baking dish; brush with melted margarine and broil 8-10 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Meanwhile, in a bowl gently blend pickle, onion, green pepper, parsley, lemon juice, mustard and basil into sour cream. Spoon sour cream sauce over fish and sprinkle with paprika; return to broiler 2-3 minutes to glaze sauce. Serves 4.

GLAZED CARROT STICKS

8 to 10 medium carrots (1 lb.)
2 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
One-third cup packed light brown sugar
½ cup fresh orange juice
½ teaspoon salt

Pare carrots and cut into sticks by cutting in half lengthwise, then into lengthwise quarters. In a large skillet, cook the carrots, covered in a small amount of water until tender. Remove carrots from skillet. Heat margarine in same skillet; add onion and cook until tender. Stir in brown sugar and orange juice; simmer 5 minutes. Add cooked carrots, sprinkle with salt and spoon sauce over carrots until glazed and heated. Serves 5-6

Tomato-Cheese Batter Bread, easy to fix.

ITALIAN SPINACH

2 bags (10 oz. ea.) fresh spinach
¼ cup margarine
¼ cup raisins soaked in hot water and drained
¼ cup pine nuts (optional)
½ teaspoon salt

Wash spinach and cut off any heavy mid-rib stems at bottom of leaves. Place spinach in a large saucepot over moderately low heat; cook, covered, in just the water that clings to the leaves, 5 to 10 minutes. With a long-handle fork turn spinach several times during cooking until it is all wilted but still bright green. In a colander or strainer, drain spinach; with a kitchen scissors coarsely cut up spinach. In the empty saucepot melt the butter; add raisins, pine nuts, spinach and salt; mix well and reheat. Serves 6

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

1½ tablespoons salt
5 quarts boiling water
12 oz. spaghetti
1 medium onion, chopped
¼ cup margarine
¼ cup flour
1½ cups chicken broth
1 cup evaporated milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup chicken broth
¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
2 tablespoons margarine
3 cups cooked chicken pieces

(Before preparing recipe, cook 2-3 lb. chicken using your favorite chicken soup recipe.) Add 1½ tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Do not break up spaghetti. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally until tender. Drain in colander. Meanwhile in saucepan saute onion in ¼ cup margarine until almost tender; stir in flour. Gradually add broth and evaporated milk; cook and stir until sauce boils. Add 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, additional broth and ¼ cup of the cheese and set aside. In large skillet saute mushsooms in 2 tablespoons margarine until brown. Combine spaghetti, mushrooms and chicken in 2½ quart casserole. Pour sauce on top. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake in 375 degree oven for 20 minutes until bubbling. Serves 6.

Governor Proclaims Tay-Sachs Tag Day

Governor Francis W. Sargent has proclaimed Friday, Sept. 7, Tay-Sachs Foundation Day in Massachusetts.

The Tay-Sachs Foundation of New England will note the event with a Tag Day, at which time volunteer workers at shopping centers across the state, will distribute educational material and solicit contributions.

Tay-Sachs is an inherited, fatal, metabolic disorder, primarily affecting children of Jewish Ashkenazi (Eastern European) descent. If both parents are carriers of the trait for Tay-Sachs, there is one chance in four that any of their children will be affected.

However, carriers can be detected by a simple blood test. The pregnancies of couples who are both carriers can be monitored to determine if the fetus is affected. Thus, families with a history of Tay-Sachs can produce only healthy, normal children.

The goal of the Tag Day is to raise funds for a statewide screening program to begin this year.

Anyone wishing to contribute toward establishing this screening program should send donations to: Tay-Sachs Foundation of New England, P. O. Box 295, Needham, Mass. 02194.

BEVERLY STONE AND PAUL B. ASH

straight and short and around the neck a skinny but elegant scarf in black mink.

Do you knit? Then it's time to get busy with your knitting needles because the new super-long sweater jacket looks all the better when it appears to be handmade. After you've completed your sweater, rummage through your closet or a second hand thrift store for a fur collar that is still presentable. Have the collar cleaned and glazed and then slipstitch it onto your sweater, and there you are with Parisian chic at a down-to-earth price.

Evening sweaters will be called party sweaters. Little expensive cashmeres, mohairs in cardigan fashions, wrap and pullover styles. Lurex or sequin-trimmed sweaters will be favored for holiday evenings. These sweaters will be teamed with lovely long skirts in solids, prints or luxurious velvets sprinkled with multi-color paillettes.

A new body-shaping direction is showing up in sweater silhouettes--in waist-defining rib insets on long cardigans, in deep hip-hugging ribs on pullovers, and in fanny-cupping clinging jackets.

Mama Cass silhouettes and sweaters don't click. Long narrow knitted fashions look best on slender figures and even these gals are wearing seamless bras, seamless body stockings and the new fanny sweater girdles which mold through the midriff as well as the derriere.

Sweater girls who want to "make it" a la Lana Turner at the drugstore fountain, had better sip diet beverages instead of ice cream sodas.

Soccer Talk

(Brian Stewart, recording secretary of the American Soccer League, is pinch-hitting for vacationing Paul Eldredge.)

When sports fans talk of soccer, the question always arises as to whether or not the game will ever become a major sport in the United States and ever draw the 100,000 plus crowds it draws in another 147 nations of the world.

For the men and women who are responsible for running the American Soccer League there is no doubt as to the answer to this question.

Now in its 40th year of promoting and staging professional soccer, the American Soccer League is growing in leaps and bounds, and is fast establishing a reputation for being the league which can do a good job, put on a good game, and demand respect for the great part it plays towards establishing the game as a major sports attraction. The next obvious comment would have to be that why should not this be so with 40 years experience?

When we realize that most of this took place only during the last four years, the effort becomes an astonishing accomplishment.

Until 1969 when the American Soccer League switched from the fall through spring season, as played throughout the rest of the world, to an "American" summer season much of the league's activities were unknown even to soccer fans, outside of the New York area, and certainly to sports fans across the country.

With new franchises waiting in the wings, the American Soccer League has grown from being a local league centered around New York City to include teams as far north as Boston and Syracuse, as far south as Baltimore and Delaware; and as far west as Cincinnati and Detroit.

From 1933 to 1969 local ethnic clubs such as the Kearney Scots, Newark Portugese, Philadelphia Ukranians, and Roma Sports Club supported and financed teams made up of their sons who they had either brought over from the "Old Country" or brought up in the ethnic environment.

Teams such as Brooklyn-Galicia with scoring ace Joe Gaetjens (who incidentally scored the goal which put England out of the World Cup Competition in 1950) made headlines only in the local foreign language press.

Today we find teams such as the Cincinnati Comets, Boston Astros, and Connecticut Wildcats with locally born and raised Benny Brewster (who again incidentally is head coach of the Boston College soccer team) making headlines, not only in their local papers but also in The New York Times and Chicago Tribune.

Some fans understandably tend to confuse the American Soccer League with its counterpart, the North American Soccer League.

They are two distinctly different organizations, just as the American Basketball Association and National Basketball Association, just as the American Football League and National Football League used to be.

The North American League has been in existence only a few years and does not as yet have the traditional background and reputation for youth development programs as sponsored by the American Soccer League.

In any event, the surge is on, the surge toward establishing the sport of soccer as an American game which can spark the imagination and tap the talent of the American youth and excite the sports fan who pays his few dollars to see a fast moving fast action sports show.

The surge is being led by the American Soccer League on the professional level and by such fine amateur organizations as the Massachusetts Soccer Association which fields more than 40 teams every Sunday during a fall-spring season.

Also let us not forget the local B.A.Y.S. (Boston Area Youth Soccer League), which for me, is one of the greatest success stories in soccer ever told. From just nine teams five years ago, they have grown to field over 100 teams for the '73 season with over 2,000 boys playing their hearts out.

Forgive my candid "schmaltz" but God Bless America and its Soccer League.

Consumers Dissatisfied With Car Warranty

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — One of the things that puzzles those shopping for a new family car is the matter of warranty.

Most owners don't read it and don't know how good—or bad—it is until they have problems with the automobile.

Even if the car is repaired, the owners often are less than completely happy with the hassle they had to go through.

A recent survey by a Boston College marketing class of 609 new car owners in the Boston metropolitan area found 22 per cent of the owners who used the warranty were not satisfied with it. The one bright spot was American Motors' 101-word "Buyer Protection Plan."

While AMC didn't get a 100 per cent rating by the owners of its cars, it fared much better than its bigger competitors. While not perfect, AMC's warranty at least is setting an example the rest of the industry might imitate, concluded Dr. John Hasenjaeger, assistant professor of marketing at Boston College.

A warranty is supposed to assure the purchaser of a new automobile that defects in the car will be repaired within a specified time. But the consumer complaint logs attest to the fact that auto warranties have fallen far short of being an assurance of minimum level of customer satisfaction.

The Federal Trade Commission has proposed a "Quality Control Act" to assure customers receive cars without defects and there are proposals to license mechanics.

Remedy Needed

That some remedy is needed is pointed out by the statistics gathered in the Boston College survey. There are, perhaps, more accurate reflections of consumer attitudes gathered in more scientific studies, but the survey does point out general problems.

Just over half of the 609 drivers surveyed did have to use their warranty coverage. Of these people, almost one-third had trouble with the warranty work that was performed and had to seek further remedies.

Of all those who did have warranty work performed, 73 per cent eventually did get the problems resolved satisfactorily, Approximately 12 per cent could not settle their problems with the dealership and had to go up the ladder to the zone office, directly to the manufacturer or use the company hot line.

In terms of overall customer satisfaction, an average of 22 per cent of these new-car owners who used their warranties said that based on their experience, they were definitely not satisfied with the performance of their new car warranty.

That's about one of every 10 new car buyers or one million owners unhappy with the service they received. Whether the carmaker was at fault or not, the customer might go for another manufacturer's model when it's time to buy another car.

AMC got the best ratings on its warranty and this probably has helped its sales.

In its most basic form, the AMC warranty says that if anything goes wrong and it's AMC's fault, it will be fixed.

"The failure of warranties," the professor said, "to set forth in clear and understandable language the nature and extent of the consumer's rights is too common a practice which must eventually cease."

Walking: Best Exercise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Gerald Robin wants to see Americans adopt an ancient, forgotten means of transportation—it's called walking.

Dr. Robin, a Chevy Chase, Md., podiatrist, attending the 61st Annual meeting of the American Podiatry Association, said of walking:

"It's one of the best—if not the best—exercises for the entire body, and a perfect way to work off the tensions of the day."

He went on to give examples of great walkers in history, saying: "Beethoven composed best while walking after eating. Goethe walked a lot. Einstein puzzled out many secrets of the universe on his walks around Princeton. Mark Twain was a pacer."

The villain of the podiatrist's piece was the automobile, about which he said: "We are spoiled by the automobile. People who live close to their offices drive to work. This adds to pollution and congestion. It robs us of good exercise, and the opportunity to burn off a few excess calories."

He cited statistics that say the average American takes about 8,000 steps daily and added, "If most of us weren't carrying around excess weight, we might feel like walking a bit more."

The Rookie

It's a long climb to the majors but this kid may make it. He's got the hat and he's got the glove, but, mostly, baseball's got him. He was watching his older peers in a recent game.

Goodwill Industries In Need Of Materials

Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries badly need all the material you don't. Summer vacation months result in a decrease in donations to Goodwill because many people are away from home. It takes three thousand bags of clothing a day to keep the hundreds of handicapped workers at Goodwill busy.

Morgan Memorial needs all types of material: clothing, furniture, rugs, curtains, linens, appliances, sporting goods, books, antiques, wares, jewelry, etc. At Goodwill, handicapped workers receive work evaluation, job training, and transitional employment cleaning and refurbishing the donated materials. They receive training in many areas, including automobile repair. Your donations help workers learn skills they can use to get jobs in outside industry.

After the goods are refurbished, they are sold in Goodwill Thrift Stores. Sales dollars pay workers' wages. The stores also enable people to buy good used or new merchandise at low prices.

When you donate to Morgan Memorial, you benefit yourself and the handicapped workers at Goodwill. Not only do the workers receive training and wages, but you recycle your unwanted goods and receive a tax deduction for it, too.

Drop your donation in a convenient Goodwill Collection Box or call Morgan Memorial for a truck pick-up.

Preventive Measures Can Reduce Loss Of Sight

Though preventive medicine has only come to the fore in recent years as the practical solution to many of our health problems, the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness holds the unique position of recognizing and promoting the concept from the early 1900's.

"Even then," says Virginia S. Boyce, executive director of the society, "we realized prevention was the only workable way to eliminate so much of the blindness that occurred. In many other instances, treating the existing condition is an acceptable, and in some cases the only solution. But once blindness exists, most times there simply is no cure."

The society, now celebrating its 65th anniversary, is the only voluntary health agency nationally engaged in preventing blindness and promoting good eye health and safety practices. It serves the country through the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness and 22 other state affiliates.

Propelling the society is the fact that of the 44,000 Americans who will go blind this year—half will lose their sight needlessly, despite present knowledge and means available to prevent it.

To reduce this grim statistic calls for extensive community involvement. Thousands of volunteers, working directly for the society and through supporting service organizations, implement the many service programs aimed at detecting vision problems and potentially-blinding diseases.

The focus is on:

Cataract—the nation's leading cause of blindness—yet, ironically, one of the few exceptions to the "Finality" of vision loss. Though fear, ignorance and neglect often present roadblocks, cataract is curable by surgery in 95 out of 100 operable cases.

Glaucoma—a slow, usually painless destroyer of sight, and the second leading cause of blindness in the country. Glaucoma screenings—for adults age 35 and over—are aimed at detecting the disease in its early stages, when further vision loss can be prevented.

Preschool vision screenings—for the 16 million youngsters in the country, age three to six. Some 800,000 of them are suspected of having vision problems which, if not corrected, can seriously hamper development and schooling. Community vision screenings, use of the Home Eye Test by parents, and encouragement of early, professional eye examinations are aimed at this group.

Industrial eye injuries—1,000 of which are sustained by employees every working day of the year. Nationally, through an educational campaign, and locally, through the Wise Owl safety incentive program in corporations and schools, use of protective eyewear on-the-job is advocated.

The continuing effort, according to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness, must be to make people aware of the need to prevent blindness, through community programs, strong public education, and support for research. And ultimately, by reaching the individual, on a one-to-one basis, so that he will be concerned, personally.

Book Review

A PORTION FOR FOXES
By June McIlvaine McClary
POPULAR LIBRARY

By HILLEL STAVIS

"A Portion For Foxes" is for the reader who devoured "Penmarric" and devoutly hopes that something as good as "Gone With The Wind" would come down the pike.

But "A Portion For Foxes" does not quite measure up to "Gone With The Wind" in several ways. It is a mere 638 pages, not 1037. The south of the early 1960's does not lend itself to the same picturesque drama as did the Civil War. A civil rights demonstration pales beside the tableau of the burning of Atlanta. And Shelly Latimer, aristocratic and headstrong though she be, lacks the chutzpah of Scarlet O'Hara.

But for devotees of romantic escape fiction, "A Portion For Foxes" will do quite nicely. It's the perfect book to read in a hammock while some devoted family retainer supplies you with mint juleps.

There's a latter-day Rhett Butler, a dark, handsome, fabulously wealthy interloper who wants to turn the fox hunt country into shopping centers and garden apartment complexes.

There's a latter-day Melanie Wilkes, Shelly's cousin Missy, who owns the local newspaper and who tries, along with Shelly's husband Mike, to bring fox hunt country in line with the Supreme Court.

Above all, there's the ever-romatic South, land of big houses, decadent local gentry (nothing kinky like Faulkner, you understand), magnolias, and foxhunts.

It's an airtight little world where little else matters besides foxhunts, bloodlines of horses and humans, and the Southern Way of Life—a way of life threatened by the civil rights movement and real estate developers.

Shelly, whose major passions seem to be the Hunt and the Horse, is torn between her desire to hold on to whatever is left of the Southern Way and her husband's commitment to integration — a belief that doesn't make him popular with the membership of the local hunt club.

Then there's the mysterious Zagaran, with his arrogant smouldering glances and all that Yankee money. Will Shelly desert her husband, the decent fighting liberal newspaper editor, for Zagaran, that blackguard who bought his way into the Hunt? Who is Zagaran anyhow? Will Shelly's horse win the Hunt Cup Race? Will the lunch counters be integrated without bloodshed?

Authoress McClary is to be congratulated for attempting to introduce some of the realities of the southern landscape into her novel of horses, hunts, and Fine Old Families on the skids. Her handling of racism is a less searing indictment of the south than, say, "Black Like Me". But for us summer escapists lounging in our hammocks or sunning ourselves on the back porch, and looking for a good story with plenty of romance and an elegant atmosphere, Ms. McClary provides plenty of that in "A Portion For Foxes."

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

A polite introduction to the lowly barnacle is the best way I know of to start teaching children to appreciate the wonders of the sea. I live near the ocean, and when small inland visitors come, they never fail to be fascinated by the barnacle.

It's easy to find a barnacle, even for people from the Great Plains. If you go walking barefoot on any rocky shore at low tide, or when the tide is halfway out, you will soon cut your feet upon a mass of sharp white and grayish objects just above the line of seaweed.

If you will examine closely the objects on which you just cut your feet, you will discover vast mountain ranges of tiny volcanoes. When the tide is out, most of the volcanoes are tightly closed. But some are wide open at the top, and empty . . . the shells of dead barnacles.

The closed ones contain a little living creature, who after floating about in the ocean for three months as a larva finds himself an inviting rock or pier or even a mussel shell and cements himself to it, head down, secreting a sharp, hard protective little hill around himself for safety.

Some species of barnacles cement themselves to whales exclusively, and some will accept no home except a sea turtle or a shark. However, having never examined a barnacle upon a shark, I can't say much about them.

The barnacle that lives upon rocks closes himself tightly when the tide is out, so he will not get too dry. When the tide comes in, however, it's time for dinner. The barnacle swings open his small top door, sticks out his six feathery little feet, and starts kicking the food into his mouth. The tide has brought in a delicious meal of plankton . . . small animals and plants, so tiny one can't see them without a microscope, but not too small to be filtered out by a hungry barnacle.

So once you have found the barnacles, you and the children must get down to a spot where the sea water covers the barnacles. On your hands and knees, you must lean down and look closely and carefully at the submerged volcanoes until you focus in upon a happy barnacle enthusiastically waving his feet. Soon you will gradually see dozens and hundreds of little feet moving gracefully in the ocean.

Then, as you look into the water you will see black mussels . . . tiny periwinkles . . . perhaps a little sea urchin or a starfish . . . maybe the tiny flower of a sea anemone . . . for once you have accustomed your large eyes to looking at the tiny dimensions of a barnacle at the dinner table, all the rest of this small world will come alive for you and your children

Drum And Bugle Corps Championship On Sept. 2

Hundreds of marching teenagers vie for titles in the 23rd annual Drumerama championship round of the Eastern Mass. Jr. Drum & Bugle Corps Association, September 2, at Somerville's Dilboy Field.

Eighteen drum corps, drill teams and bands are entered in this season finale. Each group qualified on credits for performances during regular summer-long competition.

There are some questionable starters who will not be known until after the last circuit show.

Definite starters, however, in Class-C are the defending champion Beverly Crusaders, Comets of Salem and Elks Trojans of Nashua, N.H. Fourth and last spot will be claimed by the Crusader Jrs. of Wilmington, Holy Family Jrs. of Rockland, Militiamen of Bedford or Dukes Jrs. of Marlboro.

To appear in Class A-2 are the Jean-ettes of Lynn, Kingsmen of Fitchburg, Holy Family Defenders of Rockland with a tossup between the Suburban Sharpshooters of Framingham and Annunciators of Somerville for the remaining opening.

St. Patrick's Shamrocks of Stoneham in seeking to repeat in the drill team sector must overcome St. Therese and St. Anthony, both from Everett.

The Royal Jades of Hudson are looking for their second consecutive win in the band division. Opponents are St. Anthony of Revere and St. Ann of Neponset.

Class A-1 has the Cardinals of Wilmington pitted against the Reveries of Revere and Dukes of Marlboro. In the running for the fourth slot are the Valley-Airs of Northbridge and Spartans of Nashua, N.H.

A noon starting time, September 2, will be changed, in the event of inclement weather and a postponement, to 1 p.m. September 3.

Junior State House Guides Are Honored At Luncheon

By the end of August over 14,000 tourists will have been given guided tours of the Massachusetts State House by the Junior Guides of the Doric Dames, Mrs. Dominic Mele of Roslindale, chairman for the Juniors, announced this week.

Forty-three young people recruited from Greater Boston schools were given a special citation by Governor Sargent at 11 a.m. on Thursday, August 23, for their work as volunteer guides. Later the group was feted at a luncheon at the Parker House, given by the Doric Dames as a thank you gesture for the Juniors' work over the past two months.

Six hundred and five tours had been conducted by the Doric Dame Juniors by Aug. 17. In the 1700 hours they have given to date, the Juniors have not only given tours, but have answered questions, passed out information on the State House and given directions to tourists coming to Doric Hall. Many of the Juniors are giving their second summer to this work.

Other local members on the committee were: Miss Alice Pasek of Roslindale and Mrs. Robert Hancock of Canton.

The Junior Guides have developed great enthusiasm for the program and many have gained poise and self-confidence in their experiences of meeting people from all over the world. Some have used the languages they have learned at home or in school to make a group of Spanish or Italian speaking tourists understand particular points. Many learn to recognize State officials and Legislators by name and all have learned both American history and Legislative procedures in a new light by helping to bring these subjects to life as they conduct their tours.

Local guides honored were: Siobhan Abruzzese, Marybeth Crowley, Sandra Hale and Dawn and Dorian Pedalino, all of West Roxbury; and Debra D'Amato of Jamaica Plain.

Local hostesses at the tables for luncheon were Mrs. C. Charles Marran of Waban and Mrs. Maudyea Campbell of Newtonville.

Richard Chase Had To Be Accepted By I.R.A. Terrorists To Film 'No Go'

cinema updated

by Marjory Adams

Born of Lithuanian parents who emigrated to Worcester, Mass., brought up in California where he wrote for newspapers and helped make commercial films, 27-year-old Richard Chase seems an unusual person to bring to the screen the first authentic picture of Green Power.

Writer and producer of "No Go," which had its world premiere in Boston for the benefit of Irish political prisoners, Chase spent many creative hours in a London pub discussing the story with a British journalist, Richard Trench, who covered war problems in Northern Ireland and who maintained a constant communication with the pursued leaders of the Irish Republican Army.

The result is "No Go," named for the signs which marked the barricades erected by the men of Bogside and Creggan to keep out police and soldiers.

It is a historical document," said Chase quite truthfully and with no attempt at pressagentry. "The events in the film will never happen again in this world."

By that he meant, in part, that the three men whose stories are briefly told, are all marked for life imprisonment or execution. These I.R.A. members, Tommy McCourt, Peter Collins (whose father and grandfather were I.R.A. fighters) and Johnny White, tell their stories before the cameras.

It's an amazing situation that Chase, without Irish blood, could have become so accepted and trusted by these so-called "terrorists," whose methods sometimes seem brutal and who shoot off a man's kneecap for any betrayal of the cause.

There is one scene, authenticated, when a new member of the group has a pistol thrust into his hand and is told to shoot his best friend for disloyalty. He shoots —but it is a test. There are no bullets in the gun.

Chase admits he would find this test something which he might have failed. "But they don't do this any more," he declares.

Chase is a tall, enthusiastic, sometimes surprisingly impartial viewer of the events which he photographed, and yet there is no doubt where his sympathies lie.

But he sees there are other viewpoints, and in his film are scenes in which priests of both the Church of England and the Roman Catholic Church warn their congregations against violence and hatred. Perhaps these scenes stamp the pictures as legitimate rather than propaganda.

He even chooses two working sisters to discuss matters over their evening tea – women who are good, quiet people yet who are gradually won over to the I.R.A. ideas despite themselves.

Was Chase frightened when he held his first conference with the I.R.A. men who could say no go to him early in the game?

"Yes, I realized that everybody else had been turned down but even with Trench I felt that the avenues of negotiation could be blocked. I had to earn trust..

"I knew, as they did also, that this great romantic working-class experiment called 'Free Londonderry' was doomed to failure. But this picture would tell the story, not through politics or polemics, but through intimacy with the men responsible for the 1971 fight to free the interned militant Catholics who had become I.R.A. members.

"I went to a party with the men who would make the decision. I got drunk. And they said next day, 'Okay.' When you come back we will help you make the film.

"I returned in June and by that time Trench had the script ready for me. By this time, I was determined not to let the picture go down the drain. Since it couldn't be made ever again this had to be the time. And of all the scenes in the picture, only one was re-created. That was the close-up of the British tank. And only one actor appears in the film. The rest are actual participants or residents of Bogside."

A cloak and dagger policy had to be followed in smuggling out the film as it was photographed from Northern Ireland to Hollywood for processing.

The I.R.A. men themselves did not ask to see the "dailies" nor did they attempt to exercise control over the content. They did not look at the print nor discuss the cutting.

The unexposed film was shipped as news film, which much of it was, but it would have been considered dangerous had the North of Ireland police seen it.

An English recording company, Island Records, made the largest contribution toward the $200,000 budget in return for the soundtrack rights and later it will release the "folk-music written and sung by the people who pulled the trigger.

When "No Go" is released to the theatres of the world there will be the following message from Chase: "This film was unrehearsed and shot totally behind the barricades. It's prejudiced. It's biased, It's personal. And it's the truth.

That Ireland needs help in many ways is proved, according to Chase, by its present economic woes.

"It is the only country in western Europe with a declining population," he said. "Young people feel the economic situation is hard on them and for this reason they leave."

The one scene Chase feels bad about is the one supposed to take place in Military Headquarters. This had to be fictionalized, but it was useful to show the skirmish plans against the I.R.A. forces.

Even here Chase is impartial. The British accents, the attitudes and manners, are as honest as those photographed in the heart of Bogside and Creggan, Free Derry.

Cinema Review: Oklahoma Crude

OKLAHOMA CRUDE was inspired by the oil melodramas in which Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy made boxoffice records in the heyday of M-G-M's preeminence.

But in the place of Tracy director Stanley Kramer has put George C. Scott as the tough-talking hobo wildcatter. That Scott is one of the best actors in Hollywood is generally acknowledged, but the emergence of Faye Dunaway as an actress of outstanding talent, who can hold the center of the screen impressively against her co-star and also can show scene-stealing propensities even when she is working with that great veteran, John Mills, indicates that you can't shrug off the picture.

In stepping up some of the violence Kramer has gone a long way from his biggest success, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?"

There is one scene in which the female wild-catter, who refuses to give up her project to the oil trust, is punched, beaten and kicked by a quartet of plug-uglies at the order of villainous Jack Palance. She is left half way dead in the mud, along with Scott.

Maybe it's women's lib stuff- a woman has the right to be battered and mauled as well as the males against whom she competes. Throughout the film Dunaway casts on all men an eye filled with hatred and ferocity.

Romance and sentiment is entirely lacking--that' Kramer's bow to the younge generation. An old-time follower of the Gable-Trac days, as I am, may wish for different ending.

'NO GO' STARS — Tommy McCourt, left, and Peter Collins, are actual I.R.A. leaders now on the run but who took part in recently-released 'No Go'.

Tired Of Urban Look? Hit The Greenways!

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — "People want to get away from that manicured, urban look...

"And it's just that urge that has led to the newest trend in recreational land development," says Richard Selleg of Selleg, Stevens, Peterson & Flock, Inc., St. Charles, Ill., landscape architect.

"Increasingly," says Selleg, "city folks and suburbanites are being introduced to 'greenways'—open trails of undeveloped land—near the lots they choose for their weekend, holiday and vacation retreats."

Greenways, he explains, are an extension of the "greenbelt" concept, which provides for a belt of parks or farmlands around a community—an idea which bloomed in 19th century Europe where "garden cities" were built, girdled with land, grass, flowers and trees, called the "lungs of the city" by Sir Ebenezer Howard, founder of the movement in England.

First adopted in the United States in Radburn, Fair Lawn, N.J., in the late 1920s, the open space concept has come into its own of late as cities encroach on suburbs and suburbs on the countryside, as open land is gobbled up by industry and highways and homes, and as, finally, people have begun to concern themselves with their environment.

As available land in the areas where people must live grows more scarce, its value increases—not only as a place to build a house, but for the land itself—for the open space, grass, trees and shrubs, the air, the solitude it offers.

The walks, parks and greenbelts of an open-space community give it a country-like atmosphere.

Greenways carry the idea a step further, says Selleg. A greenway is open, undeveloped land that winds among properties in a community, instead of just encircling it, keeping recreational, or second home communities, from developing into carbon copies of the everyday communities in which people have their primary homes.

The land planner helped the Branigar Organization of Oak Brook, Ill., develop the concept seven years ago at Apple Canyon Lake near Galena, Ill. "Before Apple Canyon," he says, "a recreation community was thought of as a big playground. Most of the land that wasn't sold as building lots was given over to tennis courts, golf courses and swimming pools. If people wanted to hike, picnic or go bike-riding, they headed for the nearest park or forest preserve.

"To make it convenient for these nature lovers, some developers located their projects near public parkland. But the supply of land adjacent to parks is dwindling. It is prime land. So companies like Branigar are creating open spaces and parkland within their communities."

Other Locations

Branigar has since used the concept in The Windings of Ferson Creek, near St. Charles, Ill., where 37 of 250 acres have been left as open space, and at The Galena Territory near Galena, Ill. When completed, about a quarter of its 6,200 acres will be greenways, Selleg said. Branigar's Dutch Hollow Lake in the Wisconsin Dells area reserves 610 acres of the total 2,500 for greenways. They form 35 miles of open trails among the properties and along the lake, and about 85 per cent of the shoreline is open, Selleg said.

Greenways, Selleg says, make a community's amenities more usable. Open trails allow people to walk to beaches, tennis courts, clubhouse and other recreational areas. "You don't have to jump into your car or hike down a dusty road to get to the lake."

Greenways are used for picknicking, horseback riding, snowmobiling, skiing—and just plain walking. For many adults, walking is a pleasurable recreation. If they are not golfers, it may be their only exercise during seasons when a swimming pool or tennis courts are not available.

"People want to get away from that manicured urban look," Selleg said. "Put in lawns and you have to use fertilizer, which leads to pollution as rain washes it into the lake. Many recreational developments lead to lake pollution, and visual pollution, because the land is over-developed and crowded."

Some developers see greenways as a waste of land that could be sold as lots, Selleg said. However, he says, developing rough terrain is very costly for the developer and the homebuilder so, actually, it's wise to leave these areas untouched. "Open space and good planning are features that might cause a developer to take a second look at property he might otherwise turn down."

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

WILTING CUCUMBERS: If your cucumber vines were nice and green, but suddenly turned yellow and wilted, you can blame this on bacterial wilt, a disease spread by the striped cucumber beetles. The vines start to bear nicely, then suddenly just wilt and die.

The striped cucumber beetle carries the bacteria in its body and infects the cucumber plants during its feeding. Sevin is an excellent material for using on your cucumber vines, but don't use it on cucumbers during periods of high humidity as it may cause some burning on young plants.

SWEDISH IVY: A relatively new ivy plant that's gaining in popularity is the Swedish ivy or Plectranthus. It's a large family and a friend of mine, Gladys Reed Robinson has one of the best collections.

There are over 120 species of Swedish Ivy native not to Sweden, but subtropical lands of Asia, Africa and Polynesia. In some areas species of Plectranthus are used as food among the natives since the vines are rich in starch.

P. australis is a good item for hanging baskets because of its trailing habit. Swedish Ivy makes a fine plant for the small apartment dweller, also. They like the same care that coleus likes, freedom from direct sun. 72 degs. F., a well-drained soil (one part each of sand, peat and loam).

Direct sun turns leaves to a displeasing yellow. Another good feature about Plectranthus is their freedom from plant lice and disease.

Kehillath Jacob Institute Inaugurates Second Year

The Kehillath Jacob Institute of Religious and Social Studies begins its second year of lectures, courses and discussion groups in September.

The community forum lectures meet on the first and third Wednesday of each month from 8 until 10 p.m. The fall semester's lectures, from Sept. 19 through Dec. 19, will focus on two broad themes.

"Law, Society and the Individual" will be the theme of the opening lectures. Arthur Miller will begin the series on Sept. 19 with a discussion of "Privacy." Professor Miller is on the faculty of Harvard Law School and the author of "Assault on Privacy."

Lawrence Pickard, director of News and Public Affairs for WCVB, Channel 5, will speak on "News and Censorship" on Oct. 3, followed by Ithiel de Sola Pool, political scientiest and director of research for MIT's "Programs of Communication," speaking on "Communication and Society" on Oct. 24.

The second theme of the fall lectures will be "Man and His Environment," covering subjects as diverse as the impact of environmentalism, nuclear fuels, and the effects of the weather.

All lectures are followed by open, often heated discussion.

Curriculum offerings of the Kehillath Jacob Institute include both courses taught by qualified instructors and independent study groups. These meet at 8 p.m. on the second and fourth Wednesday of each month, beginning Sept. 12.

Two new courses are offered this year. A seminar titled "Economic Policies and Business Practices in the Light of American Experience and the Ideals of the Torah" will be of particular interest to businessmen who are concerned with ethical dilemmas and problems related to labor, profit-making and societal issues.

"Political and Social Activism: The Prophetic Tradition" will provide participants with an opportunity to explore and question how new life styles may relate to the messianic tradition.

Several of last year's popular courses will be repeated, including Hebrew I, II and III; Human Development I and II; the Bible; Jewish History I and II.

Two independent study groups have been planned. "The Future of the Jewish Community in America" will work from the Task Force Report of the American Jewish Committee. "Literary Themes of American Jewish Authors" will discuss themes such as alienation, isolation, sexual mores and family relationships as treated by contemporary Jewish novelists.

The Kehillath Jacob Institute is an independent educational institute open to anyone who wishes to join. Policy and programs are planned by its members. All who enroll for the community forum are members.

Registration for the fall semester may be mailed to the Kehillath Jacob Institute, 858 Walnut St., Newton Centre, Mass., 02159. Please send your name, address and telephone number and indicate your choice of program with your check.

The fee schedule is: community forum - $15 per person; community forum plus independent study group - $15 (indicate choice); community forum plus course - $25 (indicate choice); students - no fee.

Registration will also be accepted on Wednesdays from 7:30 p.m. at the Kehillath Jacob.

For brochures and further information, call Ms. Joyce Hollman, 527-3030.

Jewish Education Group Chooses Newman As Head

Louis Newman, for the past ten years director of the Melton Research Center of the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York, has been appointed Executive Director of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Boston.

The announcement was made this week by Sol Kaufman, president of the Bureau, and Dr. Irwin L. Lebow, chairman of the Bureau's Personnel Committee.

He succeeds Dr. Benjamin J. Shevach, who is retiring after 27 years of service as the Bureau's Executive Director.

While at the Melton Research Center, Newman authored and supervised the creation of books for learning and teaching in the religious school. He organized and taught courses for the use of these materials in the Teachers Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, as well as in in-service training courses for teachers throughout the country.

He also taught educational philosophy and methods of teaching and served as visiting professor at the Fordham Graduate School of Education.

Prior to his directorship with the Melton Research Center, Newman served as principal of the Akiba Hebrew Academy of Philadelphia for twelve years. Akiba is a unique community-sponsored junior and senior day school offering an intensive Jewish and general studies program. The Academy brings together students of all Jewish family backgrounds for the study of Judaica in an open-ended intellectual environment.

Earlier in his career, Newman served as instructor of educational psychology at the Herzliah Teachers Institute of New York City and as a demonstration teacher for the Teachers Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

For several summers, Newman was director at various Ramah Camps and of the Ramah counsellor-training program.

Newman received his early Jewish education at the Rabbi Jacob Joseph School of New York City, and the Talmudical Academy of Yeshiva University. He graduated from the Herzliah Teachers Institute, and received his M.A. from Columbia University's Teachers College, where he continued his studies in philosophy and psychology.

Newman's wife, Shirley, is also widely known as an educator and as an author of several books including "A Child's Introduction to the Torah," a students' book on "Exodus" and a forthcoming manual for teaching Midrash.

Residents of Newton Centre, the Newmans have three children. The oldest, Mordecai, is a student at Yale Drama School. A daughter, Miriam, is a senior at Barnard, while the third, Hillel, is enrolled at Maimonides School in Brookline.

Dr. Paul T. Heffron of Alexandria, Va. gave his niece in marriage. She wore a gown of white organza fashioned with a fitted bodice appliqued with Alencon lace, long bell sleeves and chapel train. A matching camelot cap held her waist length veil of French silk illusion.

Carol A. Heffron was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Jane F. Heffron, Miss JoAnne P. Wilker, Mrs. John Nelon and Miss Martha A. Smith. They wore violet print gowns with matching picture hats.

Patrick Forde served his brother as best man. Ushers were Buzzi McDavitt, John Tonra, George Fraser and Kevin Sullivan.

After a wedding trip to Quebec and Montreal, the newlyweds are residing in West Roxbury.

The bride, a graduate of Mt. Trinity Academy and Cardinal Cushing College, is employed as a secretary at Keystone Custodian Funds, Boston. Her husband holds a bachelor of science and master of business administration degrees from Boston State College. He is employed by the Brockton School System. (Westwood photo)

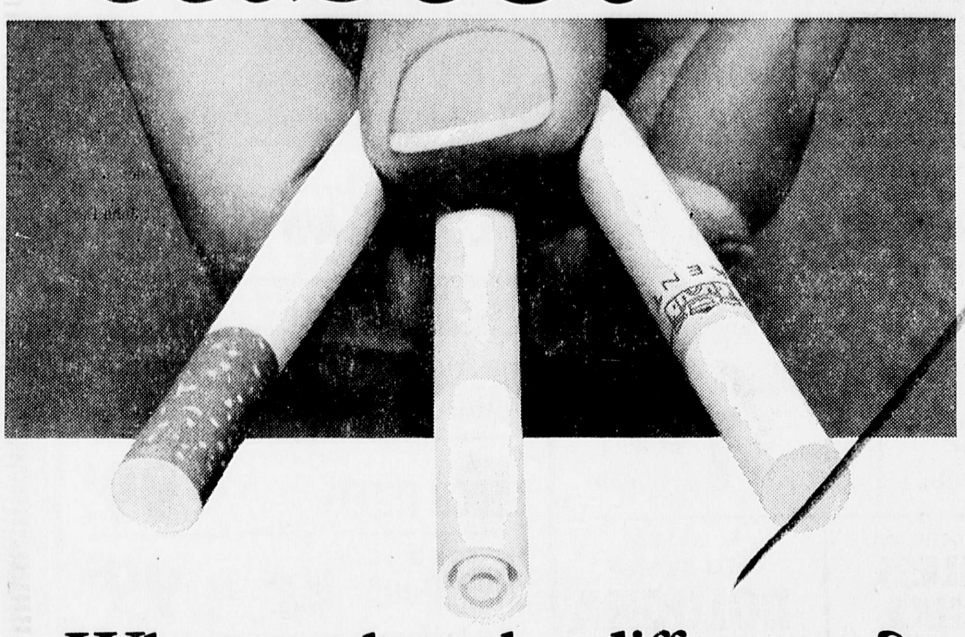
Harsh, blah or smooth taste.

© Lorillard 1973



What makes the difference?

Generally, two things make your cigarette taste the way it does.

The tobacco and the filter.

The tobacco gives it taste. The filter smooths it out.

And often, the difference between harsh, blah and smooth tasting cigarettes can be traced to their filters.

The beauty of the Kent Micronite filter is the way it smooths the quality tobaccos we use in Kent. Not too much, so that the taste turns blah. Or too little, so that the taste turns harsh.

It's done with a special process (so special it's patented) by which the Micronite filter actually chooses which tastes to hold back and which to let pass.

What it lets pass is the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Mild, smooth taste. Micronite filter.
Kent. America's quality cigarette.

King Size or Deluxe 100's.

Kings: 17 mg. "tar," 1.1 mg. nicotine; 100's: 19 mg. "tar," 1.3 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Feb. '73.

Information Please by Ruth Lenson

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I've been dieting for some time now, with very good results, and I would like a recipe for a fruit compote that would be considered low calorie. It's eating fresh fruit during the summer months that wrecks my careful dieting and so I must be careful. Thank you very much. Mrs. F. H., W. Roxbury

Answer: Hooray for you! We commend you for your success in dieting and wouldn't dream of upsetting the apple cart (as it were). Here is a delightful fruit compote, 6 servings and only 68 calories per serving.

LOW CALORIE FRESH FRUIT COMPOTE

3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup water
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup diced fresh cantaloupe
1 cup fresh sliced peaches
1 cup fresh blueberries
½ cup seedless green grapes
Fresh mint leaves

Mix sugar and water in a small saucepan. Bring to boiling point. Boil for ½ minute. Remove from heat and add lemon juice. Cool and stir in vanilla. Combine fruit in bowl; add sugar syrup. Chill. Serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with fresh mint leaves. Makes 6 servings, 68 calories per serving.

As usual, we are most appreciative when readers share their favorite recipes. The following is from Mrs. I. P., who writes that because of the outrageous food prices she has developed two rice recipes she would like printed in this column. Rice lovers are sure to enjoy them. . .those who aren't will be convinced that plain or fancy rice is nice!

CORAL RICE

3 slices bacon, diced
1 cup catsup
2 tablespoons dairy sour cream
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom pieces, drained
1¼ teaspoons salt
One-third cup finely chopped toasted almonds
Two-thirds cup halved, pitted ripe olives
3 cups cooked rice

Cook bacon in large skillet until crisp. Blend in catsup, sour cream, mushroom pieces, almonds and salt. Cover and cook over low heat for 8 minutes. Stir in olives and rice and heat. Garnish with slivered almonds. Makes 6 servings.

ALMOND FRIED RICE

½ cup sliced green onions, including tops
3 tablespoons toasted slivered almonds
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup cold cooked rice
1 egg, well beaten
2 teaspoons Worcestershire

In skillet, cook onion and almonds in butter until onion is tender. Add rice and heat thoroughly, stirring constantly. Combine egg and Worcestershire sauce and add to rice. Stir lightly with a fork until egg is set. Mixture should be slightly moist. Immediately press hot rice mixture into one-third cup measure and unmold on plate. Garnish with chopped parsley, if desired. Makes 3 servings.

Question: About two weeks ago my husband, son and I went blueberry picking on the Cape and we have about 14 quarts of luscious berries frozen in the freezer. Would you please publish some blueberry recipes? I follow your columns every week and have enjoyed many new recipes, for which my family and I thank you. K.W.D., Canton

Answer: With such flattery, how can I resist! How wise you were to take advantage of the all too short blueberry season. Here are a few recipes to keep all blueberry happy!

BLUEBERRY BUCKLE

¾ cup sugar
¼ cup vegetable shortening
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1¾ cups all purpose flour
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups fresh blueberries
½ cup sugar
One-third cup flour
½ teaspoon cinamon
¼ cup soft margarine
½ teaspoon salt

Mix sugar, shortening, ½ teaspoon vanilla, eggs and milk until well blended; beat for 1 minute. Add flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg. Beat for 1 minute. Gently fold in blueberries. Spread batter into a greased 9-inch square pan. Combine remaining ingredients and mix until crumbly. Sprinkle crumbs over batter. Question: I am expecting some visitors from England in September and I would like to serve them scones. I've looked through my cookbooks but could not find such a recipe; perhaps you can help me. Mrs. T. E., Needham

Answer; All ready for an English high tea? Here are 3 interesting ideas:

PEANUT SCONES

2 cups unsifted flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup chopped cocktail peanuts
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup milk

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse meal. Mix in cocktail peanuts. Add egg and milk, stirring until dough forms a ball. Knead on floured surface 15 to 20 times. Cut dough in half. Shape each half into a ball; then pat into a circle ½-inch thick and 6-inches in diameter. Cut each circle into 8 wedges. Place wedges on ungreased baking sheet. Do not let sides touch. Bake at 425 degrees 12 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes 16 scones.

PEANUT-RAISIN PINWHEELS

2 pkgs. (3 oz. ea.) cream cheese, softened
6 tablespoons red currant jelly
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ cup finely chopped cocktail peanuts
¼ cup halved raisins
1 loaf unsliced white bread

In small bowl beat cream cheese on low speed for 1 minute. Add jelly and ginger and beat on low speed until mixture is thoroughly blended, about 2 minutes. Blend in peanuts and raisins. Trim crust from bread. Cut loaf into 6 horizontal slices. Flatten one slice slightly with rolling pin. Spread with one-sixth of cream cheese mixture. Roll up as for jelly roll starting with short end. Wrap tightly in plastic wrap or wax paper. Repeat with remaining bread and cream cheese mixture. Chill rolls well. When ready to serve, cut into crosswise slices, about ¼-inch thick. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Makes 36 sandwiches.

Wightman Cup Provides Thrills

CHESTNUT HILL—After Chris Evert had discombobulated Great Britain's number one Virginia Wade, America's number two singles player Patti Hogan provided the US with an encouraging second point in the first day of the 50th Anniversary of the birth of the Wightman Cup at Longwood Cricket Club.

Hogan, a slender redhead from California, displayed stunning spins and excellent drop shots to demoralize Veronica Burton and score a 6-3, 6-4 victory.

Burton kept hanging in, but when Hogan showed some of the ire in her Irish background she took over on beautiful combinations of volleys and finesse shots. She ended by getting stronger and utilizing her serve to provide the American girls with a solid advantage entering the second day of play.

LOT OF POTENTIAL

The US had the potential to clinch the best-of-seven points series on Saturday. It would have been possible if the Americans had swept the second two matches.

Linda Tuero is a 22-year-old native of New Orleans and is the prettiest member of either team and the most petite as well. She stands just 5-4 and weighs 118. Glynis Coles appears to be twice as big as Tuero, but one thing she could not do was hit twice as hard.

Coles, 19, looked as paralyzed as a cigar store Indian after the first points of play as the pressure of trying to keep her country's head above water, threatened to overcome her.

But Coles suddenly awoke with a fine volley and it was the more experienced Tuero, the reigning Italian champion, who was on the run. It was doubly surprising because with the heat the slow surface became slower and was the closest thing available to Tuero's favorite surface, clay.

Coles sped to a 4-0 lead in the first set and it looked like Linda was going to cry. It turned out that if she was it was because she was biting her lip so hard with determination because suddenly the momentum shifted.

BIG COMEBACK

The nerves came back to haunt Coles and Tuero kept getting better and better. You could sense the transfusion of confidence across the court. Tuero was leaving open her history of comebacks for the gallery to read. She became more bouncy, and literally a fireplug. From 5-1 Tuero blitzed Coles to win the first set, 7-5.

Linda kept the pressure on heavy right at the start of the second set and as Coles' confidence hung on the ropes, she broke service in game one.

Linda was getting so sure of herself she even rushed the net twice in a row, something which prompted television commentator Bud Collins to remark, "She usually acts like it's a barbed-wire electrified fence."

Glynis rallied briefly in game six, but briefly was it. Tuero piled it on to win the second set 6-2 and give the US a 3-0 lead in Cup play.

"There was a doubt about whether I would play singles," Tuero reported after the match. "But I felt if I did play I would win."

With regard to the playing surface she said, "I like it very much. It's slower than clay. It takes the spin funny. Under spin dies. Top spin takes off."

Non-playing US captain Edy Ann McGoldrick, whose faith in playing Tuero at singles was rewarded said simply, "When she got there she put it all together."

CHRIS IN ACTION

The second match Saturday was a doubles confrontation between Chris Evert and 17-year-old Marita Redondo and England's Wade and Coles. However, because Coles had just completed her singles match the match had to wait an hour before commencing.

Wade, with one of the most powerful serves in women's tennis, and Coles, with a great net game, were worth waiting for. Both played powerful games and complemented each other nicely while Evert and Redondo had troubles deciding whom should hit what. The cohesiveness of the British team told the difference and Coles, with a steadying Wade by her side, took a 6-3 set, Britain's first of the match.

Virginia's powerful, sure shots, though, kept getting rifled right back at her as Evert and Redondo finally figured themselves out. Wade's best efforts whistled back and she got frustrated.

Though not as theatrical Ilie Nastase or Cliff Richey on the men's tour Virginia's displeasure sometimes becomes evident during a match.

"Virginia Wade has one of those great vocabularies under stress," commented Collins. "She really growls out there."

The kids were smoothly together in the second set and they rebounded to take a 6-2 set.

Wade, though, refused to let her temperament get the best of her and though Coles was tiring from her busy afternoon, the inexperience of the teenagers across the net also started to shine through. Wade, 10 years older than any of them, led the way as she and Coles captured the third set 6-4 to notch their country's first point in the championships and keep its hopes alive overnight.

The hopes didn't last very long, though, when in the first match Sunday, Chris Evert chopped Veronica Burton up into little pieces as expected. Chrissie won, 6-3, 6-0, with barely a whimper from Great Britain's number two.

Wade, taken for a ride relatively easily in the opening match by the same Evert, responded by whacking the US' number two, Hogan, 6-2, 6-2, with a blistering serve and near faultless play. Hogan's spins didn't work as effectively against Wade as they had versus Burton.

The final score was 5-2, United States.—LEWIS FREEDMAN

New Devices Aid In Auto Services

By AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

Each year, cars are being designed to give owners and servicemen more information about their operating condition and need for service.

Meters that measure speed and fuel supply, and lights that warn of trouble with oil pressure, generator, coolant temperature and brake system have been in use for some time.

But not all warnings will come from the usual dashboard mounted indicators. Components are being built with self-contained warning devices which indicate when wear has reached a pre-determined limit.

One manufacturer, for example, is producing disc brakes that emit a loud squeal when the brake pad wears beyond safe limits.

In addition to the wear bars on today's tires that become visible when the tread has worn down to the limit of safety, one manufacturer has incorporated strips of white rubber with the bars so excessive wear shows up even more prominently.

Other components are being designed to make easier the mechanic's task of determining excessive wear. One car manufacturer is installing on 1973 model cars ball joints that have a small shoulder protruding from the ball joint face. As the ball joint wears, the shoulder recedes. When it becomes flush or below the face of the ball joint, it is time for replacement.

A parts supplier has developed a device that talks to the car owner, a voice synthesizer that operates as a service monitoring system. When the monitor detects a part that requires service, the voice device is activated and tells the car owner what is needed.

Another company has developed a mini computer that flashes a light to tell the driver when it's time for an oil change or a tune-up. The device is about the size of a cigarette package and keeps track of cranking time in starting the engine, running time of the engine and calendar time.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

As one approaches Odiorne Point on Route 1A just south of Portsmouth, N.H., the first impression is anything but encouraging.

Here perched on the rim of a rocky headland are a few abandoned military buildings cut off from the public by a forbidding chain-link fence. There obviously is little land and since one cannot appreciate the headland view from the road, there seems little to recommend the place.

One hardly would suspect that this summer Odiorne Point became one of the newest and more successful state parks in New England. While the place itself has more merit than an early impression might suggest, the success of the park stems mainly from volunteer citizen effort which has produced an interpretive program that has few equals.

Indeed, if one buys the hefty ring-bound volume entitled "Odiorne Point State Park: Natural Science and Historical Studies" ($3.25), he can leave with a better understanding of this 137-acre state park than one can obtain at Yellowstone National Park! Know it, in fact, better than one's own backyard.

In World War II Odiorne Point served as a coastal artillery emplacement protecting Portsmouth Harbor, which accounts for its present appearance. But Odiorne Point's history goes back farther than that. In fact, David Thomson settled there in 1623 and the Point became the first documented settlement of New Hampshire. In 1660, John Odiorne purchased the land and it was occupied by his descendents until 1942 when the Army bought it.

This summer, Odiorne Point Park has had two interpretive naturalists on duty to explain its features. They are Susan Hardy of Newmarket, N.H., and Larry Morris of Darien, Conn. Both are working through the New England Enviornmental Intern Program headed by Jeff Cook at Lincoln, Mass.

The wealth of interpretive material was prepared before their arrival. Mrs. Annette B. Cottrell, New Hampshire chairman of the New England Wild Flower Society, enlisted experts to write on every natural phase of the park. Contributors came from faculties of the University of New Hampshire, Dartmouth, Harvard, University of Bordeaux, France, Woods Hole Marine Biological Laboratory, Northern Essex Community College, and Phillips Exeter Academy. A local research historian wrote the human history.

A unique feature of the Odiorne Point interpretive material is that it can be purchased a la carte. In fact, buying the report in sections cuts the over-all price to $3.05 — but one fails to get it done up as a total unit in a ring binder.

So, if your interest is specialized, you can buy separately:

Geology of the Odiorne Point Area by Marland P. and Katharine F. Billings; The Drowned Forest at Odiorne Point by Donald H. Chapman; Freshwater Algae by Hannah Croasdale; Marine Algae by Arthur C. Mathieson; Floristic Study and Plant Communities of the Odiorne Point Area by Clotilde Magnant Struas; Guide to the Intertidal Life of the Odiorne Point Area: The Rocky Coast and Western Sandy Beach by Margaret Ann Mills; The Odiorne Point Salt Marsh by Phelps Laszlo and Wallace Blanchard; Birds of Odiorne Point by Arthur C. Borror; The Archaeology of the Odiorne Point by Eugene D. Finch and Frederick Johnson, or Odiorne Point: Highlights of History by Louise H. Tallman.

Spend a day in the small park with any folder and wind up an expert.

Fashionettes

The fashion House of Norell believes in the small shoe look while many other stylists keep turning out those thick, thick soled numbers for both day and evening. David Evins did the shoes for the New York firm's fall and winter clothes collection. For day, the models wore "little girl" looking footwear, almost flat-heeled pumps done in alligator calf, lizard, patent and suede with grosgrain ribbon bow. For evening, bare sandals had skinny medium heels.

But don't jump off the platform yet, advises the American Footwear Institute. "There's a lot of happy hoofing left there, especially for the young, who still have their hearts set on sole," the institute stylists report.

The hat styles take off in assorted directions for fall and winter. Among the leaders, however, are the mannish swagger felts, with creased crowns, and the knit toques or stocking caps.

If your're a pearl girl, there are new ways of wearing them with the coming season's revival of the black short or long evening dress. Fasten one end to the shoulder with a jeweled pin, the other end of the strand (or strands) falling diagonally to the hipbone, and another fastener. Designer Donald Brooks showed a number of off-beat ways to wear pearls.

The work clothes zipper continues a high fashion item in women's apparel. Pierre Cardin uses the big zippers, and their big pulls, in a lot of the sportswear in his collection for American retailers. They go well with the trend to leathers and to sweater looks.

Pleats are back on the fall scene. So are circular skirts, after several seasons of the straight and narrow.

For a while there, the evening dress that bared only one shoulder was what the fashion industry called a "Ford" (best seller). Then it waned, only to return for fall in several collections from New York and Paris. Dior, in Paris, showed it in black crepe georgette. Gustave Tassell, the designer at Norell's, did it in column-shaped sheer wools either black or white.

solidify programs and legislation as presented by both the Board and the Mayor," states Cohen. "As the needs arose, I attended Board committee meetings other than those on which I serve to attempt to lend direction and work out differences of opinion. Although the public is aware of the numerous late evening meetings of the Board, as President my duties also entail many early morning meetings," added Cohen.

During the years 1970 through 1971, President Cohen served as chairman of the Legislation and Rules Committee, and in such capacity introduced countless municipal ordinances, now the law of the city, and was also directly responsible for the drafting of 95 per cent of the city's legislation. During that, his second term on the Board of Aldermen, he was elected vice-president succeeding Judge Franklin N. Flaschner.

During his first term of office from 1968 through 1969, Alderman Cohen was responsible for the investigation and preparation of a report setting forth the then weaknesses in the Department of Public Works and recommendations for the improvement of the department. He was also one of the first freshman alderman to be made a chairman of a standing Board committee.

President Cohen is a practicing attorney with offices in Boston and Newton. He is the recipient of a B.A. degree from the University of Massachusetts, and a J. D. and LL.M. degree in taxation from Boston University School of Law.

He served as a captain in the United States Air Force during the Korean conflict and was also a special agent and detachment commander for the Office of Special Investigations.

Alderman Cohen has served as a member of the Massachusetts Advisory Board of Higher Education Policy, director of the Associate Alumni of the University of Massachusetts, a district director of the United Fund, and a director of the Greater Boston Heart Association. He taught criminal law in Washington, D.C. was a lecturer at law at Northeastern University, and served as counsel for the Boston Finance Committee.

In seeking re-election, President Cohen cited a few key concerns during the ensuing two years. "In order to maintain a stabilized tax rate, we must continue to oversee economies in municipal spending and more efficient administrative methods, both of which aided in reducing the 1973 tax rate," stated Cohen.

"The re-evaluation of real estate assessments presently in progress must be carefully scrutinized so the end effect will not create unnecessary burdens but will result in proper and fair tax responsibilities for all of Newton's taxpayers. Proper planning must be given to maintaining open spaces and the establishment of greater community recreational facilities for all citizens," continued Cohen.

Cohen cited his effort in the expansion of the Cold Spring Park land area for the ultimate development of a municipal recreational center.

Alderman Cohen has also been a leader in establishing plans for winter and summer athletics at other municipal parks.

"The determination of methods for regional disposal of solid waste and the future value of CATV to the city will be of utmost concern to the next Board of Aldermen," added Cohen.

Alderman Cohen is Vice President of Temple Ohabei Shalom in Brookline and is a past President of its Brotherhood. He is married to the former Elaine Ginsberg and has two children, Sandra and James, both in the Newton school system.

Newton Recreation Department Crowns Champions

Waban Chiefs Win Title

Was there really every any doubt? The International League playoffs could have been dispensed with by acclamation and spared everyone a lot of grief. True, upsets in sports are prevalent and that's what the game of baseball like all the others is about, but who really thought the Waban Chiefs, after losing just one of 20 games during the regular season and blitzing a semi-final playoff fore would lose the finals?

Not Waban, that's for sure. Although the Chiefs did give the Boys' Club a fighting chance.

Boys' Club had a 3-2 lead as late as the fifth inning of the first game, but a suicide squeeze play (something common to the good teams in Newton) by Mike Lafferty brought in a run and earned the Chiefs a 3-3 tie.

Waban started things off on the right foot with two opening inning runs, but the Clubbies countered with three tallies of their own in the second frame. It was an unusual display of wildness and power against Robbie Alevizos which brought in the runs. Steve Cononico blasted two key hits.

That was enough fooling around as far as the Chiefs were concerned. They turned around and swept the next two games, 4-1, and 5-3 to capture the International League crown.

The man who did it all for the Chiefs all season long, Steve DiBenedetto, upped his record to 10-0 with a four-hit performance in the first game.

DiBenedetto also drove in three runs with a single and a double and got help from Doug Moore who singled twice. DiBendetto fanned 10 batters.

Greg Pappas singled in the Boys' Clubs only run.

With DiBenedetto's arm resting from the above effort and Alevizos' hurting from a long season the Chiefs almost ran into problems one game short of their objective. But Carson Milgroom, who had had no opportunity to show what he could do on the mound before survived troubles of his own making (through six walks) and pitched the Chiefs to their fourth league title in five years.

Milgroom struck out seven men to get himself out of jams and scattered just three hits to stifle the potent Boys' Club bats for the third straight game.

Larry Giorgio's two big hits provided the offense as the long season came to an end.

Joyce Glasser, 18 Nancy Rd., Newton, received a master's degree. She had been studying at the college's Graduate School of French in Paris, France.

HANOVER, N.H. — Junior Dan Kenslea of Newton Center will be one of the leading candidates in the offensive line for the 1973 Dartmouth College football team.

Kenslea saw considerable reserve action at center last year with Dartmouth's Ivy League football champions and is expected to be the top reserve center behind All-Ivy senior Bob Funk this fall.

"Dan played very well under pressure last fall for us, especially in the Harvard game," said Dartmouth coach Jake Crouthamel. "We'll be counting on him to give us experienced back-up help this year."

The Big Green open their pre-season drills on September 1 and will be seeking an unprecedented fifth straight Ivy League championship.

Newton AA Sponsors International Game

The Newton Athletic Association will sponsor the first international Pop Warner Football game on Saturday Sept. 1, 1973, 8 p.m. at alumni Field Boston College. This will be the first football game on any level in New England. The host team will be the N.A.A. Lions of the Suburban League and the visitors will be the East Mountain Rough Riders of Hamilton Ontario. The Rough Riders are two time defending provincial champs, and have an undefeated string of 17 consecutive games.

The Newton Club traveled to Hamilton last season and startled the Rough Riders by tying the game 6-6.

The rules for the game will be altered each half, one half Canadian rules and one half American. Details will be worked out Friday night preceeding the game.

The Canadians will arrive at Newton Highlands Playground on August 31, at 6 p.m.

They will be greeted by the official party including the Mayor of Newton.

Later that evening a social will be held at Post 440 in Newton.

On Saturday morning both teams will swim at Crystal Lake, and then be treated to lunch at Tony's Villa. A motorcade will be assembled at Newton Highlands playground at 6:30 p.m. for the trip to Boston College. The game will start at 8 p.m. and half time entertainment is planned. At the conclusion of the game, Mayor Mann will present momentos of the city of Newton.

Sunday will be picnic day at Cold Springs Playground where both teams, parents, and Association Members will get together over food, with softball intended for exercise.

The Candian group will depart from Cold Springs Playground at 2 p.m.

Chris Evert Glitters At Wightman Matches

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Ass't Sports Editor

CHESTNUT HILL—It promised more than it delivered.

Chris Evert, the 18-year-old blonde darling of women's tennis was playing number one for the United States in the 50th anniversary and 45th renewal of the Wightman Cup matches. Virginia Wade, 10 years older and the captain of the visiting British squad, held the same spot in England's plans. The chance of the draw paired them in the opening match of the competition.

Floridan Evert, who never played at Longwood before, or in Boston for that matter, held a 3-2 career advantage over Wade, including two previous Wightman Cup victories. But Wade had won their last two meetings this year, the second by the surprisingly easy score of 6-2, 6-1.

What was promised was the highlight of the competition. What was delivered was a crushing defeat by Evert to a game, but mistake-prone Wade. It took almost exactly one hour for the Miss from Fort Lauderdale to launder Wade, 6-4, 6-2.

Evert played her standard game of setting up camp on the baseline and whacking away with her two-fisted backhand until Virginia made a mistake. Wade socked shots all over, but they always came back. Chris refused to let her hit a winner.

After a 3-1 lead it looked like Evert was running away, but Wade, who has one of the more powerful women's serves (certainly more whistling than Bobby Riggs') started clicking with it and brought herself back to 3-3.

Unruffled, Chris continued her defensive game, approaching the net with the trepidation of a timid swimmer stepping into the water on a 60-degree day and broke Wade's service right back. She went on to the 6-4 set win.

The second set may have been the epitome of Chris Evert's game and style. She kept her older foe off balance with surprising lobs, returning anything hit at her, and dropped dainty shots over the net to finish off points.

Appearing to get better with every point the teenager shot out to a 4-0 lead and it looked like Wade was crumbling.

A couple of blown shots near the net provided Wade with one game and when she won another Evert still refused to get excited. She continued on her predetermined path, patient with volleys, stroking returns, never trying to force a point.

The strategy outlasted Wade and Chris took the next game for the 6-4, 6-2 win.

For someone who looked not quite as pretty as her picture at the pre-match press conference last Tuesday, Chris Evert was remarkably beautiful after her match. Perhaps, like Ali McGraw, in Goodbye Columbus, sweat becomes her.

"It wasn't easy at all," Evert said shaking her head. "No way. The first set could have gone either way and I thought she would come back after it was 5-1 in the second set."

The playing surface, which seems to be made of a combination of Astro-Turf, Monsanto Green, asphalt, and a Goodyear tire, was the subject of much comment before the matches.

House Passes Ambulance Bill

A bill that would allow the Massachusetts Department of Public Health to regulate ambulance services, require specific training of emergency medical technicians, establish a communications network between emergency vehicles and hospital facilities and set up an advisory board to assist the Commissioner of Public Health in coordinating a state-wide emergency medical care program which would remedy the present emergency health care inadequacies in Massachusetts, was passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

The Bill, H.6491 was filed by Rep. Louis Bertonazzi (D-Milford), Rep. Thomas W. McGee (D-Lynn), Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

According to Rep. Pines, "Statistics indicate that every citizen in Massachusetts will need emergency medical care sometime in the next ten years and, therefore, should be critically concerned with a system that presently requires only a standard first aid course of approximately 26 hours of training for an emergency medical technician compared to 5,500 hours of training for embalmers and 5000 hours for hairdressers."

Rep. Pines also stated: "Last year there were over 29,000 deaths in Massachusetts due to accident, heart attack and stroke. More than 23 percent of the accident fatalities could have been saved, according to a University of Vermont study in 1971, and 30 percent of the heart attack victims should have lived, according to the American Heart Association if emergency medical care had been adequate. Some of the finest hospitals in the world are located in Massachusetts, yet our citizens often die before reaching these facilities because emergency medical care is so poor in the Commonwealth.

The Ambulance Association of America estimates that 25,000 persons are permanently injured or disabled each year by untrained ambulance attendants.

Rep. Pines stated, "These facts and figures may be shocking, but they represent the stark reality that trauma is the neglected disease in most of America, including the Commonwealth. People are dying unnecessarily, too many people are sustaining injuries more serious than necessary, because emergency medical care in this state is totally inadequate. House No. 6491 is the most critical piece of legislation to be considered by the General Court this year."

Mandell Seeks-

programs, a school lunch program, a review of teacher turnover, and changes in the methods of teaching reading."

"All of these," Mandell continued, "are goals which have been completely or partially met."

"During my first two terms," Mandell stated, "I worked on several fronts for a more accountable school system as well as introducing new School Committee rules which allow for citizen discussion at meetings which are now held throughout the city."

"I have also supported open enrollment and a boundaries study to equalize opportunity across the city; chaired a subcommittee on fiscal controls; and succeeded in efforts to order a study of staffing patterns and staff utilization, including the reasons for staff increases at a time of decreasing enrollment," Mandell said.

According to Mandell, he has become increasingly concerned with the issues of curriculum during this past term as a school committeeman.

Back in 1971, he stated his concern about a "general slackening of standards across the school system reflected by some softening of subjects covered in the curriculum and un unequalness in performance across the various schools."

"I have frequently stated that too much emphasis has been placed on effective development of children at the expense of development of cognitive skills," Mandell explained.

"The schools should not serve as 'social service stations,' " he stated, but rather, should, "provide the essential skills of language, numbers and orderly thought, and transmit in a reasoned pattern the intellectual, moral, and aesthetic heritage of civilized man."

According to Mandell, he has pushed for more public information about curriculum, for improved co-ordination between junior and senior high school curricula, and for greater administrative control over the curriculum.

Mandell's announcement also stated that he has continued to give priority attention to fiscal and budgetary matters.

In announcing his candidacy, Mandell said, "The Newton School Committee will continue to need perceptive, sensitive, and independent members with a sense of educational history, who will not be converted or convinced by high sounding phrases or educational fads which appear cyclically as panaceas for all educational and social problems."

The candidate resides at 287 Spiers Rd., Newton Centre, and is a registered professional engineer with B.E.E. and M.S.E.E. degrees from the City College of New York and Northeastern University.

Employed by the Raytheon Company, he is also a faculty member at Northeastern University. In addition, Mandell serves as a volunteer advisor to the Blue Hills Regional Vocational Technical High School and is on the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees.

Candidate Mandell is married and has three children, all of whom have attended Newton public schools.

Commune-

According to Jerry Leone of the Building Department, that agency has no way of knowing where group living quarters are, unless a complaint is received. Then, Leone said, the department will inspect the house and "put a stop" to code violations.

One of the advertisements in the Real Paper was looking for "mellow couples for ongoing adventures in bourgeois hippiedom." Another said, "We are 8 people ages 9-44 living as an extended family in a large old comfy Newton Corner house."

A "coed coop" is looking for three females over age 21 to complete a house of eight people in a "beautiful neighborhood."

Rents for these and the others run from a low of $86 per month plus utilities to $160 per month, which includes the evening meal. Most rents are less than $90 per month.

At one house, in the 300 block of Dedham Street, Newton Centre, the person who answered the phone told the caller that there is no problem with parking, but at another, in the 1100 block of Boylston Street, Upper Falls, the caller was told, "Well, parking is sort of a problem, but it can be found."

There was no preferred location for group houses discernible in the Real Paper. Houses were identified as to village in the advertisement or by telephone in Newton Centre, Upper Falls, Auburndale, West Newton, and Newton Corner.

Probably nothing will be done by city officials without specific complaints from citizens, unless the real-estate revaluation process turns up large numbers of communal living quarters.

Then the city will be faced with the problem of what to do about these violations as well as those expected to be turned up by the presence of innumerable illegal apartments in single-family homes.

City Institutes Police Award

The City of Newton, under the auspices of its Crime Prevention Commission, has instituted merit awards for police officers as part of a comprehensive and eminently successful crime prevention program launched early in 1972.

It is the hope of the Crime Prevention Commission and the city administration, that the awards will emphasize the community's continuing commitment to crime reduction and help to maintain the high level of police performance achieved in recent years.

The award will go to police officers who have performed distinguished acts of law enforcement in the discharge of their duties and will be comparable in concept to the U.S. military's Medal of Honor. The winners will receive a commemorative plaque and an all-expense paid vacation trip for two. The presentation ceremony will be held each year at the Annual Policeman's Ball.

Deserving officers will be selected by the Awards Committee of the Crime Prevention Commission (C.P.C.) with the judges being Judge Arthur Sherman of the East Cambridge District Court, chairman of the C.P.C.: Anthony Cimo, chairman of the Awards Committee; Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn and several senior officers of the Police Department, selected by Chief Quinn.

Funding for the awards will come from the Office of Mayor Theodore D. Mann and from contributions made by the members of the C.P.C.

The merit award is the latest spearhead in an intensive crackdown on crime conceived and vigorously conducted by the Mann administration and Chief Quinn. When elected to office, Mayor Mann took charge of a city that had long suffered the distinction of being a prize plum of burglars.

As one of his first official acts, Mayor Mann redefined the goals and purpose of the existing Crime Commission established by former Mayor Monte Basbas. Henceforth, the commission will concern itself primarily with crime prevention, and its name was changed to the Crime Prevention Commission in order to reflect the new objectives.

Through the efforts of Mayor Mann, Chief Quinn and his department and the C.P.C., the auxiliary police force was expanded to 60 men, and Newton received the only government grant in the state for auxiliary officers. In an unprecedented move, over 100 citizens alarm boxes were posted throughout the city, giving anyone in need of help immediate contact with the Police Department.

Hitchhiking fines, long on the books but rarely employed, have been rigorously enforced with a resultant decrease in assaults on young women. An Operation Identification Program was established, in which the city provides citizens with the means of marking property to prevent theft.

City sponsored brochures and books which show citizens how to protect themselves and their property were widely distributed.

Rock Band In 'Stew' Over Nutrition

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A kids' rock band called Mulligan Stew is going to be all over television, starting this fall, but don't look for it in concert halls.

The five-member band was organized to star in a six-part television series on nutrition. The 30-minute programs are part of the expanded food and nutrition program of the National 4-H Service Committee, which produced them in cooperation with the Federal Extension Service, USDA, and the State Extension Services of the land grant universities.

The series has been shown on 60 to 70 educational and commercial stations since its debut last fall and it is expected to be even more widely aired during the 1973-74 school year. But public reaction so far has been scattered, says Eleanor Wilson, National 4-H coordinator.

"It's almost too early to say whether it's effective," she said in a telephone interview from Chicago. Miss Wilson also was executive producer and technical advisor for the series.

She said a professional survey will be made to evaluate results, but that some parents already have said their children talk about what they've learned and actually ask for green vegetables!

This astonishing request can be credited to a combination of hard-sell television commercial techniques combined with those of Mission Impossible, Sesame Steet and the Electric Company.

Each point about good nutrition—including the importance of eating a wide variety of foods from four different food groups — is hammered home over and over again in each program by five children representing four distinct ethnic groups — Caucasian, Hispanic, black and oriental.

On one show, the home economist of the Manufacturing Chemists Association talks about the role of and the need for additives in some food.

"Vitamin D is an additive in milk," she says, "And some additives are put there just to make your food taste good."

Miss Wilson said that this sequence had been criticized by some people.

But she added:

"The point we're trying to make is that you can't do without additives. The cost would be prohibitive if you had to rely solely on natural foods."

For The Young

The programs are designed to appeal to nine to 12-year-olds—fourth through sixth graders—particularly among low-income urbanites. Miss Wilson said a significant number of children as young as five years have been watching the shows.

"We find teen-agers are very interested," she said. "The older teens help organize viewing groups and work with younger boys and girls."

When schools open, some are expected to use the series in their regular curriculum, during classes.

Among the shows they'll see is one in which the Mulligans—three boys and two girls—work with a grown-up pal, Wilbur Dooright, to wake up a town that's sleeping because everybody's tired out from malnutrition.

In another show, Wilbur helps Mulligan foil the Flim Flam man who's trying to sell the band fad diets and food pills. In still another, the kids plan, shop for and prepare dinner for a world population.

A dozen rock songs ranging from "Good Nutrition" to "Goulash, Garbanzo Beans and Guacamole" are played and sung in the shows and on records that are part of the supplementary materials provided for groups that sign up to watch the series.

The supplements also include sheet music for the songs, a comic book, several recipes in rebus form and a guidebook for teachers, leaders and aides.

But in the end, the most effective salesmen and women for good nutrition are apt to be the five engaging young people —Larry Friedman, Steve Einbender, Benjamin Sands, Sherry Wright and Li-On Hahm—and their sidekick, Wilbur, played by the only fulltime professional in the cast.

He's Barry Michlin, an actor currently appearing in television commercials and a New York cabaret theater production, "What's a Nice Country Like You Doing in a State Like This?"

The children are from the Washington, D.C., area, where all but Li-On have appeared in musical shows. Li-On's father works at the Korean Embassy.

Mulligan stew from the television series of the same name is made this way: In a heavy pan or skillet, melt 1 tablespoon of shortening. Add 1 pound of beef, cut into small pieces. Brown over medium heat. Then add 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 (10 ½-ounce) can of tomato soup and 2 soup cans of water. Cover tightly and let cook slowly until tender, about 1 hour. Then add 3 carrots, sliced, 3 potatoes, cut into 4 pieces, and 2 onions, cut into 4 pieces. Cover and continue cooking slowly, about 30 minutes. If there is not enough liquid, add more water during cooking. If stew is too thin, remove lid and cook until thickened. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Weekend Blood Donors Get Into Aquarium Free

The New England Aquarium and its waterfront neighbor, Radio Station WJIB, are taking emergency measures to help ease the state's blood shortage by sponsoring a Bloodmobile on the premises of the Aquarium. Free admission to the Aquarium is offered to anyone who donates blood, announced John H. Prescott, managing director.

In a spirit of service to the community, the Aquarium will hold the Red Cross Bloodmobile on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, September 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. These dates were chosen because historically the Labor Day weekend brings about the worst blood crisis situation of the year.

In announcing the project, Prescott noted that the Aquarium is concerned about providing safe and plentiful waters for all forms of life. "Since survival is the whole idea at the Aquarium," he said, "it follows that we are also concerned about man's most vital resource — blood."

Nelson Vogelsohn, administrator of the Mass. Red Cross Blood Program, reports that the blood supply has remained at a critical level all summer; not only in Massachusetts, but nationwide. He explained that although collection figures have increased by 40 per cent since 1968 in the Bay State, the demands for blood have skyrocketed by over 60 per cent in this same period.

The Aquarium, located on Central Wharf, is the only location in the Boston area other than the fixed donor center at 812 Huntington Avenue where an individual may donate over the long holiday weekend.

Any adult age 18 through 65 who is in good health is eligible to join the Red Cross "Bloodline." All types of blood, especially RH negative, are urgently needed. Anyone who donates is entitled to unlimited blood coverage for the entire immediate family anywhere in the U. S. and Canada for one year from the time of donation.

Donors are invited to enjoy the more than 2,000 fish and aquatic animals on display as a guest of the Aquarium. Located on Central Wharf, the Aquarium is easily accessible by public transportation via the MBTA Blue Line stopping at Aquarium Station. To those coming by automobile, the Harbor Towers Garage adjacent to the Aquarium will provide free parking for blood donors.

Private funeral services will be held. The family has asked that those who wish to honor Dr. Dabney send contributions to the Dabney Scholarship Fund for Foreign Students at Andover Newton Theological School. The school plans to hold a memorial service after the start of the academic year.

Dr. Parker To Preach At Old South Church

The Rev. Dr. Gerald Parker, recently appointed interim minister of Old South Church, Copley Square, Boston, will preach at the 11 a.m. service Sunday, Sept. 2.

Dr. Parker retired two years ago after 30 years as minister of the Congregational Church in Manhasset, N.Y. He was organizing pastor and led it to a membership of 3600. Located in a strategic section of Long Island, it became the largest of the United Church of Christ churches in the United States.

Dr. Parker is widely known as an unusually gifted preacher. Young families have found him an understanding pastor and friend. Programs in Christian education and youth work, developed under his guidance, have attracted national attention.

He is a trustee of the Andover Newton Theological School and last year was invited by Yale Divinity School to help in an educational program housed on its campus.

Baptists Host Troubadour

Alan McGill, one of America's "Most Recorded" soloists in the religious music field will present a unique program of "Song and Christian Testimony" at Second Baptist Church, Newton Upper Falls, on Sunday, Sept. 9, at 7 p.m.

Since a spiritual experience over twenty years ago changed the course of his life, McGill has recorded numerous single records and nineteen long play albums on Capitol, Sacred, Zondervan, Word, and Supreme labels. More than half of the albums are still being produced and distributed. They are used on Gospel broadcasts around the world, and on thousands of home record players.

Early in his Christian recording career, Alan McGill's recording of "Each Step of the Way" became the best selling sacred record in the nation. His latest album releases are: "The Best of Alan McGill" on Word label, and "Portrait of Alan McGill" on Supreme.

McGill and his talented wife, Nancy (who often accompanies him at the piano), lived a number of years in Southern California but have re-established residence near Baltimore, Md., where they were both born and raised.

Personal appearances, now numbering about four thousand, are still a vital part of the McGill itinerary. He considers these a ministry rather than an entertainment, and within a two week period scheduling sometimes includes bookings in as many as twelve different states, as he communicates the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Pastor Francis Crisci extends a cordial invitation to all, to attend this informal, fundamental Gospel presentation that many have considered to be "The Shortest Ninety Minutes On Record."

Jewish Committee Issues Handbook

Continuing interest and concern about the situation of the Jewish poor has brought many requests for information on the subject, and the American Jewish Committee is attempting to respond to these requests, according to Bernard Abrams, president of the New England Region, American Jewish Committee (AJC).

The AJC has prepared a brief bibliography for use by Jewish Communal workers and leaders, as well as undergraduate and graduate students in social work, sociology, political science, and Jewish studies, who are searching for source material needed to plan programs and prepare papers and theses.

The bibliography is not a complete or definitive listing; it is, rather, a compilation of fairly current material.

The AJC has already distributed copies to executive directors in New England Jewish Federations, Welfare Funds, and Community Councils as part of its continuing effort to disseminate information of value to the Jewish community.

Copies of the bibliography are available, without charge, on request from the Regional Office at 72 Franklin St., Boston, Mass. 02110. Phone 426-7415.

Founded in 1906, the American Jewish Committee is the pioneer human relations agency in this country. It combats bigotry, protects the civil and religious rights of Jews here and abroad, and advances the cause of human rights for all. It maintains offices throughout the nation, and in Latin America, Europe, and Israel.

Learn To Earn Or Vice Versa

One problem that faces nearly every college student today is that of school expenses. How to pay for an education is an increasingly "taxing" problem for most.

H & R Block, America's Largest Tax Service, offers a two-fold solution to the problem of student finances, in that it provides additional training while allowing the student the opportunity of earning money to pay for those college expenses.

"Learn to Earn" very aptly describes Block's Basic Income Tax School as it applies to college students. Coinciding with opening university sessions in mid-September, Block's Tax School consists of 81 hours of classroom instruction, presented in two, three-hour classes per week, over a 13½ week period. Best of all, a choice of morning, afternoon or evening sessions is offered, so the Block school may be easily arranged to coincide with nearly any college classroom schedule without conflict.

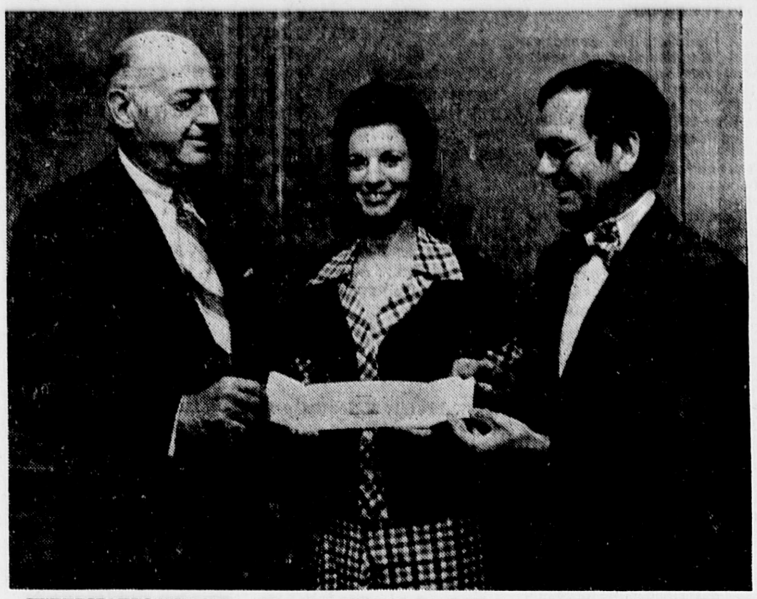
Unlike many a college course, where lab fees and books are an extra expense, Block's Tax School includes all supplies, materials, and textbooks necessary for completion of the course in the modest tuition fee of $75. Block also understands that students who are looking for ways to pay college expenses, may not have the full tax school tuition fee available so they have designed an installment plan which should put the course within the grasp of any student desiring to enroll.

The valuable and practical course is taught by veteran H & R Block employees who possess a great wealth of experience and knowledge in the preparation of individual income tax returns. Training in the proper techniques of completing individual tax returns is accomplished through practice in actual preparation of sample Federal, State and local City Income Tax Returns.

A certificate of completion will be presented to students who successfully complete the course and employment interviews will be made available to top students. While Block does not guarantee employment to graduates of the course, in years past, a large majority of tax school graduates have been employed by the firm during the tax season. As a matter of fact, a number of Block's management personnel across the country started their careers with the company on a part time basis during their college years.

College students who need to "Earn to Learn" and are interested in enrolling in H & R Block's Tax School, or in obtaining further information regarding this opportunity should contact H & R Block at the Dedham Mall, 300 V.F.W. Parkway.

Mr. Mortimer local manager for H & R Block stated, "We offer the chance to 'Learn to Earn' and hope that many of the students in Boston and Suburban area will take advantage of this opportunity."



SWEEPSTAKES WINNER — Mrs. Gail Miller of Randolph is presented a special $1,000 gift certificate by Andrew Goodman, left, president of Bergdorf Goodman and John Robinson, the firm's advertising manager. A $1,000 shopping spree at New York's Bergdorf Goodman store was the first prize in a national sweepstakes contest sponsored by Hurn Copysette, Inc., of Leitchfield, Ky., manufacturer of a secretarial product, which simplifies the typing of multiple carbon copies. Mrs. Miller is a personnel manager with Girl Corps, Inc., Dedham.

Charles Whipple Services: Head Of Parke Snow, Inc.

Services for Charles A. Whipple, 84, of Lexington were held Tuesday afternoon at the First Church Unitarian in Salem. He died Saturday at Mt. Auburn Hospital in Cambridge.

He was in the retail department store business for 65 years and for 54 years was head of Parke Snow, Inc.

He was born in Salem and graduated cum laude from Harvard University in 1909.

Mr. Whipple worked for a number of years for Filene's, as manager of its bargain basement and in charge of the New York office.

He became associated with Parke Snow at the time of its incorporation in 1919 and was president for many years as it expanded to 11 stores. In 1966 he retired as president to become chairman of the board.

He was also a vice president and director of The Country Flair stores, a director of the David Harley Co. of Pawtucket, R.I. and the Industrial Electronics Supply Corp, in Needham.

Mr. Whipple was a member of the Harvard Clubs of Boston and New York and for many years was a member of the Algonquin Club of Boston and the Starr King Masonic Lodge in Salem.

LARGEST LIVING THINGS

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The largest living things on earth, the redwood trees of the Sierra Nevada, are the subject of a book entitled, The Enduring Giants.

Written by Joseph H. Engbeck Jr., the book describes the natural history of the giant sequoias, which grow naturally only in scattered sites along the western slope of the Sierra Nevada within a 260-mile-long zone.

(Available at bookstores or from University Extension, University of California, Berkeley, Calif., 94720 at $3 per copy.)

ILL WIND

DALLAS (UPI) — Wind, hail and tornado damage between April 19-26 in Texas this year has been estimated at $25 million by the American Insurance Association. The association's southwestern property claims manager, Frank I. Lewis, said most of the damage was in Houston and San Antonio, and in the area between the two cities.

ASTROLOGY

By Oscar Weber

CAREER UNDECIDED

Q. My son was born on August 20, 1952 at 9:02 a.m. in Boston, Mass. Although he is doing well at college he is still undecided about a career. Would his horoscope give some indication of what fields he would do well in?

P. V. W.

A. Your son's horoscope indicates a precocious youth capable of achieving an outstanding success in life. He is able to combine idealistic and creative talents and apply them in practical ways.

He has a sharp and penetrating intellect, quick and able to absorb knowledge easily which could prove valuable as a scientist, technician or mathematician.

He will need to exercise great care in his relationships with the opposite sex otherwise he may experience difficulties which may not only affect him emotionally but affect his reputation and professional ambitions. He does need love from one who is demonstratively affectionate and who showers him with attention but he must distinguish between love and passion.

Time appears to be on his side, there are indications of a more settled outlook as he matures and the likelihood of a success in his career especially after his thirtieth birthdate.

In addition to his keen mind he has an excellent imagination, is intuitive and at times is inspired. He has ample will power, ambition and drive and in whichever field he directs his energies he will follow it with great determination.

Care is needed not to waste his energies in emotional or sensational matters. When he loves he can love intensely but when he is angry he can be his own worst enemy unless he uses his excellent will power to control his temper which could get out of hand.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Next Crisis: Paper Shortage

Virginia Payette says:

Now as we tighten our belts for the meatless-wheatless days come, here's something else to worry about: There's not enough paper to go around.

And that, friends, qualifies as big trouble.

Pesky as the steak and bread shortages promise to be, we all can find something to feed our faces with. Too many of us are overweight, anyway. Maybe we'll come out of Phase 4 with slimmer waistlines and longer life spans.

But when you run out of paper what do you do?

You panic, that's what.

In most American homes, things made out of paper are so essential, so taken for granted, so always there, that folks just don't give them much thought.

Until they run out of them.

Like your daily newspaper, for instance. There it is, every morning and evening, awaiting your pleasure on the front porch. Or in the bushes, or on the roof, depending on your paper boy's aim.

Let him miss you entirely, though, and your whole day is jolted out of kilter. TV and radio newscasts just don't cut it. (They don't even have Snoopy, for gosh sakes.)

But, what with spring floods and strikes at paper mills and railroad yards, the supply of newsprint is tight — and likely to become more so. Last year, newspapers used up 10.3 billion tons – consumption for 1973 is already up 5.3 per cent – and many mill owners (and readers) are keeping ther fingers crossed.

Things aren't any rosier in the rest of the industry. Economists at the United California Bank in Los Angeles say their latest study turned up a critical shortage that may be with us for the next three or four years.

Cartons for shipppng are already scarce, and writing paper may be in "extremely short supply" later this year. As a result, prices are up (what else?), deliveries are down and manufacturers are struggling to find enough paper to fill their orders.

Meanwhile, we're throwing away 40 million tons of waste paper every year.

Which brings us to recycling, a favorite process of the environmentalists. But that industry is having its problems, too. There's not enough money in it to make it worthwhile, according to the "secondary material" folks.

It cost less, they say, to cut down a tree and turn it into wood pulp than to recycle waste paper. Sometimes up to $30 a ton less.

What they want is a little incentive from the government. Like a tax credit for every ton they reclaim. And maybe even freight rates as low as the "virgin material" shippers enjoy.

Until then, the amount of recyled trash paper for household use will keep on shrinking. In the past 27 years it's slipped from 35 per cent to 21 per cent. With federal help, say the recyclists, they think they can get it back up to 26 per cent by 1985.

But that's a dozen years off. Let's hope somebody does SOMETHING a little sooner. I can contemplate an existence short on T-bones, bread – and maybe even chocolate cake. (Or didn't you know there's a cocoa-bean shortage, too?)

But I don't think I can make it without newspapers, typing paper or the various tissues.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

When beef prices put you in a stew, that's exactly what to do. Make a stew! Unfortunately, even stew meat wears a steak price tag, so we'll just have to make the best of it!

Our idea of making the best of stewmeat is turning it into a sensational Stroganoff, the dish that's usually made with steak, sour cream and mushrooms. Since we can't afford either the steak or the sour cream calories, we make it a special way with shinbone (beef shank) and skim milk soured with lemon juice. Of course if you happen to have sour milk on your hands, here's the perfect place to use it!

Pay special heed to our directions for skimming the fat; it saves you about 400 calories! Put the fat into a measuring cup and prove it for yourself.

SHINBONE STROGANOFF

2 pounds beef shank
salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
water
1 onion, chopped
2-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces
1 cup skim milk
1 tablespoon arrowroot or cornstarch
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Salt and pepper the meat. Put it in a nonstick pot with a tablespoon of water. Heat over moderate flame, until water evaporates and shin beef browns in its own melted fat. Brown shin pieces on both sides. Add enough water to cover shin pieces. Stir in garlic powder, mustard and onion. Cover and simmer over very low flame until nearly tender, one hour or more. Remove from heat; cool, then refrigerate for several hours.

About 20 minutes before dinner, remove pot from refrigerator and lift off all hardened fat. Remove and discard shinbones and any fat. Add mushrooms, including liquid. Heat, uncovered, over high flame until nearly all the liquid in the pot has evaporated.

Combine milk and arrowroot and stir into pot. Cook and stir over low flame until sauce is thin and smooth. Stir in lemon juice.

Makes four servings, 247 calories each. Three-quarter cup serving on tender-cooked macaroni will add 116 calories.

SHINNECOCK STEW

2 pounds beef shank
4 teaspoons mustard
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 can undiluted onion soup
½ cup inexpensive sherry wine (or water)
2 ounce can mushroom stems and pieces
16-ounce can carrots
8-ounce can small boiled potatoes

Spread the shin pieces with mustard on both sides.

Put the shinbone pieces in a nonstick pot and spread both sides with mustard. Sprinkle liberally with Worcestershire. Heat over moderate flame turning frequently, until both sides are nicely browned on both sides in its own melting fat. Add the onion soup and wine.

Drain the liquid from the canned mushrooms, carrots and potatoes and add the liquid to the pot, reserve the vegetables. Cover and cook the stew until tender, about 1¼ hours. Pour all the liquid into a tall glass and place it in the freezer. Remove the bones and fat from the meat which will be very tender and break into smaller pieces.

When the broth is sufficiently chilled, remove it from the freezer and lift off surface fat. Return meat and broth to pot; add vegetables. Cook uncovered for 15 to 20 minutes, until nearly all the moisture has evaporated and vegetables are nicely glazed with meat juices.

Makes four servings, 312 calories each.

Today's Story

by norton mockridge

I've always loved the names of men who travel with carnivals, and several years ago when I toured with one I presented you with some of those illustrious titles:

Banana Nose Joe, Garbage Mouth Frank, Bird Eye Benny, Fickle Finger Freddy, Hogwash Harry, Rail Bird Sammy, Droopy Drawers Dave, Available Amy, Elephant Tooth Herman, Busty Bertha, Dum Dum Dickie, and so on. All very descriptive, indeed.

Well, now I've learned that the men who used to work the paddlewheel steamboats on the Mississippi had equally colorful and descriptive names.

There were roustabout, pilots, engineers, deckhands and others. Piece O' Man, Chicken, Half Dollar, Gospel Jim, Sixty-One, Iron Man, Ham Hawk, Frenchie, High Pocket, Mustard, Turtle, Buttereye Jim, Hominy Ike, Catfish Johnny, Whistling Jack, Little "Bama, Paddlefoot Little Breeches, Cottonmouth Sam, Missour Mike, and Possum Meadows.

Nobody on the steamboats knew anybody else's real name—just the monickers—Arkansas Ike, Hoppin' John, Cock-o-Doodle, Coal Dust Johnny, Jugging Joe, Long Jack, Big Red, and hundreds and hundreds more.

My friend, Ben Lucien Burman, knew them all, and he writes of them in his fine new book, "Look Down That Winding River, an Informal Profile of the Mississippi." Ben, as I'm sure you know, is the author of the great Catfish Bend books, and he did "Steamboat Round the Bend," which not only read well but was made into a movie by John Ford and LOOKED well, too!

Ben himself used to chug up and down the Mississippi with the captains, pilots, roustabouts and all the other colorful characters. And he even did some piloting himself.

Fortunately, the Burman mind retained all the flavor and love of the river, the names of the steamboats—Tennessee Belle, Natchez, Robert E. Lee, Uncle Oliver (nicknamed Dirty Face because she was covered with soot), the Sprague (known affectionately as Big Mama), the Ouchita, Big 'n Plenty, and the Golden Rule, Golden Crown and the Golden Cross — and the stories he heard.

Pilots, Ben recalls, were judged by the roustabouts, not by experience, but by the length of time they blew the boat's whistle. Why? Well, listen to how Mouse, a roustabout on the Ouchita, explained it:

"A pilot that don't blow a long whistle can git you into mighty bad trouble. If your boat's laid up and you're calling on a lady that's the girl friend of a roustabout on some other boat, when the pilot of that boat blows a long whistle that he's coming home, you got plenty of time to get away. But if he's one of them short-blowing fellows, in a minute the rouster's at the front door and you got to run for your life!"

Then there was Captain Charley's story of how a legendary captain hired the best pilot. There were three applicants for the job, and the captain asked the first one if he knew the river.

"Cap'n," said the pilot, "I knew every foot of this river. I been running her 10 years and I ain't ever hit a snag or grounded on a sand bar."

The captain asked the second pilot the same question.

"Cap'n," he answered. "I could run your boat blindfolded. I been piloting on this river 32 years and I ain't never touched a snag or a sand bar in my life."

The captain put the question to the third pilot, and he replied:

"Do I know the river, Captain? Captain, there ain't nobody alive knows this river like me. 'Cause I've hit every snag and turned over in every eddy and been stuck on every sand bar she's got!"

The captain put out his hand, and said: "You've got the job. You really DO know the river!"

Letters Of Instruction

by Amy Vanderbilt

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: You are right. People who have gone to distant countries for their retirement years have very special problems. One of them you have pointed out; that of letting their friends know if a death occurs. It is evidently very upsetting for people at home suddenly to get no reply to their letters, no indication that their friends have departed or when. I think your idea of reviving the formal death announcement is a very good one.

"Another need is a Letter of Instruction either to be addressed to the surviving mate or, if there is no survivor, to whomever is responsible for settling the estate. I suppose it would be hard to get people to write such a letter, but sometimes people become incapacitated temporarily or even permanently. Such a letter should be in everybody's files, especially in those of older people. It amazes me how many people have no conception of what information would be needed by anyone trying to help at such a time.—Mrs. F.N., Boston, Mass."

This idea has also occurred to me. Most people hate to even contemplate the thought of death or serious illness.

They put off writing any instructions or building what I like to call an emergency file of vital information. But every family, even a young family, should have all of this information at hand for emergency use.

New York's First National City Bank published such a set of instructions in its Consumer Views, Volume 4, No. 3, March, 1973. "How to Write the Letter Nobody Knows How to Write" tells exactly how to do it, with special work sheets that can be filled out and dropped into the emergency file.

I hope all my readers have or will start one immediately. If you would like a free copy of this, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Consumer Views, Public Affairs, Dept. A, 399 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

RECIPROCATION

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: On our honeymoon we met a couple with whom we spent quite a lot of time. When we got home they invited us for a weekend at their lakeside cottage. We were supposed to stay until Monday, but it was so bad we made an excuse and left on Sunday. You can't tell much about people you meet at a resort, but you certainly can tell about them when you are entertained by them in their own home.

"I don't want to see them again, but my husband says we have to return their invitation and then we can break off. I think this is stupid. Why should we punish ourselves?--Mrs. W.E., Dallas, Texas."

Why indeed? If you haven't yet written the thank-you note, do so, saying whatever good things you can, for example, "You didn't tell us you were such a wonderful cook. I'm sure we both put on five pounds that weekend. Thank you so much for having us. Best to Bob." (You always write to the hostess, not to them both, and mention the host in the body of the note.)

Follow up the note with a small gift if you didn't take anything when you went. Perhaps a pound of your city's best chocolates or a bottle of a good cologne for the hostess. Don't say anything about seeing them again.

It is possible, you know, that they didn't enjoy having you any more than you enjoyed being there. You may not have to do anything more. Should they, however, try to pursue the friendship, just be polite in your refusals and in time the invitations should stop.

I approve of honest social relationships so long as things are handled with tact and kindness.

GOP Independents

By Marquis Childs

The late summer smog in this capital is compounded by the miasma of doubt and suspicion that is a heritage of Watergate. How much President Nixon has done to dispel the fog by his televised address the days ahead will tell.

As for his Vice President, Spiro Agnew, the cloud hangs heavy over his head growing out of the charges of corruption and fraud in the letter sent him by United States District Attorney George Beall notifying him he was under investigation.

Since the Agnew story broke with the charges based in large part on Agnew's record as governor of Maryland, the media have had a field day with the politics of that ancient state. A catalogue of horrors is starred with the conviction of former Sen. Daniel Brewster for accepting a bribe.

Against the background of gloom and doom this observer would like to record an example that goes directly contrary to the current cynicism that all politicians are crooked.

In Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr. Maryland has one of the ablest men in Congress. A Republican, he defeated Brewster, a Democrat, in 1968 which means he will be up for re-election next year.

Mathias is one of perhaps a dozen Republican Senators who on issue after issue have asserted their independence. They have been in effect cut off from the Nixon Administration almost as completely as though they were of the opposition party. Asked when he had last visited the White House, Mathias recently replied: "When I was there the last time the food was good, the wine was good and Lyndon Johnson was a gracious host."

Although the election is a year off, these independents, along with other Republicans of similar outlook in the House, are brooding on their fate as they touch base with the voters. It is not merely the shadow cast by Watergate over their party.

As he did in the 1972 campaign the President has been blithely indifferent to the fate of Congressional candidates. One of the White House lists that surfaced during the Watergate hearings was of 100 Democrats friendly to the Administration in whose districts Republican efforts were to be held to a minimum.

Mathias and like-minded Republicans realize they will be on their own in 1974. Even if the President should decide to give aid and succor to those who have often dissented from his policies, it is doubtful how much his help would count.

Last year he went into Rhode Island to boost former Secretary of the Navy John Chaffee to defeat Sen. Claiborne Pell. Pell won by a comfortable margin.

Voting to cut off all bombing in Cambodia, Mathias opposed the Aug. 15 compromise as a capitulation to the President's war policy. He voted against the President's nominees to the Supreme Court, Clement F. Haynsworth and G. Harrold (CQ) Carswell.

The last was the unforgivable sin as the President made plain when he excoriated the Senate for turning down the two candidates he had proposed.

Countering the cynical admonition that surfaced in the Watergate hearings – stay out of politics and government – Mathias came up through the political ranks. After service in the Navy he was Assistant Attorney General of Maryland and later was elected to the House of Delegates. He served four terms in the House of Representatives before his election to the Senate.

While it is much too early to indulge in predictions about '74, if able, independent men like Mathias are knocked off next year the tragedy of Watergate will be multiplied by a geometric ratio.

His roots are deep in his native state and he has moderate independent means, an advantage in these times when the smell of outside money sets the bloodhounds of righteousness to baying.

As in other states the Democrats in Maryland are in disarray. They are snarled in the same web of campaign contributions and contributions in which Agnew is caught up.

The Vice President as a Marylander is continuing to make the correct political moves. He went down to the Eastern shore to speak at a bull roast for Arthur Bauman, the Republican candidate in a special election to fill the seat of William O. Mills.

Accused in a matter involving campaign contributions Mills committed suicide. Rated a victim of the current atmosphere, those who knew Mills were astonished, saying he could easily have refuted the charge.

What happens before the grand jury in Baltimore will determine far more than the fate of the former governor who was plummeted into national fame in the Vice Presidency. The outcome can set the stage not only for '74 but for 1976.

'Music, Music, Music' Again Fills Airwaves

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — It is indeed rare when a recording sells a million copies, lies in limbo for more than 15 years, and then resurfaces and heads for another million mark.

This is what appears to be happening to "Music, Music, Music," which Teresa Brewer recorded in the 1950s. At that time Miss Brewer had established herself as a rather unique artist with a lively and sometimes sassy voice.

"Music, Music, Music" won a Gold Record award in a short time after it began spinning on juke boxes and showing up every week on "Your Hit Parade."

Like most hit songs, "Music, Music, Music" eventually played itself out, being revived every now and then by nostalgic disc jockeys looking into the past.

Miss Brewer, who has been appearing in night clubs in recent years, sang the song in a London concert and it went over well. It was recorded on a single (Amsterdam AM 85027) and now "Music, Music, Music" is again a best seller and headed for the Gold Record award again.

The most delightful aspect of Miss Brewer's resurgence as a recording artist is the development of her voice as a blues instrument. While she was bringing up her four children, she became occupied with such great vocalists as Bessie Smith and set out to keep their memory alive.

Creates Mood

While Tessie has no illusions about sounding like Bessie, she is able to create the same mood. Listen to "The Songs of Bessie Smith" by Teresa Brewer (Flying Dutchman 10161) and you will be astounded to hear what ths once-childlike voice can do to bluesy lyrics.

On this recording, Thad Jones conducts a fine jazz combo led by Count Basie on piano.

Among the songs are "After You've Gone," "Down Hearted Blues," "Baby, Won't You Please Come Home," "St. Louis Blues," "I Ain't Got Nobody" and "Gimme a Pigfoot."

Miss Brewer also appears as a special guest vocalist on another fine album, "What A Wonderful World" by Bobby Hackett (Flying Dutchman FD 10159).

This is a good jazz album with such standards as "That's a Plenty," "Muskrat Ramble," "Ja Da," "Fidgety Feet" and "South Rampart Street Parade." Tessie joins in on "I've Got a Crush on You," "South Rampart," and "Melancholy Baby."

If Miss Brewer evokes images of Bessie Smith and sets up an atmosphere of the long-ago singers, you will certainly want to hear "Duke Ellington Presents Ivie Anderson" (Columbia KG 32064). Ivie was a star vocalist in Duke's band for 11 years—and what a band that was with Johnny Hodges, Harry Carney, Barney Bigard, Cootie Williams, Sonny Greer, Wellman Braud, Rex Stewart, Ben Webster and Ellington.

These selections were recorded before the hi-fi era but the sound quality is good. Songs include "It Don't Mean a Thing," "Mood Indigo," "Solitude," "When My Sugar Walks Down the Street," "Stormy Weather," and "There's A Lull in My Life," among many others in this two-LP package.

Tape Deck

Ampex has moved into the quadraphonic medium with "Tie a Yellow Ribbon Round the Old Oak Tree" by The Family Guitar Band (Ampex AMP L 7701), a four-channel cartridge. It uses the so-called discrete system and can be played only on equipment geared to reproduce this sound.

RECORD BREAKER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sandy Koufax, who retired from the Dodgers at 31, won the National League earned run average title five consecutive times, a record. In 1966 his ERA mark was 1.73. Koufax also hurled four no-hitters (the most by one man), including one perfect game.

Join Yacht Club— Don't Bring Boat

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — None of the 100 members of the Bristol Harbour Yacht Club in upper New York State can own a boat.

It may sound unreasonable, but that's the policy set by the founders of the unique yacht club on Canandaigua Lake in New York State's Finger Lakes region.

The policy was adopted by the yacht club founders after a study of such factors as boating traffic on Canandaigua and environmental preservation.

Their decision: The sacht club will buy the boats; the members can rent them.

The yacht club is a facility of Bristol Harbour Village, a planned 400 plus-acre year round leisure community, with 100 residents, overlooking Canandaigua Lake.

Morry Storm, chairman and director of the yacht club, explains how the decision was reached:

"We surveyed the number of boats on Canandaigua Lake, the noise and pollution potential. We learned that there were 1-½ to 1-¾ motorboats for every lake dweller. We talked with other residents around the lake.

"The decision was clear. The number of motor boats had to be limited at Bristol Harbour YC. It was decided that a fixed number, 6 powerboats and 12 sailboats, would be made available on an hourly or daily rental basis for the 1973 season."

JOB SWITCH

ATLANTA (UPI) — Commissioner Phil Woosman of the North American Soccer League formerly was general manager and coach of the Atlanta Chiefs.

DURABLE RECORD

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe DiMaggio's 56 consecutive game hitting streak for the New York Yankees in 1941 is one of the most durable records in the baseball roster. The National League record is held by Tommy Holmes of the old Boston Braves, who hit safely in 37 straight games in 1945.

Royal Ballet Opens Season

LONDON (UPI) — The Royal Ballet and the Royal Opera, both of which use historic Covent Garden as a base, have announced a number of new productions for the 1973-74 season.

The opera company will premiere three new productions and the first London performances of the English Opera Group's production of Benjamin Britten's Death i Venice.

A new production of Tannhauser, conducted by Colin Davis, opens the season in September. Richard Cassilly and Wolfgang Kassell share the title role.

There will be a new production of La Boheme in February with Katia Ricciarelli as Mimi and Placido Domingo as Rodolfo. In April Colin Davis conducts a new production of La Clemenza di Tito.

The Royal Ballet's plans include a new three-act ballet in March by Kenneth MacMillan based on the novel Manon Lescaut with music arranged from the works of Massenet and a new one-act ballet by MacMillan in July.

The Royal Ballet will open its 14th season in New York on May 7 with MacMillan's production of The Sleeping Beauty, at the Metropolitan. This will be followed by a two-week season at the Kennedy Center in Washington, starting May 28.

Kosher Foods For School

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Torah, the ancient Hebrew record of Jewish law and tradition, says, "Without sustenance, there is no learning."

This need for the stomach to be filled before the mind can be taught is being met by the National School Lunch Program (NSLP) in yeshivas, or Jewish parochial schools, in the New York metropolitan area, Chicago, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

One school, Yeshiva Dov Revel, Forest Hills, N.Y., is unusual in that nearly all its students, from kindergarten through eighth grade, participate in the lunch program.

Yeshivas face special problems in following kosher dietary laws and simultaneously serving Type A lunches as required by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service for schools receiving food and equipment through the lunch program.

Until kosher poultry became available recently through the program, yeshivas chose alternate sources of protein to satisfy the Type A protein requirement.

"The kids got so tired of the same things all the time—eggs, tuna, noodles and spaghetti, cottage cheese and fruit," said Mrs. Carrie Lipsig, school food service chief for the Board of Jewish Education.

So the board worked out an agreement with the Food and Nutrition Service Food Distribution Program and the New York State Department of Education to make kosher poultry a USDA donated commodity. The USDA buys processed Grade A chickens and turkeys through competitive bidding by kosher processors and the board foots the bill —about 26 cents extra per pound—for koshering the birds.

Kosher Poultry

The board then offers the finished product, as frozen chicken pieces and frozen turkey, to the 130 of its member yeshivas in the New York metropolitan area that take part in the federal lunch program. They serve a total of 34,000 lunches daily.

At Dov Revel, which is in a middle-class community in the borough of Queens, about 70 per cent of the pupils are from low income families. They are bused in from poorer surrounding neighborhoods. Under the lunch program regulations, many are eligible for free or reduced-price lunches.

Despite economic differences, the students share a common Jewish heritage, which includes religious training in school in addition to regular curriculum, plus kosher meals that conform to ancient dietary laws.

The poultry they're served is koshered by specially trained processors. The rabbi who is administrator of Dov Revel said koshering requires poultry and other animals to be slaughtered so they die instantly and painlessly.

Most poultry is dipped in boiling water to loosen the feathers, but to be kosher, the birds must also be soaked in cold water to prevent any blood from congealing. Then they are salted and drained to remove all traces of blood, which is not kosher and may not be eaten.

Koshering also requires that all facilities used in preparing and serving poultry and meat be kept separate from facilities used for other foods.

Kosher law prohibits the eating of dairy products in a meal with meat or for six hours afterward. But the Type A lunch calls for a half pint of milk to be served. Dov Revel meets both requirements by serving orange juice as a lunch beverage and the milk, with cookies, as a mid-morning snack.

On a typical chicken day at the school, lunch may consist of roast chicken, corn, tossed salad, bread and canned peaches. Turkey salad and fried chicken are among the other main dishes popular with the students.

By mid-1973, the New York area schools had used four carlots, or 71 tons of kosher poultry and Chicago, one carlot. Because the USDA can supply only full carlots, the board agreed to act as distributing agent for a small number of schools in Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey.

Are you a hazard to your wealth?

Everytime you hold your paycheck in your hot little hand, you promise yourself to salt something away. But man is weak. And what you want today seems a lot more important than worrying about what you'll need tomorrow.

Quit kidding yourself.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's easy. Just specify an amount you want set aside from your paycheck. Then that money is used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. You never see the money, so the temptation to spend it is removed. And with every paycheck, your money grows. So when you need it, you'll find you've got a sizeable amount stashed away. Enough to help out with what tomorrow may bring.

If you can't trust yourself, trust U.S. Savings Bonds. Then you'll have a fund in your future.

Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

County College Offers Creative Writing Course

Many people aspire to be writers; some have a particular story they want to tell or a cause they wish to promote - but don't know where to start to get it into print.

An evening Free-Lance Writing course scheduled for the fall semester at Middlesex Community College in Bedford will offer professional critique of manuscripts as well as the "how to" of sales.

Guest speakers will discuss free lance possibilities in writing for magazines and newspapers, public relations and related fields.

Since the class will offer individualized writing assignments, analysis, review and instruction, beginners are welcome. The person who wishes to assist an organization or charity promote its visibility will learn how to approach the project. The housewife looking for a small additional income, the beginning free lancer needing the stimulation of other writers, or the businessman seeking advice on how to turn his technical knoweldge into easily understood terms for the general public will all be served by this professionally-taught course.

Martha C. Wood, director of public relations at Middlesex County Hospital in Waltham, and a free-lance writer herself, will teach the class. Ms. Wood has just completed two terms as president of the Boston Women in Communications, Inc., the professional organization for women in all phases of communications, and will serve as professional advisor to that organization's Boston University chapter in the fall. She is listed in "Who's Who of American Women."

This three-credit class will meet at the College on Tuesday evenings from 6:45 to 9:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 24 for 15 weeks.

For information, registration or a catalog, write or call the Division of Continuing Education, Middlesex Community College, Springs Rd., Bedford, 01730, (617) 275-1016 or 275-8910, ext. 248 or 249.
